FSU To Host Conference On Use Of Information

The current "information explosion" and new tools and techniques which can be used by librarians to meet the need of the day will be discussed at the day-long conference on the "Information and Utilization of Information" opening Thursday on campus.

Business offices have used some of the new tools and techniques for years, according to Dr. Gerald Jahoda, professor of the FSU Library School and chairman. Librarians, librarianship students must now put some of the new tools into use to avoid a "cultural lag" with the vast amount of information they now have to handle.

Those registered to attend include librarians from universities and colleges, including junior colleges and libraries, and librarians or information handling specialists from industry and government agencies.

Speakers are expected from the Air Force at Maxwell Air Force Base and one librarian is expected from the Miami Herald.

The conference is believed to be the first of its kind held in the South, according to Jahoda, an information specialist who joined the FSU library school faculty last year to begin a program in this field. T.J. Smith of the Scientific and Technical Information Department of Lockheed-Gearge Co., Marietta, is co-chairman of the conference, which is jointly sponsored by FSU and the Georgia Chapter of the Special Libraries Association.

On the opening day's program in the Lecture Hall at Strozier Library Dr. Grover L. Rogers, dean of the School of Engineering Science at FSU, will discuss the importance of gathering habits and information needs in engineering. Other panelists on the same Thursday morning program will be Dr. Harry Brandt, assistant vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta and Dr. Werner Herz, professor of chemistry at FSU.

Recital Slated For Tomorrow

A violin-piano sonata recital by Ruth Fosselt, violinist, and Edward Kilenyi, pianist, will be the first musical event of the new year at FSU. Kilenyi, a member of the FSU faculty for 10 years, and Miss Fosselt, a visiting artist in violin at FSU, will appear at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in Opperman Hall. The recital is open to the public.

Sonatas by Schumann, Faure, Bach and Grieg are on the program. It will be the first violin-piano sonata recital to be held at FSU in 11 years. In the last, Ernst von Dohnanyi of the faculty and Albert Spaulding appeared together.

Kilenyi, who has recorded more than 100 works for Columbia, Pathe and Remington records, has been giving recitals during the winter in Allentown and Philadelphia, Pa., Detroit, Milwaukee, Savannah and Albany, Ga., Columbia and Beaufort, S.C., Laurinburg and Greensboro, N.C., and Jacksonville and Madison, Fla.

Miss Fosselt has appeared as a soloist or recitalist on seven European tours and she has appeared 64 times with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in America.

Dramatist James Forsyth To Be Visiting Professor

James Forsyth, the British dramatist and painter, has accepted an appointment as visiting distinguished professor for this trimester, and a new play by Forsyth will be premiered by the FSU Theater March.

Dr. Wayne C. Minnick, head of the FSU Speech Dept., said Forsyth will lecture here and conduct a class in dramatic writing for stage and television (Speech 453). The public is invited to attend the class and to audit the course.

Forsyth was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1903 and received a degree from the Glasgow School of Arts in 1934. From 1937 through 1940 Forsyth worked with C. K. Ogden on the Basic English Project at London University. He served in the Scots Guards during the war.

In 1946 he was invited by Sir Laurence Olivier and Tyrone Guthrie to be the resident playwright for "The Old Vic" Theatre in London. He was dramatist in residence at Howard University in Washington, D.C. He was director of theater at Tufts College, Boston, Mass. this past summer.

Forsyth has written many plays which have been performed in America and England. Walter Kerr has said of Forsyth's "Emmanuel" that it is a "Navitty drama that is tender and human... Emmanuel brings to the Navitty story a richness of color and a sense of wonder that makes it vibrant." Howard Taubman has written that "In a time when poetic drama is regarded often as a pretension, Forsyth has had the courage to tackle it, and the art to use it and give fresh dramatic value...."

Some of Forsyth's plays are "Emmanuel," "Heloise," "Dear Wormwood," "Bronze Horse," "Nameless One of Europe," "Seven Scenes for York," and "The Other Heart." Forsyth will select his new play to be premiered at FSU upon his arrival.

Season tickets for the Artist Series Winter Concert Season are now on sale at the Westcott Ticket Office. Season tickets, priced at $9, are available from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. They will remain on sale until Jan. 24. Opening attraction will be The Ballet Folklorico of Mexico Jan. 23 and 24.

Season coupon books may be ordered by mail, according to Mrs. Kathryn Vernon of the office of special events. Tickets to each of the individual attractions, if available after students have obtained theirs, will be placed on sale two or three days before the performance at $3.50 each.

Ballet Folklorico of Mexico, a 75 member troupe of dancers, singers and native instrumentalists, appeared at the Paris Festival of Nations where it was hailed as a sensational show. Other attractions of the winter season Artist Series include "The Seven Ways of Love," a new dramatization by S.N. Berham, produced by Paul Gregory. It stars Joseph Cotten and Patricia Medina and will play at FSU March 4 and 5. The third production will be the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William Steinberg, March 11 and 12.

Over 2100 students have taken the oral polio vaccine in the two days it has been made available to the FSU student body. Dr. C.R. Gentry, director of the University Health Service, announced.

The oral vaccine which is administered on lumps of sugar is being distributed under the sponsorship of the student government. Students can obtain the vaccine until January 10th at a charge of fifty cents.

Distribution points have been set up in the Main Hall of Westcott, at the infirmary, and in the post office at the student center.

The vaccine being used is the new Trivalent vaccine. This type of vaccine is considered to be vastly superior to the Salik vaccine.

Gentry said that oral vaccine is recommended by public health authorities even though the individual has had prior immunization with the Salik vaccine.

Gentry also said that it is anticipated that polio immunization will be compulsory for FSU students in the near future. Gentry recommended that students take advantage of this painless and economical method of protecting themselves against polio. According to Gentry the price of the vaccine if received through a private physician will cost approximately $3. The vaccine was first made available at registration. Over 400 students took the vaccine on Saturday and by noon on Monday an estimated 1400 students had received immunization.

Tests have shown the vaccine to be safe even if an overdose should be taken. Oral polio vaccines have been administered to millions of persons, with little or no after-effects directly attributed to the vaccine. The vaccine is considered necessary for immunization. The second dose is taken approximately 8 weeks after the first and gives protection for 4 years.

Students who may want additional information on the oral vaccine should contact the FSU Infirmary.

Business School Gets $1,000 Gift

The FSU School of Business has received a gift of $1,000 from Morrison Food Service.

The presentation was made to Dean Harries by John W. Morris, president of Morrison Food Service, with half of it to be used for support of scholarship activities in the Department of Hotel and Restaurant Management and the other half to be given as a scholarship to a deserving student.

"The University is deeply appreciative of the support given by Morrison's Food Service in advancing education for the hospitality industry," Dean Rovetta said.

Registration Cut By One Day

One of the three scheduled days of registration for the new trimester has been canceled because more than 4000 students paid fees for the term at the end of the first trimester.

The 4000 students, having at least 2.0 averages, registered and paid their fees during the final days of last trimester, thereby extending their Christmas vacation, and enabling them to return to school with the start of classes today.

In addition to the 4000 who filled out cards and paid fees, another 2000 students completed registration procedures except for the payment of fees, said Registrar Murray W. Kenna.

Registration was planned for Friday and Saturday, January 3 and 4, and for Monday, January 6, but the Friday registration was canceled. On Saturday and Monday registration was conducted from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Shakespeare Tryouts

Tryouts for "Love's Labour's Lost," by William Shakespeare which will be the first FSU Theatre production, will be tonight and tomorrow at 7 p.m. in Conradi Theatre.

Director of the play will be Dr. Arthur H. Dorlag of the Speech Dept., who has said that a large cast will be needed.

Sophomore Council

There will be a meeting of the Sophomore Council tonight at 9 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium. All members are requested to attend.

Seminole Flyers

The FSU Seminole Flyers Club will hold its first meeting of the year tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in room 102, Business Bldg. All members and interested persons are invited to attend.

Faculty Studies Oceans

Speed Limit Posted On Woodward Crosswalk

A 66,000 square mile triangle of the tropical ocean has been under close observation for the past 15 months by FSU meteorologists who expect that the data recorded will unlock many secrets about both tropical and temperate weather.

It is well known, said Michael Garstang, who has been in charge of field work for the FSU Barbados Project, that the tropical oceans, having soaked up a tremendous quantity of solar energy, provide tropical weather systems, including the giant hurricanes and typhoons, with the "fuel" on which they run. They are,

FSU's project, Garstang said, is designed to obtain answers to such basic questions in meteorology as these: How much energy is made available by the tropical oceans to the tropical atmosphere? How is the heat energy of the oceans converted to the energy of motion to drive the storms? (This heat energy is either in the form of latent heat, which is released when water vapor is condensed, forming a cloud, or in the form of sensible heat transferred from the warmed ocean to the cooler air.)

How much of this energy is needed

Barbados study and Garstang was selected for the field work.

As its "laboratory," FSU selected a series of islands lying on a north-south string — Guadeloupe, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Grenada and Trinidad — just off the coast of South America, with the island of Barbados lying about 100 miles east of the center of the string.

Barbados, which was equipped with elaborate radar receiving equipment because the central station for a triangle with its apex 275 miles to the east of Barbados. At that point during two months of the survey (the past August and September) the 120-foot research vessel R/V Crawford from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution provided an additional "island" observatory. The entire triangle under observation was about the size of the state of Missouri.

A variety of observational tools were used to record rainfall, wind velocity and direction, pressure, relative humidity, temperature, cloud formation and other weather data as storm systems moved westward from the apex of the triangle following the course of the trade winds which brought Columbus to this region.

Balloons were launched to transmit data from heights up to 100,000 feet; other balloons were tethered at constant heights in the fashion of barrage balloons to transmit additional telemetered reports; standard rainfall gauges were used, bringing in 2,000,000 readings during the 15 months. During part of the period of observation five large aircraft were available for on-the-spot checks of interesting weather patterns and pictures transmitted by the Tiros satellite circling 100 miles above the earth became available as an overhead check of the radar and air reconnaissance reports.

In order to work out the physics of energy use by tropical storms detailed studies had to be made of individual storms. This was necessary, Garstang said, for the same reason that the number of cylinders, gas consumption and other mechanical details of an auto must be known to determine how many miles and how fast it will run on a given amount of fuel.

FSU's research drew grants totaling $106,000 and the loan of equipment valued at several times this amount. The Army Research Office put $66,000 in cash and an expensive radar system into the research and Esso Oil Research and Engineering Division put $40,000 into the project.

Students and faculty members on campus who have not noticed the new speed zone on Woodward Ave. may be paying more than the usual amount during registration if they exceed the new limit of 15 miles an hour.

The slow zone for pedestrian crossing on Woodward has been marked by signs along a two-block area south of Tennessee St. and is in effect 24 hours a day.

The zone was established by agreement of the Tallahassee Police Department and FSU as a means of protecting pedestrians crossing the street between two widely used parts of the campus.

The 15-mile-an-hour zone extends from just south of Tennessee St. north of Park Ave. extension near Magnolia Hall.

MICHAEL GARSTANG UNPACKS CHARTS

in fact, "the heat engine for the entire atmosphere," tropical and non-tropical.

Yet as far as meteorological data is concerned, the tropics are largely unexplored. Observations are few and are scattered on remote and infrequent islands and meteorological data in the tropics is extremely sparse.

FSU's Department of Meteorology specializes, among other things, in tropical meteorology and so when support became available from the US Army Research Office for a study of tropical regions two years ago FSU was selected for the study. FSU selected the Barbados area near the eastern extremity of the Caribbean Sea for its observations.

This is an area typical of the tropics throughout the world, with the exception of the Indian Ocean which is under the influence of the monsoons. The observations just completed, said Garstang, represent the first coordinated study of tropical ocean meteorology outside of one now in a der way in the monsoonal region.

to drive tropical storms? How much of the energy left over after doing this job is transferred to temperate regions to drive the storms of these regions?

Insofar as temperate climates are concerned, the FSU study may have an important bearing on long-range weather forecasting. This is true, Garstang said, because the area of the world between 38 degrees north and 38 degrees south latitude is one where there is a surplus of solar energy soaked up by the oceans, while the area nearer the poles is one of a solar energy deficit. There is a constant transfer of energy, therefore, from lower to higher latitudes and the entire atmosphere, not just that of the tropics, is driven from the tropical oceans.

Dr. Noel E. LaSeur, FSU professor of meteorology and a specialist in tropical meteorology who for several years has flown into tropical storms for research with the National Hurricane Research Center, was selected to direct the Bar-

$500 Grant

The Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation at Florida State University has received a gift of $500 from Ellis Mize of Panama City. It is the third such gift he has made to the Foundation.

Mize, who began his successful career on the Apalachicola River, was for many years a resident of Fairbanks in Alachua County, where he engaged in Naval Stores production. He has given a number of scholarships to deserving students and is the founder of a revolving fund to help forestry students. He also has donated substantially to the Florida Sheriff's Boys' Ranch.

Dr. Mode Stone, president of the Foundation and Dean of the FSU School of Education, said, "Such response as that of Mr. Mize exemplifies in its finest form the true spirit of Christmas."

Film Club Tonight

The Foreign Film Club presents "The Law Is the Law," a French production at 8 tonight in Western Auditorium.

Season tickets are on sale for $15 for the remainder of the trimester showings.

Groups will be sold tickets for the cents per person and there is a minimum limit for each group.

Alpha Phi Omega

A special meeting of Alpha Phi Omega will be held tonight at 7:00, President Luther Kramer attended. All brothers should attend.

Attention!

All Opportunity or Adventure Seekers

The chance of a lifetime is being offered to any student who wishes to be (1) a success in life, (2) a guy who knows all the inside lines and (3) a "MMOC."

The Florida Flambeau invites students interested in writing news, sports, features, columns or working on page layouts, rewrites, or just pushing the broom to fill out the form below and drop it into any of the innumerable campus mailboxes (in an envelope, please... no postage necessary) and we will take care of the rest.

No experience is necessary... what we really want is company (it's lonely out here), but we are willing to accept people with experience gleefully.

1964: YEAR OF DECISION

For here we go into 1964, which shows every sign of being a distinguished year. First off, it is the only year since which ends with the Figure 4. Of course, when it comes 1964 is 1964, though distinguished, can hardly compare with this, most people agree, had not just one, not just two but three Figure 4's! This, I'll wager, is a record that will last for at least a thousand years!

It was, incidentally, notable for many other things. It was, for example, the year in which the New York Giants of the Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series. As we know, the New York Giants have since moved to San Francisco and the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City. There is no doubt at present to move Chicago to Phoenix, or, not the baseball team. Phoenix, in turn, would of course move to Chicago. It is felt that the change would be a boon for residents of both cities. Many Chicago folks, for example, have never seen an iguana. Many Phoenix folks, on the other hand, have never seen a frostbite.

There are, of course, certain difficulties connected with a total shift of this size. For instance, to move Chicago to Phoenix, to move Lake Michigan, this, in itself, presents a problem, what with modern scientific advances like iguanas and the French cuff. But if you will look at the other side, you will find Lake Michigan is attached to all the other lakes, which in turn are attached to the St. Lawrence River, which in turn is attached to the Atlantic Ocean. You start dragging Lake Michigan to Phoenix and, willy-nilly, you'll be dragging all that other stuff too. This would make our British allies terribly cross, and I can't say as I blame them. But yourself in their place. What if, for example, you were a British costermonger who had been saving and scripping all year for a summer holiday at Brighton Beach, and then when you got to Brighton Beach there wasn't any ocean? There you'd be with your inner tube and snorkel and nothing to do all day but dance the Lambeth Walk. This, you must agree, would not help make you NATO-minded!

I appeal most earnestly to the residents of Chicago and Phoenix to reconsider. I know it's no bond of cherries going through life without ever seeing an iguana or a frostbite, but I ask you—Chicagoans, Phoenixians—is it too big a price to pay for preserving the unity of the free world?

I feel sure that if you search your hearts, you will make the right decision, for all of us—whether we live in frostbitten Chicago, iguana-infested Phoenix, or narrow-lapelled New Haven—are first and foremost Americans!

Well, I digress. We were speaking of 1964, our new year. And now it's 1964. There is, for one thing, new pleasure in Marlboro Cigarettes. How, you ask, can there be new pleasure in Marlboro when that fine flavorful blend of tobaccos, that clean elegant Sedateflair flavor, have not been altered? The answer is simple: each time you light a Marlboro, it is like the first time. The flavor is such that age cannot wither nor custom stale. Marlboro never pulls, never jades, never dwindles into dull routine. Each puff, each cigarette, each pack, each carton, makes you glad all over again that you are a Marlboro smoker! Therefore, Marlboro in hand, let us march confidently into 1964. May good fortune attend our ventures! May serenity reign! May Chicago and Phoenix soon recover from their disappointment and join our bright evanescence into a brave tomorrow!

Today

Drop and Add Periods will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Suwannee Room through January 13.

WFSU-FM will present "Tourism," an investigation into the use of U.S. money in Latin America, particularly in Mexico, told through interviews, this afternoon at 4 p.m.

Dr. Fred Crawford, Director of Research, Mental Health, Texas State Board of Health, will speak on "Attitudes and Values Towards Mental Health in Latin America, particularly in Mexico, told through interviews, this afternoon at 4 p.m.

Conrad Paulson, Professor of Law, Columbia U., will present "The Goals of the Juvenile Court and the Goals of Law," over WFSU-FM at 8 p.m.

The FSU Film Club will show "The Law is the Law," a French film, in Westcott Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m.

Sophomore Council will hold a meeting at 9 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Gulnar Bosch To Visit East

The head of FSU's Department of Art, Dr. Gulnar Bosch, will be on leave during the second trimester in order to visit parts of the East and Middle East.

Bosch, who is an authority on Islamic bookbindings, will deliver a paper in New Delhi during the 26th International Congress of Orientalists. Her subject will be "Medieval Islamic Bookbindings: Doubtless As a Dating Factor." The Congress of Orientalists began January 4 and will end Friday.

During her tour of the East she will visit several libraries containing Islamic texts pertinent to her interests.

A member of the faculty since 1960, Dr. Bosch formerly was chairman of the Department of Fine Arts at Louisiana State University. Her doctoral dissertation at the University of Chicago, where she received her Ph.D. degree in 1952, was on the subject of Islamic bookbindings from the 11th to the 17th centuries.

FSU's Lansdale To Lead Seminar

Dr. Robert T. Lansdale, professor of social welfare at FSU, has been appointed visiting professor at the University of Maryland School of Social Work for the spring semester.

He will take leave from his duties here to conduct a seminar dealing with social work in community mental health.

Lansdale was commissioner of social welfare for New York State from 1943 to 1953 and served on the faculty of the New York School of Social Work at Columbia University from 1937 to 1943. Earlier, he had been in federal service as assistant to the commissioner of Indian Affairs and administrative assistant in the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

He is a graduate of Oberlin College and received a master's degree in social work from Columbia University. He did advanced work in sociology at the University of Michigan. St. Lawrence University awarded him an honorary LL.D. degree.

A CLASSMATE OF BILL CULLOM'S AT FSU

... Philip Hunt (right), soon will be sitting at his desk as director of Auxiliary Services. Cullom, who has served in the position since 1958, has accepted a position with Ryder Truck Rental Inc. of Miami. He will be responsible for the company's territory from Perry to Pensacola. Both are FSU graduates and entered FSU in 1954. Hunt interrupted his studies to go into professional baseball with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He holds a bachelor's and master's from FSU.

Cullom To Leave FSU, Enter Private Business

William O. Cullom, director of Auxiliary Services at FSU since 1958, is leaving the University to accept a management position in private business.

Philip Hunt of Tallahassee became the new director of Auxiliary Services on Dec. 19, Hunt is an FSU graduate and former captain of the Seminole baseball team.

Cullom holds a bachelor's degree from FSU in management and finance. After graduation in 1958, he assumed the position as director of Auxiliary Services. He was a center on the FSU football team in 1954 and 1955, was president of the sophomore class, president of OOK, and was selected the most outstanding male in the class of 1958.

Hunt entered FSU in 1954 but interrupted his studies to go into professional baseball with the Los Angeles Dodgers organization. He received the BS degree in Geology in 1960 and the master's degree in Management in 1961 from FSU. He was a member of the FSU baseball team for four years. Before accepting the position with FSU, Hunt was with a private business research firm in Tallahassee.

FSU Alumnas Wins Contest

There were entries in the magazine's annual contest from 48 states and 27 foreign countries.

She is the wife of Dan Paulk Branch, an architect formerly of Tallahassee and now in private practice at Gainesville, where he also teaches advanced architecture at the University of Florida. The Branches went to Mykonos during the first half of 1963 on a grant he received from Columbia University.

Mrs. Branch received her bachelor's of music education degree from FSU in 1954 and taught public school music in Miami for four years. She received her MA degree in library work from FSU in August, 1959. There was one other Florida winner in the contest, Eighth place in the black and white division went to Elizabeth M. Bear of Gainesville.

Robert Froemke Elected Head

Dr. Robert L. Froemke, head of the management department, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Southern Management Association.

The Association is a regional division of the Academy of Management. These organizations are composed of persons who teach and do research in the area of management. The election of officers was held at the annual meeting in Roanoke, Va.

Lecture Series Opens Tonight

Dr. Fred Crawford of the Texas State Department of Health will deliver at 8 p.m. tonight the first of a series of lectures sponsored by FSU's Institute of Social Research. Crawford, who is research chief for the department's Office of Mental Health, will discuss attitudes and values of the lower social classes toward mental health in his lecture, which will be in the Library Lecture Hall. The lecture is free and open to the public.

The visiting speaker obtained his Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Texas. He has taught at Texas Technological College and Trinity University and has served as research associate and field director of the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health.

Parking Lot

The parking lot located on the corner of Woodward and Call streets will be closed for painting tomorrow.

We, the makers of Marlboros, available in soft pack or flip-top box in all fifty states of the Union, wish to join Old Man in extending good wishes for a happy and peaceful 1964.

Portrait Of A Baseball Coach

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Staff

What is a baseball manager really like?

In search of the answer to this question, I interviewed former Major Leaguer Fred Hatfield recently named to manage the Seminoles in their next season. Coach Hatfield has a way about him that makes one at home the minute he walks into his office.

As a Major League player, Coach Hatfield broke in with the Boston Red Sox in 1950. He later played with the Chicago White Sox, the Cleveland Indians, and the Cincinnati Redlegs before retiring in 1957.

Coach Hatfield says that his biggest thrill was his first game. "I guess that every boy dreams of playing in the big leagues. It was really a thrill for me to break in with guys like Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr." He said that hitting his first home run in Yankee Stadium almost ranks high. "The press almost always plays up home runs in New York."

Coach Hatfield also has a great minor league record. In his first year at Little Rock in the Southern Association he piloted his team to a second place finish, and won the playoffs. He was nominated for minor league manager of the year. His next year at Little Rock also produced a second place finish.

When Paul Richards was named General Manager of the Houston Colts, Coach Hatfield went along with him. He was named manager of Modesto in the California League. In a split season, his team finished second both halves, but had the best overall record.

The past season he started out as a player-coach at Denver in the Pacific Coast League. He took over at Jamestown in the New York-Pennsylvania League in June. Former Coach Danny Litwhiler also coached at Jamestown.

He says the best players he ever coached were Pete Ward and Dave Nicolson of the White Sox, Bob Savrine of the Orioles and John Bateman of the Colts.

ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT FSU

Coach Hatfield is very enthusiastic about FSU. "I've never seen any university grow as fast as FSU. Within ten years it will be in the top ten scholastically. Football, basketball and track all have good programs. I hope I can maintain the high standards Coach Litwhiler has established."

He said that he is looking forward to the coming season. "It will be interesting to watch all the boys in competition for positions. I haven't had the benefit of seeing any of the boys play yet, so the one who shows me the most will play. In baseball things are always changing. You can't play on past laurels, you either get better or worse."

When asked about FSU's chances, he replied, "We have the potential to be better than last year. We have to solve the pitching problem. Pitching is 80% of baseball. We've got to come up with a few from somewhere. It will also be hard to replace Woody Woodward. He was an all-around player. On the bright side, our strong points should be the outfield and first, second and third base. We've got a great schedule too. We're trying to get night games for those tired of watching the black box."

Coach Hatfield is married, and has a son, Jimmy, who is thinking of attending FSU. His hobbies are fishing and hunting.

Cagers Break Even

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

In Holiday basketball action, Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminole Cagers won the games and lost three and finished third in the Gator Bowl Invitational Tournament. The Tribe got off to a good start with impressive wins over Tampa and nationally ranked Tulsa before heading to Jacksonville for the Gator Bowl get-together, where they lost to the Air Force Academy, but beat Manhattan. The New Year proved anything but happy, as they met defeat twice on a swing through Virginia.

The Seminole celebrated the end of the first trimester by thumping Tampa at Tully Gym, 107-61. The winless Spartans used a man-to-man defense throughout the game. The Tribe hit 47 of 78 shots for 60.2%, quite a step above the 38.8% managed by the Cagers in the first five outings.

Jerry Shirley led the scoring spree with a 21 point performance. Sophomore Gary Schull was close with 20 markers and 13 rebounds.

Two nights later, the 23rd, Tulsa, ranked in the top twenty of the nation, came visiting from Oklahoma. In a game close until the last few minutes, the Tribesmen, led by Bill Peacock's 22 points, upset the Golden Hurricane's 91-76.

The Hurricane's, fresh from a 60-82 conquest of Florida, had just lost to St. Bonaventure and New York University. The lead changed hands 21 times in the first half with the Tribe ahead 48-45 at the buzzer. FSU went ahead for good with 9:46 seconds left in the game when Pete Gonzalez flipped in an underhand shot to win it 64-64. The Tribe then went into a full-court press and widened the lead to 74-67 two minutes later.

With heads-up defensive play by Captain Pete Rogers and Gary Schull, FSU turned the game into a run-away. Bill Peacock, another of the team's six sophomores, ended the scoring with an easy layup, without a Tulsa player within 20 feet of him.

The Tribe's top scorer, Tulsa's Bill Kusleka, had 26 points. Jerry Shirley had 11 points, while Schull finished with 10.

The first game of the Gator Bowl Tournament, on the 26th, proved to be a disaster. The Seminole's, outmaneuvered and out-hustled by the Air Force Academy, led only twice in the game, and lost 85-53. The Falcons employed a shifting man-to-man defense against the shuffle which they use in offense. The Tribe had 36% of its shots, with the leading scorer being Guard Pete Gonzalez, who had 11 markers, and Schull with 10. Shirley was held to two points.

In the consolation match with Manhattan, the Seminoles earned the third spot in the standings with a 85-81 win, taking the lead at 16:15 and never relinquishing it. It was a heart-stopper in the fading minutes, when the Jaspers, behind as much as 11 points, fought back to tie and had several lovely opportunities to pull ahead.

With 2:15 left, FSU had an 80-79 bulge. Schull missed a 20 footer and Manhattan pulled off the rebound. Joe DeSantos missed the shot that would have put the Jaspers ahead, but an offensive foul by Schull provided Manhattan with the ball with 54 seconds left.

Larry Lembo, the games leading scorer with 29 points, missed a 20 footer with 37 seconds to go, Shirley fouled as he went for the rebound, put through two free throws for an 82-79 lead. Manhattan trimmed it to 82-81 with 24 seconds remaining on a field goal by Pete.

Gonzalez was fouled and sank two free throws. Shirley added another to the Tribe cause on a technical foul call for the final 83-77.

The University of Miami's Seminoles, with 26 point rebounds, Shirley had 11 points, 10 rebounds.

On a swing through Virginia the first of this month the Tribe before Richmond, 67-61, and 83-77, to bring their record to 3-1.

The University of Miami's Seminoles will attempt to hand the inoles their first home defeat on Saturday night at Tully. Leading visitors will be the nation's leading scorer, Rick Barry.

Gallery Shows Architecture Too Revolutionary To Build

Photo panels of 45 twentieth-century architectural projects considered too revolutionary to build, will go on exhibition in the FSU Art Gallery tomorrow. Organized by the Department of Circulating Exhibitions of the Museum of Modern Art, New York, the exhibition is being circulated throughout the United States with the aid of a grant from Columbia Broadcasting System Foundation Inc. The exhibit at FSU will remain up until Jan. 30.

The work of 30 architects is represented in 74 large photo panels supplemented by explanatory text. Included in the 45 projects are designs for underground cities, buildings incorporating roads, cities built in water, bridges, theaters, and a scheme to decorate and improve the night.

Among the forms shown are glass terraces, concrete bowls, conical structures, mushroom-shaped houses, spirals and a building shaped like a flight of steps. They range in date from 1916 to the present. The introduction includes work by Leonardo da Vinci, H.F. Jansz and other architects of the past, some of whose visions have proved prophetic.

Some of the projects indicate the architect's concern for social problems, such as population expansion. Japanese architect Kiyonori Kikutani proposes a marine city of cylinders floating in the ocean and enclosing "farms" for the cultivation of sea food. William Katavolos envisions buildings that would expand and absorb chemicals and harden into a permanent structure, also to be floating in water. To make use of desert sites, James Fitzgibbon and Charles suggest a bridge city carrying similar roads and large-scale apartment houses.

Because Of Trimester

FSU Students Get Chance To Work At World's Fair

By SALLY YANNE HUFFAKER
Flambeau Staff Writer

The trimester system will provide FSU students with an opportunity to work at the World's Fair which opens April 22 in New York City. "FSU students will have the best chance of any college students placing people in jobs at the fair," stated Dr. James F. Carr, Director of Financial Aid. Carr received information from many concessioners and exhibitors after he informed them by personal letter of the availability of FSU students.

Applications and addresses of people to contact about employment may be obtained in Room 304 Longmire. Interested students should apply as soon as possible.

Two of the largest employers who answered Carr's letter were Greyhound Bus Lines and Brass Rail, Inc. Greyhound will be employing drivers, conductors, ticket salesmen, guides and information clerks. Brass Rail will need employees for gift stands, specialty restaurants. Seven-Up and other pavilions whose food will be catered by Brass Rail.

Another large employer will be Pinkerton National Detective Agency. Pinkerton's will staff the World's Fair, personnel identification and admissions.

Many employees will help employees find housing and some provide meals. Uniforms will be worn by most employees.

Naval Team To Visit FSU

The Naval Aviation Procurement team from Jacksonville, headed by Lieutenant Commander Mark and Lieutenant King, will be on campus beginning Monday and ending Friday.

The team will be located outside of the University Post Office and in the cafeteria to interview qualified men who want to earn an officer's commission and fly with the fleet. Interested students may take the exam by contacting one of the team members during the team's visit on campus. Students who have completed three-fourths of the work for their degree are invited to inquire into the Naval Aviation Officer Candidate (AOC), Naval Aviation Officer Candidate (NAOC) and Naval Aviation Officer Candidate Air Intelligence (NAOC(AI)) programs.

Students who have completed 45 trimester hours of work are offered to inquire into the Naval Aviation Cadet (NAVACD) and Officer Candidate Airman (OCAN) programs.

Receptions Changed

Faculty receptions originally planned for the weekend of Nov. 24, in Cawthon and Landis halls, will now be held Sunday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. All recipients of invitations for the Nov. 24th receptions are invited to these receptions.

DeGraff Hall will hold a faculty reception the same date and time. Invitations have gone out for DeGraff's reception.

Rotary Fellowships Offer Graduate Study Abroad

Rotary Foundation Fellowships worth from $3000 to $5000 will be available to students who have earned a degree or will earn a degree by the time the Fellowship is effective. On the FSU campus fellowships are available to students from every state and from every country of the Free World. Applications for Sept., 1965 must be completed before April, 1964.

Rotary Foundation Fellowships are awarded to young men for a year's graduate study abroad. The year's graduate study is to provide students with the opportunity to interpret their home countries within the country of study and upon return home to foster an understanding of their country of study.

An appointee is required to have a friendly personality and the ability to speak in public to enable him to make effective contacts abroad and at home. He should have a high scholastic ability and attain and hold a Bachelor's degree (or its equivalent) by the time the Fellowship is to begin. He must have the ability to read, write and speak the language of the country in which he is to study.

In addition to the regular fellowships a maximum of 10 additional Rotary Foundation Fellowships will be awarded each year. They have the same requirements and features as the regular fellowships with the following exceptions. Language ability need not be complete but applicants must have willingness and ability to learn the language of the country of study. A bachelor's degree (or equivalent) is preferred but requirement may be waived in exceptional circumstances. Applicant need not reside in a country in which there are Rotary clubs but he must be sponsored by a Rotary club in a city where he is known. Applicant need not be a citizen of his country of permanent residence. He may be male or female. There is no maximum age limit for these fellowships.

Students interested in earning one of the Fellowships for foreign study can secure additional information from R.K. Shaw, Business Manager, 203 Westcott Building, FSU.

Exam Application Deadline Nears

National Teacher Examinations will be given at FSU Saturday, Feb. 15, and prospective teachers have only about ten days left in which to file applications for the tests with the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

Applications for the examinations must be sent to the Princeton office by Jan. 17, according to Dr. G. Emerson Tully, director of the University Test Service at FSU. Both the applications and bulletins of information describing registration procedures and containing representative test questions may be obtained from the University Test Service, 203 Education Building, FSU.

No Parking

Ivy Way, from Call Street to Dodd Hall, will be closed to parking tomorrow so that new parking boundaries can be painted. However, the street will be open for moving traffic.

Artist Tickets

The first Artist Series of the trimester will be Jan. 24 and 25 instead of Jan. 23 and 24, as appeared in yesterday's Flambeau.

Students do not have to buy tickets, as Artist Series events are included in student registration. Season tickets are available to faculty and staff only at the present time.

Grecian Columns

Sororities and fraternities are reminded that the deadline for the Grecian Column copy is 5 p.m. today for the column in Friday's issue.

Food Service?

Why, in the last moments of each trimester, with the shadows of final exams looming ahead must students be forced to bear unusual inconvenience and sometimes hunger just at the time when the student needs to be at peak performance?

More than one week before the last exam was to be administered at the end of last trimester, the hundreds of students who daily seek sustenance in the Suwannee Room were forced to spend many extra minutes and sometimes hours waiting in the long lines of the already half-closed Seminole Club. At the beginning of exam week itself the Student Center also closed leaving only the Seminole Club to handle all students who wished to eat on campus, including those who wished to eat pre-paid food plan meals.

The early closing of the Student Center was of particular concern to men living in Smith and Kellum Halls. These students, many of them on the food-plan, found it necessary to walk the long mile between the dorms and the Seminole Club six times in one day in order merely to get meals.

This shuffling requires an average of 20 minutes per trip or about two hours per day in walking alone. Any student can recognize the value of two hours, especially during exam week.

If those students who are on campus during exam week are not enough to support full food services operation, could not the cafeterias that do remain open be more strategically arranged? If the Student Center cannot remain open, why not the Smith Hall Snack Bar?

'High Ideals' Not Used

Florida State students face one of the most challenging trimesters in the university's history, and one of the most challenging years in our nation's history. On our campus 1964 promises to give both the students and the faculty the chance to affirm themselves as human beings in at least one respect. That is of course in regard to the picketing which will resume at the off-campus restaurants.

So called "liberal" professors have often voiced their loud support of human rights and, in the sanctity of the classroom, proclaimed their horror at the way in which Florida officials have brutalized and degraded the Negro people. Few if any of these liberals have taken an active part in meaningful racial demonstrations. They prefer to write letters or sign petitions where their names, among so many others, will be inconspicuous.

The fear of Board of Control repression or Westcott disapproval has much more meaning to faculty "liberals" than abstract slogans (all men are equal before the law, or love one's fellow man) which the more enlightened have long ago rejected as "impractical." The case of the mass of FSU students is hardly better.

The conservative faculty members find it easier to practice the type of veiled hatred they preach. While it may cost "liberals" his job, or at the very least his "dignity" to picket, it costs nothing to break a picket line and sneer at unworthy agitators who carry such outrageous signs as "Negroes are human too," "I believe in equality, what do you believe in?" or "Is this really the land of the free?"

In this true conservative fashion we find the highest ranked members of, for example, the Music Department, or the Administration, gleefully breaking the picket lines for human equality. We find both the student and faculty leaders of certain campus political groups doing the same thing. The most common excuse given is that the conservative must uphold the rights of the individual over those of evil and sometimes "communist" minorities who seek to undermine the constitution. Sometimes, as in the case of the campus conservative, the highest ideals (individual rights and the freedoms of the Constitution) are used to justify the most unworthy of causes (human rights vs property rights, and segregation which is one of the most serious and inhuman forms of degradation).

No Need For Stop Light

To the Editor:

Before a campaign gets started to have a traffic light installed at the corner of Tennessee and Dewey, I suggest that those who are so concerned for the safety of the students look into the matter a little deeper. THERE IS ABSOLUTELY NO NEED FOR IT!

In 1960 when Tennessee St. was four-laned this was a burning issue. It was solved in a practical manner, which resulted in a safe crossing for the students and uninterrupted traffic on Tennessee St. A tunnel was constructed, at considerable cost to the State, under Tennessee St. It is located midway between the Busines and Conradi buildings on the south side and between the SAE house and deGraft Hall on the north side.

Many students still dodge traffic in order to cross Tennessee St. This may be due to laziness, ignorance of the tunnel or the students' way of living dangerously on a small budget. For whatever reason, the choice is the students'. If anyone is hurt crossing Tennessee St., it will be his own fault.

Former columnists and student who wants to write columns, either guest or regular, are invited to submit material for publication to the "Flambeau."

Divide et Impera

To the Editor:

Replying to Mr. William Fairley's Letter to the Editor in which attacked my first letter, I would like to remind him that it is better for him not to become so hostile against Indonesia merely because of a Malaysian issue.

Do you realize that the U.S. is nothing directly concerned in the Malaysian dispute. Besides, I would like him to realize that those news sources he mentioned have been biased in their reports on most of the things concerning Malaysian issues, in the favor of the British. Maybe it's hard for you to understand what I am talking about.

When Johansen fought against a person some time ago, mostly "white people" in my country state for Johansen. Why? It was simply because Johansen is a "white" man regardless of his ability or what he's like. (Maybe you had a better view about spot communist's opinion in the U.S. by that. How was it? Now let's see this.)

Sukarno used to have a prediction of "extremism" given by Westerners at the time he was fighting the British colonialists. He has the prediction "belligerence" when he fighting another type of colonialism (neo-colonialism). Why it's pity that the U.S. and Westerners never have attempted to spot the problem from the other side of the view. But thank God that our government (the U.S.) does.

I think that Mr. Fairley should use the word "nullify" since my point is based on an unofficial governmental statement, while his point is merely based on official commercial reports. As far as I am concerned, the State Department has given us a good example of how to judge a problem.

If it is not a matter of neo-colonialism, why do the British prefer to give those territories to Malaysia rather than to the Philippines who have a claim upon them?

It is because of the fear of the Communists? Then what kind of administration do you think the Philippines should have?

Or, is it simply because there are many high ranking positions in Iunk's administration still occupied by Englishmen?

I feel sorry knowing that the Gurt has still still have to fight practically their own brothers (Asian people) nothing but the advantage of force.

Dr. Richard Kip Returns To FSU

Dr. Richard de Kip, who headed the Department of Insurance and Real Estate in the School of Business from 1958-60, has returned to FSU to hold a similar position.

In addition to serving as professor and chairman of the Department of Risk and Insurance at FSU, Kip will also be an associate dean for the Florida Institute for Continuing University Studies (FICUS).

Kip left his FSU post in January, 1960 to become director of examinations for the American Institute for Property and Liability Underwriters. He also served as assistant dean of the Insurance Institute of America. Both have headquarters in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

In his position with FICUS, he will serve as associate dean of the Division of Advanced Studies and head of the section devoted to graduate study in business administration. He will direct the university system's graduate programs in business administration at off-campus centers throughout the state.

While in his prior position at FSU, Kip served until June, 1959, on special assignment with the staff of the state Insurance commissioner, directing a study of policemen's retirement and firemen's relief and pension funds.

Before joining the FSU faculty in 1958, he taught Insurance at the Wharton School where in 1946 he directed the Insurance Education Survey for the Insurance Institute of America. He holds the B.S. degree in economics from the Wharton School and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees are from the Graduate School, University of Pennsylvania.

Kip's appointment was announced by Dean Charles A. Rovetta of the School of Business at FSU and Dean Leland Shanor of the FICUS Division of Advanced Studies.

Former AFROTC Boss Killed In Car Accident

Brig. Gen. Howard J. Withycombe, 47, the commander of Webb AFB at Big Springs, Tex., died in an automobile accident as he was returning to his home at Big Springs Sunday night from a hunting trip.

Withycombe was commander of the Air Force-ROTC at FSU from 1953 to 1958 and was well known in the Tallahassee community. He owned property on Lake Bradford Road and planned to return here to live. He received a master's degree in business at FSU in August, 1958.

The Air Force officer had received his promotion to brigadier general and the Legion of Merit in the last year. A car in which he and two companions were riding was in a head-on collision with another car carrying four teen-agers.

Funeral services will be held at the Air Force Academy Chapel at Colorado Springs on this afternoon at 2 p.m. Mountain Standard Time. After leaving FSU Withycombe served for four years as chief of staff at the Academy and a son, Keith, is now a third classman at the Academy.

An older son, Jim, was a student at FSU until last spring.

Alumnus Draws Two-Year Term As Peace Corps Volunteer

Verne James Charlton, an alumnus of FSU, has begun a two-year assignment as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Peru.

He is one of 23 Peace Corps volunteers who are planning to depart on Jan. 3 for Peru. There, volunteers will work in the field of urban community development, joining 388 other volunteers already serving in Peru.

Urban community development programs seek to organize community groups to define and meet local problems through democratic group action. Volunteers in the Peru program will work in the "barrios" or slum areas of the major cities, such as Lima and Chimbote. They will live there and acquaint themselves with the people and their problems. Then, using techniques taught during training, they will stimulate the people to form the basic community organization that may lead to self-help projects.

In this fashion the community identifies its own problems, decides upon a program to meet these problems and then proceeds to solve them. The volunteer acts as a catalyst in this process. He serves at times as a leader, at times as a co-worker and at times as a source of information.

Projects to be undertaken by volunteers in Peru will be many and varied, ranging from school construction to adult education classes; from recreational activities to latrine construction; from health classes to childcare techniques.

For the past three months these volunteers trained at the University of Denver in the Spanish language, the history, customs and traditions of Peru, and in American history and institutions.

Nearly 7,000 volunteers are now at work in 46 nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America. Requests for additional volunteers are received daily.

Candidates who apply now and take the next nationwide Peace Corps Placement Test on Jan. 11 can be considered for one of the many summer training programs.

Lost

How much longer can we hand you this line?

Forever, we hope. Because nobody ever intends to change the Volkswagen's shape.

The only reason the Volkswagen is ever changed is to make it work even better.

The money that isn't spent on outside changes is spent inside the car.

This system provides an immense advantage: Time.

There's time to improve parts and still keep most of them interchangeable.

(Which is why it's so easy to get VW parts, and why our mechanics don't wake up screaming.)

There's time to put on immense amount of hand work into each VW, and to finish each one like a $5,000 machine.

And this system has also kept the price almost the same over the years.

Some cars keep changing and stay the same.

Volkswagens stay the same and keep changing.

Cagers Unbeaten In Home Tilts

Florida State's Seminoles are convinced there's no place like home for the holidays. Coach Bud Kennedy's team, gradually de-greening behind their ears, returned here Sunday after a pair of post-New Year's losses, their sixth and seventh away from the hardwood of Tully Gym.

The Seminoles haven't lost at home, downing Auburn, Tampa and Tulsa, but on the road they are now 1-7, beating only Manhattan for third place in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl Tournament.

Since that hour, the Tribe has lost to Richmond there Jan. 2 and to VMI Jan. 4 in Lexington, by four and 11 points. The team's travel plans were twice thwarted by ice and snow; they played Richmond after an all-night train ride from Jacksonville.

But Kennedy's sophomoreish team will get a change to prove its mettle during the month of January, beginning with a Saturday night meeting in Tully with Miami. Six of FSU's next seven games are here, interrupted by a return game with Auburn Jan. 28. The Seminoles host Miami, Memphis State, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Furman in order.

Miami and Memphis State, two tough independents, pose major challenges for the Tribe. The Hurricanes of Miami are 8-2 on the year and Memphis State's Tigers are 7-3. Miami's great forward, Rick Barry, ranks third nationally with a 31.6 scoring average.

Two sophomores are statistical notables for Florida State. Forward Gary Schull, a 6-6 Pompano Beach native, has an even 150 points for a 13.6 average. His 27 points versus Manhattan and 13 rebounds against Tampa are season individual highs for the Tribe. He had 20-point nights against Tampa and VMI.

And Schull, despite a 1-for-8 outing versus Richmond, has hit on 56 of 104 shots for a 53.6 field goal percentage. Close behind in the team figures is 6-4 guard Bill Peacock, leading scorer on last year's frosh team, who has hit on 45 of 84 shots for 53.5. Peacock has 102 points, fourth on the team behind Schull, center Jerry Shirley and forward Pete Rogers.

National Sports Roundup

NEW YORK--The executive director of the NCAA, Walter Byers, says the association is not getting soft, but that colleges are behaving better. Byers said today in New York that there are fewer and fewer major abuses. He spoke after chiding five institutions for recruiting violations and relaxing sanctions against a sixth.

LOS ANGELES--A report says there is a greater probability for being killed walking to the corner store on a holiday afternoon than by playing football.

Dr. Floyd Eastwood, chairman of Injury and Fatality Committee of the American Football Coaches Association, says football fatalities last season totaled 14, five fewer than in either of the two previous years.

The report says the incidence of fatal injuries in football in the last 32 years has averaged 1.78 per 100,000 players in high school and 2.35 in college play.

SANTA CLARA, CALIF.--University of Santa Clara football coach Pat Malley was given a $3,400 car Monday night by his grateful players. Malley was named Northern California Coach of the Year for his team's 6-3 record. The 60 members of his squad raised the money to pay for the car.

Susannah' To Tour, 'Carmen' Cast Named

Georgia Trip Planned

'Carmen' In February

announced that the highly successful opera "Susannah" composed by Carlisle Floyd of the music will complete a Florida-Georgia tour with two productions in Petersburg on Jan. 18.

The opera, premiered at FSU in 1958, has been presented in most of the major cities of this country and during this fall and winter will have been presented 11 times by the newly organized State Opera Association of Florida.

The opera was presented four times at FSU in October and after that of the 80-person troupe of students faculty members put on the production in Panama City and in Valdosta and Albany, Georgia.

Saturday, Jan. 11, the opera will be presented in Daytona Beach's Ponce de Leon Auditorium before about 1800 members of the Florida Music Educators Association holding a clinic there.

On Jan. 17 the opera will be presented in the Jan Tar Hotel Auditorium at Clearwater and on Jan. 18 matinee and evening performances are scheduled in St. Petersburg High School Auditorium.

The presentations in St. Petersburg are under auspices of the St. Petersburg Allied Arts Council, which plans a reception on the occasion for Floyd, who is stage manager for its current series of productions and for Dr. Karl Kuerstner, dean of the School of Music and producer of the opera.

Hedl Svendsen of Tallahassee appeared in today's production at Daytona Beach in the lead role of Susannah, Ethel Donaldson of Palatka will sing the lead at Clearwater on Jan. 17, Mrs. Svendsen will sing in the matinee presentation at St. Petersburg and Miss Donaldson in the evening production.

The Florida State Opera Guild announced today the cast for its forthcoming production of Bizet's opera, "Carmen." The opera will be presented Feb. 28 and 29 in Westcott Auditorium under the direction of Richard Collins.

The role of Carmen will be sung by Joy Davidson of Tallahassee, who appeared in "The Consul," and sang the role of Orpheus in "Orpheus and Eurydice." Don Jose will be sung by Wallace Bartosz and Bronson Matvey.

Loni Keene, who has sung the roles of Figaro in "The Marriage of Figaro," Angellotti in "Tosca," and Michel, the Seine bargeman in "The Ciolek," will sing the role of Escamillo.

The rest of the cast includes: Micaela-Lillian Amos, Fraquita-Virginia Alonso, Mercedes-Carole Hude, El Danciro - Thomas Cavendish, El Remendado - Barney Ingram.

Robert Sedore will conduct the Opera Orchestra. Chorus Master will be Fred Vorce. Design will be by Robert Swann, and costumes by Rose Mary Minahan.

STUDENTS RECEIVE VACCINE
Nurses distributing Orimune on campus through Friday. The vaccine is available to all students and costs only 50¢ per dose.

Trivalent Polio Vaccine Offered To All Students

A few seconds, a lump of sugar, and 50 cents could save your life. Sponsored by Student Government and the Student Health Service, Orimune (the new trivalent oral polio vaccine) distributed for students' convenience at the Student Center, in the main hall of Westcott, and in the Infirmary between 9 and 12 and 1 and 4 today and tomorrow.

Orimune is termed trivalent because, unlike other vaccines, only one oral dose (plus one oral booster) offers maximum protection for all three strains of polio and prevents the taken from being a carrier.

Orimune has been proved effective by 7 1/2 million people who have gained complete immunization from it for a minimum of four years with no significant side effects.

Polio is highly contagious and the close contact found in a college community often provides an area in which disease easily spreads. A student carrier of polio could bring the disease on campus where it might spread rapidly, unless the majority of students are protected by vaccination.

Today and tomorrow will be the last days for students to take advantage of the oral vaccine.

Dr. Joseph W. Bistowski, M.D., director of the Leon County Health Dept., made the statement yesterday concerning the FSU Polio Immunization Drive that "It is most important that all FSU students take advantage of the oral polio vaccine."

Bistowski stated that "Students live under close conditions and travel periodically all over the South," thus affording frequent opportunities for contacting and becoming a carrier of the polio virus.

"The spread of polio virus is similar to the easy spread of the intestinal flu virus, which is very common."

Dr. C.R. Gentry (Director of the University Hospital) is to be commended for his diligence and foresight in providing polio immunization for FSU students," Bistowski added.

Winters Publishes Memoirs

Geological Formation (Permian) of Western Arizona," written by FSU Professor of Geology, Stephen S. Winters, was recently published as the Geological Society of America Memoir 89.

H. J. Bissell of Brigham Young University reviewed the book in the current issue of "Science" magazine. "Winters has done a commendable job in providing objective data and subjective interpretation for these Early and Middle Permian sedimentary rocks..."

Bissell concludes that "this memoir should prove of inestimable value to stratigraphers and the paleontologists who wish to make documented correlation with the standard West Texas sections."

"It is self-evident that its value will be enhanced as its utility is applied in such areas as the eastern Great Basin and the Colorado Plateau. The author is to be highly commended."

The purpose of Winters' research was to provide lithologic and paleontologic data and thereby contribute to an understanding of the transition between the Colorado Plateau and the New Mexico Texas Permian sedimentary rocks.

Bissell also stated in his review that "in this memoir Winters provides geologists with details of the stratigraphy in 13 well-located square sections in addition to detailed systematic description and illustration of their fauna."

"Three new genera were among the 22 genera of gastropods collected, and 12 new species are described."

Grants Available

International scope was attained this week for the MCA scholarships in creative writing as completion of arrangements to award the grants was announced with six more universities—including one in Canada and one in Mexico.

Completion of the additional schools was by Jules C. Stein, chairman of the board of MCA Inc., parent company of Universal pictures, Revue TV Productions and Decca Records.

The new participating universities, Stein said, are Columbia University, the University of British Columbia at Vancouver, the University of California at Los Angeles, Smith College, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Mexico at Mexico City.

Fifteen colleges and universities were previously announced as having arranged to award the MCA "creative writing" scholarships and fellowships.

They are Stanford University, Brandeis University, University of Michigan, New York University, Yale University, Rutgers University, University of North Carolina, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Catholic University of America, University of Iowa, Northwestern University, University of Texas, University of Wisconsin, Cornell University and Sarah Lawrence College.

Each university itself selects its recipient, male or female, graduate student or undergraduate. The selection standard is to recognize "exceptional promise" in the field of creative writing for the performing arts, i.e., the legitimate theatre, motion pictures or television.

The grants cover tuition and a living allowance for a full academic year.

In addition to the establishment of the fellowships, provisions also have been set up for the company to appraise the manuscripts of gifted students on request of the universities.

Spring Rush

Registration for the Spring Tri-Member Sorority Rush will be in the Longmire Club Room today from 9 to 5, and the first day of rush will begin tomorrow at 9 a.m.

All new students or students who have not registered previously must register and pay the $2 fee for rush. Women who registered in September and who are still interested in being rushed should re-declare their interest at registration today. A list of all names will be given to each sorority, and open receptions will be tonight and tomorrow afternoon.

Minicopying information will be given out during registration. This will be the only period of registration or re-declaration until next September.

Rush begins tomorrow, going from 9 to noon and from 2 to 5:20 p.m. Rushes are requested to wear name tags.

Scholarships

The Delta Delta National Sorority, in celebration of its 75th anniversary, is offering a $750.00 scholarship to any junior woman who is a member of the sorority.

The sorority is awarding six such scholarships, one in each geographical group of 18 chapters. The dates of the competition are Wednesday and Thursday, March 13 and 14.

Interested juniors should contact Mrs. William R. Kidd at the Development Office, 1000 North University Avenue.

Junior coeds are eligible, whether in a sorority or not, and there is no restriction as to race, creed or field of study.

The Tri-Delta Service Projects Committee is looking for "highly motivated" students showing promise in their future communities. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need are the points that will be considered.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Kidd at the Development Office.

Senate

The FSU Student Senate held its first meeting to the second trimester yesterday at 4 p.m.

No new business was introduced on the senate floor. Committees were urged to finish up their business quickly and to get their reports into the senate, by Senate President John Fronter.

Sandra Brooks was elected unanimously as the new secretary of the Senate.

Pillsbury Awards Afford Top Training

The chance to take a giant step into business as a junior executive is the unusual and attractive feature of the 1964 Pillsbury Awards Program, now open for applications from Home Economics seniors.

The top Home Economics graduate of the year — selected from applications on a basis of scholarship, extra-curricular experience, and personal suitability — will step into a key position as Associate Manager of Pillsbury's Educational Program. Her starting salary of $4800 will be supplemented by a cash award of $500 plus a $2500 scholarship for graduate study or a permanent position with Pillsbury following her year of executive training.

Other awards in the 1964 Program include grants of $150 and a two day, expense-paid trip to Minneapolis for four award finalists.

The year's schedule for the top award winner is designed to give practical and personalized training in the operation of such corporate departments as marketing, public relations, legal, and others which relate to the responsibilities of the Home Economics in business.

The Award Winner's assignments include intensive work in recipe development, preparation of educational materials for high school students, and speeches before teenage audiences. Her activities will also include attendance at the AHEA National Convention, attendance at Pillsbury's Annual Bake-Off as official hostess to the junior contestants, and television demonstrations throughout the country.

Complete information on applications for the 1964 Pillsbury Awards Program has been supplied to Deans and Chairmen of Home Economics. Application closing date is January 17.

Art Curator To Be Judge

William S. Lieberman, curator of drawings and prints for the Museum of Modern Art in New York, will be here through Friday, to serve as judge of the First Annual Lithography Exhibition which will be on view in the FSU Art Gallery, Feb. 12 through March 14.

Some 200 entries from all over the United States have been received, according to Dr. Adolph Karl of the Art Dept. Lieberman will select the best of these to be hung in the exhibition. In addition he will choose three award winners from those selected and from work of seven outstanding artists invited to submit entries.

A native of France, Lieberman was reared in Paris and New York and graduated from Swarthmore College in 1943. He worked briefly for the department of exhibitions and publications of the Museum of Modern Art before beginning post-graduate work at Harvard University.

At the opening of the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Print Room in 1949, Lieberman was appointed associate curator in charge of prints and became full curator in 1953. When the department was expanded to include the Museum's collections of drawings as well as of prints, he has directed more than 40 exhibitions of drawings and prints at the Museum.

Today

The Conference on Information Retrieval starts today at 9 a.m. in the Library Lecture Hall, and will continue through January 11.

A Physics Faculty Luncheon, honoring Dr. J. E. Rives, University of Georgia, will be given at 12:30 in the Bamboo Room, Faculty Club.

Dr. J. E. Rives will lecture on "Properties of Liquid Helium" at the Physics Colloquium, 4:30 p.m. in 124 Science.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship meets in the Student Lounge, Longmire, at 7 p.m.

AC and IE meet in the Club Room of Longmire at 7 p.m.

Collegiate 4-H meets in Room 1, Sandels Bldg. at 7:30 p.m.

The Young People's Socialist League meets at 7:30 p.m. in Room 122, History Bldg.

TV Specials Begin Tonight

Tallahassee's three Toastmasters' clubs will be featured in a month long series of television specials on Channel 11, WFSU-TV, beginning tonight at 8 p.m.

Featuring top talent from the membership of the Tallahassee, Capital and Early Bird Toastmasters' Clubs, the series is aimed at familiarizing the public with Toastmaster activities.

Making their debut in the first program of the series will be members of the Tallahassee club — President Ronald Brugh and Toastmaster, Dr. Miley Miers. Fred Parker and Wade Bydes will give speeches to be judged by Pat Flynn and Delbert Krans, evaluators.

Toastmasters for the Jan. 16 and Jan. 23 productions will be the respective representatives of the Capital and Early Bird Clubs, Joe Cresse and Hank Walters. A three-way club competition will highlight the final program in the series on Jan. 30. Each of the programs in the series will be shown at 8 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The junior class will hold a dance featuring the Chacotics in the Swanee Room, Saturday night at 9 after the FSU-Miami game.

Admission will be $1. per couple. All are invited to attend.

The Contract Food Plan will have a station set up in Westcott hallway tomorrow in front of room 105 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. to accept registration for the food plan.

Students joining on Friday may begin using the food plan with breakfast on Saturday.

Supervised study halls for Trimester II will be held in room 208, History Bldg. from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Campus Golf Course Open To FSU Family

Opened this August, the FSU golf course features nine holes for the golfing pleasure of all students and university personnel.

Located on the Lake Bradford Road about three miles from campus, the new course offers a regulation nine-hole par 36 layout (two par 5 holes, two par 4 holes, and five par 3 holes).

The course was designed by R. Albert Anderson, rated one of the top ten golf course designers in the United States.

The FSU course is open to students, faculty, staff, and their out-of-town guests, but is not open to the general public.

Open from 8 a.m. to dusk seven days a week, the course also offers parking facilities, and a clubhouse where club sets and carts (non-electric) are rented, as well as such items as balls and tees may be purchased.

Charges for the use of the course are as follows: for students — family membership, $50; yearly individual membership, $35; one semester family membership, $20; trimester individual membership, $15; green fee Monday-Friday, 75¢; green fee Saturday, Sunday, and holidays, $1.25.

For faculty and staff — yearly family membership, $75; yearly individual membership, $50; one semester family membership, $35; one semester individual membership, $20; green fee Monday-Friday, $1.25; green fee Saturday, Sunday, and holidays, $1.75.

The old FSU golf course adjacent to the stadium is still open for recreation golfing, but only for those in use for golfing classes.

Planning for a full-size golf course at FSU began several years ago when the need was recognized by faculty members and student leaders. Don Veller, chairman of the University Golf Committee, cited the past three years golf has moved up in popularity from tenth to first place as a sport among students, exceeded only by football, baseball, basketball, track, and wrestling.

Varsity golfers who work out on the course testify that it offers challenges and is a good source of golf skill for players. The scores on the par 36 layout have turned in by team members — Lyons, Richie Karl, and University star Dave Philo — all within a hole total of 67.

The first of two recorded scores on the course testify that it offers challenges and is a good source of golf skill for players. The scores on the par 36 layout have turned in by team members — Lyons, Richie Karl, and University star Dave Philo — all within a hole total of 67.

John Jones, student representative on the University Golf Committee, encouraged all students to take advantage of this unique opportunity for recreation and stated, "I like golfing at its best, take it around your course."

GOLFING IS FUN

... according to Keith Pitchford, golf pro Don Veller and John Jones as they enjoy an afternoon on FSU's golf course.

New Campus Sing Deadline

The Campus Sing Committee announced today that the registration deadline has been changed from Jan. 10 to Jan. 17, with the deadline for late registration on Jan. 22.

Entry blanks for the campus sing should be turned in to the music office.

A meeting will be held Tuesday at 9 p.m. in room 224, Music Bldg. to discuss Campus Sing Rules for those organizations who were unable to attend the December meeting.

Attention! All Opportunity or Adventure Seekers

The chance of a lifetime is being offered to any student who wishes to be (1) a success in life, (2) a guy who knows all the inside lines and (3) a "MMOC."

The Florida Flambeau invites students interested in writing news, sports, features, columns or working on page layouts, rewrites, or just pushing the broom to fill out the form below and drop it into any of the innumerable campus mail boxes (in an envelope, please... no postage necessary) and we will take care of the rest.

No experience is necessary... what we really want is company (it's lonely out here), but we are willing to accept people with experience gleefully.

Computers To Forsee Future Of College Students

In the help of an output sheet on a computer, counselors soon will be able to sit down with students planning from junior college and transfer with fair success how they will do in a four-year institution. There are more students getting their first two years of higher education near home in a junior college. These students are good enough to transfer as a junior to a four-year institution. This fall, for instance, 715 of the 2,453 juniors enrolled at FSU were transfers, 100 of them from Florida junior colleges.

Many of the transfers do quite well. Enough experience has now accumulated for Wilbur Louis Bashaw, specialist in educational research at FSU, to build a "central prediction system" based on experience of 997 who completed 90 work at nine Florida junior colleges in 1961 and went on to FSU, University of Florida or Florida A&M University.

He made the principal criteria predicting success of transfers to be the students' grades in junior college and their test scores, especially their scores on the Florida grade test.

Bashaw, an instructor in education, needed in his study on the prediction that junior colleges vary their grading practice and from experience at hand he assigned particular weight to the grades in each of the colleges. His study included students finishing a third year at the universities who transferred as juniors.

After refinement he developed a series of weights assigned to the courses of study in the four-year institution, whether, for instance, the study was in the field of business, social science or natural science.

An important product of the study was a computer program for the central prediction system which can be used with such computers as the IBM-709 in use in FSU's Computing Center.

Bashaw, who is 27, was one of the first students to enroll as a scholar in the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation's scholarship housing program at FSU. Students who have been selected for outstanding potential and financial need are provided rent-free housing where they save further on college costs by doing their own cooking and housework.

He enrolled as a freshman in 1954 and will become the first among several hundred of the Foundation scholars to get a Ph.D. degree. An older brother, Robert Niles Bashaw, also was among the first scholars. He is now a chemist with Dow Chemical Co. at Freeport, Texas.

He became interested in the study he has just completed while serving as a research associate for the Florida Board of Control from the summer of 1962 to the summer of 1963.

AN ISLAND OF MERCY

... offers small solace to students lost in the midst of one of the most efficient registrations in years. Though pre-registration saved many—some still suffer.

Europe Offers Students Summer Employment

Jobs

Numerous positions for student typists (50 wpm or better) and stenographers offering good pay are available through the office of Financial Aid in room 304 of Longmire Bldg.

Students interested in working in television should see Dick Hietzer at WFSU-TV or call 599-2266.

The American-European Student Service is offering an increased number of job opportunities in Europe this summer.

Students can earn money this summer with such work as in the forests of Germany, construction in Austria, on farms in Germany, Sweden and Denmark, or even road construction in Norway.

The program has been expanded this year to include many more students and jobs, and already many students have made application for summer employment overseas, the student service announced.

The American-European Student Service is offering (on a non-profit basis) these jobs to students for Germany, Scandinavia, England, Austria, Switzerland, France, Italy, and Spain. The jobs consist of forestry work, child-care work (women only), farm work, hotel work (only a limited number are available), construction work, and other more qualified job requiring more specialized training.

The purpose of this program is to afford American students an opportunity to get into real living contact with the people and customs of Europe, thereby learning something of the real culture of Europe.

In return for their work, students will receive room and board, plus wages. However, the student service explained that students keep in mind that they will be working on the European economy and wages will naturally be scaled accordingly. The working conditions will be strictly controlled by the labor ministries involved.

In most cases, the employers have specifically asked for American students, and being particularly interested in the student, they want to make the work as interesting as possible. They are all informed of the intent of the program, the service stated, and will help the student all they can in deriving the most from his trip to Europe.

For further information and application forms, write to: American European Student Service, Via Santorre Santarosa 23, Florence, Italy.

Meetings

Hillel Foundation will hold its first "Bagels 'n' Lov" brunch of the trimester Sunday at 11 a.m. in Temple Israel, 507 South Copeland St. Dr. Stephen Winters of the Geology Dept. will be the guest speaker.

The first meeting of Seminole Divers will be in Longmire auditorium at 8:45 p.m., Tuesday. Seminole Divers is an organized group of scuba divers on campus. All interested persons are invited.

Senior Alums Aid Expansion

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

Editorials, last lectures, and letters call for a great university at Tallahassee, FSU one of the top ten. With these calls come doubts that FSU can make it. Tom Waits, Director of FSU's Alumni Service, thinks it can, and he believes a strong alumni association can be a great aid.

To build a backing of loyal alumni the association has offered membership to graduating seniors before they graduate. Waits feels that this will plant the seed of loyalty before seniors leave, keeping them close to FSU. One third of the December graduates took advantage of this offer. This, according to Waits, is just the beginning in increasing student interest in the alumni association.

At present the alumni are concerned chiefly with students. Their main project is the "Greater FSU Fund," which is used for scholarship loans. They also promote FSU in high schools and recruit outstanding students for the Honors Program by sponsoring its director, Dr. Paul Piccard, in talks at various high schools. Too, the alumni Newsletter is sent to the parents of students as well as alumni.

With a more powerful membership the association could broaden their program to other areas: providing professorships, aiding the library, and supporting building funds.

Presently, Waits' nine man staff handles 35,000 current alumni files. For a "Great FSU," they'd welcome 35,000 more.

Tour Opened To Students

A coeducational tour of Europe for college students will be conducted this summer by Mrs. Sara Jernigan, professor at Stetson University.

The tour is open to students of any U.S. college and is organized and sponsored by Marsh Tours of New York City.

The touring group will leave New York on June 24 on the "Queen Mary" and visit England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Monaco and France. A sufficient number of days will be left unscheduled in the larger cities for shopping, browsing and the satisfying of individual interests.

American students will have the opportunity to meet many university students of other countries.

On land the group will travel by train and go through the Alps and Italy by auto. The students will then return from the United States from Cherbourg on the "Queen Elizabeth," arriving in New York on Aug. 11.

Further information may be secured by contacting Mrs. Sara Jernigan, Stetson University, Deland, Florida.

Homecoming

An early Homecoming, on next Oct. 9-10, was announced by President Gordon W. Blackwell today.

The 1964 week-end will see FSU's football team playing Kentucky.

The president said Dr. William W. Rogers, assistant professor of history, will be the Homecoming chairman.

is it me...or Jack Winter!

If it's you, princess, when you have the Jack Winter look. But whoa... take a minute to learn about the subject of stretch. Because once you put yourself in Jack Winter stretch pants, you are going to get the eye test. Be darn sure you can pass. Questions. Should you wear stretch pants? What kind of figure does it take? Most all figures are flattered by stretch, whether angular, triangular, or a figure eight. Even if you have an hourglass figure where all the sand has sunk to the bottom, stretch pants can do quick subtracting. You won't need a grease job to slip in, but there's no sag, bag or bind either. Jack Winter cuts 'em just right...lean and ladylike...proportioned in your proper leg-length. So it's you and Jack Winter getting all those straight-on, slant-eyed, turn-about-face looks. You and Jack Winter causing that campus stir.

IN 400-YARD MEDLEY RELAY ACTION

A Seminole Swimmer prepares to anchor the event for another tribe victory. A Bulldog tanker waits his turn to hit the water. The winning time in the event was 3:54.4.

The FSU varsity and freshmen swimmers kicked off the 1964 season last night with a 65-23 win over the University of Georgia. The Favored Seminoles lost their first team finish in only one event, the 400-yard Freestyle Relay.

Tanker Coach Bim Stults, however, was unimpressed with the victory. "We have an awful long way to go to get a team. Some of the boys swam real but not enough were good enough." There were a few bright spots in this initial meet, though. Mike Blouin's victory was impressive," said the coach.

Meet records were set in the 100-yard Freestyle: Blouin, the 500-yard Freestyle by Gene Dayton, and the 200-yard Breaststroke by Scott Guthrie.

The Results:

200-yard Individual Medley: Heislser, FSU; Don Harris, FSU; Baird, Ga. 2:10.3

Diving: Neal Allen, FSU; Billy Ray Smith, Ga.; Larry Profumo, FSU;

200-yard Butterfly: Dan Jefferies, FSU; Mark Cohen, FSU; Baird, Ga. 2:18.7

100-yard Freestyle: Blouin, FSU; Alan Roles, FSU; Mike Walsh, Ga. 50.6 (New Meet Record)

200-yard Backstroke: Jim Mullally, FSU; Tony Kowalski, FSU; Warren Norman, Ga. 2:16.8

200-yard Breaststroke: Guthrie, FSU; Vince Rossell, Georgia. 2:29.7 New Meet Record.

Trackmen Eye Tennessee Trip

Florida State's 1964 track team gets its first real test of the new year when the Seminoles participate against a strong field in the Chattanooga Invitational Indoor Track and Field Meet, February 8. Traditionally one of the south's strongest track teams, Florida State has won 39 dual meets, lost seven during Coach Mike Long's nine years at the helm. Last year the Seminoles won three and lost two—the first time in history that an FSU track team lost twice in one season. Florida State opened its season in the Orange Bowl Invitational Meet, Jan. 2 in Miami, competing against a field which included world record holders Robert Hayes in the 100 yard dash, John Pennel in the pole vault, and Gary Gubner in the shot put. Seminole headliners this season are Al Williams, the south's best weight man, who finished fourth in NCAA Championship competition last June. Williams' best throw last year was 59 feet 10 inches in the Georgia AAU meet. The 6-2, 240 pound Atlanta, Ga., senior finished second to Gubner in Miami, Williams won the shot put in Chattanooga last year. Another second place at Miami was taken by sprinter Jerry McDaniel, who finished behind Florida A&M's Robert Hayes' 20.4 time in the 220 yard dash. McDaniel, a 6-1, 195 pounder who consistently flirts with 21 seconds in his specialty, qualified for the NCAA Championships last year, but did not participate.

Florida State's main team strength is in the dashes and relays where McDaniel is backed by a supporting cast which includes Hutch Johnson and Al Cato, both under ten seconds

Orlando-Sanford Area May Get University

By — The Orlando-Sanford area is in a unique position, if the site is chosen for a space-age university site ends today.

The Board of Control, which manages the state-supported university system, takes up the issue at a Tallahassee meeting this morning. It has narrowed the choice to three locations. Outsiders say it is an even chance the board will pick one of them.

Two of the sites are in Seminole county — one at the outskirts of Sanford and another east of Oviedo. The other is 12 miles south of Orlando.

A fourth site, Deseret, about 20 miles southeast of Orlando, has not officially been eliminated but is out of the running.

The executive director of the Board of Control, Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, briefed newsmen on the merits of the three favored locations yesterday. He gave for the first time some of the reasoning behind their survival over 19 other locations.

Culpepper says perhaps the principle reason was the convergence of population and industry on the Orlando-Sanford area.

In addition, Culpepper says the burgeoning Cape Kennedy missile center is attracting people and industry in such numbers that an expansion to the West — in the direction of Orlando — was noticeable.

The chosen area is the approximate population center of half a million people.

Culpepper says it was the thinking of the Board that the availability of "50,000 college-age youngsters" was as strong a location factor as the need of Cape Kennedy's engineers for graduate education.

Another reason for turning away from the Cape was the uncertainty of the future of the missile facility as new developments and trends in space exploration occur.

The Board's Executive Director explains: "We don't know what the future portends for the Cape. But we do know we have 50,000 young people in the area of Orlando and Sanford."

Will the decision be made this week? To this Culpepper declines to say. "I think we have all the significant information in hand with which to make a decision. I hope we do. But there may be other elements of which I am not aware."

Culpepper may have been referring to the visit yesterday of two top Cape Kennedy missile men to Governor Farris Bryant.

These men — Major General Leighton Davis, head of the missile test center and Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the Kennedy Research Center — supported a location near the Cape.

Culpepper says he is personally satisfied with the final three sites. Here is a capsule look at them:

Sanford — This is the only urban site. It is 1300 acres large, forested, hilly and spotted by several lakes. It is near US 17. Culpepper said it was the site closest to the greatest population in terms of 35 minutes driving distance.

Oviedo — This is 17 miles northeast of Orlando with frontage on the Econlochatchee River. It contains 6000 acres of rolling pasture and woodland from which 2500 acres may be selected. This is the closest location to the Cape.

Bluestone — This site, 12 miles south of Orlando, is nearest the greatest number of people. It contains 1900 acres, is five miles from the Martin Missile Plant

Budget Reveals Budget Cut In State Of Union Speech

President Johnson announced a surprise cut in federal spending in his first state of the Union message Wednesday.

The President slashed his new budget to $97.9 billion by trimming nuclear weapons production, closing old defense plants and cutting "fat and waste" everywhere.

The President also told Congress that the budget he will submit Jan. 21 will call for a $1 billion anti-poverty program to give a fair chance to Americans now living on "the outskirts of hope."

The President continued his program of heavy cutbacks in atomic weapons production. He declared it is no need to stockpile weapons since it is only provocative and useful.

The budget for 1965 would cut the federal deficit in half from $10 billion to $4.9 billion. This is based on the estimate of $93 billion in tax receipts, $6 billion more than expected for the year.

The President also pushed such programs as the $11 billion tax cut and the civil rights bill but said no discrimination "as far as the writ of federal law will run."

He asked for the tax cut by February, if possible.

He received enthusiastic applause when laying down his 10 point program "to make the world safe for diversity."

In his address he stated: "We shall neither act as aggressors nor tolerate acts of aggression. We intend to bury no one — and we do not intend to be buried."

In this spirit of peace and economy, Johnson said that the government is closing non-essential military establishments, cutting 25 per cent in the production of enriched uranium, closing down four plutonium reactors, and preparing new disarmament proposals to be offered at Geneva.

As further example of frugality, he announced at a press conference previous to the joint session that he had told the Defense Department's latest request for funds by $9.5 billion.

At this same briefing he told newsmen that he saved $878 million. However, he did not disclose what this appropriation would be.

Concerning his "war on poverty," the President gave no details. He did say that the federal government must have the assistance of state and local governments and every private home and public office.

As broadly outlined, the program would attack the poverty problem through better training, better health, better transportation, and better job opportunities. Specifically, the President announced a $250 million program to attack poverty in the Appalachian Mountains area.

Johnson also appealed for the passage of the medical care for the aged program. The bill has been in Congress for two years and appears to have little chance of passing in this session.

AUP State Conference To Begin Here Tonight

The State Conference of the Association of University Professors (AUP) will open its annual conference this evening, with Florida State and FSU serving as joint hosts for the conference.

The AUP will host a reception and social session for the visiting members from colleges and universities throughout the entire state this evening.

Tomorrow morning, FSU becomes the business sessions open in the Starr Conference Room, Busby Hall, with registration lasting from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

President Gordon W. Blackwell will welcome the AUP members to Tallahassee at 9:30 a.m. in the conference room.

The members will then be divided into discussion groups to cover the following problems: The Problem of Recruiting Superior Faculty Members; Should Academic Rank be Related to the Role of the Faculty in University Government; Education and Off-Campus; Educational TV; The Rights and Problems of the Teacher; the Problems of the Teacher System.

The groups adjourn at 12:15 for lunch in the Swannum Room, where Dr. Werner Baum will be guest speaker for the banquet. Baum was formerly Dean of Faculties at FSU, and he also was former president of the FSU Chapter of the AUP. He left FSU last year to become Vice President of the University of Miami.

The AUP members will hold a final business session after lunch in the Starr Conference Room.

As he said the federal government must have the assistance of state and local governments and every private home and public office.

As broadly outlined, the program would attack the poverty problem through better training, better health, better transportation, and better job opportunities. Specifically, the President announced a $250 million program to attack poverty in the Appalachian Mountains area.

Johnson also appealed for the passage of the medical care for the aged program. The bill has been in Congress for two years and appears to have little chance of passing in this session.

FSU Given $15,000

The Florida State University Foundation, Inc. has received a bequest valued at $15,000 and part of the royalty rights of a textbook on Florida history from the estate of the late Miss Cleo Rainwater, former teacher at the University School.

Miss Rainwater was a sixth grade teacher at University School from 1953 to 1960. She was co-author of "Our Journey Through Florida" with Kathryn Abbey Hanna in 1957. Mrs. Hanna is author of the well known adult history, "Florida, Land of Change."

On her death in August, Miss Rainwater left three-fifths interest in the royalty rights of "Our Journey Through Florida" to FSU and stipulated that her Tallahassee home and contents valued at $12,000, securities amounting to $3,000, and residuary value of her estate (value undetermined) go to FSU.

Philip Fleming, director of development at FSU, said the money will be turned over to FSU for scholarship purposes. He said that in November several other individuals and groups had donated to the Cleo Rainwater Memorial Fund and they also will be turned over.

Prior to joining the FSU faculty, Miss Rainwater was an elementary supervisor in Sarasota County. She also had taught at Western Carolina Teachers College, Cullowhee; East Carolina College, Greenville, N.C.; and State Normal School, Athens, Ga. and as a grades teacher in Fitzgerald and Brooks County, Ga.

Miss Rainwater received the bachelor of science degree from George Peabody College for Teachers in 1924 and the master's in 1927.

Ascherl Given Bell Award

Jack Ascherl, FSU alumni permanent student president, has been selected as the Bell Telephone Man of the Month.

Jack, president of his freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes graduated with a B.S. in business in 1962. "He was an active and much admired student," said Miss Marie Williams, who worked with Jack during his administration. He was president of the IFC and the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, a member of Gold Key, and the student chairman of Homecoming. Ascherl was selected as "Outstanding Senior Man" of the year and "Outstanding Fraternity Man."

He was chosen as a member of Who's Who and the Hall of Fame. Ascherl led his class in the selection of their class gift, an $800 contribution for the grand piano that will enhance the banquet hall room in the new student center.

Ascherl served for three years as a sergeant in the Marines before coming to FSU.

Coffee Hour

Dr. Jack Thornburg, assistant professor of Germanic Linguistics in the Modern Languages Dept., will be the opening speaker in this year's English Coffee Hour series today at 4 p.m. at Westminster House.

Thornburg will speak on Dante's "Divine Comedy." The public is invited to the lecture which is under the sponsorship of the English Dept.

Old Rite Updated

Registration in past years has often been characterized as the albatross of a student's academic life. It has had the aura of a particularly burdensome, resistant, rite of passage. The registration ritual, with its seemingly endless lines, endless waiting, and endless reduplicating forms, had all of the elaborateness and complexity of a ceremony, but in many instances yielded only boredom, irritation, and frustration for all concerned.

For these reasons, pre-registration was warmly welcomed by most students, for with its coming the lines and the waiting have largely been done away with.

Though initiated in December, pre-registration is not entirely new to FSU. It was used up until three years ago but abandoned when the increasing size of the student body made it impractical.

Credit for the resurrection of the program must be given to the academic deans, department heads, housing office, and the hardworking staff of the registrar's office.

Plaudits are also due to George E. Fortin, university comptroller, and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Crooks, bursar, for without their hard work and cooperation, especially with regard to tuition and housing fee payments, pre-registration would not have come off. Thanks must also be given to President Blackwell for his "100 per cent" backing, and to Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby for his untiring assistance.

However, the laurels go to Dr. Murray W. Kenna, registrar, for his foresight, planning, and initiative, for without him the success of pre-registration would have been impossible.

To the 7,400 students who pre-registered, the three extra days of vacation, amounting to 22,200 free days, were most welcome. The rest of the student body also felt the impact of pre-registration in the lessened lines and more streamlined processing at Tully Gym.

Not only did pre-registration enable regular registration to be cut to two days, it also eased the strain on nerves of both students and faculty, and allowed for more personal attention to registrants with special problems.

While no plan is perfect, and Kenna will be among the first to stress that there are still many problems connected with pre-registration at FSU, we feel that it is at least one of the better solutions to the problem of registration and an idea with a potentially bright future.

We can only praise Kenna for his industry and resourcefulness.

United Nations Will Destroy Rights

Last trimester, Barbara LaCombe wrote an article, based mainly upon quotes by "Richard Gardner," in answer to a previous column of mine dealing with the United Nations. In it, "Richard Gardner" stated that some of my accusations were "utterly and completely false." I hold that they are true. Therefore, let us look at the facts and see who is erroneous in his remarks. "R. Gardner" stated that the U.N. Charter "embodies the fundamental tenets of the nature of man and society which are basic to our United States religious, moral, and political tradition." I ask, how can true be taken together with Rights, either denies or will only subject to approval, even freedoms, such as freedom of religion, freedom of press, freedom of speech, property rights, and rights guaranteed to us by our Bill of Rights?

Also, you will discover that where in the United Nations Charter or any of its subsidiaries is the any reference to a Supreme Court nor will you find in the Charter any recognition of the right to private property. These two alone are among the basic tenets of our way of life and government, but the U.N. negates both.

to an Internal Debt. Why?"

Rather than trying to explain this and other arguments, may I suggest reading the half dozen or so pages required to helping the public debt into proper perspective.

Several weeks ago my hometown weekly took issue with a group of economists who signed a document which apparently stated that the national debt isn't dangerous. The best refutation that the editor could supply was to say that these economists were Keynesian and misinformed. This is typical of the refutation of the national debt, and it simply amounts to you can't spend more money than you earn. If nothing else, this completely disregards the fact that definite differences exist between public and private debt. Because the national debt is an important issue, because it has become a political soapbox, and because it is quite simple to obtain a more objective analysis of it, an interested and curious student should look deeper than Harry Byrd economics.

Furthermore, we have seen that the U.N. does not even consider property rights in its actions. For example, the U.N. Economic Council has a resolution permitting the national debt foreign nations to receive compensation. This was despite United States' argument that it is contrary to international law.

Another interesting fact occurred in 1963, there was a military action going on in Georgia near Water Moccasin. One of the main areas of land involved in the counties were being used by military forces from at least two nations. The owners of this property were unwilling to cooperate with the military forces. The confiscation of the property at a price of $1. The troops in Georgia quartered in private homes and transported by private property. The property were required to operate. (Council for Statehood, M. W. Davidson).

This operation was based upon article 43 of the U.N. Charter and in direct violation of the amendment of the United States Constitution.

With regard to religion, the U.N. Covenant states in Article 18 that freedom of religion shall be subject to such limitations as are necessary to protect "public order, health, and morals." Now, who shall judge whether someone's religion endangers the "public safety, health, and morals"? It would be anti-Semitic or anti-Muslim, possibly a Communist, who considers religion the "opiate of the people," was in charge?

Debt Is Political Tool

Very frequently the argument about the burden of the national debt is heard. It has recently been in the news because of the upcoming public budget. A favorite argument is often that any school child knows that you can't spend more than you earn. The national debt for reasons such as this has become largely a political soapbox.

Most principles of economics textbooks will present the "danger" of the national debt in an objective light. Paul Samuelson's text, probably one of the most popular texts published today, gives a very good explanation of public debt.

He points out that the external debt's burden is different than the internal one. Apparently the arguments heard today against the public debt are those against external debt (which our's isn't). The example of the shift of burden to future generations will be used. He says, "If applied to an external debt, this shift of burden through time might be true. It is unmistakably false in reference

Flambeau Forum

Left Wing Ignored in U.S.

To the Editor:

Only in America, . . . yes, only in America could an ideology which destroyed a President go completely free. Only in America could a political faction actually gain by sickening the mind of an assassin to action.

Newspapers and public leaders all over this nation have joined in the chorus against "bigotry, hatred, violence," and "so called American patriots." If anyone has exerted a similar "hate campaign" against the Fair Play for Cuba Committee and other similar left wing groups, whose ideology had more to do with this tragedy than any others, I have not yet heard about it.

A typical example is Richard Erickson's recent letter to the "Flambeau," in which he stated: "Look at extremism: those misguided patriots who call themselves Americans . . ." etc., etc.

He completely ignores extremism at the opposite pole. I enjoyed the rest of his letter, and think it was well written in general, but it points out the apathy toward the dangerous growth from the other side, namely the extreme left wing in America today.

I believe there is no place for either extreme in America. How can we blame the right wing for continuing to point out the fact that there is affinity for left wing groups by so called "Intellectuals" and intellectuals of this nation?

It has been proven, since the tragedy that this is indeed so, by the complete lack of criticism where it is needed. Extreme left wing groups would do nothing better than to see the other side wiped out, and their own left alone.

Venezuela has seen both sides, and dealt with them, I ask, "What does it take for America to know an extrime when it sees one, right before its eyes, and what does it take for them to act against it?" Evidently a Presidential assassination is not enough. This is, in effect, saying that it is all right for certain people to assassinate a duly elected President. As weird as this may seem, there is nothing in the way of criticism of the left wing extremists to believe such a statement.

If America is really interested in seeing hate, violence, bigotry and subversion wiped out, then, in the words of the late President, "Let us begin . . ." but when we do, let us challenge ourselves to wipe out all extremism, . . . not just our own political opposite, whatever it may be.

Objectivity Called For

To the Editor:

One can almost detect those who are truly interested in solving a problem: they are willing to forego personal animosity and spare the soapbox and work quietly, though fervently, toward their goal, knowing that a consideration of other's viewpoints, constructive, logical examination of the issues, and compromise ultimately decide lasting solutions.

These things coupled with dispassionate discussion and argument constitute the only way of considering all sides of a question fairly;

Tennessee So Frustrating

To the Editor:

In reference to Mr. Steele's letter of January 8 regarding the pet St. Intercession, I would advise to and others "to look into the matter a little deeper."

Admittedly some persons do traffic in signal installations to facilitate pedestrian crossing of Tennessee St. I will agree, however, that students could make use of the sidewalks. (Although two unguarded crosswalks are provided at Dewey St. courtesy of Tallahassee.)

To those many who daily drive through the intersection and especially to those who have struggled for ten minutes trying to make a turn into Tennessee, the pedestrian is a small complaining factor.

Furthermore, it would seem necessary for an interruption and slowing of traffic when cars stop on one side of the intersection and often smash into parked cars, generally menace those using DeGraff Hall and fraternity houses, and enterances immediately of this intersection.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: JACK ASCHERL

In less than a year, Jack Ascherl (B.S., Business, 1962) has turned in outstanding performances on four different assignments with Southern Bell in Pompano Beach, Florida.

As a Commercial Supervisor, he's run a section of a business office with leeway to make his own decisions. And then, as Public Relations Coordinator, he improved the PR program for his district.

Next followed increased responsibility—Jack was told to find methods of improving collection procedures, a job where he saw 13 of his recommendations accepted and used. And this led to a key troubleshooting assignment on which Jack found ways to tighten up security procedures in the tellers' sections of the district offices.

To Southern Bell, Jack is a man who gets things done!

Jack Ascherl, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Placement Office Announces Week's Recruitment Schedule

The FSU Placement Office has announced the recruitment schedule for the following week for all interested and qualified students.

Students must register with the Placement Office in room 8, Longmire Bldg., to be eligible for interviews.

The U.S. Naval Air Reserve Team will be on campus Tuesday and Wednesday to interview Sales Trainee candidates who are business and liberal arts majors.

The Devoe & Reynolds Company, Inc., will interview chemists for positions of Production Development who hold a B.S. and a M.S. degree in organic and polymer, or who have a doctor's degree in organic or polymer Monday.

The Ringel Textile Corporation will be on campus Tuesday and Wednesday to interview Sales Trainee candidates who are business and liberal arts majors.

Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart will interview accounting majors Tuesday.

The Ford Motor Company will interview majors in finance, economics, accounting, marketing, industrial management, and general business Thursday. They are interested in BBA and MBA June and August graduates, age 20-30. Industrial arts majors will be interviewed on January 17.

The U.S. Civil Service Commission will hold group meetings at 10 a.m. Thursday, and at 2 p.m. Club Room, Longmire Bldg. for a discussion of career opportunities with the Federal Government.

...Rights

Article 14 paragraph 3 of one of the human rights covenant draft states that the freedom of the press may be withdrawn "if necessary for the protection of national security, public order, safety, health, morals..." "Now what would-be dictator wouldn't love that statement. And what about Article 2? "Many of the rights of the press may be withdrawn during an emergency officially proclaimed by the authorities."

Furthermore, no mention is made of the trials by jury, but Article 36 of the treaty says "trials shall be without jury."

There are further inconsistencies between our Constitution and the U.N. Charter. Our Constitution sets up a form of government for this nation as a free people. The U.N. Charter attempts to create a world government for both Communist and free nations.

The U.S. Constitution gives to Congress the power to declare war. The U.N. Charter gives this power to the Security Council. Congress is made up of the elected representatives of the people. The Security Council is not.

Our Constitution provides for a republic—a government which has at its foundation a responsibility as public servants to the people. The U.N. Charter organization would set up a sovereignty of appointed officials.

We Americans prize our freedom of the press, of religion, of speech, of assembly and all the other rights guaranteed by our Constitution. The U.N. will destroy these rights in an attempt to surrender the sovereignty of the U.S. to a World Government. We must be on our guard and not let this happen.

"Richard Gardner" also seems to doubt that an agreement existed involving Alger Hiss (the most notorious Communist ever removed from our State Dept. and one of our delegates to draft the U.N. Charter) and V. M. Molotov. However, in my next article, I will provide documentary proof that such an agreement did take place and back it up with statements by a man who was in on the deception.

This Weekend

The Faculty Mothers Club will meet at the home of J. N. Parker, 1015 Shalimar Drive, at 3 p.m.

S. Winsten, UCLA, will speak at the General Chemistry Seminar, 306 Science at 4 p.m.

"Notes on Dante's Divine Comedy," will be Jack Thornburg's, Asst. Prof. of Germanic Linguistics, FSU, subject for the English Coffee Hour, 4 p.m., Westminster House.

"Tender is the Night" will be shown at the Campus Movie, 7:30 p.m., Westcott.

Tomorrow

...Objectivity

they also make discussion intellectually meaningful.

An eventual solution to the off-campus restaurant situation described by Mr. Riggins in his article "High Ideals" Not Used" will be produced only by a dispassionate consideration in the courts and on campus.

Unfortunately though, Riggins gives vent to a flash of impassioned indignation, ultimately contributing little, I would imagine, to a final solution. In the process, he waves away with the wiggling of his pen one of our essential liberties and rights, the freedom to own property and to use it as one sees fit. History shows us that the right to own and use property as free individuals has been the goal of peoples everywhere.

The Russian revolutions of 1905 and 1917, the Chinese revolution of the 1930 to 1948 period, and the current revolutions in South America and in the Near East substantiate this. Property right is an essential human right, yet Riggins refers to it as one of "the most unworthy of causes (human rights versus property rights)." J.

As a citizen and as the son of an immigrant father, I hold that the right of a man to own property and use it as he sees fit within the framework of civil law is as sacred as the rights of speech, press and religion in this country.

The moral responsibilities attendant with the ownership and use of property are the business of the individual as long as he is within the law.

Journalism too has attendant responsibilities, is it the place of an official columnist to violate the rules of logical argument and to present such a prostitution of reason to a public composed of those who are eager for the dissemination of the truth?

William Falk

FSU will play Miami in basketball, 7:45 p.m., at Tully Gym.

The Junior Class Dance will be held in the Sowannee Room at 8 p.m.

WFSU-FM will present a program of French Chamber Music at 9 p.m.

Sunday

Kappa Kappa Psi will hold a rush party, 1:30 p.m., Large Lounge Longmire.

Aaron Copeland with the New York Philharmonic will play on WFSU-FM at 3 p.m.

DeGraff Hall will hold a faculty reception from 3 through 5 p.m.

Cawthon will give a faculty reception from 3:30 through 5 p.m.

Landis will present a faculty reception from 3:30 through 5 p.m.

The Lutheran Student Association will meet at 7 p.m. in Longmire. The program will be "The Place of the Lady in the Twentieth Century." Refreshments will follow the program. The public is invited to attend.

Meetings

The Young Democrats of FSU will hold their first meeting of the second trimester on Thursday, January 23rd, at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall. The guest speaker will be announced shortly.

All members of the club and any person wishing to join are invited to attend. Information and discussion of President Lyndon B. Johnson's administration are planned.

Anyone wishing information pertaining to membership in the Club or any facet of the Democratic Party may contact Charles Intrigato at 2107 Jackson Bluff Rd., or Andy Harshbarger in 621 Keilum Hall.

Sophomores who were Freshman Flunkies and who have not picked up their pins yet may get them in Longmire from 2 until 5 any afternoon next week. Money will be refunded upon request.

There will be an important meeting of all FSU Circus personnel today at 5 p.m. at the circus lot. All personnel are urged to attend since the meeting concerns a possible trip to Europe this summer.

The Wesley Foundation will have a Coffee Hour from 10:00 till 12:00 tonight. Everyone is invited to come.

Women's Spring Fashions Have LBJ 'Cowboy' Look

Eggheads, politicians, sailors and "My Fair Lady"—These incongruities make the Spring wardrobe of fashion-conscious women.

If anything at all related at the fashion press week previews in New York yesterday, it was sex appeal. California designer Rudi Gernreich, the avant-garde of American fashion, first spelled it out in Chinese, with droop shouldered, kimono-like dresses and tunics. But he also showed an inaccurately named wall-flower dress with deep arm holes and an indefinite shape like an ameba.

Very often the Lyndon Johnson influence showed up—that's the new name for the cowboy look, important since the Texan moved into the White House. Silk low-belted shirts were not without scarves tied sideways or backwards. But instead of a ten-gallon hat, each jaunty model wore a pint-sized white fedora. Sleeves fascinated Gernreich. His models fluttered butterfly sleeves gathered like wings over the shoulders or sported funnel-like arm coverings or tiers of ruffles on Flaminio-type sleeves.

Those who expect kookie things from the west coast designer were justified by Gernreich's ruffled polka-dotted clown dress and pajamas.

purple and orange brocade jump suit for formal dinners, and an exaggerated white trench coat over tight pants with cocky cap to match. Cella Chapman, queen of the draped shape, returned to her throne this season with voluptuous Edwardian chiffon and Matte jersey numbers.

Receptions Changed

Faculty receptions originally planned for the weekend of Nov. 24, Cawthon and Landis halls, will now be held Sunday from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

All recipients of invitations for Nov. 24th receptions are invited to these receptions.

DeGraff Hall will hold a faculty reception the same date and time. Invitations have gone out for DeGraff's reception.

Seminole Cagers Set For Canes

The Seminoles face what may be their key game of the 64 season Saturday night at 7:45 when a very good Miami quintet comes to visit them in Tully Gymnasium.

Miami will run onto the floor sporting either a 9-3 or a 10-2 record depending on the results of their encounter last night with Florida. When they meet the Tribe Saturday night, the 'Canes should be just a wee bit on the weary side, having played in Jacksonville Wednesday, and Gainesville tonight.

Shirley - We'll Be Ready

Jerry Shirley paused in his practice chores at Tully Gym just long enough to talk about Saturday night's opponent, the University of Miami basketball team. After calmly sinking a 20-footer, Shirley turned and said, "It'll be a close game, but we'll be ready. We've had a whole week to practice for them."

The clash with the Hurricanes, who are 9-2 this season, is considered by many of the players to be THE big game of the season. Captain Pete Rogers spoke for the cagers when he said, "We'll be up for it; there's nothing to worry about there!"

"It'll be a high scoring game, a lot like last year," Rogers continued. "We think if we can stop (Rick) Barry, who is the third ranking scorer in the country, we can stop Miami. We want to run a self-disciplined offense, while they want to get the ball and go. Any team that has some kind of discipline against Miami will beat them, so we hope to make them play our kind of game." The Seminoles stopped a taller UM team last year at Tully in double overtime, 77-74.

It seems as if Cal Huges and Pete Gonzalez will have a lot to say about who wins. These two will be charged with keeping Barry (31.6 ppg) and John Dampier (22.4 ppg) out of the double figures. Huges, unlike the other starters, is preparing for this game "just like every other game."

The team will begin preparations for the game with an early supper at 4 p.m., with a meeting afterward. Rogers explains, "This meeting is when we really start thinking about the game."

A large, spirited crowd makes "all the difference in the world" to the players, so let's SUPPORT THE SEMINOLES!

Gymnasts Meet Citadel Saturday

FSU Gymkana opens the 1964 season with a meet against the Citadel, Saturday at 2 p.m. in Tully Gym. No admission will be charged.

Leading the way will be Jon Culbertson, a top national competitor and a member of the U.S. team sent to the World Games in Prague, Czechoslovakia, in 1962. He will see action in seven events.

Coach Rick Miller says the men will be in good form in spite of interruptions in workouts for final exams, Christmas holidays and injuries.

No matter how weary they may be, however, the Miamians will prove to be the most formidable group to appear on the home court this year.

The muscle of Miami's might has thus far been forward Rick Barry. Standing 6-7, the flash has been drilling them in at a rate of 31.2 per game, for the 3rd highest average in the nation.

Teaming with Barry at the other end forward slot will be Wayne Beckner. Standing only 6-5, Beckner has, nonetheless, been able to average in the double figures and has been known to break open games.

At the guard spot is a shooting phenomenon called John Dampier. Dampier averages 24 points per game and is, in some respects, even more dangerous than his short Barry, by virtue of the fact that he can hit from anywhere on the floor.

Dampier's "Plain Jane" sister at guard is Bernie Butts. Butts doesn't present the scoring threat that Barry and Dampier do, but he's a reliable ball handler who knows how to feed the ball in to the "big guns."

The only man on the Hurricane squad not averaging in the double figures is center Don Parriclan. Although hitting for only slightly over eight points per tilt, Parriclan is a formidable rebounder.

From past performances, Miami seems to be essentially a shooting team. The 'Canes will shoot from most any place on the hardwood and trust in the ability of their men under the net to pull in the rebounds. Following such a strategy, the Hurricanes have leaped the century mark three times this year and are currently averaging 91 points per game.

A packed house is expected for the tilt. The Frosh will take on Pensacola JC at 8:30 p.m. and seats should be a premium by 7:45 p.m. when the colt comes.

President Blames Riots On Raising Of US Flag

(AP) - While diplomats sought to take the US-Panama crisis over the Canal Zone from the streets to the conference table, US troops used tear gas to control Panamanian crowds. The crowds threw stones into the Canal Zone and burned a switch house on the Panama Railroad in new disorders.

It was a flag-raising incident that sparked the crisis which led Panama to break relations with the United States and scrap the 61 year old treaty with the United States governing control of the waterway.

These views were given at Chiari's first meeting with the five-man mission sent to Panama by the Organization of American States.

At this same meeting Chiari told the OAS mission that before Panama would consider resuming diplomatic relations with the United States President Johnson must issue a statement that this will be done on a basis of an integral revision of existing treaties with the United States.

He again charged the US with military aggression and "economic aggression," saying US officials in the Canal Zone were blocking highways running through the zone whose use is essential to Panama's economy. Main stress for the crisis was still placed on the issue of raising the Panamanian flag, Chiari said that this was the main cause of the present trouble. To see the banner raised alongside that of the United States "is the deep-rooted desire of the Panamanian Nation," he asserted.

Meanwhile President Johnson sent new instructions yesterday to his chief diplomatic envoys in Panama, Thomas Mann, assistant secretary of state for Inter-American Affairs and Cyrus Vance, secretary of the Army.

Their initial meeting with Chiari was described as largely a factual assessment of the situation. In Washington Press Secretary Pierre Salinger would not label the general situation either optimistic or pessimistic.

At the United Nations, Panama's chief delegate, Aquilino Boyd, demanded that the canal be nationalized or placed under international jurisdiction. Boyd also accused the United States of "bloody aggression." The United States said it was ready to negotiate differences but there was no expectation that it would give up the canal.

A planning program for the expansion of the FSU football stadium met with approval at the Friday meeting of the Board of Control, which will enable FSU to face Florida in Tallahassee for the Nov. 21 football game.

Although the expansion itself could still be rejected, the Board authorized approximately $10,000 for immediate use in planning the addition. FSU President Dr. Gordon Blackwell requested permission to extend the stadium upon release by the Budget Commission of $550,000 of surplus incidental funds that were earmarked in the FSU Budget for this purpose in June, 1963. The money is now held in trust for the project. In outlining the importance of the stadium to FSU and Tallahassee, Dr. Blackwell maintained that "strong opponents will bring more people." He added that by using the funds in this manner, "We will have a larger attendance figure because we will have better games because of the larger stadium." FSU could schedule teams of more major importance with an expanded stadium. The $550,000 will come from self-generated surplus funds in FSU's 1962-63 budget, in which student fees were a part. FSU would have lost these funds if they had not been earmarked, because they would have reverted to the state. Previously the Board had objected to the proposed financing of the expansion through a loan. No repayment provisions are in the new proposal.

It was suggested to Dr. Blackwell that, if the expansion were approved, FSU should start accumulating an "athletic facility improvement fund" for future use.

FSU's stadium seating is approximately 25,000 seats, at present, but with the proposed outlay, it may be expanded to as much as 38,000 seats.

Final approval of the stadium expansion project is expected at the February Board meeting.

Cape Kennedy Wins Extension

Cape Kennedy was finally chosen the central facility in the University of Florida's project GENESYS -- an extension of their graduate engineering program.

The decision was made at the Friday meeting of the Board of Control, when University of Florida President Wayne Ritzert urged the immediate specification of a central location for the program.

The choice was made in spite of opposition by Board Executive Secretary Broward Culpepper, who wanted to delay a decision until the location of the new East Central Florida Space University could be decided upon, with the possibility of combining the two facilities.

Satellite facilities are planned, the first in the Daytona Beach area, and the second in Orlando Central Park industrial area, unless the BOC later selects the Bluestone site for the new university. Then the satellite would probably be moved to the new campus.

ETV networks, plus the staff of the Florida Institute for Continuing Studies will have satellites to the central location.

Ritzert asked for immediate action because a delay would make it impossible for him to employ the kind of people he wanted. Ritzert also added, "I don't think Florida can afford the possibility of losing the major facility of the National Space Program would not come here, because we had failed to move forward at a critical time."

Liberal Forum Votes To Resume Mecca Picket

By BOB CARNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

Liberal Forum last night passed a motion to begin picketing the Mecca again.

The motion stated that an attempt will be made by a Negro student to be served at 8 a.m. today, if he is refused service, picketing will begin immediately.

The Forum will continue to picket today until 10 p.m. After today they will picket every day from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Ted Harvey, publicity co-chairman of the Social Action Committee, made this statement concerning the picketing.

"Since the owners of the campus-side restaurants have continued to uphold their policy of racial discrimination and refusal to serve Negro students of FSU and Florida A&M, the Liberal Forum Social Action Committee has determined to resume its activities aimed at the desegregation of these three establishments: The Mecca, The Club and the Sweet Shop."

"The members and officers of Liberal Forum and the Social Action Committee are determined to carry out this program within the context of non-violence and legality."

Also at last night's meeting Steve Baum announced the first meeting of this program within the context of non-violence and legality. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Longmire Lounge. A petition to abolish compulsory ROTC will be discussed.

Against JFK
"Union" Label

To the Editor:
In regard to John Fitzgerald Kennedy: he lived violently, he died violently. May he finally rest in peace. But for heaven's sake, let's name the Student Center after him!

Kathleen M. Lee

Name Union
For Kennedy

To the Editor:
The suggestion made is a reasonable one. I am sure that the union in honor of President Kennedy, I feel, most fitting, and the enthusiastic support of all students, faculty, and alumni. As the years pass the ghosts of many battles which John F. Kennedy fought will eventually disappear. Forgotten will be many of the decisions now voiced to his praise and policies. Still, still will be the poignant shouts of those who seek the night of arms and... only answers to the problem to confront our times.

The image that will endure however, will be of a young, sensitive man who dared to challenge the evils of both Americans and loving men everywhere. The torch has been passed to the new generation of Americans. I said, "We shall pay any price, any burden, meet any hardship, support any effort, oppose any foe, assure the survival and the success of liberty."

Sorcerer's Apprentice Like Nuclear Arms Race

(AP)—There's a piece of classical music known as the Sorcerer's Apprentice which may give an idea of what is involved in excessive arming. The piece was based on a poem by a German writer.

In it, the sorcerer's apprentice has learned to conjure things but doesn't know how to stop the process... very much like hypnotizing someone into a trance and not being able to get him out of it.

We have been piling up nuclear and other weapons very much like the sorcerer's apprentice. So have the Russians, although not to the same degree because they haven't had the capabilities. Both sides have enough to annihilate each and most of the world.

It has been said that the U.S. has five to seven times what it needs as against two or three times for the Soviet Union. This is known, in military parlance as overkill.

President Johnson has decided that this senseless race to nowhere must be stopped. In his State of the Union message, the President said plainly that we must not stockpile arms beyond our needs or seek an excess of military power that could be provocative as well as wasteful.

He announced that production of enriched uranium will be cut back by 25 per cent and that facilities for making plutonium will be closed. Both are prime ingredients for nuclear explosives.

While the government has never disclosed specifically the total of nuclear weapons on hand, Secretary of Defense McNamara and other defense officials have spoken publicly of tens of thousands of nuclear explosives ready for use in tactical, defensive and strategic warfare. It is worth noting that when the President mentioned the matter in his message, he challenged Soviet Premier Khrushchev to go in for a similar cutback. The President is said to have had in mind a recent call by the Soviet leader for policy of mutual example to be followed by both sides. This has been interpreted to mean parallel actions to be taken by the U.S. and the Soviet Union in the absence of an actual agreement.

A first step out of the arms morass has been taken. This country is leading the way. The chances are that the Soviet Union will go along if only to save itself from a painful dilemma.

It is fairly agreed, even among those who would tend backward, that disarmament without self-enforcing guarantees would be a shortcut to enslavement. Nations may proclaim their love of peace but we do know that the Communists would not hesitate to make unacceptable demands if they had a telling edge in the balance of power.

This is a fact of life which must be recognized. Power may have lost all meaning as a result of nuclear weapons, but nations still operate on the basis of power. The fact that Western nations do not abuse their power does not mean that others are of the same mind. Whatever else they may not do in our competition with the Soviets and other Communists, we must maintain an adequate defense posture.

In his State of the Union message, President Johnson spoke of making new proposals at Geneva toward the control and eventual abolition of arms. A 17-nation disarmament conference which has been meeting periodically in the Swiss city is scheduled to resume negotiations on January 21st.

The Russians have made tricky proposals in the past... like total disarmament in four years. But they have lately indicated that they would consider a logical, step-by-step procedure. It is a basic objective of the U.S. to abolish all arms. Any mature nation would think the same way considering the murderous weapons at hand.

But the idea that this can be done overnight is simply preposterous. Both sides will have to stay armed for many years... perhaps decades...

...until the world has graduated to a saner level. We would need arms if only to enforce rules and regulations in sensitive areas just as we would need fire engines to cope with fires here and there.

But the arms race and disarmament are two different things. The arms race can be brought to a stop by mutual agreement without danger to anyone. There would be immense benefits to both. Disarmament, on the other hand, would imply reduction of present stocks to a sensible level. This would require a great deal of study. It would certainly involve protracted negotiations. Military values and assets are not always interchangeable. A battleship may be worth an army corps under certain conditions. It wouldn't be worth a battalion under others.

The impression is strong, however, that the coming Geneva talks will be fruitful. There is a will to get somewhere this time. There wasn't in the past.

Sandy Turner

SG Senate Appraised

The beginning of every new year is a time to pause and reflect upon past accomplishments, and to set new goals for the future—the Sixteenth Senate is no exception. Many times in this column and other publications the Senate has come under severe criticism for its ineffectiveness. In fact, its legislative responsibility, the Senate has responded to this criticism with sporadic outbursts of activity, but it soon returns to its cocoon of mental plegm where thinking is done on a weekly basis. Has the criticism been valid? One way to answer this question is to review what the Senate has done in terms of legislation passed.

Yes, the Senate has done something. Senator McKinnon did try to secure some semblance of equal representation for 6,000 day students. But, not the Senate would not even consider the possibility of every student's vote counting equally.

It appears as though the women of FSU have a struggle in appointment and will keep it for a long time. There are over 4,000 male students living off campus who were knowingly kept two-thirds disenfranchised by a Senate committee dominated by women which passed the bill which determined off-campus representation.

The Senate could have produced some significant legislation. Instead, a compromise was reached which actually retrenched the established inequities. The Senate simply is selfishly afraid of changing precepts because the "powers that be" may lose some of their control. The new honor system of which most students know nothing is a product of a student-faculty committee of last year. The Senate has done nothing but give its approval with some minor changes. The executive branch has failed to educate the student body concerning the new honor system, and to most it doesn't even exist.

The only real fight over legislation concerned the procedure for filling vacancies in the elected offices of the legislative and judicial branches. The University Party barely managed to defeat the bill by two votes. As usual, party labels weren't even considered except among the men.

The U's victory may have been Pyrrhic, however, as the Student Party benefited from the party jumping. Unfortunately, the bill was an argument between the two branches of government; the general welfare of the student body was not involved. The ultimate example of inaction has been reserved for the Class Officer Program which the student body voted by a narrow margin to abolish last Spring in a referendum. So far the Senate has managed to procrastinate by setting up a special committee which has done nothing but ask opinions and argue for over a month.

There have been bright spots however. Notably Men's Vice President Ryll's work with the constitution of the men's Inter-Dormitory Council. Craggs' legislation concerning fund raising projects. Here are two pieces of legislation which actually contribute to the benefit of the student body as a whole.

So far the Senate has ignored such problem areas as year-round student government, political party regulations, apartmentment, student

Surgeon General Report Links Smoking, Cancer

By NANCY ZLATIN
Assistant News Editor

A recent report on smoking and health, an advisory committee of the surgeon general said that "cigarette smoking can kill."

Any cigarette smoking was found to be the principal cause of lung cancer and a health danger so grave that it calls for remedial action. This report is initially expected to cut cigarette sales down about 10 per cent.

In general, the committee estimated, "the greater the number of cigarettes smoked daily, the higher the death rate." (This death rate is in all causes.)

Men who smoke less than 10 cigarettes a day, the mortality rate is about 40 per cent higher than for non-smokers. "For those who smoke 10 to 19 cigarettes a day, it is about 70 per cent higher than for non-smokers; for those who smoke 20 to 29 a day, 90 per cent higher; for those who smoke 40 or more a day, 120 per cent higher."

Although smokers who have been smoking for a long period of time will increase their chances of living longer by stopping, the mortality rate is higher for those who stop after age 55.

Surgeon General Luther Terry of the U.S. Public Health Service as a physician advises all children not to start smoking. He stated that the government would act promptly to decide what can be done to reduce smoking.

Besides branding cigarette smoking as the "chief cause" of lung cancer, the report linked lung cancer with other major killing lung disorders as chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

With the recent attack on smoking a new anti-smoking industry has emerged. According to "The Collegian," of Fresno State College in California, the cost of anti-smoking products is relatively inexpensive—less than the price of a carton of cigarettes.

For students with weak will power, drug stores close to the campus carry such items as "Ban-Smoke" chewing gum, "Nikoban" and "Ban-Trom."

"We sell them all the time," reported a pharmacist at the Thrifty Drug Store. "But we haven't noticed any change in cigarette sales as a result." The prices of the anti-smoking products range from 98 cents to $2.34. According to a Triple J Drug pharmacist these products, "really work."

For those who absolutely can't stop smoking, there's still help on the horizon. One of the nation's leading cancer research centers, Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, New York, is currently experimenting with tobacco-less cigarettes.

Princeton Psychologist To Give Lecture Tonight

Dr. Hadley Cantrell, a Princeton University psychologist who was director for many years of the Office of Public Opinion Research, will speak in the FSU Department of government public Lecture Series, "Some Requirements For a Political Psychology" will be the subject of the lecture by Cantrell, who is the author of a dozen books and more than 80 articles in scholarly journals on subjects as diverse as the Oron Welles' Maritan invasion of 25 years ago and international relations.

The lecture is free and is open to the public. Dr. Malcolm Parsons, chairman of the Department said, Cantrell's is one of eight lectures by visiting authorities from other disciplines commenting on problems of government and politics.

Cantrell, a 53-year-old native of Utah, received his B.S. degree from Dartmouth College in 1928, to graduate work at Munich and Harvard and received his Ph.D. from Ber- nard in 1931.

He has taught at Dartmouth, Harvard and Columbia and since 1936 has been on the faculty of Princeton. From 1953 to 1955 he was Stuart professor of psychology and chairman of the department of psychology and since 1955 he has been a research associate.

He was associate director of the Princeton Radio Project from 1937 to 1939 and from 1939 to 1957 was director of the Office of Public Opinion Research. He has served as a consultant to the secretary of war and Executive Office of President and in 1948 was director of the UNESCO "Tensions Project," Paris. His many books include "The Invasion From Mars," Princeton University Press, 1940; "Gauging Public Opinion," Princeton, 1944; "How Nations See Each Other" (with William Buchanan), University of Illinois Press, 1953; "The Politics of Despair," Basic Books, 1958; "Ill- will Leaders and Mastery Over Man."

Stokes Cited For Syrian Aid

A report recently published in Beirut, Lebanon, has cited an FSU English professor for his contributions to Syria's educational program. Dr. Paul Stokes, who studied Syrian methods of teaching English to their schoolchildren at the request of the Syrian Ministry of Education and Damascus University, is commended in the report to the Syrian government.

Presented in Damascus, Syria, by the director of an institute for Syrian English teachers which was held last summer, the report praises recommendations by Stokes which made the institute possible.

The institute, attended by 83 Syrian teachers, was co-sponsored by the Syrian Ministry with assistance from the Ford Foundation and the U.S. Government. Stokes, who visited the country in 1960, served as visiting professor at the American University of Beirut during the academic year, 1962-63.

Faggioni Slates Piano Recital

Joyce Faggioni, graduate student, will present a piano recital at 8:15 p.m. Monday evening, in Opperman Music Hall.

Miss Faggioni received the bachelor of music education degree at FSU in April and a diploma in applied piano. She is presently studying piano with Miss Mary Winslow. Her program will include selections from the works of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Ravel.

She has served as accompanist for University Singers and is president of Sigma Alpha Xi. She is also a member of Garret Key, Morrar Board and Village Vamps, and is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1963.

AY FSU Rules Made By BOC

All the rules and regulations which are necessary for the governing of an institution like FSU are made by the Board of Control of Florida. The BOC appoints the managers, faculty, teachers, and employees with the power to remove them when necessary.

It has supervision and control over FSU, Florida A&M, University of Florida, University of South Florida, Florida Atlantic College, the Florida Institute of Continuing Studies, and the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind.

The BOC is subject to the authority of the State Board of Education. Governor Napoleon Bonaparte Broward unified the institutions of higher learning into the BOC in 1905. It now consists of seven members, one from the State Senate and six from the Congressional districts, all appointed by the governor. All members serve a four year term. Their only compensation is their expenses incurred.

At the January 10 Tallahassee meeting, Bayne M. Harrison, Jr., of St. Petersburg was Chairman.

Summer Scholarships Offered By Six European Universities

SALES OF THE BOOK

... "Our Journey Through Florida" widely used in the schools will now be producing funds for FSU's development due to a bequest of its co-author, the late Miss Cleo Rainwater, former teacher at the University School. Here Philip Fleming, left, director of development at FSU, and Dr. Eugene Boyce, associate dean of the School of Education who was principal of the University School when Miss Rainwater taught sixth grade there, discuss the book which has been adopted for fourth grade Florida history. Fleming said that money from the sale of the book given to FSU will be used for scholarship purposes. Miss Rainwater left an estate valued at about $15,000 to FSU.

The Institute of International Education announced today that a limited number of scholarships for 1964 summer study are being offered by two Austrian and four British universities.

Adolf-Morsbach awards for summer study at most German universities are also available. All programs are administered by the Institute of International Education.

The historic University of Vienna will hold a special summer session at its St. Wolfgang campus in Austria from July 12, to Aug. 22. Courses available to students will include law, political science and liberal arts courses and German language courses. The St. Wolfgang program is open to candidates who have completed two or more years of college and will cost approximately $335. An optional four-day trip to Vienna at a small additional charge is also available.

The aim of the Salzburg summer school at Salzburg-Klessheim, sponsored by the Austro-American Society, is to provide students with an opportunity to learn the German language and to acquire a first-hand knowledge of Austrian culture and foreign policy. Although most courses (in art, music, economics and politics) will be taught in English, attendance at one of several German language courses will be mandatory.

Total cost for the Salzburg program will be $260; $245 to cover room, board and tuition, plus a $15 registration fee. Applicants for the six-week session from July 5 to July 25) must be between the ages of 18 and 40 and must have completed at least one year of college.

High-point of the two Austrian summer sessions will be the opportunity for students to attend the famed Salzburg Music Festival, including one opera, one concert and five musicals' drama "Everyman," all tickets are included in schools' fees.

Summer school opportunities in Great Britain include a choice of subjects and historical periods of study to be carried out at the appropriate university concerned. The study of Shakespeare, and Elizabethan drama will be offered at Stratford-upon-Avon by the University of Birmingham; the history and art of 17th century England will be taught at the University of Oxford; 20th century English literature at the University of London; and British history, philosophy and literature from 18th to 19th century at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland.

The Universities of London and Birmingham will hold their sessions from July 6 to August 14; the University of Birmingham, from July 13 to August 14; and the University of Edinburgh, from June 29 to August 14. Fees, which include room and tuition, for all schools except Edinburgh, will be $290; and for Edinburgh, $282. Courses for all universities are open to students who have completed high school or signed for graduate studies; undergraduates who have completed at least two years of university may apply.

Eight Adolf-Morsbach awards worth approximately $125 each will be made available by the German government for summer study at German universities. They are to be awarded to candidates with a good knowledge of German who have not received other grants for a full academic year's study in Germany.

Further information and applications for all summer sessions awards may be obtained from the Counseling Division, Institute of International Education, 800 Avenue, New York 17. Completed scholarship applications to the British schools must be sent at the Institute by March 15; applications for admission by March 31.

Austrian scholarship awards must be received by March 15; British awards by April 15. Closing date for completed government awards is April 15. Travel arrangements to and from Europe are the responsibility of each student.

Bond Schemes Spread Fast

(ACP)—A get-rich-quick (or lose everything) scheme involving U.S. savings bond chain letters is spreading from campus to campus.

Now it's at Valparaiso University, Indiana. The campus newspaper, "The Torch," says the chain letter arrived after huge volumes of bond sales forced South Bend, Ind., banks to halt sales of $25 bonds to students of Notre Dame University. Earlier, the scheme had mushroomed at Kansas universities.

Several thousand dollars worth of savings bonds were sold to students by two Valparaiso banks in a few hours, after which the banks refused to make further sales. Now, says "The Torch," several students reportedly have left to take the letter to the University of Wisconsin at Madison. How many other schools will be affected cannot be determined.

Chain letter schemes are illegal under the laws of many states, and federal fraud laws also may be involved. Post office authorities told "The Torch" that even though the lists of participants are not circulated in the mails, this does not alter the illegality of the operation since usually the bonds or other evidence of participation in the scheme are mailed.

The Treasury Department spokesman told "The Torch" that such schemes do a distinct disservice to the savings bond program. "Rather than encouraging persons to make genuine investments," the source said, "they create the illusion that participants are both aiding their government and themselves. Even in those rare cases where an individual receives a large return, it is likely that he would quickly redeem the bonds, thereby placing a further burden on the Treasury."

Young Republicans Correction

In a story on the Young Republican Club at FSU which appeared in "The Florida Flambeau," it was stated that the FSU Young Republican Club had voted to withdraw from the Florida Federation of Young Republicans (FFYR). For failure to comply with the Constitution and by-laws of the organization.

The FSU club did not vote to withdraw, but voted against re-joining the FFYR. The club had been automatically dropped from the organization after a failure to attend two consecutive meetings of the Federation.

The article also reported incorrectly that Jim Sisco, as having been the State College Chairman of the FFYR. Sisco was never appointed the State Chairman as State College Chairman of the organization.

Polio Immunization Extended Today Through Wednesday

By LOUISE RAUSCHERT
Flambeau Staff Writer

The oral immunization drive against polio is being extended today through Wednesday, due to bad weather and to an increased interest shown by FSU students.

The immunization sugar lumps are being given out at the infirmary for 50 cents, with a second oral "sugar lump" to be taken in March.

President Blackwell urges all FSU students to participate in the oral immunization drive against polio. "This program offers the opportunity for insurance against polio interfering with our students' full participation in the professional fields for which they are training."

The vaccine is tasteless, has no significant side effects, and the whole procedure takes only a few seconds. "I anticipate that current polio immunization will soon be required for all students at the University. The immunization now available will protect the individual for up to four years and possibly longer at a minimum cost," stated Blackwell.

It is easy to take, convenient and inexpensive. Only 50 cents for a drop of vaccine on a lump of sugar to prevent polio may save thousands of dollars needed to cure the dreaded disease. Students who have the Salk vaccine shots, should also take the trivalent (immune), which combats all three strains of polio. Those who have taken the monovalent should also take the trivalent oral immunization.

"Help prevent any outbreak of the disease on campus by getting your vaccination today," urged Blackwell. "I have had my 'lump of sugar.' Have you?"

Jack Thornburg Talks On Dante

"The Divine Comedy represented what Dante perceived in his own life," stated Dr. Jack Thornburg, professor of Germanic Linguistics at the English Coffee Hour this past Friday.

Dante was in love with Beatrice, who married someone else and died young. She gave Dante new life and is typified as grace and revelation in his "Comedy."

Thornburg explained how the concept of "courtly love" must have colored the works of this period. The following poem by the Count of Poitou was given as an example of such "courtly ideal."

"I'll make some verse just for fun. Not about me or anyone. Nor deeds that noble knights have done. Nor love's adieu... I made them riding in the sun. (My horse helped too.)"

Friday at 4 p.m. in Westminster House, Dr. Griffith Pugh of the English Dept., will speak on "Five as Critics."

Peace Group To Host Vance

The FSU Students Act for Peace will hold its first meeting of the second trimester tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Room 204, Longmire.

Guest speaker of the week will be Dr. Earl Vance, professor of social science. Vance will speak about his experiences and impressions concerning his travels in the Soviet Union. He will also show movie slides that were taken during his visit in Russia.

The FSU Students Act for Peace will discuss a petition for the abolishment of compulsory ROTC. All interested students may attend.

Anyone wishing information about membership in the group, please contact Steve Baum at 725 West Pensacola.

National Basketball Roundup

Top Ten Escapes Defeat

(AP) For the first time this season, there is no Monday blues for the nation's top ten college basketball teams. Nine of the elite were in action last night, and every one of them came out on top. That hasn't happened before in this season of frequent upsets.

Unbeaten UCLA even managed to survive a pair of unlucky omens. The UCLA men were top ranked and going for their 13th straight victory. A frightening combination. Yet, although they had some shaky moments, the Bruins were able to beat Southern Cal for the second straight night. The score was 78 to 71. Gail Goodrich led the UCLA scoring with 23 points. The UCLA's unbeaten record will be safe at least until Friday night. They are idle until then, when they play Stanford.

Second ranked Kentucky appeared to be back on the right track last night when they went over the 100 point mark for the second straight time. The Wildcats beat Tulane 105 to 63. Cotton Nash led the way with 34 points. Kentucky now has won 12 and lost two. The Wildcats do not play again until Saturday night when they take on Tennessee.

Fourth ranked Michigan almost fell victim to eight time loser Purdue, but almost doesn't count. The Wolverines used stalling tactics at the end of the game and won it, 77 to 70. Michigan too is out of action until Saturday night when it plays Davidson also had a real scare last night before edging Virginia 64-62. The fifth ranked Southern Conference team lost an eight point lead then had to battle from behind to get the victory and protect its unbeaten record. Barry Teague and sub Charlie Maroon scored 12 of Davidson's last 15 points in that scramble. Davidson plays the Citadel tomorrow night, and then Richmond on Wednesday.

Sixth ranked Oregon State also plays two games this week, both with Oregon, on Friday and Saturday nights. Oregon State lost to a team of Hawaiian service all stars Friday night. But bounced back last night and defeated Hawaii University 70 to 44.

Seventh ranked Vanderbilt put in a strong claim for higher ranking by trouncing Mississippi State 90 to 66. Earlier in the week Vandy knocked Oxford, Kentucky, and now boasts a record of 12 victories and one loss. Higher scorer for the Commodores last night was reserve Wayne Calvert. He scored 18 points. Vanderbilt plays Mississippi tomorrow night.

Eighth ranked Cincinnati came from behind and defeated St. Louis last night, thanks to last minute heroics by sophomore John Serbin. He scored two baskets in the last 25 seconds and the bears won the game 67 to 64. Cincinnati plays Bradley Wednesday night and Drake Saturday night.

Once beaten Villanova won its eleventh game last night, a 55-44 decision over St. John's of New York. Wally Jones again set the pace for Villanova, this time with 20 points. The ninth ranked Philadelphia team plays once this week - on Saturday night against Xavier of Cincinnati. Tenth ranked Duke breezed to its sixth straight victory in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Blue Devils whipped North Carolina 84 to 64. Jeff Mullins scored 25 points for Duke and equally as important the usually high scoring Billy Cunningham of North Carolina was held to 14 points, eleven under his season's average. Duke is not scheduled to play this week.

The only member of the top ten not in action last night, third ranked Loyola of Chicago, remains idle throughout the week.

NOTICE

Soccer team practice hours for the coming semester have been set. The team will hold sessions from 4-6 p.m. on Monday and Thursday and from 2-6 on Saturday afternoons.

Rules Altered

(Fort Lauderdale, Florida) -- The NCAA football rules committee has voted virtually to return to the free and unlimited substitution rule that existed before 1952. The only restriction is that a team must sacrifice a time out when it sends in a platoon during the progress of a period when the clock is running. Since two-platoon football was outlawed after the 1952 season, the substitution rules have been altered several times. Last year, platoon substitutions were permitted only on second and third downs when the clock was stopped. Two players could be inserted on first and fourth downs.

Hurricane's Storm, Lose 80-78

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

The University of Miami's once proud Hurricane basketball team returned home Sunday after a disastrous swing through the state, in which they lost two of their three games.

The 80-78 defeat which a scrappy Seminole squad handed the angry young Hurricanes was by far their most humiliating. The Miamians hit the floor determined to spring the big guns of their attack, Rick Barry and John Dampier, loose for a point rampage, while holding Gary Schull, the leading Tribe scorer, to a low point output.

The Hurricane game plan, however, did not take into account the Seminole guards, Pete Gonzalez and Bobby Lovell, who combined for 42 points to lead a Tribe offense which hit 56% of its shots.

Sterling defensive performances turned in by Cal Hoge, Schull and Gonzalez held Barry to 32 points, right on his average, and Dampier to 8 points. Dampier was averaging 24.9 per game.

The Hurricanes left muttering about the poor job turned in by the referees, who called two technical fouls against the visitors. One foul, coming in the last 12 seconds of the game, provided the Seminoles with the extra margin for victory.

The last two minutes of the game was one wild argument, with the indignant Miamians on the offensive, against referees, players and fans. The score in the games was tied 19 times. Neither team was more than four points ahead.

The Hurricanes started the game with a strong performance. As the game wore on, the lead see-sawed back and forth, with the Tribe swinging away at Hurricane leads. The half ended with the score deadlocked at 36-36.

Miami built up a 47-43 lead after four minutes of the last half, but Gonzalez and team captain Pete Rogers tied it up with two shots.

Miami added three points for a 53-50 lead with seven minutes left. Hurricane Guard Bernie Butts fouled Jerry Shirley, then earned the visitors a technical foul call by arguing with the referee. Shirley sank two shots to trim the lead to 53-52. A Rogers jumped (led up at 54-54 with 6 minutes to go.

The last Hurricane lead came with 3:31 left when Butts stole the ball and dropped in a layup to make it 73-72. Bob Ek put FSU ahead to stay with a jumper.

A long jumper by Butts cut the lead to 72-76 at 1:05. Lovell hooked it up to 79-76 on a 1-and-1 shot with 15 seconds remaining. A scramble for the ball followed and there was a jump ball.

Barry got the rebound and sunk a layup as the buzzer sounded.

UM Coach Bruce Hale stormed on the court to complain to referees that he had been ignored in trying to call a time-out when Barry sunk the basket. His efforts resulted in another technical foul call against the visitors, which shaved away at the final margin.

Gonzalez hit 9 of 14 field shots and 6 of 6 free throws, 24 points to pace the Tribe. Lovell, a senior who was in his first game, was named with 18 points.

Life In The Locker Room

Barry - Tremendous

Pete Gonzalez, who was the leading scorer for the Seminoles in Saturday night's 80-78 win over visiting Miami, paused in the team dressing room, while unwrapping the tape from around his feet, to inform the other jubilant cagers that Rick Barry was "tremendous."

Everyone was in the good mood to argue with the Gonzalez observation. The only disagreement came over Barry's rebounding ability. The 6-7 junior forward from Roselle Park, New Jersey, was "slow in going after rebounds that weren't within his reach."

Several Seminoles began to compare Barry to all-time FSU great Dave Fedor, concluding that they were as unequal in ability.

Head Coach Bud Kennedy came in to tell the players that they had "much reason to be proud of yourselves and the game you played."

A special pat went to Gonzalez and Bobby Lovell, whom he called one of the finest pair of guards in the country.

The Seminoles, tired but happy after their impressive win had nothing but praise for the student body turnout and support.

The only sour note of the evening was struck when 6-6 sophomore Gary Schull bemoaned the lack of publicity he was getting as the team's leading scorer. "I gotta say something," he chorled, "I need my name in the paper!"

Radio And TV Guild To Be Organized

Interested people in the radio and television will now begin a guild in which they both learn and put into practice skills in these two communicative fields.

Those interested in such parallel fields as drama, art, music and advertising will find the club informative. The newly formed FSU club will be called the Radio and Television Artists' Guild, or RATAG. Duane Francheschi and Tommy Wright, faculty sponsors, announced today that the club will meet twice a month. Francheschi, a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho, national radio and TV honorary for majors and people in related fields, said that the club would be able to apply AERho for a charter after establishing a sizeable club here on campus. Therefore, RATAG could become an AERho chapter at FSU.

RATAG will begin their first actual project by producing and directing an entire half hour television and taping it. The tape will be sent to the national AERho for their biannual contest for an outstanding half hour show by radio and TV clubs on all college campuses across the nation. Field trips to various TV stations in Florida and speakers, outstanding in such fields as make-up, graphics, advertising and programming will lecture at club meetings.

The first meeting of RATAG will be tomorrow at 7 p.m. in Dodd Hall at WFSU-TV. All interested people are invited to attend this organizational meeting. The club offers experience in both radio and television.

Brown Is Chaplain

William D. Brown, a doctoral candidate, has been named Acting Chaplain and instructor at FSU.

After coming to FSU to begin his studies in Marriage and Family Living in 1962, Brown taught history at Strategic Air Command, Maxwell Air Force Base at Montgomery, Ala. He also worked as a production director at Texas Christian University. Brown holds a B.A. degree from the University of Virginia and a Bachelor of Divinity and Master of Theology degrees from the Graduate School of Theology at Christian University. In 1954-56 he served in the Navy and was a chaplain. A professional minister and church director, he has 15 years' past in this field at West Virginia Baptist Church in Virginia and at St. Luke Methodist Church in Fort Worth. As a ordained minister in The Disciples of Christ church, he is a member of the First Christian Church in Tallahassee.

Spring Rush Is Here Again!

Winters Matches Science And Faith

Science is the opinion of many, depends on faith just as much as does, reports Dr. Stephen Winters, of the FSU geology department, who spoke to the Hillier organization at its first meeting of the season.

Winters has even seen an electron microscope, yet he scientists believe that "these particles exist," the speaker told more than 65 students.

A scientist, on this faith, promotes various theories and experiments that work. Winters, who believes in religion, said in faith, too. And he is a human being because he does not. Faith, religion stresses a set of values.

A geologist in his speech, "Where Did We Come From and Where Are We Going?" pointed out that man, while related to the animals, is the only being which can create, develop a culture, the transmission of knowledge and seek to predict and control the future.

ment, could make it a better world.

The speaker does not believe that man, while on the earth for thousands of years, has evolved much biologically or improved mentally but he has learned to master his environment.

Winters also stated that "Man is fast learning to eliminate himself. It can be done by nuclear warfare, but man can also wipe himself off the earth by developing medicines and anti-biotics which kill some of the germs, but leave him unprotected against others."

He asserted that the scientist claims that his job is the investigation of truth and that science is amoral. The scientist should have ethical or social values and assume responsibility for what is done with the results of his research.

The speaker said that "the faith of our fathers stands for justice and peace as worthwhile values." Man's inhumanity to man resulted from departing from these values or forgetting about them. Winters said that "the faith of our fathers is a time of radicalism, of throwing off traditions. This is especially true in college where you are exposed to new knowledge. But the values are fundamental. With the increased knowledge you get at the university, you may come back to the faith, now re-enforced with facts."

Winters was made an honorary member of Hillier after his lecture.

Drs. Walby, Walton, Reichart To Deliver Campus Lectures

Dr. H. Odell Walby, professor of government at Florida State University, will deliver a lecture on "The Dilemma of Taiwan" in the Strozier Library Lecture Hall at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, January 14.

Dr. Walby with his wife and daughter spent 18 months in the Orient. He was visiting professor at the National Chengchi University in Taipei under the Federal Agency for International Development in connection with the University of Michigan.

While in that part of the world, he helped set up centers and active programs in public and business administration and helped to promote inservice training for public officials. Several articles and pamphlets written by Dr. Walby there have been translated into Chinese. Two of these are, "Responsibility of the Finance Administrator" and "Executive Governmental Expenditure Controls."

Dr. Walby was visiting professor at the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines in 1953-54 and was formerly consultant to Cleveland Metropolitan Services Commission and served in the Office of the Secretary of War during World War II. He is the author of several books, "Philippine Public Fiscal Administration" now being used as a textbook in the islands.

WALTON

Dr. Francis R. Walton, former head of the FSU classics dept., will present an illustrated lecture on "Treasures of the Gennadion Library" at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the library lecture hall.

He is sponsored by the Tallahassee Archaeological Society and, through special arrangement, by the College of Arts and Sciences of FSU.

Walton served as head of the classics dept. at FSU from 1952 until 1961, when he resigned to accept a position as Director of the Gennadion Library at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece.

Off-Campus Housing Lacking

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

With on-campus housing for 5,000 and a student population of 10,000, there must be 6,000 students living off-campus.

Among these 6,000 "responsible, thoughtful" young adults are those who leave landlords with $6 in long distance phone calls; run home wells dry by leaving an outside spigot on all night; bounce golf balls on floors at 2 a.m.; repaint rooms in black-spray swirls; and vacate apartments abruptly without telling the landlord. The do all these things believing that as minors the owner can't touch them.

Francis Rivard, Director of Off-

Campus Housing, would like to correct this belief. He says that the biggest thing students off-campus must realize is that they are legally responsible for the essentials of life—food, housing and clothing—even as minors.

His chief concern is the Florida "Due Notice Law." This law requires due notice of intent to terminate a rental. Weekly rental would require a week's notice; monthly rental, 15 days notice and 45 days for a quarterly rental. This means that a student cannot move out at his leisure, that he is legally responsible for the next month's rent if he does not give proper notice. His landlord then can sue for this rent or, more probably, complain to the Off-Campus Housing office. Here the student comes under the jurisdiction of the dean and can be subject to University disciplinary action.

The Off-Campus Housing Office, however, does not exist merely as a means of control for the landlords. Its primary function is to help students find acceptable housing when none is available in the dorms. Rivard's office handles 1,000 listings, all of which must meet requirements set up by the University Safety office. These apartments are inspected annually to assure their acceptable status. Then they are rated as exceptional, average or marginal and are posted in the housing office.

Since Rivard cannot force landlords or students to use his office, many do not come to him. As a result, some students live in what he would consider unacceptable housing.

Several weeks ago two such students almost died because of a faulty gas heater, something Rivard tries to weed out in his inspection. Because of similar accidents, Rivard prefers students to work through his office.

The Off-Campus housing office is located at 113 Wildwood Drive. Its office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, telephone 599-3031.

CAN HOUSING SPACE BE THIS SHORT?

... ask the 6,000 students who are forced to seek off-campus housing facilities. Although students aren't being housed in the President's home yet, the off-campus housing office won't mind asking if the situation ever reaches the point where the FSU President's home is the only space left.

French Consul To Visit FSU

Tallahassee and FSU get their first look at a French Consul next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall when the Alliance Française presents the new Orleans French Consul, Jacques Liger-Belair, as guest lecturer.

To give some idea of its importance—a consul is responsible for a large area of states such as Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, and Florida. As official representative of the French government, it is his duty to deliver passports, take care of French residents in the U.S., serve as a liaison between the U.S. and France, and perform other supernatural or cultural matters.

The only rank above consul is the one of consulate-general, and this position has the rank of a minister at New York City since there are relatively few consulate-generals in the country.

The lecture is open to the public, with a reception after the lecture.

British and Turkish officials have opened negotiations in London to cautious first move to restore peace and stability to Cyprus. The British officials will meet later today with Greek representatives.

Top leaders of the Arab world are gathered in Cairo to seek action to block Israel's plan to divert waters of the Jordan River for irrigation.

Cuban leader Fidel Castro received the Red "carpet" treatment when he arrived in Moscow — a 21-gun salute and an airport welcome from Premier Khrushchev. It seems likely that Castro's surprise visit was to be can be planned for more economic aid. And probably the two will announce U.S. policy in Panama.

Secretary of State Rusk said yesterday that Castro is partly to blame for the rioting along the border of the Panama Canal Zone. Rusk also said the United States cannot afford to pull out of the Canal Zone.

More than 2000 high school students swarmed through downtown Saigon today, handing out leaflets denouncing South Viet Nam's Premier. The demonstrators also chanted "Down with DeGaulle" and "Down with the Americans" and chanted anti-french slogans. But the demonstration was aimed primarily against the Viet Nam Provisional Government.

A series of explosions shattered a building of a chemical company last night in Attleboro, Mass. At least five persons were killed and 40 were injured. The feared gas victims may be found today in the ruins. Officials say they can't determine what caused the explosions.

State Police report that a plane has crashed in the snow-swept mountains of western Maryland. Meanwhile, the headquarters of the Eighth Air Force in Westover, Massachusetts says one of its planes — an F-4 Phantom II — was downed in the area. Police have not been able to reach the plane. The plane was on a rescue team over snow-clogged roads when the rugged area of the crash site. Westover Base says its plane had a crew of 5 and was en route to its regular base — Turner Air Force Base in Georgia — when it disappeared.

Diplomatic sources report the United States and Panama have agreed to set up a joint authority with the organization of American States to try to keep peace along the riot-torn Canal Zone border. A five-man negotiating team has been arranged for a final meeting in Panama to settle technical details for the peace authority, proposed by Argentina.

Assistant Secretary of State Edwin Martin represented the United States in the OAS negotiations in Panama. Martin told newsmen: "We have no reasonable progress."

There was more violence yesterday at Colon, the Panamanian side of the Caribbean side of the canal. One Panama National Guardman was killed and two others wounded. Thus, the death toll now is 24 since the flag raising incident in the Canal Zone last Thursday set off the fighting. Three of the dead were U.S. soldiers.

Meetings

Fashion, Incorporated will meet tomorrow night, at 7 p.m. in the Home Economics lounge. All those interested in joining may attend.

Young Republican Club will hold its first meeting of the trimester tomorrow night at 8:30 in Longmire, Goldwater, Rockefeller, Nixon, Lodge and all other Republican hopefuls will be discussed. Election of officers will also be held. The club will begin work on its Tallahassee campaign, discussing plans to distribute leaflets, posters and informative material through door-to-door canvassers.

"Gee, I wish it would snow" is the thought around campus these days. Anybody from up North "in them that Yankee hills" will look at the snow and be assured it is a snow day if they are viewing while "them Rockers" yell "younder" will contemplate that it's "too cold to snow."

Contrary to popular belief, it is never too cold to snow. There is no snow in the Arctic and Antarctic regions where subzero temperatures reign. Toledo, Ohio, with its 8 degrees below zero, and Buffalo, New York, with 17 degrees have mounds of snow on the ground. Montgomery, Alabama experiences temperatures in the high 30's with snow still falling. It is snowing over Tallahassee but not in Tallahassee.

Although there have been reports of snowfalling to the ground, it melts and falls as a heavy rain.

According to the weather bureau Tallahassee is in a bad location for snow. Snow flurries are possible but improbable. The ideal situation for a Tallahassee snow fall is now. Cold weather for a few days followed by a continental front. However, no front is expected in Tallahassee. It would indeed be a rarity and a novelty to see the FSU campus covered with a white blanket of snow. So, fellow students, put away your toboggans and snow suits, since little or no snow will fall in Tallahassee.

Witty Literary Ghost Could Haunt Politicians

the ghost of an Eighteenth Century wit with a wry sense of literary humor would have a heyday haunting today's politicians—if he had a Ph.D. in English literature.

Dr. James A. Preu, who has written several satirical pieces for the private press of public officials and public benefits, in last year's "English Journal."

In his satirical descriptions of the "Affluent Society" and "The Origin of Moralism" in a Twentieth Century American politics, Preu satirizes the poet's theory that politicians, rather than religion, invent virtue.

Mandeville, whose poetic satire and on the thought—"The Worst of the multitude: Did Something the Common Good?"—argued that the common good was virtually, and "unintentionally" dependent on the virtues of the few.

Preu's poetic votes for gin, beer, and highwaymen, Mandeville maintained these were the virtues that kept the farmers, the grain, the locksmiths in business, and the tradesmen busy supporting the robber's "moll."

Mandeville was writing to day," argues Preu, "he might point out that in 1900 we Americans spent four and a half billion on higher education, but 60 billion on tobacco, 9 billion on liquor, and 20 billion on gambling."

"If he wanted to be really nasty, he might point out we have it on the very highest authority that 'Thou shalt not kill'; yet each year we spend billions on bombs and missiles designed for mass slaughter. And these billions being pumped into our economy are a large factor in our national prosperity," writes Preu.

Mandeville said mankind progressed from the savage to the social state due to the efforts of politicians who created order to serve their own interests. Human selfishness being the greatest obstacle they had to overcome, they first had to teach men to conquer their appetites and work for the general welfare rather than for themselves, the poet argued.

According to Mandeville this was accomplished by flattery and praising men for overcoming their baser passions and devoting their energies to the common good, says Preu in his article.

"To the objection that the origin of morality was religious not political, Mandeville replied that the concepts of vice and virtue antedate Christianity," notes the professor. This, Preu adds, can be supported by the fact that the virtue of the ancient Greeks and Romans was due more to their method of public tribute and military triumph, than to the paganism permitted by their gods and goddesses.

Reluctantly agreeing that Mandeville's parables on the moral structure of society constitute many of its ingredients if not its actual growth, Preu says he considers the ideas worth some thought. "We are little better than a collection of lies," he suggests. "Our virtues are responsible for our prosperity, and our moral code is a hoax. A bit depressing, isn't it?"

"But of course it isn't true," writes Preu as his conclusion to the article.

Students To Check Books With Help Of Computer

Students may check out books by machine at the computer-based library when Florida Atlantic University, opens its doors at Boca Raton next September.

There will even be a central card catalog file which is the mark of most libraries, according to Edward Heiliger, director of library and information retrieval service at FAU.

Students will be able to use a catalog of the expected 100,000 volumes which will have been distributed over the campus in the form of a print-out list from an IBM 4400 computer.

When they check out a book the I.D. card from the book and an I.D. card from the student both will be fed into an IBM 357 computer. A card showing the due date will go into the book and the library desk will preserve a computer record of the checkout.

Heiliger said the idea of using the 357 for this purpose came on a visit to a plant in California last January, when he saw such a machine being used for recording piece work records.

Such a data collection system as the 357 rents for the salary of a clerk earning average pay, he added. Heiliger told a group of special librarians assembled from over the South, that studies at the University of Illinois showed that under conventional methods in a university library

Five FSU Students Travel To Ecumenical Meeting

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Five students represented FSU at the 19th Ecumenical Student Conference on the Christian World Mission at Ohio University from Dec. 27 to Jan. 2.

Maria Sartwell, Max Courtney, Fe Daladado, Luther Kramer and Linda Rue Shepler were among the 3,000 American and international students who converged on Athens, Ohio, to discuss the broad implications of the Conference leaders such as Father Alexander Schmemmann, Dean and Chaplain, St. Vladimir's Orthodox Seminary, Bishop Daniel Corrigan, the Rev. Milan Opensky, Comenius Faculty of Protestant Theology, University of Prague, and the Rev. Philip Zabriskie, former Rhodes scholar, led the students in individual mission responsibility prayer, Bible study and gave reports from people of God around the world. Highights of the conference were the living unit groups which met for over two hours each night and the interfaith Communion service.

The living unit groups were an international, interracial, coeducational, inter-denominational experience in ecumenical fellowship. The 3,000 delegates were broken up each evening into 138 groups of 24 students and leaders.

The service of Holy Communion according to the Apostolic tradition of Hippolytus was taken from a third century early church service. This marked the first known time in the history of the Protestant Church where Lord's Supper was celebrated by so many denominations together.

The conference is sponsored quadrilaterally by the World Student Christian Federation, The WSCF was founded in 1895 by a group of Student Christian Movement leaders at the Scandinavian student conference, which now embraces SCMs in some 80 countries.

The Federation is made up of students and faculty from secondary schools, colleges and universities in many parts of the world. "God has put us there, and it is there that we must find our obedience, witness and service," states the Federation.

"The primary aim of the Federation is to help students find a genuine personal faith in Jesus Christ. Such faith means the service of life and renewal of the Church, participating in the concerns of the academic community of which we are a part, and taking up our responsibilities as citizens."

"The Federation is open to all students, of whatever opinion, who wish to share the mission of Jesus. It is inter-confessional, and respects the convictions of each of its members."

Even Untrained Can Join Staffs

(ACP)—Lack of journalistic experience shouldn't deter a student from joining the staff of his college newspaper, says the ACP's "Building."

A notice often has journalistic qualifications of which he is unaware, he also is high on the stands to benefit most from discipline and experience offered by the college paper.

The beginner even may have an advantage over the student who worked on a newspaper in high school. Although some high schools produce excellent publications, many fail to maintain high journalistic standards, and some high schools produce little more than gossip sheets.

Even the schools which strive for quality often are hampered by obsolete concepts and techniques. Since students on such papers often assimilate bad habits, it usually is easier to teach journalism to students who have no previous training. So, with or without experience, students who wish to become better acquainted with the University and its people should consider joining the staff of their college paper.

Finley At Odds With AL

Kansas City Athletics owner Charles Finley reportedly will come out punching if the American League tries to take his franchise away. Finley is quoted as saying:

"The line forms on the right. I will take on every American League owner individually or take them on collectively. I have taken it on the chin from the American League long enough. If the league puts the rug out from beneath me, the league is going with me."

Finley will find out his fate and the Athletics' fortunes when the American League clubowners meet Thursday in New York to discuss the situation. Finley has failed to come to an agreement with Kansas City officials for use of municipal stadium and has signed a two-year contract to move his team to Louisville, Kentucky.

Finley says he is confident the league will not force him to sell his franchise and he holds no strong hope that the owners will permit him to move to Louisville.

The NCAA football rules committee is still kicking around its thorny substitution rule. First, the committee—meeting in Fort Lauderdale, Florida—approved a new rule virtually bringing back free and unlimited substitution. The one restriction was that when a team sent in a player with the clock running, it had to forfeit a timeout.

Now, the committee has gone even further in simplifying the substitution system. The new rule had contained a clause barring substitutions when the clock is stopped for an excess time out. That was intended to prevent the feigning of injuries to stop the clock. That clause has been eliminated, and feigning of injuries will be left up to the discretion of the officials.

The committee also has taken these actions:
Made it illegal for the quarterback to intentionally ground a pass. That was allowed in some regions last fall.

Eliminated the rule requiring a substitute going into a game to remain in for at least one down. And adopted a rule permitting a kicker to be offides on the kickoff. That is for the benefit of the soccer-type kickers who place their lead foot ahead of the ball before kicking.

Line coach Gomer Jones says he is interested in the head football coaching job at Oklahoma, but he will not take it on an interim basis. There has been some speculation that Jones might be asked to serve for one year while Oklahoma officials seek a permanent successor to Bud Wilkinson. University President George Cross and 46 members of the team have signed a petition urging the board of regents to name Jones to succeed Wilkinson.

There is lots of news from the boxing world.
Madison Square Garden promoter

welterweight fight between Dick Turner and Stanley Hayward in Philadelphia.

Welterweight Marvin Westmoreland, who collapsed after being knocked out by Brian "Shea" December 14th, has quit boxing.

And light heavyweight Mauro Mina, declared unable to fight by the New York State boxing commission because of a damaged eye, says he has received a clean bill of health from his doctors. Mina says he now will try to line up a title fight with champion Willie Pastrano.

Here is last night's major college basketball schedule:

Wisconsin at Iowa, Detroit at Notre Dame, Missouri at Colorado, Arkansas State at Oklahoma State, Wichita at St. Louis, New Mexico State at Drake, Maryland at North Carolina, Virginia at Wake Forest, Chattanooga at Alabama, Mississippi State at Georgia Tech, Mississippi at Vanderbilt, Murray at Eastern Kentucky, East Carolina at William and Mary, The Citadel at Davidson, Southwestern of Texas at Houston, Montana State at Idaho, Portland at Dayton, Boston University at Rhode Island, and Maine at Connecticut. Harry Markson says the Garden will continue to promote boxing, even if the American Broadcasting Company goes through with its plan to drop telecasting this year.

Boston promoter Sam Silverman has offered middleweight champion Joey Giardello $20,000 to meet the winner of the Feb. eighth fight between Joe Demucci and Larry Carney in a non-title bout.

World junior welterweight champion Sandro Mazzinghi has undergone a successful cholecystectomy operation, but will not be able to fight for some time. He has postponed indefinitely a non-title fight against Britain's Mike Leahy, scheduled for January 24th.

The snowstorm that has struck the East coast has forced a one-week postponement of tonight's games.

The Florida State Freshman team, now sporting a record, plays three games this week. The Frosh play in Marianna last night against Chipola Junior College and will return to Tallahassee to play Gulf Coast Junior College Thursday, and Saint Leo Junior College on Friday.

Led by ace Ron Malmen, the Freshmen evened the record Saturday night against Pensacola Junior College, beating the Pirates 89-73. Big Dick Danford and little Moe Bloodworth hit for 17 and 12 points for the night.

The Freshmen were bolstered by the return of Bill Glenn, who missed the first three games with torn ligaments. Glenn, played three-fourths of the game and scored eight points.

Ken Doyle and Brian Murphy hit five points, and Jim Rogers and Lee Canter hit four.

Don't Knock The Ref

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Staff

The capacity crowd that flooded Tully Gym Saturday night witnessed one of the unwritten basketball rules and its effects. That law is: Don't gripe at the ref!

The Miami team constantly broke this rule, and in the end it led to their defeat. Chief ref-baiters were guard Bernie Butts, forward Rick Barry and center Don Patrician. Butts complained so loudly once that he got a technical called on him.

Miami Coach Bruce Hale had another technical called on his team for protesting too violently that time had not run out at the end of the game. Jerry Shirley made both technicals, and the FSU margin of victory was two points.

Arguing with referees is very dangerous for two reasons. As shown in the game Saturday, it can lead to technical foul shots which can break a team's back in close games. Secondly, it often results in more fouls being called on the team. If a team repeatedly argues with the ref, he will watch that team much closer so he can be sure that he doesn't miss anything. This results in more fouls being called on the team.

Arguing with the refs is also pointless. On the court, the ref is all-powerful. On judgment calls, such as personal fouls, he won't change his mind just because someone sees it differently than he did. Referees are only human. There are only two of them and ten players.

It seems natural that they will not be infallible. They make mistakes just as we all do. When a ref makes a bad call, take it out on the other team, not the ref.

International Student Week Scheduled For January 19-25

International Student Week, sponsored by the Student Government, Tallahassee Council for International Friends, and the International Student Club, will be the week of Jan. 19-Jan. 25, President Blackwell announced today.

"The purpose of International Student Week is to make American students more aware of the international students on campus and to promote friendships between foreign students and American students," said Dr. John Cummer, advisor of the International Student Club.

The 1964 theme of International Student Week is "Bridging the Continents through Further Student Understanding." The week's activities are to follow this theme. Activities which will include a reception, a banquet and international folk and two performances of the Ballet Folclorico of Mexico, will begin with an open house at 3 p.m. Sunday, in the new International Student House, at the College Ave. entrance to FSU. The Development Commission is holding a reception on Jan. 24, between 4 and 5 p.m. in the Longmire Bldg., honoring the visiting ballet troupe from Mexico, and all international students and faculty. At this time the troupe will be presented with honorary Florida citizenship certificates.

Later the same evening, the Tallahassee Council for International Friends will be hosts at a Swanee Room banquet for international students. Other FSU students and the general public may purchase banquet tickets at the Westcott ticket office. The banquet begins at 6 p.m., and the speaker will be Doyle Conner, Commissioner of Agriculture.

The week concludes Saturday, Jan. 25 with exhibits from around the world on display in the Longmire Auditorium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., a Student Government Coffee in the Longmire Club Room between 3 and 4 p.m., and final performance of the Mexican ballet company in Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

In order to give the organizations on campus a special place in these activities, the groups are being encouraged to invite a foreign student as a special guest into their house or dorm for a meal or to speak to the members.

Those interested in participating in the International Student Week in some way may attend a work session at the International Student Center Saturday. The center has just recently been made available to FSU and much work is needed to help prepare the center for use.

Representatives To Talk Concerning Peace Corps

Representatives of the Peace Corps will be on campus in the Swanee Room Arcade the entire week of Jan. 19-25 from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. daily.

A Peace Corps convocation will be in the Library Lecture Hall on Sunday at 4 p.m. In conjunction with International Week, the Learning Process, though the Peace Corps Information Center will be set up to answer questions and conduct placement tests.

Those students wishing to take the placement test are advised to fill out the Peace Corps questionnaire that can be obtained in the office of Dr. John Cummer, Director of Counseling, in Westcott.

The questionnaire is then to be turned into the Corps representatives whenever the placement test is taken.

Any organization wishing a Peace Corps speaker to talk to or answer questions for their respective groups are advised to make arrangements immediately through Dr. Cummer by calling 599-3040, 6,000 telephone extensions 599-3401 and 599-3483 will be used by the Center to answer questions and conduct other business with interested persons.

US Hopes For Democracy Votes ROTC Picket For Taiwan: FSU's Waldby

"The United States would like for Taiwan (Formosa) to become a model democracy," said Chiang Kai-Shek, President of National Republic of Free China would like for it to be returned to the Mainland," Dr. Odell Waldby professor of government, told the University Women's Club yesterday at their monthly meeting. Taiwan is 110 miles off the coast of southeast China.

"The United States is supporting Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek," continued Waldby, "although Taiwan has been under martial law since 1946. When we have to choose between supporting Chiang Kai-Shek or Red China, of course we back the Generalissimo."

He said the country has made progress in agriculture since World War II and the diligence of Taiwanese plus United States aid and technical assistance and a land reform program have been the chief factors in achieving greater agricultural production.

"The literacy rate has been increased and all children attend school through the sixth grade. There is little imagination or creativeness in the learning process, though," Waldby said. "The students tend to merely memorize their lessons. The chief need in education is to stimulate the students to think."

"Politically the greatest need in Taiwan is free elections at all levels of government. Economically the country would tend to be more self sufficient if it could attract more light industry," the professor of government said.

Waldby illustrated some of his points with colorful slides showing the country and its people. He was in Taiwan for 18 months on an AID Federal grant.

Dr. Daisy Parker, chairman of the meeting introduced the speaker. She was assisted in other arrangements by Mrs. Francis R. Allen, Mrs. Malcolm Parson was in charge of the social hour following the lecture. Mrs. Charles Metz, president of the club and Mrs. Earl Frieden, vice president presided at the tea table.

Student Group Votes ROTC Picket

"We the undersigned students of the Florida State University urge that the University requirement of compulsory ROTC be abolished and that the Student Senate be asked to poll the students on this subject. This is the petition that the Student Act for Peace Committee voted to sponsor at a meeting last night. The petition will be presented to Mike students tonight from 10 to 11 p.m. at Kellum and Smith dorms and Thursday in front of the dorms at 10 a.m. to 11:30 and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m."

Chairman Steve Baum presented evidence that FSU does not have to have a compulsory ROTC program. Under the Morrill Act of 1862, only land grant colleges are required to have such a program, according to Baum. FSU is not a land grant school if the petitioners can get between 250 and 500 signatures, they will ask Student Senate to poll the entire student body to see if they wish compulsory ROTC at this university. M.I.T. and the University of California have made similar moves already. Arizona State, University of Colorado, Missouri, Ohio State and Tennessee are also in the process of re-evaluating ROTC programs on their campuses.

Lecture Series To Start Today

Professor William Randel of the English Department announced today the beginning of the American Studies lectures for the trimester. The lecture will be given today in the Library Lecture Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Richard Bartlett of the History Department will be the speaker. His topic will be, "America as Westerner."

"The American Studies Lectures" theme for this trimester is, "What is an American?" On successive Wednesday members of the FSU faculty and campus visitors will speak on different facets of this subject.

Seniors

Today at 5 p.m., in the last day for seniors graduating in April to pay the $5 diploma fee at the Registrar's Office.

Faculty Defaults Leadership Claim

There has been, this past trimester, an almost universal and total abdication of moral responsibility by members of the Florida State University's faculty. Except for a few notable exceptions, very few indeed, our university faculty has defaulted claim to exercise and influence student ideas and student leadership. This is not to say that the faculty has deliberately lost the confidence of its students, or to imply that the faculty has consciously decided not to exercise its moral obligations to the community, but, I would venture to say that concerned students in Trimester II have lost faith and respect for the faculty as a whole despite the courageous and conscientious actions of a few.

This conflict of moral responsibility between students and faculty has been precipitated, and it is too well aware, by the differing positions taken by the two groups as regards active participation in student organized protest demonstrations. Specifically, it has resulted in response to completely unsatisfactory replies posed by the faculty to an overriding question of concern to students—"Why won't the faculty picket?"

To those students who have intellectually and emotionally committed themselves to the civil rights movement, this question is of unparalleled magnitude.

We, as students, have been subjected to teaching faculties of one sort or another, ranging from earliest Sunday school and kindergarten experiences to the graduate schools of large and influential universities. In a large measure what we think about morals, ethics, politics, religion, and civil and human rights has been determined or greatly conditioned by the views of those who teach us.

The fact that we must picket or demonstrate at all, for so apparently elementary a thing as human rights is a reflection upon the teaching faculty of the past, as well as the present.

Hence we would be Utopian indeed if we felt that a large majority of the faculty would join us in the streets.

Nevertheless we cannot forget the ultimate success of, at least, one particular project of desegregating the off-campus restaurants may be finally decided by the participation of faculty pickets. The results of this action.

We should, then, use all the means of persuasion at our disposal to reduce our faculty to live up to moral obligations, to itself and us.

The faculty, mythically isolated from the outside world by its ideal and educational mission, the faculty even more than the students should be in the streets protesting their inhuman denial of rights to the people of our fellow countrymen. It is a sad commentary when social injustice, so long recognized and admitted to be so, must be attacked at first almost single handedly by a small minority of university students—with only the tepid and ambiguous verbal support of the faculty.

Many of the ideals for which we students, now dedicate ourselves, learned here at this university in the classrooms of those who would trade their ideals for middle class financial security.

This is the greatest refusal of the faculty "Ivory towerism"—

Teen Bible Course

(AP)—For 19 years the Bible has been the only textbook of an unusual course in historical literature at Tlilghman High School in Paducah, Ky.

The cost — $40 a year per student — is paid by the Paducah Association of Churches. It's an elective course but can count among the 18 credits required for graduation. While enrollment is open to all pupils it is limited to 145, or about one-fifth of the high school's junior and senior classmen.

The course became part of the curriculum long before there was any US Supreme Court ruling against Bible reading or devotionals on public schools, or governing the release of students during school hours for religious training.

Paducah leaders set up the Tlilghman Bible Class in 1944 and had it incorporated in the curriculum to circumvent any violation of the separation of Church and State principle.

The course is taught by an ordained minister, Marvin Montgomery, a graduate of Georgetown College and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville. Classes are held daily at an off-campus site, with the Old Testament covered one semester, and the New Testament in another.

Paducah's School Superintendent, Dr. Newman Walker, says the course is something that kind of grew up traditionally. In his opinion, it complies with the basic provision of the Supreme Court ruling of the late 1940's which allows pupils to be given time off for religious training.

As history or historical literature, Bible instruction apparently would meet requirements of Kentucky law.

After the class was set up 16 years ago, the united church women obtained a building near the high school campus for the six daily classes. Building maintenance and teacher Montgomery's salary also is paid by the Paducah Association of Churches which has 18 member churches. Special offerings are taken up each Thanksgiving and Easter.

Association President Carlton Watkins says the Supreme Court ruling has had no significant effect on enrollment, partly because classes are at a maximum. He believes the Bible study is definitely needed because of lack of understanding of well-known Bible stories often is reflected by entrance tests, even in the cases of students whose background includes religious training. Montgomery is proud of the fact that nine-sevenths of his high school pupils are regular church-goers. He says: "The better students say they appreciate it more than other courses, but I guess that is because it is different. They know a little something about it when they start and they find out there is a whole lot they don't know."

The instructor also says the course makes his students more reverent, and has promoted greater interest in Bible reading.

U.N. Article Is Misleading

To the Editor:

Keith R. Garner in his article of Jan. 10 made a number of misleading statements which I would like to comment on.

Mr. Garner says that the United Nations Charter contains no reference to a Supreme Being or to the right to own private property. This may be so, but neither does the United States Constitution.

On the other hand the "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" adopted by the U.N. states in Article 1, paragraph 1, "Everyone has the right to own property alone as well as in association with others," and in Article 18, "Everyone has the right to freedom of religion..." Many have called the U.N. Godless, but I cannot believe that anyone who has visited the Meditation Room of the U.N., as I have, could do so. A United Nations military exercise in the United States was referred to as being as long as Article 43 of the U.N. Charter and in direct conflict with our Constitution. Article 43, however, states that all agreements made under the article are subject to ratification by the signatory states. Our national rights hardly seem violated here.

Mr. Garner mentions several cases where rights, particularly of the press, can be suspended to maintain public order, etc. Yet in our own country our rights can be suspended under similar circumstances, by the declaration of martial law or the issuance of a court injunction.

Further, Article 19 of the "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" states, "Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinion without interference and to seek, receive, and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontier."

All of this is not to suggest that the U.N. is not imperfect. It is imperfect and will remain imperfect, being a creation of men. If some rights do not seem adequately protected, and remember that our own constitution was written without a Bill of Rights, there is a process of amendment.

But to suggest that we should abolish the only international organization with peace keeping machinery when the nuclear sword of Damocles hangs over us suspended from a red button is folly.

the practical world and their privilege of it that keeps many of us away from performing their social and moral duty.

Those who justify themselves by claiming "other methods," or who with all the moral indignation engendered by outraged conscience when criticized, and point their families and their "company responsibilities," these men should ask why in the classroom they so loudly condemn the very Southern tradition and the very Southern virtues which they now meekly succumb to. Hypocrites, who would lie in their ideals and values for political position and the respect of other hypocrites.

For all of that, the faculty, named as an objective, independent entity, is responsible for our lives here today; responsible for the lives being where he is today. The faculty is an institutionalized structure of the very society we have named— we cannot expect the faculty to turn against that which has named it.

The faculty will never demonstrate the use—but those few intellectuals who know feel a moral obligation to join us must do so, as students are not yet as completely subjected to society's pressure as the faculty.

We must continue to picket, to demonstrate, and to be arrested, for it is with us, Negro and white alike, who cure the disease with which we live.

Freeing ourselves the Negro will be freed, and, perhaps, we can be the faculty which created us, being the creature of a disservice and corrupt State.

How To Remember

(Reader's Digest) Detailed memories of every event in your life are probably stored neatly away in a thin sheet of gray matter covering your brain.

Discoveries about this ten-billion-cell sheet, the cortex, are part of science's newest assault on the mysteries of the brain, described in a recent magazine article.

A dramatic clue to the role of the cortex was provided 15 years ago when a surgeon operating on an epileptic woman applied an electrode to a spot on her brain. "I hear music!" the woman exclaimed. When the electrode was removed the music stopped. In each of twenty repetitions of the test, the patient heard the same tune—"Marching Along Together."

This and other investigations have led to the conviction that the cortex acts as a storage center, retaining memory traces led to it by the five senses. It "plays back" these traces as memories in much the same way that a tape recording plays back electrical impulses as sound.

If this is so, then why do we forget? Probably because the pathways to the stored information become blocked for some reason. However, even when memory is blocked the memory traces often remain intact. This is shown by the behavior of people under hypnosis who recall details of childhood events which they had apparently "forgotten."

Deeper parts of the brain also play a role in memory, and damage to these parts can result in unusual symptoms. One World War II veteran who suffered brain damage had no trouble remembering events of his childhood, but could not recall happenings just five minutes old.

BOP To Meet Thursday

The Board of Publications will meet tomorrow at 4:15 P.M. in the Clubroom, Longmire.

Applications for the post of editor of the "Legend," FSU's general interest magazine, should pick up their applications from Mr. Reid Montgomery, Rm. 17, Longmire, and present them to the BOP tomorrow when the new editor will be selected.

Today

The Faculty Senate meets at 4 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Student Senate meets at 4 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Registration for Graduate Record Examination and Teacher Education Examination Programs ends at 5 p.m. Students should register with the Director of University Test Service before 5 p.m. who wish to take the exams.

The Student Florida Education Association meets at 7 p.m. in the Education Lecture Hall.

Fashion, Incorporated meets at 7 p.m. in Sandels Lounge, Home Economics Bldg.

The Program in American Studies will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

The Alpha Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma will meet at the home of Frances Smith in Quincy at 7:30 p.m.

The Kellum Hall Smoker Series will begin at 7:30 p.m. Anna Forbes Liddell, Distinguished Professor Emeritus of the Philosophy Dept., will be the guest speaker for the Kellum Hall event.

Meetings

The FSU Jaycees will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire. All members as well as prospective new members may attend. Plans will be made for the forthcoming project.

The FSU Equestrian club will hold tryouts for all interested persons tomorrow at 7 p.m. The club will meet in room 303, Women's Gym.

Allan Thomson To Give Lecture

Dr. Allan Thomson, assistant professor of English, will deliver the lecture at Mortar Board's Last Lecture Series Wednesday, Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The Last Lecture Series, sponsored by FSU's Torchbearer Chapter of National Mortar Board, consists each year of four lectures given by noted members of the FSU faculty. Selected speakers are asked to express the thoughts that would be their choice if this were the last lecture they were to deliver. Thomson's lecture is the third of the current school term. Other lectures have been given by Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers, associate professor of Psychology, and Dr. Stephen S. Winters, associate professor of Geology.

Final Last Lecture of the year will be delivered April 1 by Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, professor of Modern Languages and Professor of the Year 1963 Distinguished Professor of the Year Award.

Announcements

All new women students or transfer students must take the Knowledge for College Test.

It will be given Tuesday, Jan. 21, in the Longmire Auditorium (2nd floor) from 4:30-6:00 p.m.

Sophomores who did not pick up their Freshman Flunkies pins last year may do so between 2 and 5 p.m. this week in Longmire. Money will be refunded upon request.

The makeup administration of the School and College Ability Test (SCAT) will be given tomorrow at 3 p.m. in room 309, Education Bldg. All students entering FSU in Trimester II who have not taken SCAT during orientation week must report for the makeup test.

The SCAT tests is a required exam of all students working toward an undergraduate degree.

Today at 5 p.m. is the deadline for signing up for the P.E. exemption test for this trimester. For further information or to sign up for the test, students should go by 202 Women's Gym or the main office in Women's Gym.

Any student may sign up for two tests, to be given Jan. 18 and Jan. 25th. Tests are being given in nearly every sport. Those wanting to take tests in gymnastics, dance, and swimming are required to take only a skill test. All other sports require a written test and a skill test.

Tigers Next For Varsity

Florida State's basketball team continues a rugged January schedule this week, meeting Memphis State on Thursday and Georgia Saturday. However, the slate doesn't look quite as formidable as it did a week ago. The Seminoles are entrenched within the friendly confines of Tully Gymnasium where they defeated a strong Miami team, 80-73, Saturday night, running the string to four straight wins at home.

"We'll have to play a better game to beat Memphis State, though," says Florida State Coach Bud Kennedy.

Personally one of the strongest independent teams in the South, Memphis State brings an 8-4 record and a typically strong attack to Tallahassee. Florida State has met the Tennessee Semis seven times before and has never won.

Assistant Coach Hugh Durham, who scored the Tigers in a 69-57 loss to Louisville regards Coach Dean Ehlers' outfit as one of the best teams the Seminoles will meet this season.

"As in the past, Memphis State has an exceptionally strong, aggressive club," says Durham. "They play a rugged man to man defense, and will occasionally go into a zone. No matter what they do, though, we've got a ball game on our hands."

Big gun for the Tigers is 6-5 forward Bud Neumann, who is a 20-plus point producer. The top defensive player and the man who makes the offense go is 6-2 guard George Kirk. Both are seniors. "They like to work the ball in close to Neumann," says Durham. "Kirk does most of the outside scoring."

Sophomore forward Gary Schull continues to lead Seminoles scorers with 159 points for a 13.2 average. The 6-6 Pampano Beach native's 80 rebounds are second only to Jerry Shirley's 83. Shirley is the second high point maker with a 12.1 average. Florida State found some unexpected help from the outside against Miami when guards Pere Gonzalez and Bobby Lovell combined for 42 points, the highest total for a pair of Seminoles guards this season. Captain Pere Rogers will man the other front line post for FSU. He's averaging 11.1 points per game.

Florida State will be looking for its sixth victory in 14 starts. The Seminoles have defeated Auburn, Tampa, Tulsa and Miami at home, and Manhattan in neutral Jacksonville.

FSU Sailors Meet Tonight

The FSU Sailing Association will offer two special features at their Wed. night meeting in 101 Math-Meteorology at 7:30 p.m.

Following a short business meeting, Dr. Michael Kasha will speak on "Intermediate Sailing Technique with the Flying Junior."

The main feature of the evening will be Team Captain Ken Lacey's presentation of "Sailing Pictures from Biscayne Bay." The program includes slides of Moths, Penguins, Lightnings, Snipes, Ravens, Sulcides, and some famous Ocean Racers.

Students and faculty who are interested are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

GEORGE KIRK

... Memphis State ace, who has an 11.7 average through nine games with the Tigers, won honorable mention All-America honors last year.

UCLA Retains Top Ranking

(Advance.) New York—Unbeaten UCLA has increased its lead in the weekly associated press college basketball poll. The UCLAs, who stretched their winning streak to 13 games last Saturday night, polled 35 first place votes. A total of 41 votes was cast by a special panel of sports broadcasters and writers. Loyola of Chicago moved up one notch to second place, and polled one vote for first place. Michigan also advanced one step to third place, and received two first place votes. Kentucky slipped from second to fourth, and Davidson remained in fifth place. Unbeaten Davidson had two votes for first place.

Vanderbilt finished sixth, Oregon State seventh, Cincinnati eighth, Villanova ninth and Duke tenth. One first place vote went to Oregon State. Others receiving votes were (in alphabetical order)—Grigham Young, Creighton, DePaul, Illinois, LaSalle, New Mexico, NYU, Ohio State, Oklahoma State, St. Bonaventure, St. Louis, Stanford, Tennessee, Texas Western, Utah, Utah State and Wichita.

Frosh Edged By Chipola

Austin Robbins and Jerry Henderson lead a well-balanced Chipola attack that defeated the FSU Freshmen 75-73. Robbins scored 26 points and pulled down 25 rebounds. Henderson scored 22 points and Jan Shadburn scored 11 for the winners. FSU jumped off to a quick lead with Ron Malmen, Brian Murphy and Bill Glenn hitting from the floor. The Baby Seminoles then got into foul trouble, and Chipola even the score at the half, 32-32.

Both teams came out to the second half with a vengeance. After two minutes the score was still tied 37-37. The lead changed seven times in the next three minutes, as Chipola built up a five point lead. The situation stayed the same with Chipola having around a five point lead throughout the half.

With four minutes remaining, Coach Lela Kelly sent in Brian Nelson, Jon Wallace, and Lee Canter with orders to set up a full-court press. FSU cut the lead to two points. But Moe Bloodworth missed an important foul shot with the score 68-66.

Two minutes left with the score 70-68 and Lee Canter was called for charging on a driving layup. Robbins hit for two baskets and a free throw to make the score 75-71. Brian Murphy sank a basket moments before the buzzer sounded. FSU missed a chance to tie the score when the referee failed to notice Henderson holding Jon Wallace under the basket.

Ron Malmen lead the freshmen scorers with 16 points, approximately half his average. Bill Glenn and Brian Murphy scored 14 each. Ken Doyle scored 10 points and showed good moves against Robbins. Little Lee Canter got 8.

FSU was out rebounded 58-41, and outshot 57% to 50%. Chipola is now 2-3, and the Baby Seminoles are 2-3.

SPORTS

West Establishes Grid Supremacy

(AP) A strong case is being made for the west over the east in the national football league, where the west needs on a regular basis to deny east Rudyard Kipling.

The case is resting on a solid foundation, the victory of the Bears over the Giants in the title, for one. And for exhibits two and three you have the Packers pounding of the Browns in the playoff bowl, and the victory of the west on Sunday in the pro bowl. However, the foundation may have a crack in it. In each case, if you want to dig a little, you will find that the answer lies in the quarterback. Now this is a partial explanation or excuse, if you want to call it that.

But one of the biggest factors in the Giant defeat by the Bears was the fact that Y.A. Title, giant quarterback, suffered a damaging knee injury halfway through the second quarter. This also kept him out of the pro bowl game and his replacement, Norm Snead, got in the game long enough to throw a pass which was intercepted for a touchdown. Little might have made the game a lot closer than the final score of 31-17. Charlie Johnson, who played most of the game for the east at quarterback, was not having one of his better days, although he had little or no pass protection from his offensive line.

So far as the playoff bowl game, between Green Bay and Cleveland was concerned, Bart Starr, Packers quarterback, obviously was far superior to Frank Ryan of the Browns. During the regular season, however, he had an edge of one game in one divisional play. The score was 16-14 at six victories each, with Starr going into the last Sunday, and Minnesota gave the Philly Eagles a trouncing to sew up home field advantage.

In the last ten championships, the west has won six and the east four.

Senate Shuffles Class Officers

By AL GALBRAITH
Flambeau Staff Writer

A bill reorganizing the class officers' program at FSU into an inter-class council organization was introduced into the Student Senate yesterday afternoon by Senator Ed Scott, chairman of the Student Senate Class Officer Program Committee.

The bill provides for a president, vice president and combined secretary - treasurer for each class who would serve as members of the Inter-Class Council. Their duties would include responsibility for all Homecoming Activities, dances given for the benefit of the whole student body, and the annual Christmas festival. In addition, the Inter-Class Council secretary, the presidents and vice presidents of all classes, the chairman of the Gold Key Speakers Bureau, presidents of IFC and Panhellenic and all permanent class officers, together with one person appointed by the Student Body President and one senator appointed by the President of Senate would compose a Student Alumni Affairs Committee. In accordance with Sen. Scott's bill.

In introducing the bill to Senate, Sen. Scott made reference to a letter from Attorney General Arlie Gibbs which elaborated on the meaning of the term "mandate." Scott's committee was organized as a result of a mandate election held last Spring in which the results indicated a desire to abolish the entire class officers' program. Gibbs' letter read, in part, "After long deliberation and consultation with the Attorney General of the State of Florida . . . the mandate of last spring is not legally binding on the Student Senate. A mandate is only a strong opinion of student feeling to be taken into consideration, but the Senate must act in a manner that they feel in the best interest of the University regardless of the opinion of students."

Sen. Scott stated that his committee used Gibbs' letter as a guide in organizing the new program. The bill will now be considered by the Labor, Student Services, and Education Committee.

In other action, Senate passed unanimously a bill introduced by Sen. Jeanie Williamson which changes the quorum at meetings of the Board of Publications, instead of requiring three students and two faculty members to be present, a simple majority of Board members is required.

Senate approved the following nominations: Mickle Neumann as director of Family Weekend, Herb Bruce as Undersecretary of Internal Affairs, Margaret Barr to replace Diana Brown on Sophomore Judiciary, Pat Freeman on the "Flambeau" and Samuel Rawls of "Smoke Signals" to the Board of Publications, and Sam Ashdown as Commissioner of Elections, replacing John Jones.

Senator John Merring, Chairman of Labor, Student Services, and Education Committee, read a resolution requesting the establishment of three graduation ceremonies per year in April, August, and December. The resolution passed unanimously.

Sen. Scott also introduced a follow-up bill to his Inter-Class Officers bill which reworded Title VI, chapter 400 of the Student Body Statutes to be consistent with the inter-class council organization. The bill will be considered by the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee.

Senator Pam Doud introduced a bill requiring that presidential appointments be submitted to the Student Senate with two weeks for approval. The bill is to be considered by the Judicial and Rules Committee, of which Senator Jeanie Williamson is chairman.

ARNIE GIBBS

...showed student mandate not to be binding on Senate.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

Published Daily By The Students Of Florida State University Thursday, January 16, 1964

International Students, Peace Corps Honored

Today through Saturday of next week has been proclaimed by FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell as National Student and Peace Corps Week. It was announced today that the proclamation made by the President reads:

"WHEREAS the most critical problem of our times is securing peace and high international understanding and will, and

"WHEREAS universities have a major responsibility to teach and to cultivate a larger understanding of world affairs through various programs, particularly through the exchange of students and faculty and through the encouragement of the Peace Corps activities, and

"WHEREAS the Florida State University has already had a substantial program of cooperation with the Peace Corps and has sent graduates to work in its program, and

"WHEREAS the Florida State University has a developing program of exchange of faculty and students with some 146 foreign students on the campus at this time and some 75 research associates, technicians, and faculty persons, and

"WHEREAS Student Government on this campus has developed a special program of emphasis for the third week in January with the theme 'Bridging the Continents Through Further Understanding,'

"NOW, THEREFORE, I hereby designate the week of January 19-25, 1964, as International Student and Peace Corps Week on the Florida State University campus, urge faculty, staff, and students to give thoughtful attention to the crucial significance of international affairs and specifically to the special programs during this period."

Anthropology Talk in Library Tonight

Dr. Richard K. Davenport, Jr., of the Primate Laboratories of Primate Society of Emory University, a 40-timed laboratory devoted to study of primate behavior, will present at the FSU Anthropology talk tonight at 8 when he addresses men and faculty in the Library.

Dr. Davenport, who has published several books and articles on primate behavior, will speak on "Some Physiological and Behavioral Effects of Maternal Deprivation and Restriction in the Chimpanzee."

Dr. Hale G. Smith, head of the Anthropology Dept., will introduce the distinguished speaker. All students and faculty and public are invited to attend. Admission is free.

In Post-reading all of the subjects were tested over a period of several years to determine the nature and extent of the effects of such rearing.

Deans To Open Conference; Blackwell Addresses Session

President Gordon Blackwell will address the opening session of the annual conference of the Southern Association of Deans of Men and Student Personnel Administrators, today at 5:30 p.m., Suwannee Room.

This marks the first time that the conference, lasting through tomorrow has been held at FSU. Friday's meeting will begin in Longmire Auditorium with a discussion on the subject, "Year Around Operation and the Trimester - Ban or Benefit." This 9 a.m. panel will be moderated by Dean of Men Frank Adams, University of Florida.

The panel will consist of Herman J. Wunderlich, Dean of Student Affairs at the University of Florida; Milton Carothers, professor of higher education, FSU; Paul Pic-card, associate professor of government and director of the honors program at FSU; and two FSU students, "Texas" Wiltshire and Johnny Smith, student body president.

Hugh Stickler, head of Higher Education Dept. at FSU, will speak at 11 a.m. on the subject, "Research in the Student Personnel Work." On the same program will be Dyckman Vernielye, dean of men, Rollins College; Charles Lewis, executive dean of student affairs, University of Tennessee; William Tate, dean of men, University of Georgia; and John Stibbs, dean of students, Tulane University.

The conference will close with an address by Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive director of the Board of Control, Donald Loucks, dean of men at FSU, will preside.

Bond Chain Letters Not Legal in State

Chain letters of the type which are presently circulating widely among students at FSU are illegal by Florida law and considered a lottery, even if they are not conducted by the US Mail.

Dean R. R. Oglesby, dean of students, announced that he hopes to discourage FSU students from participating in these schemes which have been spreading widely around the campus during the last several days.

One of the most widespread, and possibly the most fraudulent, of these schemes is the use of US Savings Bonds in chain letters.

Dr. Payton Yon, Tallahassee Postmaster, stated that chain letters, no matter what the object of the exchange, constitute a violation of the US Code and postal regulations, and are considered "fraudulent schemes" by federal law.

Savings bonds chain letters are just as illegal as the other forms. Yon said, because of the element of chance involved. Promoters of these schemes have used savings bonds in the US Code and postal regulations, and are considered "fraudulent schemes" by federal law.

Promoters are usually the only people who stand to gain in these schemes. Yon added that anyone who has been defrauded by this should contact either the local federal attorney or the postal inspector.

Oglesby stated that he was particularly concerned with this problem because the welfare of students can be harmed by participation in chain letters. He felt it was morally wrong because it is a form of gambling.

Any student who participates in this has a possible chance to win, and will easily lose his so-called investment. In addition, he emphasized that any chain letter is considered a felonious violation of Florida state law.

Concerning chain letters, Section 849.091 of the Florida Statutes states:

"Chain letters, pyramid clubs, etc., declared a lottery; prohibited; penalties. -- The organization of any chain letter club, pyramid club, or any other group organized or brought together under any plan or device whereby fees or dues or anything of material value to be paid or given by members thereof, to be paid or given to any other member thereof, which plan or device includes any provision for the increase in such membership through a chain process of new members securing other new members and thereby advancing them."

Yon said that anyone who is involved in such a scheme where such members in turn receive fees, dues or things of material value from other members, is hereby declared to be a lottery, and whoever shall participate in any such lottery by becoming a member of, or affiliating with, any such group or organization or who shall solicit any person to become a member or affiliate in any such group or organization shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $5000, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment not less than one year nor more than ten years."

Scot Playwright James Forsyth Dislikes Deadly Serious Drama

FAMED BRITISH PLAYWRIGHT

... James Forsyth, right, and Richard G. Fallon, associate director of the FSU Theatre, discuss the script for Forsyth's play "Trog," to be premiered at FSU in March.

"Battle Of The Sexes" To Be Next Foreign Film

The FSU television station, WFSU, channel 11, in cooperation with the FSU Foreign Film Club, will present the second foreign film on television today at 8:30 p.m.

Titled "Battle of the Sexes," the 90 minute film features Peter Sellers, Robert Morley and Constance Cummings in a farcical comedy of modern efficiency methods invading an old established Scottish firm. The University Broadcasting Service and the Foreign Film Club are attempting to bring outstanding award winning motion pictures from abroad. "Most of the films selected for the thirteen week television series are major award winners, and were chosen for their script, acting or photography," stated Edward L. Herp, Director of Broadcasting at WFSU-TV.

The 8:30 p.m., channel 11 presentation, "Battle of the Sexes," based on James Thurber's short story, "The Catbird Seat" is about the arrival of a charming, attractive efficiency expert from the United States in an old Scottish plant. Constance Cummings, the expert, attempts to change age-old musty order into modern day highly mechanized jitters. She begins redecorating the employer's office, played by Robert Morley. When she finally takes on the ultra-conservative head of the accounting department, Peter Sellers, she finds she is no match for the stragglings of this old retainer who wins the battle but wonders if he lost the war.

"Battle of the Sexes" is the second film offered in the Classic Cinema series on channel 11 each Thursday evening. Other films are "The Entertainer," with Laurence Olivier, Jan. 23; "Make Mine Music," with Terry-Thomas, Jan. 30; "Gate of Hell," the Grand Prize winner at Cannes, Feb. 6; "General Della Rovere," with Vittorio de Sica, Feb. 13; "School for Scoundrels," with Alastair Sim, Feb. 20; "Gervaise," Emile Zola's memorable story, Feb. 27; "Blue Murder at St. Trinian's," March 5; "Tegus," March 12; "Expresso Bongo," March 19; "The French They are a Funny Race," March 26; "The Seven Samurai," April 2.

A Scotsman who believes the meaning of life is found in "play"—British dramatist James Forsyth—has scheduled a lot of work at FSU this winter.

Forsyth, FSU's distinguished visiting professor for the next three months, will be teaching a course in dramatic writing for stage and television; writing a film script for his newest play, "The Deafian Island"; and making plans for the forthcoming American premiere of one of his earlier plays, "Trog," at the FSU Theatre in March.

Respected in Great Britain and the United States as an eminent playwright, poet and painter (although he claims painting became "too intriguing to keep as a hobby"), Forsyth said in an interview this week that "Life is best understood in its playfulness."

Expressing his dislike for "deadly serious drama, and the modern trends toward social realism," Forsyth feels there is a great need for revising current concepts of what a play should be. "I believe the imagination of mankind is much better than any stage soliloquy," he adds. "False realism," believes Forsyth, "inhibits an audience's ability to participate in the comedy or tragedy of a situation."

Increasing trends toward "real life" on the stage should be examined and reviewed, Forsyth believes, "in an appropriate setting; and there is no setting more appropriate than that of a university theater." "Trog," written three or four years ago, will be produced by FSU's Theater March 18-22 with actor (to be announced) of national and international acclaim in starring title role, Richard G. Fallon, associate director of FSU Theatre and assistant professor of speech, will direct the play.

According to Fallon, Forsyth's point-of-view as a visiting professor will be of great benefit to students of theater interest on the campus and in the state. "Previous actors of the annual spring theater appearances have been on campus for a few weeks, said Fallon, adding many hope similar facility, appearances will become an annual tradition in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Forsyth expressed his appreciation for FSU efforts to circulate the productions like those of the annual Asolo Theater Festival in Florida. The playwright met Fallon at the University Theater group's last summer, when they performed a poetic version of "Crave the Berger."

Of medium build, with auburn hair and mustache, the talented Scotsman has many projects underway. He promises to ask his time and talent for many months in the state. The film script for "Deafian Island" is being written with a movie production in the planning stages, and with Anthony Quinn under contract for the starring role.

An earlier drama by Forsyth, "Clear Woodrow," is scheduled for Broadway production next year. The title is Forsyth's interpretation of C.S. Lewis' "Screwtape Letters."

He said which of his plays is the one, the dramatist is looking for "the new one on which I am working," a philosophy he believes should be applied to all activities in life, thus making "play" a way of work.

Admitting extra affection, however, for the title character of the forthcoming FSU premiere, Forsyth expresses his dramatic goals in terms of the tragedy. "I could hope to have one primary effect on my audiences, to make them break their hearts and mend them again with meaning."

"Trog," says Forsyth, is a favorite character because he embodies the finest naturalistic man without otherwise grotesque figure. The playwright conceived this character which has World War II as its background, when boys and girls "disappear" hidden missiles from the hiding places and into the streets.

Acclaimed for his poetic interpretation of men and their vision, Forsyth created the libretto for the opera soon to be produced in New York's City Center, based on a novel, "Jiz, Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" an oratorio, "Joshua," written in collaboration with Franz Waxman, director of the Los Angeles Music Festival and noted film music power, and dramatic scripts for BBC television system.

"The Playwright and the Playwright" is the title of the seminar being offered by Forsyth.

The class, catalogued Speech 4, is being offered for credit and audit, and registration for this course will be completed on Monday, Tuesday, Jan. 13 and 14. University officials have announced.

Forsyth's first class lecture will be an introductory talk, followed by following consecutive lectures scheduled for January: "Playwriting: Not Script Writing," "The Integration of the Arts in Theater," "Playwright's Position in the Production—Before, During and After," "The Play as a Work of Art," and "The Private History of a Play."

Camp Jobs Available

Any student interested in employment in a summer camp should make contacts now. January and February are the months when counselors are employed.

Most camps run for two months from the middle of June to the middle of August. Camp counseling provides a great deal of satisfaction from working with children. Students will be living in a somewhat rustic or primitive situation, usually situated in one of nature's beauty spots. Ten or 15 camps will be on campus during the next two months to interview prospective counselors. In order for the Camp Placement Service, 202 Women's Gym, to help students make the proper contact with these camps, a personal data sheet must be filled out.

Camp Sequoyah, private camp for boys, will be here Feb. 11 and 12. Camp Mondamin, private camp for boys, and Camp Green Cove, private camp for girls, both in Tuxedo, North Carolina, will be here for interviews Feb. 11-12. Watch Camp Bulletin Board for other interviews. Students may come by room 202, Women's Gym, look at the brochures from these and other camps, and, if interested, sign up for an interview. The Placement Service can discuss capabilities and interests to help students find the right camp.

Any faculty member who has the summer available and would like employment please come by or contact Mary V. Alexander, Camp Placement Service, 202 Women's Physical Education Building or telephone extension 3416.

Theatre Dance To Present Open Studio Next Week

The Theatre Dance Group will present an Open Studio Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Women's Gym, it was announced today, for a technique demonstration by the theatre dancers.

Technique is the means through which a dancer develops the muscular strength, flexibility and balance required for all who wish to perform in Concert Dance, variety, control, and sensitivity in this performing art are the results of many hours of careful and intense concentration in the technique studio. A dancer strives for "performing freedom" through the discipline of the techniques.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, members of the Theatre Dance Group will give a demonstration of advanced modern dance technique. Their annual spring concert will be in Westcott Auditorium on Mar. 13 and 14.

Auto Rules Announced

There just isn't room! Parking space is one of the most sought after commodities on the FSU campus from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, according to lieutenant Lewis of the Campus Police. In the area of greatest congestion, from Woodward Street on the west to Copeland Street on the east, every available parking facility is being used to capacity.

In an effort to solve the problem, the Traffic Committee has passed a regulation that undergraduates cannot drive on campus during those hours of most congestion. However, due to the increased number of graduate students, faculty and staff members, there are still more cars than there are spaces to put them in. The solution? More parking spaces obviously. But where to put them and how to finance them are questions not so easily answered. In the meantime, all drivers are reminded to pay close attention to traffic rules both on and off campus.

New Students Boost Figures

Registrar Murray W. Kenna today reported a registration of 10,470 at FSU for the Second Trimester, about 550 more than for Trimester II a year ago.

Registrar Kenna said the figure is for enrollment through the final day for late registration, which was Monday. Some additional registration is expected by mail.

The final figure should be about 10,200 according to Kenna. The registration through Monday included 5,387 men students and 4,783 women, 8,591 undergraduate students and 1,579 graduate students.

Groups Must Register Funds

All student organizations or groups planning fund-raising activities of any type are required to get such projects approved by the Student Government Funds Bureau.

This requirement is set by University regulations and by Student Body Statutes.

The rules apply to social and honorary fraternities, departmental organizations, scholarship houses, and religious groups when the sale of tickets is involved. Information and necessary forms concerning compliance with these regulations may be obtained by contacting Bill Wood, Undersecretary of Finance, in room 210 Longmire.

In an article entitled "Student Group Votes ROTC Picket" which appeared in yesterday's "Flambeau," the story should have read "Student Group Votes ROTC Petition."

No mention of picketing of the FSU ROTC was made by the Student Act for Peace Committee. The SAPC voted to sponsor a petition to abolish the compulsory ROTC program on campus and to ask that the Student Senate poll the student body on the subject.

Dr. Francis R. Walton's lecture on "Treasures of the Grenadine Library," scheduled for 8 p.m. today, will be held at the Starry Lounge in the Business Bldg., not in the Library lecture hall as announced in Tuesday's "Flambeau."

Chess Clubs Decisions UF

The FSU Chess Team has continued to build its reputation by sending a team to the National Intercollegiate Chess Tournament and by a recent smashing success against U of F.

Over the Christmas holidays a team composed of Ray McInish, Homer Rhode, and Mason Kelsey participated in the highly rated Intercollegiate at Notre Dame scoring 3-4, 3-4, and 3 1/2 - 3 1/2 respectively. The team produced many brilliant games, including Rhode's near win over the tournament winner. The 22 inches of snow which fell while the team was there made them happy to return to Florida.

A seven man team composed of Jim Heidenreich, Ray McInish, Homer Rhode, Mason Kelsey, Bill Collins, Steve McNeil and John Hoffman handed the University of Florida team its first defeat in 4 years of match play with FSU Jan. 11. The very lop sided score of 5-2 caused Florida to reconsider its past estimates of FSU.

Lined up for the team this trimester are 4 tournaments and matches with Tallahassee, Jacksonville, and Georgia Tech chess clubs and a rematch with U of F. All interested students are invited to participate in the chess team. Interested persons may contact Ray McInish or Dr. B. L. Fennell.

Faculty Senate Votes To Present ROTC Training Program

By BOB RACKLEFF

With a 30-24 vote Wednesday afternoon, the FSU Faculty Senate recommended that enrollment in basic ROTC courses at the university be made voluntary, to be effective with next Fall's entering freshmen.

It was emphasized, however, that this resolution is only a recommendation and must be approved by the Board of Control, since the program is handled through contracts with the Departments of the Army and the Air Force.

The university presently requires that freshmen men students enroll for two years of basic Army or Air Force ROTC programs.

Under the proposed elective programs, freshmen and sophomores could continue to enroll in basic ROTC courses, unless there is a revision of the ROTC program on the federal level.

The Senate's recommendation is seen as a step toward reorganization of the university's ROTC programs in line with recommendations of a bill now pending in Congress.

The new program suggested at the national level, termed the Officer Education Program, would eliminate basic ROTC during the freshman and sophomore years. It would provide, however, a program at the junior and senior level, and encourage college transfers would be admitted, junior college students presently cannot participate in ROTC programs.

In recent months, at least 14 universities, including the University of Illinois (a land grant college), have adopted elective ROTC programs. Also, the University of Texas has had voluntary ROTC for some time.

The text of the Senate's resolution read as follows:

"Resolved, that the Faculty Senate of the Florida State University recommends that enrollment in basic ROTC courses at the Florida State University be made voluntary, effective September 1, 1964, and requests that the Council of Dean take appropriate action in respect to catalog material and administrative procedures in order to implement this policy."

Representatives of the Army and Air Force ROTC units at FSU were present at the Senate's meeting, and discussed the proposal with the Senate.

This action is in line with Air Force sentiment, according to Col. Preston B. Hardy, professor of Air Science and commander of FSU's Air Force ROTC Cadet Wing. Hardy stated that the Air Force prefers an elective program on the national level.

The Department of the Army prefers a compulsory arrangement, but recognized it is up to the individual universities to determine the type of program.

The FSU ROTC program started in the late 1940's as compulsory when there were only a small number of men students. Because of the greatly increased number of men students presently at FSU, the Senate felt that a compulsory program was no longer needed.

It was also felt by the Senate that the number and quality of advanced ROTC cadets would not be decreased, and that it would possibly be improved.

One of the strongest points in favor of a revised ROTC program on the national level is the contention that the number of military officers produced by university ROTC programs compared to the cost to the government for maintaining the present national system is uneconomical.

Any present pressure from student organizations was disclaimed as a reason for the passage of this recommendation. This is in reference to a petition recently circulated for the abolishment of compulsory ROTC and which called on the Student Senate to poll the study body on this subject. This petition was sponsored by the Students Act for Peace Committee.

The Faculty Senate in its action seemed to support the university's ROTC programs in counseling of students and in special efforts to interest students in ROTC before they enter FSU.

"The University will continue its efforts to help provide well-educated, highly-trained young men to become officers in our armed forces," said Dr. J. Paul Reynolds, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. FSU's faculty and administration, Reynolds said, have been considering for some time adopting elective ROTC programs.

"We are convinced that through the voluntary principle, Reynolds finally scheduled for 9 A.M. tomorrow, have been rescheduled for tomorrow at 10 A.M. on the second floor of the Conrad Building.

Loan Given Hospital

A loan of $476,000 was approved last week from the Housing and Home Finance Agency for the construction of a new infirmary at FSU. The new 72 bed infirmary is expected to cost $976,000 and the building should be ready for occupation in 1965.

The new FSU hospital will be a two-story structure with a full basement. It will be near the University Union complex between the new plant and the women's gymnasium.

Plans for the present infirmary, which has 60 beds, call for its use as faculty offices.

Dr. C. R. Gentry, chief physician and director of the University's health services, said the new building will provide "significant increases in the potential of the hospital services in minimizing the effects of illness during the busy trimester programs. It will be somewhat larger," he added, "than our current facility, with the primary improvement being made in outpatient services for the students."

Preliminary drawings are now being completed. They should be ready for specifications and bidding by the middle of April. Hopefully, construction will be started in the latter part of May.

Mautz Lectures

Dr. Robert K. Mautz, president-elect of the American Accounting Association, opens a "1964 Distinguished Lecturer Series" with an address at FSU next Monday.

The lecture by the University of Illinois account professor is scheduled for Monday at 3 p.m. in the FSU School of Business. Speaking in the Starr Conference Room, Mautz will discuss "Accounting and Business Ethics."

The first of five scheduled lectures at key Florida universities, his FSU appearance is sponsored by the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants, whose committee on advanced professional accounting degrees inaugurated the Lecture Series in 1963.

This series, which annually brings an outstanding authority in public accounting and accounting education to Florida campuses, will take Mautz to the University of Florida, Stetson University, the University of South Florida and the University of Miami, following his lecture at FSU.

Author of numerous works on accounting topics and former editor of "The Accounting Review," the nationally recognized account has worked with the firms of Alexander Grant and Company and Haskins and Sellers.

The FICPA's 1963 distinguished lecturer was Dr. Robert T. Spruill, associate professor of accounting at the University of California.

New Editors, Chairman, Elected At BOP Meeting

Dick Smith was elected chairman of the Board of Publications at its meeting last night in Longmire Clubroom. Smith is the Associate Editor of the "Flambeau."

The board also elected Sue Worley and Hutch Johnson as co-editors of the "Legend," campus literary anthology. BOP authorized the "Legend" to offer prizes for the best short stories and poetry submitted. $25.00 was anonymously donated for the first prize in the short story competition.

Pat Childs from the "Tally-Ho" asked the BOP to reduce the fines for late contracts from campus organizations to one quarter the total cost, effective next year. The previous fine was one half the cost. This request was granted.

BOP also passed a proposal by Pat Fuller, publications advertising manager to allow the "Flambeau" to run classified ads. These ads will start Monday on a contract, non-change basis. Rates for the ads will be published in the Classified Ads section of the "Flambeau."

Grady Toler, spokesman for the ad manager, stated that the reason for using classified ads was to provide greater service for the student body and to increase revenue for the "Flambeau." This new revenue will be needed since the paper starts running six pages regularly Monday

Correction

One bill was incorrectly described as a member of the executive branch was erroneously named in yesterday's write-up of the Student senate meeting.

Senator Pam Doud's bill relating to presidential appointments provides that presidential appointments shall not be effective until they are approved by Student Senate. Purpose of the bill, according to Sen. Doud, is to prevent students from performing duties in an appointed position until they are approved by the Student Senate. Sen. Doud is chairman of the Elections and Appointments Committee, which investigates the qualifications of both elected and appointed officers.

Jim Ashdown replaces John Kaney, Commissioner of Elections. Another member of the executive branch was incorrectly named outgoing Commissioner of Elections.

Honors Fees High

No matter what subject an FSU student is studying, there are academic and professional honoraries to lend recognition to his achievements.

There's only one drawback—it costs money to join. Earning membership in an honorary should not be dependent upon the size of the recipient's purse. Many students have scholarships or are working their way through school, and the exorbitant initiation fee simply cannot be reconciled with their budgets.

On the other hand, it is unfair to assume that those who cannot afford to join should decline the invitation of an honorary society. Election to these societies greatly enhances one's position in social and economic spheres of later life. Membership in academic and professional honoraries add to an applicant's chances for a graduate fellowship or for better occupational opportunities.

There are some necessary expenses involved with the initiation ceremony and the continual operation of the society. The major portion of the initial fee, however, pays for the banquet (which many do not attend), a magazine or bulletin (which is expendable), and a pin or key (which is worn only occasionally, if at all).

These items are all nice to have, but they aren't necessary. The important thing is to belong—to be worthy of and interested in the honorary.

There are two alternatives which could be suggested to remedy this problem. Since most national honoraries have a fixed initiation fee, then local representatives to national meetings could petition for partitioning of the fee into the various expenses, so that new members could pay for as much as they could afford.

If national organizations are reluctant to complicate collection of fees in this way, then local chapters should investigate possibilities of awarding gift memberships when needed. Some societies already have means of making these awards, but they don't always use them. Other groups should give serious consideration to establishing such awards.

Honor should not be measured by the price tag it carries.

Humans can be so easily misled. When I see newspapers of the American teenagers in Panama herding down the steps of their high school blindly waving American flags, I realize that a large minority of our fellow associates are prey to mental blindness.

I do not mean the blindness stemming from illiterate ignorance, but that arising among educated people. It is an overpowering mental cloud which prevents people from even considering the worthiness of their actions. This is called "mobaction" when it occurs physically. When it happens mentally, its extreme forms are called "fanaticism."

is best" in defiance of a Panamanian-American agreement (the result: twenty dead, diplomatic relations broken off between the U.S. and Panama), other normal human beings have stamped to their deaths at the shout of "fire," while still others (college students even) have wholeheartedly supported the John Birch Society and its cohorts without realizing its political and international implications.

We see evidences of this mental clouding even here at FSU. It's not too hard to remember a mob of cattle who tossed eggs and insults at eight lonely pickets in front of the now defunct University Inn.

And a six blocks walk into any downtown provincial town will bring one to an "Americanism" rally where one will find such rightist texts as "The Flaming Water," a pamphlet on the necessity of chemical used in drinking water, and Isolationist fumbblings as "The U.S. out of the U.N." banners Birch Society "Blue Books" are published daily.

Those Americans or sons of the breed, waving flags in Panama would in a different time and situation have been stamped to death by a Nazi boogymen or snarled in a blind devotion to apply responses for the extermination of six million humans. (The patriotism of students and the rightist fanaticism intelligent kind to the U.S. people.)

United Nations Exists In Deceit

One of the most important posts in the United Nations is the Assistant Secretary-General for Political and Security Council Affairs. It is here that jurisdiction and control of all military actions (like Korea), all U.N. administered disarmament agreements, and all international control of atomic energy falls. One of the most startling charges ever leveled against the founding of the United Nations is that a secret agreement existed whereby this post would always be held by a communist.

This charge was proven true when Trygve Lie, a longtime Secretary-General of the United Nations, wrote a book, "In the Cause of Peace" after he retired. In his statement, "The choice of the Assistant Secretaries General, who would constitute the 'cabinet,' was, of course, my first concern. It soon became clear that it was equally the concern of some of the great, and a number of the lesser, powers."

"Mr. Vishinsky (USSR delegate) did not delay his approach. He was the first to inform me of an understanding which the Big Five had reached in London on the appointment of a Soviet national as Assistant Secretary-General for Political and Security Council Affairs. Mr. Vishinsky simply spoke of an 'agreement'—he said nothing of its binding quality, of the right of the Big Five to arrive at it, or of the length of time it was to apply. Now, by the terms of the Charter, the Secretary-General has full authority in the disposition of the Assistant Secretary-General. I was, of course, in respect both to the international and to their personality, the activity, in fact was the point of view and won decision in San Francisco, and I was sure that I was right. I had no right to arrive at an understanding regarding the disposition of the office of Assistant Secretary-General but that 'it would not be a good idea for me to resign a great power accord.'"

In other words, because of an illegal agreement, Mr. Lie's choice of Aleksis Kivimäki as his choice for the position, Vishinsky subsequently informed him that the Kivimäki had really assigned Arkady Sobolev to that post.

Now, as for the permanent agreement, we can see from the records that every man to occupy the office has been a communist. They were appointed by Trygve Lie and by Hammarskjöld and by U Thant. Undoubtedly, at least, a well-known, hard-core communist has held the post.

Kivimäki served as Soviet Assistant General in New York during World War II and, at that time, U.S. intelligence learned that he came on extensive organizational work with communist fronts in the United States (Congressional Record, 1946).

As for the importance of this Mr. Lie stated that, next to the U.S., the most important in the world was the Soviet Union. He was guaranteed it, what about the United States? Mr. Lie said, "My surprise, they did not ask me to depart from my usual policy of making substantive affairs, but economic or social. Rather (he proposed) that an American should be appointed as assistant secretary-general for administrative FINANCIAL (emphasis mine) services."

Science Preferred To Mystic Beliefs

To the Editor:
I think Dr. Stephen Winters was being more than a little cavalier when, in his Hillier lecture, he likened the "faith" of a scientist to the faith of a religiousist.

Our language uses the word "faith" to refer to beliefs which are held on mystical grounds, i.e., without regard to explicit reasoning and the evidence of one's senses. All religion is at its base, mysticism—and distinct tone is reserved for the science. Science is an attitude which is the opposite of faith. It believes things only on the grounds of explicit reasoning and the evidence of one's senses. And I, for one, prefer science.

Flambeau Forum Football Is 'Sacred Cow' With University Community

To the Editor:

Just the other day a good friend of mine went to the Financial Aid office. "Please," he begged, "just a few dollars? I'm broke, I haven't eaten in three days, and I'm about to be evicted from the attic I call home. If I don't get help I'll have to join the Merchant Marines."

"Sorry," said the kindly little old lady, "we're short of funds right now."

That night as my friend was covering his straw mat bed with newspapers a headline caught his eye. "BOC APPROVES STADIUM EXPANSION FOR FSU."

"Oh ecstasy!" quoth my friend. "That $550,000 must of U.F. will play here next year! Maybe my Merchant Marine ship will dock nearby and I will be able to see the game!"

In recounting this I am treating on thin ice. Football is a "sacred cow" in our university society. Dare I question its importance over more scholastic aspects? The administration will shake their heads and speak soothingly to those alumni who equate a great university with a high-rated football team, and to the Public, that faceless entity which must be placated. At the head coach will continue to receive one of the highest salaries paid by the university.

When I pay my registration fees, I want to receive goods in return. Education, not in terms of gigantic stadiums which are used four or five times a year. I cannot see why over half a million dollars (and it mine) should be spent on this small facet of our total university.

"Think of the money we'll make," you say. Think of the money we're spending—scholarships, equipment, upkeep and so forth. And now the new stadium addition.

I suspect that the importance of this innocent, healthy, exciting sport has increased to such tremendous dimensions that the university is losing sight of its only reason for being.

Liddell Poses Question 'What Is Philosophy?'

MARTINDALE
Staff Writer

... philosophy?" was the question asked Dr. Anna Liddell, guest speaker at the Hall Smoker Wednesday

... head of the FSU Dept., answered, "I find it difficult to think philosophy abstractly. One reason I believe there has never been a final and satisfied answer

... to say that one can take the Greek roots of the word philosophy to mean, love of wisdom, does not mean that one cannot write love poems

... everyone has a philosophy of life, but relatively few are conscious of it, and fewer attempt to state it.

... Liddell says that philosophy is the abstract which is concrete. A philosopher exercises his philosophy in his own life even when he is not conscious of it.

Historically philosophy is called the mother of all sciences. "Theories of total reality, just as they were hypothesis, through reason one by one have developed into a state of specialization and then branched off."

Today there are no professional philosophers although there are teachers of philosophy. This is in contrast to the Middle Ages when every family had a priest as a moral guide.

Philosophy has a value in all areas of life. "Philosophy makes you moral minded, ready to learn from other people, less inclined to prejudice, and able to take criticism better. It also teaches you not to hold on to an ideal, because it is the most comfortable."

One formulates a philosophy by criticism. By studying his drives, needs and desires, a philosophy may be developed.

There is a relationship between religion and philosophy. "The function of philosophy is to raise the questions of religion." Philosophy is an attempt to prove that there is a God.

Liddell remarked that a philosophy, but the individual must philosophize himself. She interjected that contemporary philosophy seems not to be moving in any one direction with all its diversities and factions.

Killian Excels In Various Activities

By SHEILA APPELBY
Flambeau Staff Writer

Joyce Killian is a 20 year old junior with a 3.2 overall average, a major in government and a face well-known in the complex world of Student Government.

A resume of her major activities would run something like this:

During her freshman year she was precinct senator, chairman of the Organization and Finance Committee; editor of the Student Government section of the Pow Wow; and the recipient of the Outstanding Senator Award (this was the first time a freshman received this award). She also attended the Inter-collegiate Association of Women Students Convention at the University of Kansas (this was the first time a freshman was sent to an out-of-state women's government convention) and held a Wesley Foundation office.

Her sophomore year she continued as senator and chairman of the Organization and Finance Committee; was chairman of the Promotional Films Committee; was in charge of orientating new senators; was on the trimester committee; was a member of Sophomore Council; was tapped by Garnet Key and elected historian; was vice president and treasurer of East Landis and remained a Wesley Foundation officer; and received the Outstanding Senator Award.

Presently, as a junior, Joyce is president and a junior counselor in Bryan Hall; the only girl out of the six members of the President's Cabinet, whose function is to advise the Student Body President; and is a member of President Blackwell's advisory council.

To give some idea of what her cabinet position as Secretary of Inter-collegiate and Public Affairs entails, Joyce's duties include: coordinator of campus communications such as radio and TV; official campus hostess; director of the host bureau for visiting dignitaries or high school groups; handling all relations with other universities; making plans for all conferences in which FSU participates, and promoting the prestige of FSU among other universities. She has twice been to the Bahamas once as a member of a missionary team and second as the chaplain and cook of high school students on a missionary team.

Last year she attended the Inter-collegiate Association of Women students' convention at the University of Oklahoma. She also worked in the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Coral Gables editing the scientific reports of doctors to be published in medical journals. Besides all this, she has time for a hobby. Anyone stepping inside Room 302 Bryan, is immediately confronted with myriads of shapes, sizes and colors of elephants—she collects all kinds! Presently her next door neighbor in Miami has a live elephant.

As for future plans, Joyce plans to go to law school perhaps, "not to be a lawyer, but rather to obtain legal background" or to go to graduate school in government. She would like to work for the state in statutory revision or legislative reference work.

Probe Begun At Colorado

(ACP) — Most Business College students at Colorado's University of Denver have accepted the program with equanimity, many with enthusiasm and some with dismay. The "Denver Clarion" reference is to the Business College's new Communication Problems Section, which determines whether a student is getting help from friends or publications on term papers.

If a student uses one level and style of language when he writes a paper in class, yet uses another and quite different style when he writes a term paper, the difference shows and the student comes under investigation.

Says the section's Mrs. Elizabeth Green, "If a student writes only part of the paper himself and copies part, the difference shows, too. It's as simple as that."

Here's an example of two papers submitted by the same student. The first was written in class: "A city manager type government integrates the professional and the non-professional aspect. A city manager is one who has been educated to perform this function and is considered by his colleagues as being professional in this field."

The second paper, written out of class, was submitted about the same time: "If the foregoing seems prosaic, it nevertheless is necessary to establish, first that the Cuban Revolution was by no means a manifestation of vaguely idealistic yearnings but was directed toward concrete social goals; second, that these goals were, and had every reason to be, the common property of the great 'unredeemed' mass of the Cuban people."

the same spirit shown at a football game!)

Any movement, mental or physical, without the ability to discern is a foul thing. No intelligent person in today's world can possibly believe the U.S. is always right, or that waving our flag in a touchy situation could possibly help America.

Blind devotion to any political cause, left or right, is isolationist or ultra supranational, segregationist or integrationist, is a thing which only fools not interested in progress can tolerate.

Botanist Warns Women About Becoming 'Ignorant Citizens'

A woman botanist at FSU says women have increasing opportunities in sciences but she cautions them against becoming "educated scientists but ignorant citizens."

Writing in the December issue of "Mortar Board Quarterly," Dr. Ruth Schornherst Green, a member of the biological sciences faculty here since 1926, said, "During college years, when interest in the major field is so acute, and when there are more courses than an over-full program can accommodate, the natural tendency is to cram in as many of these professional or pre-professional courses as possible."

"I am concerned lest the future science career woman lost sight of the fact that college should do more than merely prepare her for a possible future vocation. All too often scientists who I know show facility in handling their own specialties but are ignorant of, and uninterested in, good reading, good music, or the arts, and are apathetic about everything except their own little self-created world."

"College should be training and equipping a person not only for a profession, but also for a rich and useful community life. I always urge that the humanities and social sciences be an important part of a student's curriculum to add balance and perspective."

Mrs. Green, a graduate of Florida State College for Women with a B.S. from the University of Michigan, is a former president of the American Bryological Society. She is the author of a book, published last year, "Mosses of Florida: An Illustrated Manual."

Mrs. Green notes that, although the second paper was found to have been copied from a textbook, the student failed to give footnotes explaining this. "The student who submitted it has expected to graduate that quarter," she said. "He didn't."

Early Americans Were Individuals

By THOMAS E. NELSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

ly 12 generations the Amerimoved from the small colony to the Pacific according to Dr. Richard A. lett, speaker at the American Lecture Wednesday. Indianism, innovation, cooperation were the four traits characterized the individuals this period.
men who helped close the fronier had to have individualism to the challenge of the wilderness. Civilizing the wilderness was not individual endeavor.
evation was necessary during for several reasons. The ward moving Americans did not many of the conveniences which had had in Europe. The shortage of manpower made it necessary to have a type of 19th century automation. In addition, many pieces of equipment had to be changed in order to work in America.

Cooperation was necessary in the West to protect against Indians, establish schools and churches, and maintain law and order. Even the most individualistic person, such as the fur-trader, sought the group for protection. This desire for affinity continued throughout the period.
Tradition seemed to be the strongest of these traits. Wherever the American went he desired the traditional marks of civilization and culture.
Bartlett concluded by contrasting the two types of Americans today, three generations after the close of the frontier. There are those who look back on the period of the American frontier as a "Golden Age."

There are the people who are afraid to face the reality of the 20th century. On the other hand, there are those who are now searching for an unrodded path into the future.
These are the Americans who want to meet with as much success as the first 12 generations in America.
Bartlett was born and grew up in the western United States. He earned his BA and Ph. D. at the University of Colorado and his MA at the University of Chicago. In 1957, he became a full-time professor of history. He authored a book entitled "Great Surveys of the American West" and edited "History of the Yellowstone Park."

Fraternities Plan For Next Week's Rush Activities

By RACKLEFF
Greek Editor

Informal rush during the first trimester will be highlighted by a series of open house and combo parties at all of the chapters.

On Friday all fraternities will open house from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. followed by another open house on Saturday, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Rushes extend combo parties at the fraternities on Saturday night from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Climaxing the weekend are pledging ceremonies on Sunday.

At the McCutcheon, assistant fraternity advisor, estimated that there are 275 openings for new members in the 17 FPO chapters. He encouraged all interested students to register for informal rush attending rush functions. Students can register at room 16 Longmire, and there is a registration fee of one dollar.

Rushes attending the weekend functions are advised to wear coat and tie.

ALPHA DELTA PI -- New officers are Helen Drake, president; Linda Smith, vice president; Ruth Rambo, recording secretary; Karen Oldenburg, corresponding secretary; Truda Stevens, treasurer; Dorine Pearson, chaplain; Doreen Van Asseburg, reporter-historian; Sandy Young, guard; Christie Bell, Panhellenic representative; Sharon Brown, scholarship chairman; Carol Peters, efficiency chairman; Sandi Staten, membership chairman; and Van Killinger, social chairman.

Betty Sue Holley was selected to serve as chairman of the Panhellenic Honor Court.

ALPHA PHI -- Sue Hopkinson was chosen pledge of the month. Three newly appointed officers are: Jo Ellen Reed, intramurals chairman; Sandy Burton, activities chairman; and Mary Lou Soler, efficiency chairman.

ALPHA XI DELTA -- The Alpha Xis enjoyed a dessert party with the Phi Psi on Tuesday night.

CHI MEGA -- The Chi O pledges will sponsor a fried chicken dinner on Sunday from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. and the Minutemen will be on hand to furnish a program of folk songs.

DELTA CHI -- Tonight the Delta Chis will hold their annual "Paddle Dance." The new officers of the pledge class are: Bob Johnson, president; Earl Webb, secretary-treasurer; and Joe Joseph, sergeant-at-arms.

Beth Robinson is a new member of the Sisters of the White Carnation. DELTA DELTA DELTA -- Tri Delta officers-elect are busy getting ready to take over their new duties, as they will be installed before chapter meeting Monday.

Seniors were honored by the all-hasties Tri Delta alumni Tuesday night with a banquet at the home of Mrs. Fokes.

DELTA GAMMA -- The DG's had an exchange dinner with the Lambda Chi Wednesday evening and then the pledges accompanied them to their basketball game. The chapter regnized pledge sister Jo Etta Lawrence who was one of the four DG's to make a 4.0 last trimester.

The pledge class is reading the house for a pizza dinner to be held January 25.

Electors officers for the coming year are: Barbara Gleason, president; Sylvia Hudson, first vice president; Linda Fredrickson, treasurer; Arden Wright, recording secretary; Bobbie Hayne, corresponding secretary; Becky Stevens, rituals chairman; Martha Putnam, rush chairman; Carole Bickel, activities chairman; Sarah Adams, scholarship chairman; Diane Felsing, Panhellenic representative; Anita McCleod, house manager; Linda Hurler, historian; Diane Gordon, projects chairman; and Linda Riley, in charge of public relations.

DELTA ZETA -- Newly installed officers are: Jan Warren, president; Jan Wackelmeier, rush chairman; Linda Savidge, pledge trainer; Gail Pittman, treasurer; Donna Spengler and Jodi Mann, secretaries; Linda Baplan and Jean Navaux, guards; Betty Church, Panhellenic representative; Flo Smith, chaplain; Ellie Dergan, big sister coordinator; Donna Enlig, publicity chairman; Becky Ellis, song leader.

Pat Galanes, house president; Linda Goldsmith, charm chairman; Merle Hunt, standards chairman; Cam Kilgore, scholarship chairman; Linda Luna, social chairman; Sharon Sykes, intramurals; Judy Toner, philanthropy; Jean Woodley, recommendations; Linda Wilson, activities chairman; Pat Bishop, magazines and course of study; and Claudia Brown, first marshal.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA -- The Kappas are looking forward to an informal dessert with the ATO's Wednesday night.

KAPPA SIGMA -- New pledges are Larry Wells, Cliff Sheffield, Al King, Rick Tesch, Tom Schneider, Don Lusig, and Glenn Roy.

The Kappa Sig's will hold a stereo party at the house tonight. Doug Burris is the new Kappa Sig social chairman.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA -- New pledges welcomed at the Lambda Chi house were Fred Bilenkoff, Ron Borst, Gordon Cigler, Jack McEwan, and John Wallace. Don Maynard was elected rush chairman for the rest of the year.

The brothers enjoyed an exchange dinner with the DG's Wednesday. The traditional pledge-active basketball game will be played tomorrow afternoon, with the losers finishing an informal party later.

PHI DELTA THETA -- Two new Phi Delta pledges are Lynn Powell and Mark Werner.

PHI KAPPA PSI -- Congratulations were in order for Brother Sugarman who received the annual best active award from the IC Beaver Scholarship Foundation.

The chapter recently received a visit from their distinguished alumnus, J. Edwin Larson who serves as treasurer of the State of Florida. The chapter enjoyed a social with the Alpha Xis last night.

PHI KAPPA TAU -- The brothers of Phi Kappa Tau held a banquet

The Phi Tau's and their dates are awaiting a good time at the annual fraternity party tomorrow night.

PHI MU -- Newly installed officers are: Carole Reid, president; Sara Lynn, vice president; Pat Rabun, recording secretary; and Nedra Ann Johnson, treasurer.

The housemother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hopkins, was presented with a Mother's pin on Sunday.

PI KAPPA ALPHA -- The Pikes were visited this week by their National Executive Director and Alumni Secretary. Prospective brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha went through the annual help week prior to initiation. A social is planned for the Kappa's tomorrow afternoon, followed by a combo party at the PIKA house with music provided by the Embers. Rush plans for next weekend include a combo party Saturday night with the Madisons.

PI KAPPA PHI -- The Pi Kapp's and their dates will attend the basketball game tomorrow night, and then return to the house for a record party.

Capt. Cullitt of the ROTC dept. will be a guest for dinner Tuesday night. SIGMA CHI -- The Sig's are having a combo party Tuesday night with the Chactics providing the music. Tuesday night Dean and Mrs. R.R. Oglesby were guests at the Sig house for dinner.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON -- Elected officers Monday night were: Milton Moll, chaplain; Dave Boss, guard; Steve Shepherd, senior marshal; and Dick Holt, junior marshal. Newly appointed officers are: Dick Holt, Sig Ep Calendar chairman; George Noga, special events chairman; Jim Vacca, athletics chairman; and Pat Adams, pledge trainer. Dick Rogers was welcomed as a new pledge.

An informal rush smoker will be held at the Sig Ep house Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA -- Newly elected chairmen are: Carol Jo Murdock, membership; Jody Wilks, social chairman and sentinel; Carol Jo Murdock, Panhellenic secretary; Carol Sue Malt, Panhellenic representative; Sandy West, Triangle correspondent; Nana Owens, music chairman; and Marabeth Miller and Nancy Carlson, intramurals.

THETA CHI -- The Theta Chis will be entertaining the new members tomorrow night beginning with dinner at the house, and holding a combo party after the basketball game. A diligent rush program is being planned for this trimester.

ZETA TAU ALPHA -- The Zeta's newly installed officers are: Susan Brooksbank, president; Terry Ford, vice president; Joyce Ojala, recording secretary; Jean Norman, treasurer; Gay Osborne, historian; and Mary Arliskas, membership chairman.

Fraternity Gets New Members

The Sigma Gamma Pi social-academic fraternity formally initiated Monday Paul Brown, Louis Capone, and Robert Grace into the duties and privileges of the chapter.

The most stringent requirement met by these men, aside from acceptance by the brothers, was that of maintaining an overall 3.0 average.

Finley Franchise Is Safe

NEW YORK—American League President Joe Cronin has disclosed reports that the League will take away the Kansas City franchise from owner Charles Finley. Cronin, in New York to discuss the Kansas City situation with the League's Board of Directors and club owners, says: "There is no talk of taking away the club."

The Athletics' problem has been that Finley has been unable to negotiate a lease that would keep the team in Kansas City. He has threatened to withdraw the team from Kansas City and has signed a two-year contract to play in Louisville, Kentucky. The contract signing was done without the consent of the American League owners.

The season for the meeting in New York is over and hammer out a new lease between Finley and Kansas City.

The American League club owners are expected to deny Charles Finley permission to move the Athletics to Louisville.

The Associated Press learned that the club owners will recommend a stiff fine be imposed on Finley for signing a contract to play in Louisville for the 1974 and 1975 seasons without seeking the approval of the League. Moreover, the AP learned, the club owners will order Finley to negotiate with Kansas City officials for a new lease, and appoint a committee to serve as an arbitration board. The board will decide on the fair and equitable provisions of the lease.

compete Saturday night in the Los Angeles Invitational Indoor Track Meet.

Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, the first man to run 100 yards in nine and one-tenth seconds is one of the headliners. John Pennel of Coral Gables, the first pole vaulter to break the 17-foot barrier, is the other.

Both will have strong competition. Hayes will run against Henry Carr, Herb Carper and Larry Questad in the 50-yard dash.

Pennel will compete with five vaulters who have cleared 16 feet or better.

BARRY RANKS FIFTH

Still another Florida athlete, Rick Barry of the Miami basketball team, ranks fifth in scoring in college basketball.

Barry led the nation until a virus attack slowed him down for a three-game period during the holiday season. In standings released today, Manny Newsome of Western Michigan held the top spot with an average of 33 and one half points a game. Barry is fifth with an average of 30 and eight-tenths points.

AFL MEETING

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA—Owners of the eight American Football League teams open their annual meeting today in San Diego to mull over plans for their fifth year in the professional sport. The owners will weigh applications from several cities—all hoping the League will expand. There'll also be discussion of a new television contract when the current pact expires at the end of this year.

PITCHER HAS ADVANTAGE

Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Tommy Davis, the National League's season's savior, says too many players swing for home runs, making it easier on the pitchers. Davis says: "The pitcher knows he only has to keep one or two per pitches away from me like that and he's got it made." Davis says that basically a pitcher controls the game. If a batter breaks through that control, he's swung the game his way.

Major league club presidents have decided to look into the possibility of a draft of players who are free agents, similar to the pro football draft of college players. The baseball executives also plan to investigate a nationwide television game of the week program without blackouts. At present, the game of the week is not shown in major cities, hampering the clubs' ability to produce greater television venues in which all clubs can share.

Evansville of Indiana has done its best in the weekly A&W Press Small College Baseball Poll. Evansville, which held a point lead last week, has increased its margin to 22 points over St. Louis of Louisiana, only one team in the top ten.

Wittenberg is third, followed by Washington of Missouri, Her Southeast Missouri, Kentucky, Iowan, Western Carolina, Penn State and Pan American of Texas.

NEWSOME IS LEADING SCORER

(NEW YORK)—The new individual scorer in college basketball is Manny Newsome of Western Michigan. Newsome tossed 35 points against Central Michigan on Tuesday at New York. He is ahead of Buck Komives of Iowa Green, who managed 29 points against Kent State the same night. Newsome is on top with an average of 33.5 on 435 points in 13 games. Komives is second at 32.7 in nine games.

THOMAS SEEKS 7 FOLD

(NEW YORK)—John Thomas of Boston Athletic Association is facing three other seven-fold winners in the millrose games at New York's Madison Square Garden 30th. They are National Olympic Champion Gene Johnson from University of California, Paul Hays of the University of Oregon and Swedish veteran Stig Pettersson.

OLYMPICS NEED SNOW

(INNSBRUCK, AUSTRIA)—Organizers at Innsbruck, Austria, say they may have to change the winter olympics program unless the Austrian Alps get some snow. Games are slated to start Jan. 26. So far, the region has been hit with rain and balmy skies. Snow is being trucked onto the sites.

Georgia Bulldogs Challenges Cagers Saturday

The University of Georgia Bulldog Basketball team will make its first appearance in Tully Gym tomorrow night against the Seminoles. The 7:45 game will be preceded by a clash between the Tribe freshmen and St. Leo J.C.

The Bulldogs are a very versatile team. They run a multiple offense and defense. FSU assistant coach Hugh Durham "won't be surprised" to see them run a zone or man-to-man defense. On offense, the visitors may run a single post, 1-2-2, or 1-3-1 offense.

Durham forecasts that "their versatility will put pressure on our defense. Since they are an exceptionally fine shooting ball club, we're going to have to have a maximum effort to win. If they happen to have a hot hand, we could definitely be in trouble."

The Bulldog guards, Billy Rado and James Pitts, have been averaging close to 40 points a game between them. Rado last year made the All-Sophomore SEC team with a 19 point average.

"This is a typical Georgia ball club," Durham continued. "On any night it is capable of beating anyone on their schedule. Center Jerry Walker, a junior college transfer held out last year, is one of their best rebounders in years. He recently pulled down 20 rebounds against Navy to completely dominate the boards."

MIAMI LOSES ROOT

HANOVER, NEW HAMPSHIRE—A University of Miami coaching staff member, Jim Root, has been named headfield coach at Dartmouth to succeed Will Voitz.

Root, 32, has been chief offense coach under Andy Gustafson at Miami the past four years. He coached all America quarterback George Mira.

He was graduated from Miami, Ohio, in 1953 after playing quarterback. He played with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League and the Ottawa Roughriders of the Canadian Football League.

Root went to the University of Miami in 1960 after two years as backfield coach at Tulane.

His boss at Dartmouth will be Bob Blackman, who said with a grin after the appointment was announced: "The first thing I want Jim Root to do here is develop another George Mira."

Tickets Soon To Be Available For Ballet Folklorico Of Mexico

A group of 75 dancers, singers and instrumentalists will perform at the Westcott Auditorium as the first of the Artist Series Event of the year. The Ballet Folklorico of Mexico appears Friday and Saturday of next weekend.

Student House Draws Praise

That the establishment of the International Student House is a significant step forward in furthering the International Student Project at FSU, will provide the students with a sense of their own in which to have meetings, socials, and other types of gatherings," said Dr. John Cummer, advisor to foreign students. Cummer also feels that the donation of the International House was a much needed step in paving the way for better relations between the foreign students, FSU students and the general public.

The International Student House is located at the northeast corner of College and Copeland across from the Tallahassee Federal Savings and Loan Association, made the site available without cost until it could be sold.

The house is in quite good condition but there is a great need for painting, painting and repainting, which must be done by volunteers. Furniture for the house will be donated by the FSU Housing Office. The Surplus Property Office, The FSU, will also be in need of chairs, but will provide a good start. Students interested in volunteering their work may contact Cummer at the Foreign Student Advisor's Office.

for the general public in Westcott Ticket Office tomorrow. FSU students with ID cards may get a ticket at no cost at the Ticket Office.

International students will attend the Friday night performance after being honored earlier at a banquet as part of the International Student Week.

Ballet Folklorico's appearances have been hailed by critics and overflow crowds from Southern California's huge Hollywood Bowl to New York's City Center.

Following the City Center debut, Louis Blauvelt in the World-Telegram and Sun lauded the troupe's performance "Spectacular! Truly a Mexican Fiesta. For the music alone, the Ballet Folklorico is worthwhile. For the dancing, it is the treat of a decade!"

In 1961, after an appearance at the Paris Festival of Nations, Paris L'Aurore called the presentation "masterful. Whether it be the ancient

Veep Nixes Candidacy

Student Body vice president Julian Procter announced today that he will not be a candidate for Student Body President in the coming Student Body Elections.

In today's statement Procter said, "In reply to the 'Florida Flambeau's' request for a statement, I would like to say that I shall not be a candidate for Student Body President in the coming election.

"I will not be school throughout the year, as that position dictates, and I also feel that I can be of better service to the student body and university in some other position."

"Year Around Operation and the Trimester--Bane or Benefit" was the topic at a meeting of Southern Deans of Men and Student Personnel Administrators last Friday in Longmire Lounge.

Presiding over the five member panel discussion was Frank Adams, Dean of Men at the University of Florida. Adams presented questions to the panel about the trimester system. Other members of the panel were Milton Carothers, Johnny Smith, Miss Texas White, Dr. Paul Piccard and Herbert J. Wunderlich.

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

PANEL DISCUSSION

Milton Carothers, Professor of Higher Education at FSU, started the discussion by pointing out that there was a national trend among institutions of higher learning to go on year around operation. However, Carothers went on to point out that relatively few universities have adopted the trimester system so far.

Johnny Smith, President of the Student Body at FSU, said, concerning the trimester system, "Although I am aware that the trimester system has provided needed opportunities for many students and faculty members, I have personal reservations about whether the trimester system is the most effective academic setup for FSU."

Smith went on to say, "I have always been a strong advocate of extracurricular activities as being a vital part of any university system. There is certainly no value in learning something if it can't be applied."

Herbert J. Wunderlich, Dean of Student Affairs at the University of South Florida, said that he felt that at this moment the trimester is creating more stress on the students. Wunderlich went on to point out that the trimester system did have some advantages, one of which was the completion of finals before Christmas.

Several times during the meeting Adams referred to an article on the trimester system written by Francis G. Townsend, Professor and Head of the English Dept. at FSU.

TRIMESTER REPORT

In his article, Townsend makes several comments on the effectiveness of the trimester system.

He says, "The overwhelming majority of Florida professors would agree that the trimester combines the worst features of the semester and quarter systems without adopting the saving graces of either." Townsend continues, "Only significant economic advantages justify a shift to the trimester, its advocates concede as much, since they seldom choose to argue on academic grounds."

Townsend pointed out that contrary to popular beliefs, the trimester does not save classroom space and it is still doubtful whether a student can graduate in less time or not.

He closed his article by saying, "Although it has no reason for existence, it is endurable, it pays well, and the taxpayer thinks he is getting his money's worth. Seldom has there been such a happy state of affairs."

Peace Corps Program Offered Here This Week

David Weisman, of the Peace Corps staff, Washington, D.C., met with Florida State University officials Thursday to map plans for a three day informational program here to go through Saturday.

Weisman said members of the Peace Corps staff will man a Peace Corps information center in the Suwannee Center Room area from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. The non-compulsory Peace Corps Placement Test will be administered several times daily.

"The information effort," Weisman said, "will be aimed primarily at seniors and graduate students eligible for the Peace Corps training programs this spring or summer. Qualified students who apply during the week and take the test will be notified within two months if they are to be accepted."

The placement test is actually an aptitude survey. There is no passing or failing score. Results are sent by the Peace Corps selection division primarily for guidance in job placement of the volunteers. Comments from references play an important role in the selection process, according to Weisman.

Participating in the effort here will be staff members competent to discuss the total Peace Corps program before classes, clubs and other campus groups. Appointments for a Peace Corps speaker can be made by calling Dr. Cummer, FSU Peace Corps Liaison Officer at Ext. 3040. Weisman said the Peace Corps is receiving requests for hundreds of additional volunteers to serve in teaching, medical, agricultural and community development programs.

"A continuing misconception among the students," he said, "is the feeling that an applicant must have a highly developed skill." Any liberal arts graduate who has the necessary personality characteristics and emotional maturity can fill elementary or secondary teaching assignments after our training program. With practical experience in such areas as construction, farming, public health or recreation programs, liberal arts graduates may qualify for community development work. Prior knowledge of a foreign language is not required for most assignments.

Volunteers serve for two years, including training. They get a modest living allowance, both in training and overseas, and a readjustment allowance of $750 at the end of their term of service. More than 7,000 volunteers are now at work in 46 countries.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Dead Issue

Arnie Gibbs, Ed Scott, and a few more quick-thinking members of our student government family have deftly changed the controversial class officer problem into a dead issue.

While complying with the mandate to abolish the class program as it was arranged under the old system, they have concocted a new inter-class council which will allow the old officers to function with almost no change.

Thus the council will be in charge of homecoming events, dances and all the other events traditionally left to the class officials.

We frankly are in favor of the council. It was our opinion that the student body let itself be railroaded into abolishing the class positions without sufficient evidence for such a drastic maneuver.

Some form of class unity is needed during events such as homecoming etc. There should also be a coordinating group for alumni relationships.

The new council seems designed to eliminate unnecessary positions and to streamline the duties of the former class officer program. We hope that this will prove to be the case.

Be Fortright

In the article about the proposed change in the class officer program that appeared in the "Flambeau" Thursday, a reference was made to a letter written by Attorney General Arnie Gibbs.

Gibbs' letter said in part that "...the Senate must act in a manner that they feel in the best interest of the University regardless of the opinion of the students."

While we question this statement, we are glad to see that there is at least one student government official who isn't afraid to say what he thinks.

Too often we have seen vacillating policies and indecisive statements from our student government leaders.

Gibbs may have been unusually forthright, but it is to his credit.

The student body can be as easily misled by demagogues demanding abolishment of everything as by those who advocate stand-patism.

If you don't like the way President Smith and his cabinet or the student senate are running things now, either stand for election yourself or vote into office those who will do things your way.

Sandy Turners

SG Senate Finally Moves Forward

Impeach the Attorney General: Thus rang the accusations of racial preference, influence peddling, racial discrimination, etc., through the Senate chamber shortly before Christmas. Consequently one frustrated, angry student by the name of Sam McCail caused one of the most idiotic controversies since the Tom Ciscio censure fiasco in 1962.

In one long tirade Mr. McCail impugned the reputation of Attorney General Arnie Gibbs by questioning his integrity. Last Wednesday evening a special committee could find no basis in fact for Mr. McCail's accusations. Unfortunately Mr. McCail is no longer a student and thus cannot be called upon to prove his statements. He did not furnish copies of the text of his speech before the Senate to the investigating committee. Nor did he make any attempt to prove his arguments. He has not cooperated in any way. The committee has evidence indicating that Mr. McCail had prior knowledge that his accusations were false shortly before his appearance before the Senate, and that he knowingly made the charges despite the evidence to the contrary. The special committee will make a full report to the Senate shortly, but even complete exoneration can't repair the public damage done by the integrity of the Attorney General. Let's hope that such future slanderous trades are prevented before they reach the Senate floor.

During the past trimester the Association of Women's Vice Presidents was formed under the leadership of Women's Vice President Carolyn Stokes. In the formation of the committee representatives of the various women's organizations are combined for the first time. What this means to the good of the university is that the women of the University now have a unified focal point from which they can express their views. Truly reflects the feelings of almost all women students.

As a result of the formation of the council a stronger tie will be made with the national organization of the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students which provides its members with a tremendous wealth of information about women studies at other colleges. By using this information the women of FSU have access to data to support their arguments to alter existing regulations.

Women's Vice President Stokes serves the thanks of all the women of FSU for a significant contribution to student government.

At the last Senate meeting Senator Alice Marshall, Chairman of the Organizations and Finance Committee, indicated that this committee would shortly present a resolution stipulating the Senate's policy concerning the recognition of organizations by the University. In doing so, it is hoped that some criteria could be maintained next year, if this can be done without the usual controversy being prevented.

Soon Senator Marshall will step down as Chairman to serve as a term. Under her guidance the committee has functioned admirably while disposing of such controversial subjects as the recognition of the Young People's Socialist League.

With the formation of the committee of recognition policy and the committee's present work with the Budget Bureau on the 1984-85 budget, the committee will have demonstrated itself as a valuable and active group. The leadership of Senator Marshall has reflected itself in the success of the committee and will be missed during her absence.

Yes, the Senate finally moves forward at a respectable pace. Sometimes it is difficult to see achievements because some people simply won't tell what is happening until it's over and gone. However, for once the Senators can hold their breath and let the Senate achieve its achievement and a job well done.

Paul W. Brown

Should Goldwater Run?

It appears as if Senator Goldwater is in quite a dilemma. He has made a lot of statements that as a senator from Arizona are politically feasible. But as a presidential candidate, incidentally, he would appear to be political suicide.

Some time ago Sen. Cotton of New Hampshire said that Goldwater represented a conservative area and had to espouse conservative views. But on this CBS program Sen. Cotton said that Goldwater would have to change his views as a presidential candidate. Incidentally, Cotton is sponsoring Goldwater in N. H.

Rockefeller and Sen. Javits of New York said that they would support Goldwater if he got the Republican nomination only if he modified some of his views. Among these views are his position on diplomatic relations, the United Nations and Social Security.

It is rather difficult to tell for sure just what Goldwater does stand for. I believe that these are among his basic views: abolition of compulsory social security, an across the board income tax as opposed to the progressive tax, possibly withdrawing from the UN, the threat of withdrawing diplomatic relations from the communist countries if they don't do as we say, the rejection of the test-ban treaty, and either drastic reduction or abolition of foreign aid. It seems very doubtful that Goldwater could ever become president with the platform that he has been advocating. Sen. Cotton very definitely expressed his opinion that he wouldn't back Goldwater back down on much other than the use of federal troops to enforce a court order.

Here is where the dilemma appears to come in. Much of Goldwater's support and money will come from the extreme element of the conservatives. He would have to definitely appeal to a broader base than this to become elected. To obtain a broad base he is going to have to modify his present views. Now it appears, if the above is accurate, as if he must alienate one or more of the other.

Which is it going to be?

Johnson being a Southern president also presents a definite problem for Goldwater. To remedy this situation Goldwater has been heard to say that Johnson has inherited Kennedy's platform and must stick with it. In other words, he is desperately trying to convince the South that Kennedy is still in office.

I personally feel that if Goldwater did have a chance, it was against Kennedy, and that a conservative time and Southern background could take the South like Kennedy never would have been able to. If Goldwater succeeds in convincing the South that Johnson is Kennedy, he will certainly enhance his chances.

Goldwater's chances would also be enhanced if he would run on a platform for the President of the US rather than for the Senator of Arizona. He appears to be one of the very few qualified candidates for the Republican house. Why should a man like Scranton be put up for the highest office in the US? He is an attractive, easy-going type person, but he is INEXPERIENCED! As would you say, "How do you stand, Sir?"

Traffic Light Needed At Intersection

To the Editor:

The situation on Tennessee Street or US Highway 90 is deplorable and stupid. Not only is it a hazard to pedestrians but it is a virtual impossibility for a motorist to enter the highway at the Dewey Street intersection with any reasonable degree of safety or confidence.

The general misconception is that the pedestrians are playing a game with the motorists. Speaking for many of the girls of DeGraff Hall, I object. The trip from DeGraff to the Library Building is long enough without the added inconvenience of waiting two blocks out of the way by going through the pedestrian tunnel and up the hill in front of Conradi. At night most of the girls would use the tunnel at all. But many say they would use it when going to the Student Center Area in the daytime,

The Tallahassee Police were handing out citations before Christmas to students crossing the highway by way of the median strip. This is the safest way to cross the highway. By crossing one lane of traffic at a time the pedestrian at least has a chance.

The police even gave warnings to students in the cross-walks at Dewey. If one knows the area it can readily be seen the journey required to go from DeGraff Hall to Dobbs House legally. All these restrictions were made under the pretense that a signal light was soon to be installed between the two houses. So far there is no light. Of course, this really surprises no one.

As a solution to this problem perhaps the police might be inclined to keep their promise of a light. But since this will probably take a few years, since we don't carry much political weight, may offer at least a partial solution.

Why not add support to the kids who slow the traffic down to 15 mph about a three block span between fraternity houses and the Post House.

The motorists from Dewey would be able to enter Tennessee without assurance that a speeding car would below the hill wouldn't smash them. Perhaps we could make it to class with a decent amount of time without fear of a crash or a car accident while walking or the safer median strip.

Donna Rios

Ed. Note:

After receiving this letter, "Flambeau" talked to Mr. A.B. Hines, the City Manager, and he said that the city has had a traffic light purchased and will be installed within two weeks.

Philip Fleming Appointed Veep

The appointment of Philip J. Fleming as executive vice president and treasurer of the newly reorganized FSU Foundation was announced today.

Fleming was drafted by FSU from a position in private industry last fall to become director of development, the person primarily responsible for raising funds for the university.

The Foundation was organized in 1960 but has been relatively inactive until the present. As it is reorganized, the Foundation will seek gifts from individuals and corporations to endow chairs, increase library resources, create scholarships and fellowships, and for other purposes. The Board of Trustees of the organization is composed of Mrs. Frank D. Moor, Godfrey Smith, Charles Ausley and Mrs. Louis Hill and President Gordon W. Blackwell. Fleming said publicly supported universities have increasingly been required to go to individuals, foundations and other corporations for the support needed in addition to regular appropriations and that there is not a major public university in the country which does not receive substantial support of this kind.

Two Consuls To Lecture Tomorrow

Vice Consul for Chile, Carlos Castellano of Miami, and the New Orleans French Consul, Jacques Liger-Belair, will be among the distinguished guest lecturers at FSU during International Student and Peace Corps Week. Castellano's address is scheduled for 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Education Lecture Hall. The program includes movies on Chile, and will be followed by a reception in the lounge. Liger-Belair will speak tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall. His topic of discussion is "The Foreign Policy of France Since the Fifth Republic." The only rank above consul is the one of consulate-general, and this position has the rank of a minister at New York City since there are relatively few consulate-generals in the country. Both lectures and receptions are open to the public.

the applicant must sign the schedules in the office and pick up company brochures and applications prior to interviewing.

Monday:

Liberty Mutual will interview business and liberal arts majors interested in insurance careers.

The American National Red Cross will interview men and women interested in various positions in the fields of welfare and recreation.

Tuesday:

Gulf Power Company of Pensacola will interview accounting and engineering science majors.

Lockheed Division, MBA graduates for industrial relations, marketing, and management, and will also interview BS engineering science majors. The American National Red Cross will interview men and women interested in various positions in the fields of welfare and recreation.

Wednesday:

J.C. Penny Company will interview business and liberal arts majors for their Management Trainee Program.

Scott Paper Company will interview business and liberal arts majors for a marketing career.

Thursday:

General Electric Company will interview business and liberal arts majors interested in entering business through accounting and finance programs.

Bouge, Compton & Vass will interview accounting majors.

Today

An FSU Credit Union Annual Business Meeting for shareholders will be held the first floor Auditorium of the Business Building at 7:30.

Sigma Gamma Pi will hold rush at 8:00 at 428 W. College. Persons of high academic ability who are interested may attend. Refreshments will be served.

WFSU-FM presents on "FSU Lectures," Allen Drury, author of "Advise and Consent," as recorded on Nov. 25, 1963.

Announcements

A meeting of the Sophomore Council has been called for 9 p.m. tomorrow in the Longmire Auditorium.

"The Legend." FSU's literary magazine, is now taking contributions for its 63rd issue. Cash prizes up to $25 will be offered for the best material submitted. Anyone who is interested in working for "The Legend," as a reader or typist should contact Sue Worley at the Chi Omega House.

Rooms 105 Math-Meteorology and 208 History have been designated as additional facilities for study halls this trimester.

The rooms will be open to students from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. each evening, Monday through Thursday. In the event that a requirement for additional study facilities becomes evident, more rooms will be provided.

Each study hall will be under the supervision of a student assistant. A sign-in and sign-out register will be maintained as a record of utilization and to permit student organizations which impose study requirements upon their members to verify attendance.

Students with questions should call ext. 2310 or the Dean of Students Office.

FSU Professors Conduct Classes At Cape Kennedy, Patrick AFB

A "campus" whose two classrooms are 20 miles apart has been activated by FSU through FICUS at Cape Kennedy, where 60 top-flight engineers and scientists are going to school to learn management techniques.

One of the classrooms is at Patrick Air Force Base, where 30 officers ranging in rank from captain to lieutenant colonel have been taking graduate work in FSU's School of Business since Jan. 6, and the other is the Cape Kennedy base of National Aeronautics and Space Administration where 15 civilian engineers and 15 military officers are taking the same course work.

FSU has pioneered in off-campus graduate training and its program in management for research and development engineers at Eglin Air Force Base is in the third year. Thirteen engineers there have earned a master's degree in business administration and 25 more are studying in the Eglin graduate program.

Two professors from the School of Business spend most of the week at Cape Kennedy to conduct the classes — three days a week of regular class work and one day of counseling, seminars and informal meeting with students. Dr. Warren B. Nation is teaching Business Administration 503, economic analysis for managers, and Dr. Richard M. Baker, Jr., is teaching Business Administration 595, research methods.

FSU Dean of Business Charles Rovers said that before agreeing to go into the off-campus program at Eglin and the one at Kennedy the university insisted upon having full-time regular graduate program professors on the spot, not just for one night of course work a week but for most of each week. This is in line with accreditation standards of the Southern Association.

The engineers and scientists attending the classes donate an hour of their own time three days a week and their employer donates an hour of government time. Classes are held from 7 to 9 a.m.

Nation and Baker will conduct classes through this trimester and then two other professors will relieve them to teach other courses during Trimester III. Eventually a third professor will be assigned to the Cape to be co-ordinator for the program and to teach some classes.

Outside specialists will be brought in from time to time, and the scientists and engineers will spend some time in visiting research laboratories, universities and private enterprise scientific installations away from the Cape.

The students will earn six hours of credit per trimester and after two years of year-round study will be able to earn a master's degree in business administration.

Getting to their classes poses something of a problem for the two FSU professors. It entails not only long trips across the Florida peninsula and back each week but getting an early start to the daily class sessions.

The faculty members stay at a tourist court between the two Cape installations and every morning one sets out to the NASA installation and the other to Patrick.

Travel, however, hasn't been as much of a problem as some other things — for instance, textbooks.

The full first week of classes went by without any, even though an order went in for the books last November.

Teachers For East Africa

For the fourth consecutive year, Teachers College of the University of Illinois, is seeking American college graduates to prepare for teaching service in the secondary schools of East Africa.

The college has undertaken the recruitment, selection, and training of the candidates at the request of the Agency for International Development of the State Department. The teachers are needed in Kenya, Tanganyika, Uganda and Zanzibar.

The East African governments have requested more than 100 teachers in the fields of biology, chemistry, English, geography, history, mathematics, and physics for employment beginning in the fall 1964. To date, Teachers College has selected and trained some 400 teachers under this program.

Those interested should apply immediately. Applicants must be United States citizens, Arts and science graduates and graduating seniors with no teaching experience but professionally trained, and certified graduates with no teaching experience and experienced teachers are all eligible to apply for the program.

Accepted candidates will receive training fellowships at Teachers College or Makerere University, Kampala, Uganda, or at both institutions. Upon completion of training the teachers will receive two-year appointments as salaried education officers in East Africa.

Although preference in selection will be given to applicants who are single, married persons may apply and, if chosen, will receive travel allowances for dependents. However, it is not possible for both husband and wife to be employed with the project.

A brochure with details of the program can be obtained by writing to: Teachers for East Africa, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, N.Y. 10027.

COMMUTING PROPS

Two professors of business, Dr. W. Lynn B. Nation (left) and Richard Baker Jr., have to get up early to keep up with their classes. The course schedule is made necessary because they stay in a tourist court at Cape Kennedy and one drives off toward the NASA base and the other to Patrick Air Force Base to meet 7 a.m. graduate-level classes. The professors are conducting for 60 engineers and scientists at the Cape. There's more commuting getting to and from the Cape on the weekends.

Boyle Conner To Speak At International Banquet

Boyle Conner, speaker for FSU's International Student and Peace Corps activities, will be Doyle Conner, State Minister of Agriculture, who will deliver the principal address at the Wednesday evening banquet. He has been invited to speak at the week's theme: "Bridging the Continents Through Further Understanding."

The banquet, which begins at 6 p.m. in the Swanee Room, is being sponsored by the FSU Student Government and the Tallahassee Chapter for International Friends. Boyle Conner's proclamation Friday called FSU's responsibility to help and to cultivate a larger understanding of world affairs... through the exchange of ideas and faculty, and through the encouragement of Peace Corps activities.

Blackwell called attention to FSU's developing program of international exchange, noting that 140 international students are currently on campus, and that approximately 75 research associates, technicians and members of the faculty also come from other countries.

The University President said FSU has had a substantial program of cooperation with the Peace Corps and has sent graduates to work in its program.

During International Student and Peace Corps Week, Peace Corps representatives will be headquartered in the corridor leading to the Swanee Room, and will administer interviews and examinations to prospective candidates.

Government Aid To Colleges Exceeds Two Billion Dollars

Federal agencies are supporting colleges and universities to the tune of two billion dollars a year with more than 90 percent of the money going to about 100 big institutions. Most administrators say this aid is on the whole beneficial and must increase.

But other believe just as strongly that "centralization and centralization of education are destructive and must be halted."

Paul Frigens reports the pros and cons of the situation in a recent Reader's Digest article.

He finds most of the money is spent for "costly, mushrooming government-sponsored research" that "lures many of our best teachers away from the classrooms... thus undergraduate education is devalued, and a good many youngsters are shortchanged in their education."

Faculty members receiving grants switch full-or part-time to the federal payroll and report on their project to somebody in a government agency. "A university's control over its own destiny has been substantially reduced," says President Clark Kerr of the University of California.

"Projects are duplicative and uncoordinated," writes Frigens. "extravagance and waste abound... since the great bulk... is being poured into research for national defense, health and space, this is creating dangerous imbalance in our academic programs."

To withstand the dangers implicit in federal involvement, President Robert F. Goheen of Princeton warns, we must have greater private support of education. One proposal is for tax credits. A taxpayer could in effect pay part of his income tax—up to $100—directly to a college or university of his choice.

Many schools now maintain Washington offices or representatives to seek grants. John A. Howard, the young president of Rockford College in Illinois, calls the clamor for federal funds a "stampede to disaster" and insists that the federal programs destroy institutional initiative, stifle diversity and exert undue control. The college is pushing an 18-million-dollar expansion program without federal funds.

Tribe Wins 64-63

Seminoles Edge Georgia In Thriller

By JAMES MYERS
Flambeau Sports Staff

FSU made up an early first half deficit and then barely managed to hold off a bunch of determined Georgia Bulldogs for a narrow 64-63 victory Saturday night in Tully Gymnasium.

A capacity crowd of 4,400 shouted the Seminoles to their fourth thriller in a row. FSU beat Auburn 69-67, squeaked by Miami 80-78, and edged Memphis State 91-90 for their last three wins.

Bill Peacock and Gary Schull were the big guns in the Seminole attack. Peacock garnered 15 points to lead the scoring for the Seminoles while Schull pulled down 15 big rebounds and added 14 points to the total.

Both teams were guilty of sloppy play. Georgia had a poor 31.4 field goal average while FSU had a equally dismal 10 of 16 free throw record.

Top men for the Bulldogs were Billy Rado and Jerry Waller. Waller, a 6-7 sophomore, poured in 17 points and grabbed 14 rebounds, found a potential All American, and the Seminole home court not to his liking, as he managed only 14 points.

Georgia took an early lead in the first quarter as the Seminoles appeared to find it hard to break the scoring ice. After 9 1/2 minutes the Bulldogs owned a 20-12 lead.

FSU then decided it had had enough. Led by Peacock and Schull, the Seminoles went on a nine point scoring spree to take the lead 21-20. Rado made it 22-21 Georgia but the Seminoles came right back and from that time they were never headed.

Georgia fighting to stop the Seminoles' hot hand tied the score at 31-31 as the half ended.

FSU roared onto the floor at the start of the third quarter and threatened to run the Bulldogs all the way back to the Georgia line.

Jerry Shirley and Schull combined to give the Seminoles a 49-38 lead after eight minutes of play. Georgia, realizing the need for desperate measures, put in a full court press which soon had the Seminoles rattled.

Jimmy Pitts and Waller teamed to pull the Bulldogs to a 57-55 deficit and things began to look bad in the Seminoles' camp.

At this point, Coach Bud Kennedy and his assistant Hugh Durham called the Tribe into a pow-wow complete with chalk diagrams drawn on the gym floor.

Whatever it was that the chiefs had sighted must have worked.

Schull missed a layup but tapped in the rebound and was fouled in the process. He calmly sank the free throw to make the score 60-59 FSU.

Trying desperately to capture the ball, one of the Bulldogs fouled Tribe captain Pete Rogers. Rogers, coming through in the clutch, sank both shots to give the Seminoles a 64-59 edge.

Waller hit for two points to make it 64-61 but the Seminoles were laying off now, simply trying to freeze the ball.

Peacock was fouled with 31 seconds to go, missed his free throw attempt, Georgia's Bagby scored the final two points for the Bulldogs with nine seconds to go. At this point, the Seminoles could have cared less. The Seminoles next face archival University of Florida in Tully Gymnasium Thursday night.

FSU Freshmen Stomp St. Leo Quintet 120-88

The Florida State Freshmen team poured it on in the second half, defeat St. Leo Junior College 120-88 for their second straight victory Saturday night in Tully Gymnasium.

The Baby Seminoles scored 67 points in route to their third straight home victory.

The Fresh hit on 55 out of 91 from the floor for an amazing 60%. St. Leo hit 40 out of 97 for 41%.

The Baby Seminoles also out rebounded the visitors 51-40.

St. Leo took a quick lead with Joe Orchulli sinking the first basket. Baskets by Ron Malmen, Bill Glenn, Dick Danford and Brian Murphy shot FSU into a 10-7 lead.

Orchulli sank four baskets to lead St. Leo to a 24-18 lead, but Ron Malmen and Dick Danford combined to tie it at 24-24.

Bill Lockett and John Smith put St. Leo back in front 28-24. Two long dunks by Vic Neri, a layup by Paul Zajac, and a jumper by Lockett in between with Malmen baskets made the score 36-31.

Malmen and Brian Murphy combined for five straight points to tie up the score 36-36.

After trading baskets, Noriega put St. Leo back in front 40-38, but Ron Malmen hit a free throw and Dick Danford sank a basket to put FSU out in front for good.

FSU extended the lead to 53-46 at halftime, sparked by Ken Doyle. At the start of the third quarter, the Seminoles sent in John Rogers, Jon Wallace, Bob Nelson and Tom Lager along with Moe Bloodworth.

This fresh team simply outran the tired St. Leo first string, who played the entire game.

Moe Bloodworth added the 100th point on a layup, and the fresh continued to lay it on. Jon Wallace hit eight points, including the final two. John Rogers scored six points. Bob Nelson scored four.

The freshmen travel to Tifton, Georgia, tonight to play Abraham Baldwin Junior College. Thursday night they take on the unbeaten Florida Gators in the game of the year.

They close out the week Saturday against the Jacksonville Dolphins.

Sports Notes

Vince Gibson, assistant FSU football coach, has resigned his position to become head defensive coach at the University of Tennessee. Assistant coach at FSU since 1959, Gibson had been regarded by many as Bill Peterson's right hand man. Gibson will join a new staff under the directorship of Head Coach Doug Dickey. He will be working with a close friend, Jimmy Dunn.

Dorm Construction Behind Schedule

According to the last progress report from the Coble Construction Company, the scheduled completion of the new men's dormitory is 5 percent behind.

The report, which was issued late December, states that 44 percent of the building was supposed to be completed, but only 39 percent had been constructed as of that date. In terms of money, this is a $96,706 difference.

Ray Green, director of building and grounds and assistant business manager, said that the zone architect is aware of this delay and has discussed it with the company builders. The company assured the architect and Director Green that both the dormitory and the student union, which is also being constructed by Coble, will be completed on schedule. (Photos by Rodney Elias)

FSU's Theater Dancers To Hold 'Open Studio'

Dance techniques, the discipline through which the dancer achieves seemingly effortless grace, will be shown by members of the FSU Theatre Dance Group at "Open Studio" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. In the Dance Studio, Room 404 Montgomery Gymnasium.

According to Holly Chapman, instructor in physical education and recreation and director of the dance group, "Clarity, control and sensitivity in this performing art are the result of many hours of careful and intense concentration in the studio." Techniques on the program have been titled "to provide a guideline for the audience." Some of the titles are: "Edge of Sadness," "Hope Crushed to Earth," "Falling Star," and "The Agony and the Ecstasy." Les Erlich is musical director for the Theatre Dance Group. Some of the music on the program will be his own.

An organization interested in modern dance, The Theatre Dance Group members are selected following competitive tryouts by men and women students at FSU. Dance group members who have worked with Miss Chapman for at least two years include: Linda Adcock, Carolyn Bramblett, secretary; Marilyn Finch, president; Clyde Friedman, Patricia, vice president; Irene Lopez and Lin Pollard, treasurer.

Dance Group Apprentices (those taken into the group last September include: Donna Garner, Sharyn Heiland, Marie Lazzara, Kathy Mahlmann, Karen Mayer, Jodi Preston, and Trish Scalap.

The dance program is open to the public and there will be no admission charge.

Many Nations Honored In 'International Week'

Making up an important one percent of the student body at FSU, students from Canada to South Africa and the Far East will be honored guests as International Student Week moves into full swing.

Last trimester, according to the Foreign Student Office, 144 students representing 39 countries, principalities and free cities abroad comprised FSU's corps of international students.

Final figures on the current trimester's international registration are not yet complete, but ten new students have arrived to date, replacing the six December graduates.

Dr. John P. Cummer, director of counseling and foreign student advisor at FSU, reports several significant trends shown in a study of the fall international enrollment. FSU has a very high proportion of graduate students from other lands, Cummer pointed out. "In contrast to the usual high percentages of undergraduates at most US colleges and universities, 70 per cent of FSU's international students are working for master's and doctoral degrees."

"Our figures also deplore the common conception of financial support for international students," said Cummer, noting that 37 of FSU's group are supported entirely by personal funds, and that another 40 receive only partial support from the University. "Contrary to popular opinion," said the foreign student advisor, "few international students are entirely supported by the university, the US government, or their own governments."

Parallel to the national trend for subjects studied, said Cummer, "FSU's group is right in line, with 49 percent engaged in the study of natural and physical sciences."

A majority of the international students at FSU are from the Far East, according to his figures, which show 53.1 percent from those countries. The second-largest area represented is Latin America with 16.9 per cent.

Among the countries whose students will be guests at student, state and civic receptions during International Student Week are the following: The Bahamas, Brazil, Canada, Ceylon, Chile, China, Colombia, Cuba, England, Egypt, France, Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Israel, Ireland, Japan, Jordan, Korea, Mexico, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Peru, the Philippines, South Africa, Spain, Switzerland, Sweden, Syria, Thailand, Turkey, Venezuela, Viet Nam, and Yugoslavia.

Fraternity Rush To Start Friday

Fraternity informal rush during this trimester will commence at open houses and combo parties to which all interested students are invited.

All of the FSU fraternity houses will have open house Friday evening from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m., followed by another open house from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. Rushes will then be entertained as guests at combo parties at the various houses Saturday night starting at 8 p.m. Highlighting the rush weekend will be pledging ceremonies for the new pledges on Sunday afternoon.

Prospective rushers are advised to wear coat and tie to the weekend's functions.

Steve McCutchen, assistant fraternity advisor, estimated that there are about 275 openings for new pledges at the 17 FSU chapters. He encouraged all interested students to register for rush before attending rush functions. Students can register at the IFC office in room 41 Longmire, and there is a registration fee of one dollar.

Honor Students Make 4.0's

Twenty-one of the 223 students in the Basic Studies Honors Program (BSU) made perfect grade averages (4.0) on academic subjects during the fall trimester.

The number included 11 of the 127 freshmen and 10 of the 96 sophomores in the program.

The 4.0 averages (in some cases including physical education grades) are made by Barbara Alexander, Jim Bennett, Richard Cowley, Susan Foxworth, John Holley, Mylaine Huffaker, Richard Johnson, Sandra Masse, Chuck Middleton, Terry Mitchell, Charles Myers, Brian Plattis, Barry Qualls, Sandra Karen Sasman, Shirley Seawright, Sandy Spear, Steve Scoville, William Wharton, and Doris Ann Whiggin.

Out of the total number of students in the Basic Studies Honors Program, 70 made a grade point average of 3.5 to 3.9 and 83 made an average of 3.0 to 3.4.

Announcements

The Peace Corps Placement Test will be given today and tomorrow at 1, 4, and 7 p.m. Applicants should sign up for the test at the Peace Corps desks in the Suwannee Room and at the Student Center.

The Knowledge for College test will be given to all freshmen or transfer women today between 4:30 and 6 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Al Galbraith SG Bill Unoriginal

If you've been trying to keep up with Student Senate activities by reading the "Flambeau," you've probably picked up the impression that Senator Ed Scott has somehow mounted a white horse and charged into the midst of the Class Officer Program question, single-handedly wresting away the solution by virtue of his "quick thinking."

Such is not the case.

Senator Scott and his committee have not "concocted" any "one-inter-class council," as it was implied in Monday's lead "Flambeau" editorial which was written by Erik Collins. The Bill presented in last week's meeting of Student Senate certainly was no product of any quick thinking on Scott's part.

Here are some facts, which may be verified by checking the files of the Secretary of the Student Senate:

The Inter-Class Council was introduced in last year's Senate by Senators Louis Barnett, Joyce Killian, Ruth Doyle, Joanne Griffin and Ruth Merting. These senators, in Bill 24 of the 1962-63 Senate, outlined a council which is very nearly similar to the one produced by Senator Scott in such things as membership and officers. There have been some changes made, the significance of which may only become apparent during the upcoming campaign in March.

In the midst of Scott's Inter-Class Council bill is hidden a Student Al-

Alan Barr Leftists Are Against Goldwater

Senator Barry Goldwater has announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination. This means that in the ensuing few months the Senator will be in store for what is likely to be the most extensive smear campaign ever to be directed toward him and the American conservatives.

Why? Because the Left is prepared to do almost anything in its power to prevent a conservative from becoming President of the United States. Those who doubt this might examine the evidence following the assassination of four U.S. residents.

Chief Justice Earl Warren (holder of the highest judicial office in the land), Senator Maurice Neuberger, and other so-called "Liberals" too numerous to mention, jumped to the conclusion with no evidence whatsoever that the deed was that of a "right wing extremist."

When the murderer was shortly found to be, in fact, an avowed Marxist, the Enemies of Hatred were undaunted. They then lovingly theorized that the atmosphere of hate generated by the right wing had somehow mysteriously motivated Lee Harvey Oswald to pull the trigger.

That the Left could use that moment of national tragedy for the furtherance of its ideological ends is not only shocking, but also a valuable lesson in the extent to which the far Left (yes, there are left wing extremists, too) may be expected to go in the coming presidential contest.

Some of the tactics to be used against Senator Goldwater are beginning to come to light. One of the favorite of these will be the claim that the senator is backing down on previous statements and principles.

Walter Lippman was among the first to suggest that Goldwater is "modifying" his views which were obviously too extreme for anyone ever to have taken him seriously. Obviously there are a great many

Ila Rubel FSU Women's Rules Too Restrictive

Certain rules inflicted upon the girls on this campus are too restrictive and without reason. Perhaps the worst of these rules are the curfews.

As it stands, undergraduate girls have to be in their residences at eleven p.m. on week nights and twelve-thirty a.m. on weekends. Special occasions such as football games, proms, and "penny-ante" parties allow the girls to stay out until one-thirty a.m.

Once the freshman girls are in their residences, they have only a half an hour to get ready, no music in their rooms with their doors closed, radios turned low, and typewriters silent. They must remain in their rooms until the a.m.

These rules are made by authorities who supposedly have the welfare of the college girl in mind. But I think that they are more concerned with impressing their superiors and university benefactors who are still wallowing in the ancient past where girls were to be seen and not heard.

I believe this to be true because every conceivable reason for having early curfews has at least one logical refutation.

It could be said that early curfews leave the girls with less time to fool around with their friends and therefore more time to study, but earlier curfews actually hinder those girls who need to study in the library.

What makes this even harder to bear is that the library is open until midnight on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights, yet girls have to be in at eleven. Only the boys are granted this extra hour. Room curfews also hinder studying because they forbid girls from different rooms to study with each other.

Another reason for early curfews could be to protect the morals of the girls. I say that a girls' morals have already been established by the time she is in the extra hour. Room curfews for an immoral girl will only "bury-up" her immorality.

The room curfew claims its existence on the fact that quiet is needed so that other girls can sleep. Simple solution would be to have "quiet hours." These hours are already in effect between 11:30 and 2:30 a.m. for study purposes. They allow the girls to leave their rooms quiet and to type. If the boys of FSU are allowed to study in their rooms, why can't the girls of FSU?

I suggest a twelve o'clock curfew on week nights and two o'clock curfew for weekends. I would suggest that girls be allowed to leave their rooms within their residences at any time. I finally suggest that the girls be allowed to make or amend any rules.

Flambeau Forum

Deficit Spending Dangerous

Dear Sir:

I have recently noticed some disinformation in the Flambeau regarding government debt. The correspondent would seem to indicate that: 1, the true significance of public debt is being misunderstood; 2, perhaps we face no real danger in continuing deficit financing; I must take a different opinion on statement 2.

Few will debate the necessity of deficit financing in the short run. The basic reason, I feel, is in confusing the short run with the long position. When we claim to have a balanced budget, we are talking in terms of a specific time period. The underlying economic thought is that by increasing government spending in times of business slump, the slack in the economy will be taken up, and we can more quickly regain a healthy economic position. The outside of the business slump, in other words, we will repay this temporary deficit and, in the long run, there will be a balance. This repayment is the problem.

Many good reasons (or excuses) can be advanced to explain why "now" is an inappropriate time for repayment. Partisan politics might

A GUIDE FOR THE GUIDERS

One of the most interesting academic theories advanced in many a long year has recently been advanced by that interesting academic theorist, E. Pluribus Exebank, Ph. D. who holds the chair of Interesting Academic Theories at the St. Louis College of Footwear and Educational Philosophy. Dr. Exebank said in the last issue of the learned journal, the Mund Rushmore Guide to Scholastic Advancement and Presidents' Heads, that we must be appreciating the whole problem of student guidance from the wrong direction.

Dr. Exebank, a highly respected pedagogue and a lifelong smoker of Marlboro Cigarettes, 1 mention Marlboro for two reasons: first, to indicate the source of Dr. Exebank's brainpower. Out of all the dozens of brands of cigarettes available today, Dr. Exebank has had the wit and taste to pick the one with the most flavorful flavor, the most filtrations filter, the most soft soft pack, the most flip top Flip Top box. I refer, of course, to Marlboro. The second reason I mention Marlboro is that I get paid to mention Marlboro in this column, and the laborer, you will agree, is worthy of his hire.

But I digress. To return to Dr. Exebank's interesting theory, he contends that most college guidance counselors are inclined to take the easy way out. That is to say, if a student's aptitude tests show a talent for, let us say, math, the student is encouraged to major in math. If his tests show an aptitude for poetry, he is directed toward poetry. And so forth.

All wrong, says Dr. Exebank. The great breakthroughs, the starting innovations in, let us say, math, are likely to be made not by mathematicians—whose thinking, after all, is constrained by rigid rules and principles—but by mavericks, by nonconformists, by autodidacts who refuse to fall into the rut of reason. For instance, set a poet to studying math. He will bring a fresh, untutored mind to the subject, just as a mathematician will bring the same kind of approach to poetry.

By way of evidence, Dr. Exebank cites the case of Ciphier Henry, a youth who entered college with brilliant test scores in physics, chemistry, and the calculus. But Dr. Exebank forced young Ciphier to major in poetry.

The results were astonishing. Here, for example, is young Ciphier's latest poem, a love lyric of such originality that Lord Byron springs to mind. I quote.

*He was her logarithm,
She was his cosine.
Taking their dog by 'em,
They headed to go.
Marriage was not just a painfully shared,

Similarly, when a freshman girl named Elizabeth Barrett Sigfoos came to Dr. Exebank to seek guidance, he ignored the fact that she had won the Pulitzer prize for poetry when she was eight, and insisted she major in mathematics. Again the results were startling. Miss Sigfoos has set the entire math department aback by refusing to believe that six times five is 34. If Miss Sigfoos is correct, we will have to re-think the entire science of numbers and—who knows?—possibly open up vistas as yet undreamed of in mathematics.

Dr. Exebank's unorthodox approach to student guidance has so impressed his employers that he was fired last week. He is currently selling beaded neckties at Mount Rushmore.

TANGANYIKA

Army units have mutilated in the capital of the East African country of Tanganyika, a member of the British Commonwealth. A responsible British source says the rebels have taken over the city of Dar Es Salaam's airport, the general post office and the capital's international telephone exchange. Some shooting reportedly broke out in the city.

A British Broadcasting Corporation correspondent in Dar Es Salaam says the mutineers have arrested about 30 British army officers, their wives and children. Britain has a company of troops within easy reach of Dar Es Salaam. They are aboard a British navy frigate which has been standing by in Zanzibar harbor to assist in the evacuation of British civilians if the need arises.

WASHINGTON

President Johnson told Congress yesterday that the economy barreled to record heights in 1963 and will grow even faster in 1964 if tax reduction is enacted. This is the note of prosperity that will be sounded in the President's annual economic report. But Johnson reportedly will emphasize first that millions of Americans live marginal and sub-marginal existences. Thus, the chief executive will focus once again on his promised war on poverty.

PANAMA

Panama is sending an envoy to Washington to seek to break the American-Panamanian deadlock over the Canal Zone dispute, Miguel Moreno, Jr., will probably leave tomorrow. Informed sources say Moreno will try to salvage the peace efforts that virtually collapsed in Panama.

Panamanian President Chirist severed diplomatic relations with the United States on Jan. 10. He has demanded a U.S. pledge to renegotiate the 1903 Canal Zone Treaty as his price for resuming relations. President Johnson has agreed to discuss—but not negotiate—the treaty, which gives the U.S. perpetual control of the Canal Zone.

MANILA

U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy and President Macapagal of the Philippines say prospects are encouraging for an early summit meeting on the Malaysia crisis. Kennedy is in Manila on the second leg of his peacemaking tour for President Johnson. The Attorney General briefed Macapagal on the results of his Tokyo talks with Indonesia's President Sukarno.

CHATTANOOGA

The jury tampering trial of Teamsters Union President James Hoffa began yesterday in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hoffa and five other defendants are charged with attempting to bribe jurors and prospective jurors in Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial in Nashville, Tenn.

Deficit Spending = Today =

ancing may accelerate inflation in times of boom with little business slack. The government creates, by excessive spending, a demand situation where there is no room, thus has the inevitable effect of raising prices. By using the old comparison of dollars and votes, the government votes with its dollars to change the allocation of resources from their free market pattern to government pattern. These resources are not lying idle in a time of boom and there is a very real shift. This shift raises the prices of the products formerly produced under the free market pattern since they are now relatively scarce. If we produce more guns we must produce less butter. The same logic applies to post offices vs. automobiles. This leads to the second point.

By these dollar votes the government channels investments into areas it sees as most beneficial. Naturally some government spending is necessary and very desirable, i.e., defense expenditures, in the re-allocation of resources in times of little or no economic slack. I question if our lawmakers have any better insight into this allocation of resources than our free market economy. We are presently in a boom period, yet it is suggested that "now" might be the appropriate time to give the boys at home a temporary financial lift to gain votes lost by weak action in other matters. Our government is nothing more than the embodiment of our ideas. If we can not allocate our resources alone, our government surely can not do it for us. In the final analysis our government is just us.

I do not wish to imply that there is no place for deficit finance. I do wish to leave the reader with the idea that, in the short run, it is inherently dangerous. I do wish to propose that there are two dangers in continual deficit finance. (I have mentioned two, and I seriously question its ability to be a serious service to our economy.

Sincerely,
William Ray

Award Given

A second DuPont Company award of $1,200 has been made by the Chemistry Dept. of the DuPont Company announced today.

Designed to provide fellowship-type aid to regularly employed teaching assistants, and to encourage their interest in teaching as a career, the 1965 award duplicates one received by the Department last year, according to department chairman Dr. Earl Frieden. Frieden said last year's recipient of the award, David Henry, is currently teaching classes in chemistry at FSU, while working toward the doctor's degree in that field.

The new funds, he added, will be administered again by committee selection of an outstanding graduate student teaching assistant with demonstrated ability and the desire to continue teaching.

The chemistry award is part of the DuPont Company's annual program to aid to education in the sciences and engineering, for which grants totaling more than $1.8 million were announced this week.

Survey Ordered

Johnny Smith, student body president, issued a statement today that he will appoint a committee responsible for surveying and judging the effectiveness of the Summer Legislative Council of student government.

The committee will consist of those officers who comprised last summer's council in addition to three senators.

The Summer Legislative Council served in the place of senate during the summer semester. Its members were the student body president, vice president and chief justice of the Honor Court. They were advised by the President's cabinet.

Contestants Sought For Beauty Pageants

Girls interested in representing FSU in off-campus beauty contests, parades, and promotional activities throughout the State are needed by the Public Relations Office.

Student Government, working along with the Public Relations office, has devised a system that will facilitate a quick and equitable way to select the representatives to beauty contests or University approved promotional events.

Girls who are interested should fill out a "Public Relations and Special Events" form which can be picked up in either the Student Government Cabinet Office, 210 Longmire, or in the Public Relations Office, 305 Westcott.

The forms should be returned to the Public Relations Office where all the information will be kept confidential. From this file, all contestants and representatives will be selected.

Some of the contests and activities for which representatives will be needed are: The Festival of Five Flags, Miss Tallahassee Contest, Gator Bowl (for Duval County students), Azalea Festival and various parades and public events.

Public Relations Director Pat Hogan urges all interested girls to file their applications as soon as possible since contests, such as the Festival of Five Flags and the Florida Citrus Queen contest, are coming soon.

Alumna Writes Of Indian Aid

An FSU alumna, writing in the February issue of the FSU "Alumni Bulletin," says only the future will tell if United States aid to India is justified.

Miss Mygnon Champion, now studying and teaching at Punjab University in India under a Fulbright Grant says that country's economic plight is bad but would be even worse without the massive foreign aid it receives.

Miss Champion, a former reporter on the Tallahassee Democrat and Leesburg Commercial, wrote that achieving better living conditions "is sufficient justification for the expense," but "humanitarian impulses provide only secondary motivation for the US foreign aid program."

She said this country's "primary objective grows out of our foreign policy aimed at 'containment of communism' and is based on the supposition that the spread of communism thrives on poverty."

The 28 page quarterly issue, which also contains a tribute to the late President Kennedy by an Irish social worker, will go into the mail Feb. 3 to members of the FSU Alumni Association and others who contribute to the Greater FSU Fund.

Announcements

Mrs. Robert Widgery, executive director, Suncoast Girl Scout Council, Tampa, will show slides and speak at the annual meeting of the Girl Scout Council of the Apalachee Bend, Thursday morning 10:30 through 12:30 in the Tallahassee Federal Savings and Loan Auditorium.

Mrs. Widgery's subject will be her trip to Tahiti, New Zealand and the Fiji Islands as a Girl Scout International visitor.

Dr. Sidney W. Fox, professor of chemistry and director of the Institute For Space Sciences at FSU will deliver one of the four papers at a symposium on "Current Trends in Chemistry" in Brookline, Mass. on Feb. 5.

The all-day meeting will be the fourth annual symposium of the Northeastern Section of the American Chemical Society.

Junior counselor pictures for the Tally-Ho will be taken at 4:00 p.m., tomorrow in Opperman Auditorium.

All persons interested in joining the Young Democrat Club should call either Andy Harshbarger, 621 Kellum Hall or Charles Intrigay, 224-6981.

Coming This Week

Ballet Hailed As Spectacular

Hailed as being "spectacular," "fabulous" and "indescribable," even the most garrulous women will be held speechless as the Ballet Folklorico of Mexico performs this weekend.

According to Katherine Vernon, director of the Artist Series, "This is probably the most fascinating attraction we have ever brought here. I'm afraid the public will know how good it is and leave no tickets for the students."

The tickets for reserved seats, offered at no cost to FSU students, may be picked up at the ticket office with the presentation of ID cards.

Not only will the performance allow students a chance to display the art appreciation they acquired in humanities but it will present them with a colorful and fascinating evening of dancing, music and song. Since the Artist Series is open to the public, students are discouraged from waiting to get their tickets at the door.

According to Mrs. Vernon, this attraction is "something you just can't miss--the costumes are beyond belief"

Greek Library Lecture Given

In the Starr Lecture Room before a capacity audience, Dr. Franklin Walton gave a lecture last week on the July Genadius Library in Athens, Greece.

Walton, former head of the Classics Dept. at FSU for nine years, is now on a one year leave from the library and is presently teaching at Harvard University.

Using slides, Dr. Walton gave a brief historical account of the life of John Genadius and the beginnings of the library. Genadius collected many books concerning Ancient Greece and offered them to the British Archaeological Society at Athens but the books were refused.

In 1922, while attending a Naval Disarmament Conference in Washington, D.C., he contacted the American Archaeological Society and offered them the priceless books. Upon accepting them, the society built the library in Athens with the help of the Carnegie Institution.

The library opened in 1926 and at present contains 50,000 books about Greece. Some of these books deal with Greek theology, art, writing and history.

Science Film Slated Tonight

A new generator which may replace the conventional steam energy plants as the source of electrical power provides the subject for "Science Reporter" tonight at 9 p.m. over WFSU-TV.

Filmed at a research laboratory in Massachusetts, the program is about a generator called the Marx II, which has the capacity to produce 1,350 kilowatts of electricity.

CAMPUS CHEST -

Campus Chest begins its annual Wednesday through next Tuesday for such charity organizations as the Foster Parent Plan. One of these organizations are personally associated with each student. The Comprehensive-Rehabilitation Center will be used by the group and medical students of FSU. The University Service office will help in the medical, school and living needs of university students across the globe. The financial support of all students on campus will give each of these charity organizations a needed moral boost.

Czech Desires Used Texts

Used textbooks are so handy. They provide the extra money a starving student needs the last week of finals. Old magazines are useful too; they're great fuel for a "thank-God-it's-over" bonfire. But Milos Kachnic could put those things to a better use.

Kachnic, a student at Kremnica, Czechoslovakia, recently wrote FSU this letter:

"Please I study at economic school. Unfortunately since Second WW we have no opportunity make an acquaintance with students or technicians. Western, include US technical literature. And this situation will continue.

"Dear gentlemen, when possible I will be very obliged you for your kind information concerning your activity. Also I would be very obliged you for any textbook, or book on mathematics, physical, technical subjects both in elementary or in advanced step you can send men so I can study in origin.

Kachnic's address is UL SNP 54, Kremnica, Czechoslovakia, Socialist Republic.

Dr. John Cummer of the Foreign Student Advisor's office said that his office will pay postage on any material an FSU student may wish to send to Kachnic.

Hillel Sponsors Drive For Books

The Hillel Foundation is holding its second annual book and magazine drive for the benefit of Tallahassee Memorial Hospital this week.

Those people or groups wishing to contribute books, paperbacks, or magazines, should contact in person or phone one of the following people: Smith Hall: Larry Lavine, 430, Kellum; Jeff Lee, 221. Cawthon: Barbara Hill, 464, Jennie Murphree; Lent Ochman, 211. Bryan: Gail Tishman, 312. DeGraff: Carol Block, 211.

Photographers Needed

The "Flambeau" is in need of sports writers and photographers. Any student interested in either is asked to get in touch with one of the editors as soon as possible.

Those wishing to cover sports should contact the sports editor, John Wood, at extension 2437. Photographers are asked to come by the office in 213 Longmire and leave their names and phone numbers.

Two FSU Profs To Be On TV

Two members of the FSU Meteorology faculty will be on the program of the 44th annual meeting of the American Meteorological Society at Los Angeles Jan. 29-31.

Dr. Seymour L. Hess, professor of meteorology, will speak on "A Laboratory Model of Cumulus Convection Which Simulates the Effects of Release of Latent Heat of Condensation," presenting motion pictures and data on an experiment in which this atmospheric effect is simulated by heat of chemical reaction.

Dr. Thomas A. Gleeson, professor of meteorology, will present a paper on "Probability Forecasts of 500-MB Heights Obtained by Numerical Methods." Co-authors of the paper are Dorothy A. Stewart, doctoral candidate in meteorology and Madhava L. Khandekar, graduate student from India.

TURN ABOUT'S FAIR PLAY

...and in return for this subtle (?) cut left on Westcott Fountain, the "Flambeau" offers this announcement. A notice in the Florida "Alligator" recently claimed that the UF School of Journalism is currently ranked first in the nation in the "Hearst" Foundation journalism awards program. ...Wasn't it a misspelling, perhaps?

Deadline For Application Set

The State Board of Health today set April 1 as the deadline for receiving applications for 10 medical scholarships to be awarded to worthy students.

The scholarships are worth $1,000 a year for as much as four years. Only students who have complete college level pre-medical studies are eligible.

Those accepted must be citizens and have been a resident of Florida for five years, be of good character and in need of financial assistance. The student must agree to practice 15 months in a Florida community needing his services for each year's scholarship accepted.

The scholarships were set up by the Legislature to help provide doctors for communities which might not otherwise be able to attract one. The scholarships are reviewed by a committee of seven -- the deans of Florida's two medical schools and five physicians designated by the president of the Florida Medical Association.

There are now 39 students studying under the program in nine schools -- two in Florida and seven out of the state.

For information write to the Medical Scholarship Committee, State Board of Health, PO Box 210, Jacksonville.

Tribe Defense-Loses Gibson

Defensive football at FSU will never be the same again. A strong defense, long the consistent hallmark of recent Seminole teams, was largely the work of assistant coach Vince Gibson, who has announced a move to a similar position at Tennessee.

Gibson views the move to Knoxville with "hard feelings. I hate to leave my home, but I think it will be a good move. A man has to think of his family and profession. It is one of the hardest decisions I have had to make."

"The University of Tennessee," he continued in an exclusive interview, "has great football tradition and facilities. I will work as the defensive coach of line-backers and ends under my good friend, Dough Dickey, who was the assistant coach at Arkansas before becoming head coach for the Volunteers."

Vince, who was the first assistant and right-hand man to Peterson, was a hard-charging guard on the Seminole teams of 1954 and 1955. He considers Pete to be a "great coach who has done a fantastic job in bringing FSU to the top of the heap, where we can hold our heads up."

"The thing I will miss most, he concluded, "is this bunch of players we have. A man couldn't ask for a finer bunch of players to work with. With these players this school has a fine future."

THREE OF THE TOP GATOR PERFORMERS TO BE HERE THURSDAY NIGHT ARE (L TO R) RICH-

ARD PEEK (9.6 avg.), BROOKS HENDERSON (20.1 avg.) AND PAUL MORTON (4.9 avg.)

Henderson Leads Gator Defense

Florida's Brooks Henderson, guarding the highest scorer on most opposing basketball teams, is limiting his man to an average of approximately six points per game. These statistics, taken from game films, bring out what must be one of the finest defensive jobs being done in college basketball.

In the 10 Gator games thus far, Henderson has been on man-to-man coverage in a total of seven. The Gators have played a zone defense at other times.

His men have scored a total of 45 points, an average of 6.4 per outing. Scoring average of the men he has guarded ranged from a low of 12.2 to a high of 27.7.

Henderson's most outstanding defensive efforts came in the Gator Bowl basketball tournament game against Manhattan, and in the last two Florida contests with Miami and Auburn.

He took on Manhattan's Allen Pette, a 12.2 scorer, and blanked him. Pette not only failed to score a field goal, he didn't get a point.

Against Miami, Henderson guarded John Dampier, a 23.7 scorer at the time. When Henderson left the game with the Gators far ahead and five minutes remaining, Dampier had four points. He wound up with seven. Dampier did not get a field goal until approximately 13 minutes remained in the game.

In the Auburn game, speed John Blackwell, a 14.7 scorer, was Henderson's man. Blackwell scored two points.

"This is a great defensive record," says Gator head coach Norm Sloan. "He generally gives Brooks the team's top scorer, if possible, and responds with a great performance virtually everytime."

Henderson, who is averaging 10.1 points a game, is expected to place among the top five scorers, will next lead the Gators against FSU at Tully Gym Thursday night.

Gymkana Club Decisions U F

Florida State University Gymkana defeated University of Florida Saturday in Gainesville by a score of 71-57. This was the second meet and second win of the season.

Leading the way was FSU's Olympic candidate, Irv. Jon Culbertson, who won six events and placed second in another. Backing Culbertson who scored 40 points, were Mitch Weinstock, with eight points; followed closely by Bob Gramling with 7 1/2 pts.; Bill Davis with 6 pts., Jim Goodman, only a freshman had 5 pts., Guy Atkinson had 3 1/2 pts.;

and Bill Bell, another freshman, scored 3 pts. Bob Emmens also took part in the Still Rings.

Coach Rick Miller said the University of Florida had a strong, improved team.

FSU won all events by the Gymkana and Tumbling. Bill Keller edged Culbertson by 8.6 to 8.5 in the Dremmar of the Gators for the other victory by outscoring Gramling in the Tumbling with 10 points.

FSU meets Georgia Tech February 1 at 2:30 in Tully Gym.

FLAMBEAU CLASSIFIEDS***

* Watch For Details In Tomorrow's FLAMBEAU.

Case number 26, involving a student who plagiarized on a term paper, in violation of the academic honor code, was decided. The student pled guilty, and the court accepted the plea, deciding to award immediate suspension from the university with the eligibility to reapply for Trimester III in April.

Case number 27 involved alleged cases of expropriation of property and deliberate deception. Due to insufficient evidence, to prove the students' beyond a reasonable point, the case was thrown out of the prosecution and dismissed by the Honor Court.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members with the initials of the writer following the editorial.

New Service

Today will see the dawn of a new feature in your "Florida Flambeau."

After long deliberation and many technical difficulties our advertising manager, Pat Fuller, has worked out a system for a "Flambeau" classified ad program.

This new innovation means that the students, faculty and townspeople will be able to advertise in the "Flambeau" with out paying our usual display price than most classified ad sections in professional newspapers.

We at the "Flambeau" believe that this is a desperately needed service. No longer will it be necessary to tack up notices on some obscure bulletin board in the hopes that someone by chance will stop and read them. No longer will one have to advertise only in "This Week."

We urge all persons who need a place to live, who wish to rent apartments or rooms, who are trying to sell any type of merchandise, or who are in need of any similar form of advertising, to give serious consideration to our new service.

"The Florida Flambeau" is your best source for reaching the 12,000 persons who make up the Florida State University.

Take advantage of it.

Peace Corps

Approximately 75 FSU students have signed up to take the Peace Corps qualification test. From those 75, and those who sign up in the Suwannee Room today, Sargent Shriver and his staff will select a certain number who will eventually, after long months of training, find their way to some "underdeveloped area" of the globe.

Far removed from the FSU campus and collegiate life, these men and women will become involved with the lives, problems, and aspirations of people with whom they have for the most part known only through their readings. They will be giving two years of their lives in an attempt to aid the peoples of Borneo, Senegal, St. Lucia, or some other nation, to become better adjusted technologically and educationally to the nuclear age.

For his services, each volunteer will receive just $75 a month plus living expenses—not much for a college student.

When it was first established in 1961, the Peace Corps was felt by some to be a waste of the taxpayer's money, and the type of organization which would attract either idealists or escapists.

As 1964 begins, the Peace Corps has demonstrated that it is not an impractical organization; even more, it has demonstrated that the goals upon which it was set up, those of world peace and friendship, are not unattainable.

We do not advocate that every student at FSU join the Peace Corps. Some people, we know, have justifiable reasons for not subscribing to its aims.

However, to those 75 who have signed up already, and to those who sign up today, we extend our hopes for a truly enriching two years, both personally and for your country.

Thomas Riggins

Student Senate Is Exclusive Club

Now that the Sam McCall-Arnie Gibbs dispute has appeared in the pages of the "Flambeau," I think it important to help clarify some of the confusion that has beclouded the issue. Since Mr. McCall is no longer able to defend himself it is a very serious injustice for columnists to make personal accusations regarding his personal integrity.

I refer to Sandy Turner's article last Monday, in which he stated, in effect, that there is evidence that Mr. McCall knowingly lied to Student Senate when he charged Atty. Gen. Gibbs had abused his powers and sought personal gratification rather than the public good through the powers of his office.

I certainly hope that in the future when "Flambeau" writers make such charges they will provide some evidence to support them.

To the editor: In an editorial for the Flambeau on the eighth of January, Thomas Riggins accused conservatives of preaching a "velled hatred." Since I am one of the conservatives on this campus, I would like to reply to Mr. Riggins's charge.

Last November, immediately after President Kennedy was assassinated by a Marxist-Socialist, it became the fashionable thing to accuse those who were opposed to the president's policies of hatred. Naturally this attack was directed toward no conservatives, and they were quickly and irrationally blamed for the president's death. If an irrational man will fall for one communist line, he is sure to fall for another. And so they did.

Hatred is an ugly word. Even the sight of the word on paper is repulsive, and not many people are guilty of it. An even uglier word, at least in principle, is L-E-E; another is D-C-E-L-E-T. Most loud-mouthed liberals are guilty of it.

It's easy enough to make generalized statements that are in popular vogue, on both sides of the curtain I might add, but it's something else to back them up with hard facts. Chief Justice Warren, Fred Pearson, Adlai Stevenson and others are quite eloquent when accusing conservatives of hatred, but I have yet to hear a single one of these or anyone else document their charges.

What speech, what act, what statement by any conservative group, Mr. Riggins, gives you and yours the impression that conservatives hate anyone or anybody except communists and other philosophies that destroy freedom.

On the other hand, I find it quite easy to demonstrate the venomous hatred in the hearts of liberals. Exhibit no 1 is a cartoon by Herblock published in the November, 1963 issue of the Florida Herald Democrat. The cartoon shows someone addressing chapter 64 of the "Birchnut Society."

Notice the hatred. The speaker has a terrible sneer on his face, as he holds up to the audience several recent Soviet-American negotiations. The papers are labeled, "Test-Ban Treaty, Possible Trade Increase, Proposed Joint Moonshot." Behind the speaker, and above his head is a likeness of Sen. Barry Goldwater with a snake coiled around his neck.

The portrait is labeled, "Our Hero." The caption above the cartoon says, "We must face the ugly fact that, step by step, this country may be led down the road to peace." Such treatment of personalities can only be inspired by hate.

In my conversations with Mr. McCall, both before and after his speech to the Senate there was not the slightest hint that he did not believe the truth of his charges. I might also add that a large number of students who attended that Senate meeting broke into applause at least twice in Mr. McCall's speech.

It certainly appeared that he was expressing popular views, although I have no way of knowing how universal they were with the majority of students.

I personally did not support Mr. McCall's views for two reasons. 1) I thought it illogical to view our Senate as really representing the student body. It is rather, I think, some sort of exclusive club where people play at being grown up, and where they learn the political morals from the legislature downtown.

Flambeau Forum

Equal Men Not Free: Free Men Not Equal

There is another cartoon showing a likeness of Richard Nixon, who is a liberal, but a Republican candidate for the presidency at the time this cartoon was published, climbing up of a sewer dripping with the filth of humanity.

For several hours after it became known that President Kennedy had been assassinated, the offices of the John Birch Society across the country were subjected to the most shameful tirades from those darling liberals, so full of love for their fellow-man. It must have broken their hearts when the assassin turned out to be one of their own. Mr. Riggins's article was a plea to students and teachers to honor the pickets this trimester. It is claimed that this will affirm us as being human beings, but what about those who have business and property to be being threatened by a few people who have no long range interest in this area.

He is a human being also, and has a few rights of his own, one of which is the right to do with his property as he pleases. If someone dislikes the way he conducts his business, they have the prerogative to somewhere else. They do not have the right to bomb or otherwise destroy his building and his business.

Personally, I am in sympathy with the negroes, and believe quite strongly that they should be given free and equal access to all public funds and facilities. I further believe, that, if necessary, laws should be written to guarantee them this right. By the same token, and with the same fundamental rights in mind, I do not believe that anyone, including the negro, has the right to trespass on private property.

If it is quite difficult to understand why anyone would want to mix with someone who doesn't want to mix with him; I have a strong conviction that a negro doesn't want to. It is claimed that the pickets are there simply to announce to all who see their signs that they do not agree with the Mecca's policy of segregation. But this is a ruse, a sham. Their real purpose and only function is intimidation, not persuasion. Many of the students who stay away from the Mecca actually fear for their physical safety. This is an ungrounded fear of course, but picket lines have a reputation for violence, and this is their only effectiveness.

One of the signs carried by the pickets says, "I believe in equality, what do you believe in?" I am happy to reply, where grown-ups play at being children. Secondly, Mr. McCall's speech lacked specific evidence of an official misdeed. Mr. McCall's main complaint was motivated by Mr. Gibbs's rude, or so Mr. McCall and many of us thought, person conduct.

I believe in the inequality of man.

It is best that the whole matter dropped. Student Government needs people like Mr. Gibbs to help it out of its duty to the students and itself into thinking it presents.

After all, where else but in Southern democracy could a government spokesman proclaim "I am not a racist. I am a human being." Students must act in a manner that is in the best interests of the faculty regardless of the opinion of the students.

Obviously the University and students are somehow at odds.

I believe in this because equal men are not free, and free men are not equal, and freedom is a much more honorable concept than some notion about equality.

Men stand before God as equals and have a God-given right to equality before the law, but all notions about equality are man-made philosophies, and as such, are debatable.

New Summer Program Planned For Graduates

An expanded program of summer internships for graduate students in physical sciences, mathematics and engineering will be announced by Dr. Charles M. Mottley, executive director, Center for Naval Analysis, Washington, D.C.

The CNA will employ a limited number of qualified men with a bachelor's degree in the specified disciplines (plus a few exceptional college seniors). They will work as research assistants in operations research, systems analysis, in problems of naval warfare, manpower and logistics, Mottley said. CNA is a private research organization that includes in its scope operations research for the Navy and Marine Corps in undersea, air, surface, amphibious and electronic warfare, as well as in logistics, strategy and naval applications of new technology.

Mottley said that the number of interns for the summer of 1964 is an increase over that for last year. "In the past, our interns have done fine excellent, meaningful work for us," he said, "and we should like to bring more of them into the program. Moreover, they have derived satisfaction in seeing the results of their research put to work."

"They have the advantage of holding frequent conferences with staff members that give them the opportunity for review and appraisal. The experience they gain with us will be valuable for careers in business, industry, education or research."

CNA is directed by the Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania under contract to the Chief of Naval Research. Its components include a Research Group, the Operations Evaluation Group, the Naval Warfare Analysis Group, and the Institute of Naval Studies. Appointments to Internships, which will be announced early in April, will be in Washington or in Cambridge, Mass.

AROUND THE WORLD

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has urged fast action by Congress on the 11 billion dollar tax cut.

Johnson said in his economic report to Congress that 1964 can be the nation's most prosperous year if taxes are cut right away to spur business. Some key Republican lawmakers have again called for reduced Federal spending if taxes are cut.

LONDON — The British Parliament has been told that a second revolt by mutinous troops has broken out in Tanganyika.

WASHINGTON — Former Minnesota Governor Harold Stassen has announced his fourth campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

FITTSBURGH — The nation's biggest producer of aluminum — Alcoa — has announced it will not follow the lead of other companies in its field and raise prices.

MOSCOW — Premier Khrushchev held a farewell reception in the Kremlin last night for fellow Communist Fidel Castro. The Cuban Revolutionist is winding up his trip to Russia. There has been no announcement on the purpose of his visit, which began eight days ago.

BRITAIN — Four Britannia Turbo-Prop Airliners are being modernized and overhauled for Cuba by their British manufacturer — the Bristol Aircraft Co. A spokesman for the company says Cuban delegation will arrive this week to discuss financing of the planes which reportedly were ordered by the overthrown Batista regime in 1958 for 14 million dollars.

CALIFORNIA — The world's largest man-made Moon left is scheduled for launching tomorrow from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. If orbited, it could open a new era of scientific cooperation between the United States and Russia. The two countries have agreed to use the 135 million dollar balloon — called Echo Two — for their first experiments in talking by way of a satellite.

WASHINGTON — Canada's Prime Minister Lester Pearson arrived in Washington late yesterday for official talks with President Johnson. An official source in Paris says France has replied to a United States note which expressed Washington's displeasure over Paris intent to recognize Red China. The contents of the French note were not disclosed. But it is believed to have matched in brevity the American note received over the weekend.

JAPAN — Japan's Premier Ikeda says his government will pursue what he called a realistic policy toward Communist China. He did not propose diplomatic recognition of Peking, but explained the realistic policy will be pursued because, he said, of Red China's proximity to Japan and her 60 million people and its "hard facts of life."

NEW DELHI — A dispatch from New Delhi says Prime Minister Nehru is not expected to recover completely from the mild stroke he suffered two weeks ago today. According to sources in his household the Indian leader's health is "hard facts of life."

Attorney General Kennedy has conferred in the capital of the New Federation of Malaysia in his continuing search for a peaceful solution to the Malaysian crisis. Kennedy is urging a summit meeting with Indonesia's President Sukarno and Philippines President Macapagal in a bid to have the three nations resolve their differences peacefully.

Modern Language Labs Handle 2,460 Students

By LOUISE RAUSCHERT
Flambeau Feature Writer

This trimester there are 154 language majors in the department of modern languages—31 in French, 15 in German, five in Inter-American studies, and 105 in Spanish.

According to Dr. Victor R. B. Oelschlaeger, head of the Modern Languages Dept., these students are only a part of the 2,460 students enrolled in some phase of the seven languages offered by FSU.

The modern languages department is well equipped to handle its students with the newest techniques. Two laboratories provide tapes and recordings in all the languages offered, as audio-lingual aids to learning.

The laboratories are equipped with tapes programmed to the first two years of language, and also have whole plays, poems and other literature taped by people native to the languages, which are not programmed for any course. Also, Oelschlaeger states, "We have some tapes and recordings on the first two year levels that aren't necessarily associated with any text."

The modern languages department emphasizes the laboratory work, as stated in the "Schedule of Classes" for Trimester II.

"All students should bear in mind that rapid progress toward mastery of foreign languages is best achieved by combining appropriate conversation courses concurrently with reading courses as well as by regular supplementary practice of aural skills in the Laboratory."

"Those students who seek course or degree Honors in this Department are expected to follow this audio-lingual approach to language and literature study as an indispensable qualification," concluded Oelschlaeger.

Students Find Satisfaction In Work Corps

About 900 college students will put their human relations and technical skills to the test again this summer as members of a volunteer work corps sent over the nation and the world under the auspices of the United Presbyterian Church, USA. More than 300 of them will take part in the drama of urban renewal taking place in many of this nation's cities. Others will work on Indian reservations, hold vacation church schools in fishing villages and lumber camps of Southeast Alaska, develop community recreation programs in old Spanish villages in New Mexico, work in hospitals, clinics, schools and community service projects in the Southern Mountains. For example, about 90 will work in Chicago in settlement houses, churches, interracial centers, and an extensive camp program. Before beginning their work they will attend orientation sessions, during which they will meet with juvenile court authorities, social workers, urban development experts, and members of the youth commission.

Hundreds of other college men and women will participate in ecumenical work camps abroad. The sponsorship of the World Council of Churches, will bring together young people of various racial, national and denominational backgrounds from all over the world.

This year the Commission on Ecumenical Service Projects has responded to the urgent request of the General Assembly of the National Student Christian Federation to plan projects in 1964 in areas of critical social tension or need. Most of these projects demand special skills, experience, and maturity.

Two voter education and registration projects are being planned to follow up on work done by youth volunteers last year. They are planned for Tennessee and Alabama. While some camped, toured Europe, and worried about the racial unrest in America this past summer, 361 college-age students worked quietly at volunteer projects under the United Presbyterian Board of National Missions that took them across racial lines. They account for 83 per cent of the total of 553 college-age young people who make up the church's summer service corps in 1963.

About a fifth of the total group were members of minority groups. A vast majority of the group served on integrated teams, which included Indian American, Negro, Spanish-speaking, Chinese American, and Hawaiian students. The publication "Summer Service Bulletin 1964" gives data about a number of summer service and study projects. It may be secured from any of the three addresses listed below.

Volunteers are generally expected to pay their own transportation costs. However, limited scholarship aid is available. Applications will be accepted from students of other than Presbyterian background. Application forms and detailed information about overseas projects and work camps is available from the Office of Student World Relations, room 924, 475 Riverside Drive, New York, N.Y., 10027; on US based community service, volunteer and work-camp projects from Student Summer Service, room 1206, 475 Riverside Drive; on study programs, working seminars, and ecumenical projects in the US from Presbyterian Summer Service and Study Projects, 825 Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia 7, Pa.

VOLUNTEER

... David E. Kunkel of Pocatello, Idaho, is an agricultural extension worker in a village near the Turkish capital of Ankara. Here he talks with one of the shepherds. Many more students will be entering these programs during and after their college educations.

Peace Corps Test

Today is the final day for taking the Peace Corps Placement Exam under the administration of Peace Corps members.

Applicants must sign up for the exam at the Peace Corps desk in the Sunnawnee Room and at the Student Center. The tests will be given at 1, 4 and 7 p.m., or by arrangement. Dr. John Cummer has announced that additional Peace Corps Exams will be administered either this weekend or in the early part of next week.

An absent minded graduate student mistakenly placed all his thesis material and apparatus in a white Ford Sunliner parked in front of the History building Monday night, about 9:45.

He mistook the car for his, which is of similar description. The material consists of a Wollensak tape recorder and a black brief case containing much pertinent non-replaceable information for his thesis.

Will the person who owns this car return these articles to the University Theatre Office, 115 History, or to Bill Valle, 533 W. Call - Phone 224-7378.

The Students Act for Peace Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Room 204, Longmire.

There will be a discussion of the petition to abolish compulsory ROTC, sponsored by this group. It will be readied for presentation to Student Senate.

The evening's speaker will be Dr. Raymond Sheline of the Nuclear Physics Dept. Sheline will speak of "The Quaker Work Camp and its Attitude toward Pacifism." Sheline spent one summer at a Quaker Work camp.

Following Sheline a representative from the Peace Corps will speak on the work opportunities in the corps.

A FRESHMAN AT 71

... William Roevers, right, chats following a class in acting with Richard Fallon, associate director of theater at FSU. After his retirement, Roevers decided to use part of his time taking classes and picking up a formal education which was interrupted some 50 years ago. Besides acting he's also taking a course in beginning swimming.

Retirement Allows Time
For Fulfilling Old Dreams

What's the best way to spend your retirement? Shuffleboard, pinocle, and community sings at a retirement hotel?

If you were to ask William Roevers, 71, this question, he would probably, tug a perky beret and answer in a voice betraying his Brooklyn origin, "Doing what you've always wanted to do but never had time for."

Roevers is doing exactly that. He is enrolled as a freshman at FSU studying the theater (an old love), and taking a physical education course in beginning swimming (something he never learned on Asbury Park excursions in his home state of New Jersey).

Before his retirement Roevers worked as a field investigator in the division of employment security of the state of New Jersey. Although he traveled a lot in his job, it did not keep him from participating in community theater work.

With the Chatham, N.J., Community Players and later the Pennington, N.J., Players, Roevers was able to participate in and direct a number of full length and one-act plays.

Roevers and his wife, Marie, who has a master's degree in business administration from New York University, traveled extensively across the United States in a 26-foot trailer after his retirement five years ago. They crossed the country four times on trips to the west coast to visit his two daughters and four grandchildren.

The Roevers originally planned to spend their retirement in St. Petersburg, but moved to Tallahassee so Marie could take some courses at the university that would certify her to become a librarian. Ill health has prevented her from completing her studies. Tallahassee appealed to the couple, however, and they decided to stay.

After a 32-year lapse in his formal education, Roevers decided to go to college. He remarked to one professor that he didn't know if he could pass or not, but that he wanted to learn. He successfully completed the Florida State-wide 12th Grade Testing Program for college entrance, and took his first college course, freshman English, in 1961.

Roevers emerged from that course with a grade of B.

Can It Be Done?

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Staff

The big question around the Florida State campus this week is "Can we do it?" Can the Seminoles continue to be undefeated on their home court by beating the rugged Florida Gators?

At first glance the answer would seem to be no! The Gators would appear to have too much overall strength. In the two departments which decide close games, shooting and rebounding, they appear very strong. Brooks Henderson and Dick Tomlinson both hit over 50% of their shots, and are averaging 20 points a game.

Under the boards, the Gators have 6-8 Mont Highley and 6-11 Richard Peek. Both are averaging ten rebounds a game. In addition Tomlinson is averaging nine a game.

Appearances can sometimes be deceiving. There are several intangible things to consider. Personnel wise, FSU is obviously weaker, but will have more on the line than the Gators.

In the first place, there is the home winning streak. Other teams favored to defeat the Seminoles have come to Tully Gym, and have left empty handed, Miami and Memphis State are the chief examples.

Secondly there is a revenge motive. Florida defeated the Seminoles at Gainesville in a game FSU was not ready for. Five Sophomores made their first varsity appearance, floor mistakes were costly, and the Sophs had difficulty on some of the plays. The result, a 78-55 win for Florida.

The players are confident that they can win. Guard Ken Leakey had this to say: "It will take a great effort to win this one, for they have a great team, but I'm sure we can do it." Reserve Center Bill Phillips said jokingly "I'll be there. I don't know if I'll be sitting or playing, but I'll be there."

Besides revenge, and beating Florida, there is another reason the players want to win this one badly. A win tonight will be Coach Kennedy's 200th win at FSU. A victory over Florida will make it that much sweeter.

There are only about 2,000 seats available for students, so go early and support the Freshmen too. A large crowd helps the team, and, after all, both teams represent all the students at FSU, so give them your support.

Can Florida be beaten? The answer is YES!

Chess Club Wins First Against UF

The FSU Chess Team coached by Dr. R. L. Fromeome won its first victory over a University of Florida team Saturday with a 5-2 win. The Seminole team first began competing in chess on the intercollegiate level in 1959. In the first match against the University of Florida, FSU suffered the ignominious defeat of a virtual "shut-out", scoring only a single draw in 12 games. The score was U. of Fla. 11 1/2, FSU, 1/2. Incidentally, that draw was between the two coaches of this match, R. L. Fromeome and Ned Hardy.

Each year, FSU, improved in chess, gradually closing the scores in matches with the University of Florida and Georgia Tech. In the last two matches, U. of Fla. defeated FSU, by the narrow score of 3-2 and Georgia Tech in Atlanta last November, barely squeezed out a 5 1/2-4 1/2 victory.

This match represents the first intercollegiate victory for the Florida State University Chess Team in a dual match against another school in the South.

The results:

Board	F.S.U.	U. of Fla.
1. James Heidenreich	0	Bob Howard 1
2. Ray McNish	1	Parviz Valandani 0
3. Homer Rhode	1	Art Weltzner 0
4. Mason Kelsey	1	Roger Dorman 0
5. William Collins	0	Dick Mann 1
6. Steve McNeil	0	Len Padgett 1
7. John Hoffman	1	Herb Craig 2

DICK DANFORD

... 6-9 1/2 forward was the high scorer for the freshmen cagers as they lost to Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College Monday night by a score of 83-73. Lee Canter and Ken Doyle got 12, and Bill Glenn and Brian Murphy scored 11 apiece. The Seminoles' next game will be against Florida tomorrow night.

PEP RALLY

A pep rally for the Florida game tomorrow night will be held at 9 a.m. in the Opperman outdoor Theater. Coach Bud Kennedy and the team will be present, along with head cheerleader Sherry Harris and the cheering squad.

FSU is undefeated on their home court, so let's keep it that way. Attend and inspire the team.

Orange Bowl Turns Night Owl For NBC

(AP) New York—The Orange Bowl football game will be played at night in the past, the Orange Bowl game has been played in the afternoon of January first. But, the Orange Bowl Committee in Miami has signed a three-year contract with the National Broadcasting Company to televise and broadcast the game, starting next January first at night. NBC is reportedly willing to pay $300,000 for the game and other bowl festivities.

The agreement gives NBC three of the four major bowl games. The Orange Bowl will follow the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans and the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, California. The contract also gave NBC the right to all other festivities of the Orange Bowl's ten-day program.

The American Broadcasting System's three-year contract with the Orange Bowl was completed last New Year's Day. ABC paid $205,000 for the game.

The other major bowl game, the Cotton Bowl, is carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

New York—Undefeated UCLA is an overwhelming choice for the third straight week as the number one team in college basketball. But, the rest of the top ten teams in the Associated Press' weekly poll underwent considerable juggling.

Michigan, loser only to UCLA in 13 games, moved into second place with two first place nominations and 350 points. Loyola of Chicago, last year's national champion, was the last week and fell to third place. Another unbeaten club, Davidson, received the other three first place ballots and jumped one notch to fourth.

Gridders Set Pace 26 Athletes Make B-Plus Averages

Twenty-six Florida State athletes made a grade average of "B" or better during the fall trimester.

With football setting the pace, FSU athletes compile their highest grade average in history.

Top man among all Florida State varsity athletes in distance runner Tom Graham of the Seminole team with a 3.8 average.

Center Bill Daly led FSU football players with a 3.6 average. Others making a "B" average were half-back Fred Bilenko, guard Dick Hermann, quarterback Jim Massey, tackle Avery Sumner, fullback Ken Frazier, and halfbacks Joe Huxel and Lee Vaughn.

Other Florida State athletes making top grades were: BASEKTBALL - Pete Gonzalez, BASEBALL - George Rountree, Ken Suarez and Monty McBryde, TRACK - Hutch Johnson, Raehn and Jerry McDaniel, GOLF - J. Danielson, TENNIS - Lex Wood, SWIMMING - Keith Brockman, Jeffries, Doug Kruger, Jim Miller and Dale Smith.

Tops among freshmen athletes swimmer James Larkovich, mark, followed closely by baller Bill Glenn.

To Travel To Columbia

Cagers Become World Travelers

Florida State's basketball team will travel to Barranquilla, Colombia at the end of this month to participate in a tournament against three local teams.

The invitation was extended to Florida State by the Peace Corps in Colombia.

The Seminoles leave Tallahassee on Jan. 31. At 10:30 p.m. they play the first basketball game in Barranquilla's new sports coliseum.

Other teams in the tournament are the University of Atlantic, Magdalena University and the Peace Corps of Atlantic, Atlantic is a Colombian state.

The Seminoles will play one team each night of their three day stay, returning to Tallahassee on Feb. 3. Transportation from Miami to Barranquilla will be by Peruvian Air Lines.

The idea of a Florida team in South America originated when Secretary of State Tom Adams visited Colombia during his trip to the southern continent last October. The Peace Corps in Colombia then issued an invitation which Florida State accepted.

"We are extremely pleased to be able to participate in international Florida State basketball competition," Kennedy says. "International rules are different from ours, playing under them will be a learning experience for us."

Senate Drops Gibbs Impeachment

Inter-Class Council Passed Unanimously

By AL GALBRAITH
Flambeau Senate Reporter

The committee investigating the impeachment of Attorney General Arnie Gibbs reported in yesterday's meeting of the Student Senate that no grounds had been established for demanding impeachment.

Sen. Darryl Wood, chairman of the committee, stated before the members of the senate that neither Sam McCall nor a copy of McCall's accusation speech, were available to the investigating committee.

Furthermore, after piecing together as many of the accusations as possible, the committee decided that no concrete or valid accusations were made and that a "gross injustice" had been made against the Attorney General as a result of slanderous remarks and false arguments.

Therefore, the committee report concluded, no grounds for impeachment have been established.

The Inter-Class Council Officer's Program bill passed unanimously with two amendments added by Sen. John Mertling, chairman of the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee.

One amendment changes the officer of Secretary-Treasurer to Secretary-Social Chairman for each class. Purpose of the change is to establish one treasurer's account for the entire council, instead of separate accounts for each class. The other amendment adds a paragraph explaining the function of the Student Alumni Affairs Committee. This paragraph was omitted from the original bill.

A companion bill deleting Chapters 104.2 and 104.3 from Title 1 of the Student Body Statutes also passed unanimously. The bill eliminates the office of Director of Homecoming whose duties will become part of those of the new Inter-Class Council.

President Johnny Smith, in address to the Senate, outlined the past accomplishments of his administration and pointed to some future plans. He also presented a challenge to those students who are skeptical of Student Government and the value of Student Government to the campus of FSU. He challenged those skeptics to appear at a public forum to be held in Longmire Auditorium within the next two weeks. At that time students may bring forth their grievances and clear up any misconceptions about Student Government.

Smith also proposed that the Student Senate take action leading to a solution to the problem involving off-campus eating places and picket lines.

"Whether we, as individuals, are for or against integration of off-campus eating establishments, all possible attempts should be made to arrive at a solution to the problem which continues to exist," said Smith.

He asked that a committee be formed "to serve with members of the Executive Branch as a communication link between Student Government and the Social Action Committee of the Liberal Forum." The committee is to "seek to settle the differences for the welfare of the student body."

Sen. Mertling explained the purpose of a letter which is to be submitted before the Council of Deans and President Blackwell. The letter is intended to demonstrate student support for having three graduation ceremonies per year.

Mertling, Julian Proctor, Clyda Stokes, Kelly Reid, and Luther Kramer will meet with President Blackwell this morning to discuss the issue.

A bill introduced by Sen. Pamela Doud was passed by voice vote. The bill made explicit the fact that presidential appointments shall not become effective until senate approval has been obtained. Purpose of the bill is to prevent unqualified people from holding office during the period of time before their approval is voted upon by the senate.

Another bill introduced by Sen. Mertling was accepted for its first reading and sent to the Elections and Appointments Committee. The bill provides that any person who has ever been allowed to hold an office illegally for any reason shall be ineligible to serve in the same office again.

Sen. Gene Stearns introduced a bill which establishes rules for the selection and listing of delegates to party conventions.

Thompson To Lecture

"Through the Looking Glass" will be the subject of the Last Lecture by Dr. Allan Thompson, next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Thomson, who is assistant professor of English, said he will use his mind as a reflector for what he believes. He will explore the worlds of the physical and the intellectual, especially in relation to the nature of the revolution of society in areas of science, communism and religion. The lecture is free and open to the public.

The Last Lecture Series is sponsored each year by the Torchbearer Chapter of National Mortar Board. Speakers are asked to deliver the message as though it were to be the last lecture they were to give. Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, professor of Modern Languages who was selected as 1963 Distinguished Professor of the Year will deliver the final Last Lecture of the year on April 1.

Folklorico To Perform At FSU

The FSU Artist Series brings the magnificent color, talent and liveliness of a Mexican Fiesta to Westcott Auditorium as the Ballet Folklorico performs Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets for the production, offered at no cost to FSU students, can be picked up at Westcott Ticket Office. Although there are few tickets left for Friday night, Saturday night tickets are still available.

Katherine Vernon, Director of the Artist Series, urges students to take advantage of the opportunity of a memorable evening filled with the music and song of "probably the most fascinating attraction we have ever brought here." Ballet Folklorico's performances have been hailed by critics all over the United States as "Spectacular" and "the treat of a decade."

The troupe has made appearances in North America, South America, and all twenty states of Mexico. The FSU performance is part of its second tour of the US and Canada.

For the Company's founder, choreographer and director, Amalia Hernandez, reviews were an affirmation of the goal she had set for herself nearly a decade earlier. In 1952 Madame Hernandez left her post at "Instituto Nacional de Bellas Artes" to compose ballets on folklore

Crisis Inevitable

By BOBBY BOETTCHER
(From The Auburn Plainsman)

What is happening now in Panama was inevitable. Panama, taking note of the steady relinquishing of colonial holdings by world powers is asking to have the canal for its own—or at least that the United States leave. And because for years we have quelled tacitly any intimation of this sort of situation in Panama, we now find ourselves bare-faced with no more presence of mind that to yell desperately, "protest our interests" and "communist subversion." Seemingly, we are unable to view the dilemma objectively. We were caught unprepared and without a solution except to call out the Marines and scream slogans.

The newspapers tell us that there is no alternative to possession of the Canal; yet, the United States has realized for several years that the Canal will be incapable of handling increased traffic in the future, and has considered the possibility of building a new canal at another site in Central America. Sen. Karl Mundt would have us turn loose our 10,000 troops in the Canal Zone on the Panamanian populace as a "show of strength." Sen. Richard Russell warns that we must not allow the Canal Zone to fall into the hands of "Cuban supporters and subversives." Indeed, we must not; but are we to define "Cuban supporters and subversives" in Panama as everything and everybody except the good old USA?

Undersecretary of State George Ball reports that the rioting in Panama showed evidence of communist domination, but not communist instigation. The uprising was inspired by nationalist feeling such as that expressed by Panamanian President Chiari, when he promised "to obtain justice for Panama once and for all." If the United States speaks through threats and military might, it will run the risk of leaving Panamanian nationalism with nowhere to turn but to the exploitation of communism. Will the United States, which opposed old friends Britain and France in supporting Egypt's 1956 nationalization of the Suez Canal, now try to perpetuate its control and "interest" in Panama—quoting old treaties which it forced upon the Republic of Panama? If so, we shall find ourselves groping for defense against charges of international double-dealing, and racial racial double standard here at home, for which we know there is no defense.

For at least two years, a war of nerves has been waging in Panama. It came to a climax last Thursday when American high school students raised an American flag in front of their school in defiance of a recent U.S.-Panama agreement that the flags of the two countries would be flown together. The fighting which broke out as Panamanian students tried to raise their flag at the school furnished the spark for nationwide anti-U.S. demonstrations and riots. The ensuing destruction of American and Panamanian life and property was appalling.

The incidents of last week are not just a result of two years of seething discontent, but of 60 years of U.S. domination, the benevolence and benefits of which have been offset by dubious American motives and methods. The Republic of Panama itself was created by the United States government, which fomented a revolution in 1904 against Colombia—of which Panama was a territory at that time—mainly because Colombia asked more money for U.S. rights to canal construction that President Theodore Roosevelt was willing to pay. After the Republic was established, it became an instrument of the "dollar diplomacy" of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft, in making the Caribbean Sea "an American lake."

Today the United States pays Panama only 1.9 million dollars annually for perpetual occupation of the Canal Zone. American citizens in the Canal Zone receive privileged status, including higher pay, special food and special recreational facilities—somehow reminiscent of the old British gentleman drinking his gin and tonic at "the club," unconcerned over looking the slums of Calcutta or Bombay in the background. Merely allowing the Panamanians to fly their own flag is not enough to placate them, and justifiably so. Somewhere between the present arrangement and communist takeover, there lies an area where a solution to the problem can be found. Perhaps an international management of the Canal would be feasible: one in keeping with the first Hay-Pauncefote Treaty of 1900 between the United States and Great Britain. This treaty stipulated that the Canal be open to all nations in peace and war, and guaranteed against political influence and territorial encroachments in Central America. Sabotage rattling and narrow self-interest do not provide solutions; they only invite disaster for even a well-meaning United States.

Goldwater's Views Explained

In Mr. Brown's column of January 20 he made several statements to which I would like to reply.

It isn't difficult to tell what views Sen. Goldwater holds. All one has to do is consult his book, a nation-wide best-seller, "Conscience of a Conservative." In it he states explicitly his views on many subjects. He does believe that Social Security should not be compulsory. In fact, he proposed legislation which would give one a choice of using Social Security or private insurance. He believes that "the graduated tax is a confiscatory tax," and "government has a right to claim an equal percentage of each man's wealth, and no more."

On the subject of the U.N. he states "the U.N. places an unwarranted financial burden on the American taxpayer.... The United States is currently defraying roughly a third of all United Nations expenses. That assessment should be drastically reduced. The U.N. should not operate as a charity. Assessment should take into account the benefits received by the contributor nation."

He further states: "Withdrawal from the United Nations is probably not the answer to these problems. For the United States to withdraw is unfeasible. We should make sure, however, that the nature of our commitment is such as to advance American interests, and that will involve changes in some of our present attitudes and policies toward the U.N."

On foreign aid to Communist countries he writes: "In my view, this is the most serious mistake we have positively promoted the Communist cause. It has not made Communist governments less Communist. It has not caused Communist governments to change sides in the Cold War. It has made it easier for Communist governments to keep the subjects enslaved."

"And none of these results should have come as a surprise." He also states "if our methods are to be in tune with our true objectives (i.e., victory over Communism), we will confine foreign aid to military and technical assistance to those states that need it, and it is essential to the common goal of defeating world Communism."

If these policies were carried out, have no doubt that the real aid to foreign aid would be somewhat reduced.

As for his wanting "to reject the present treaty," Sen. Goldwater quoted many times. Sen. Goldwater's statement was made in answer to a newsman's query that if Sen. Goldwater were President, would he renounce the Panama Canal Treaty. He replied, "I am not convinced it is in the best interests of the States, certainly." No one would probably find anything wrong with that statement.

It is the primary duty of the President to look after the interests of the U.S.

In closing may I suggest that you read "Conscience of a Conservative" and "Why Not Victory?" You will find them interesting and whether you agree with his views or not.

A Local Man's Own History Of Smoking

Ten years ago the U.S. Public Health Service, National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md., conducted a survey among the veterans of World War I relative to their smoking habits.

In February 1954, I received a questionnaire listing three categories of smokers: namely, cigarette, cigar and pipe — upon completion it was returned with these comments: "I started smoking in 1912, smoked cigarettes moderately off and on, and chewed Climax Plug moderately off and on."

During World War I it was cigarettes of standard brands which we could get them; but, for the most part it was "Roll Your Own" with Bull Durham which was picked up, lying everywhere off and on, in a tinned condition from exposure to the elements and saturated with mustard gas.

In time I developed an aggravated case of heartburn which would not permit me to lie down, so I slept propped up in a sitting position in a corner. Finally, I decided to quit tobacco — this was not an easy matter as the habit is hard to overcome. "I quit for six months, started again and smoked for six months; stopped for six months, and smoked another month; then quit for a year, and smoked again the following year; and then abandoned the habit altogether when I came to the tropics. Now I often wonder why I smoked at all as my mouth and throat were always parched and tasted like the bottom of a bird cage."

The habit of reaching for a cigarette became an automatic reaction, and it occurs as often as one's mind and hands become unoccupied. Indulgence in tobacco is a nuisance to the state of mind which is necessary to it nor can I recommend it for others."

In July 1957, the U.S. Public Health Service released the following report: "The death rate of men smoking one to two packs of cigarettes a day was 96 percent higher than the death rate of men who had never smoked." At this stage of enlightenment I considered myself lucky indeed that I was still answering to the morning's roll call and I enjoy life and respect it immensely."

Label Putting Is Newest National Political Pastime

It is impossible to pick up your paper or almost any other without finding evidence of the new national craze since the demise of the Elephant Joke, I am referring to the game of "pin the label on the other guy."

Everybody from the late President, the new President, and the Boy Scouts, to the controversial Senator from Arizona, is being called a Red, a Nazi, or a dope of the first order.

The crowd out in left field feels that Castro is just a poor misunderstood boy. They feel we ought to abolish capitalism and also unilaterally disarm, since to do otherwise would be a form of reactionary aggression. They still believe that Kennedy's assassination was a right wing plot. The lunatics in right field, rallying to the occasion with gusto, have their brand of trash on the market. It is clear to them that not only Kennedy but also Eisenhower was a Communist stooge. They feel we should annihilate those who have the temerity to disagree with the line, and favor a return to the precepts of good, old 100% American Social Darwinism. What a pity both these groups don't stop talking and start comparing life in Nazi Germany with life in Soviet Russia. If you just will see Sen. Goldwater as a simple well-seen extreme form of Socialism and Conservatism.

I for one am getting sick of hearing the late Mr. President called a Red, and I am also getting sick and tired of hearing Barry Goldwater being labeled a fascist. The one thing the growing class in the country are being their annoying habit of irresponsible name-calling and suggestion of oversimplification, catchy answers to the complex problems of modern life. Contrary to what they believe, Socialism won't cure the world's ills, dictatorial civil wars, legislative corruption, a return to isolationism, pulling of the U.N. starting a war with Cuba, and reducing the Constitution to some 20th century Articles of Confederation won't either. A very wise man once said that the only way to know what is right is to know what is wrong and more conservatives who knew what was worth keeping. Amen, Russ Blumenthal

Fortunately, some people are endowed with a keen sense of humor and the willpower to put up with seemingly wondrous eccentricities which become so smothered to their health and welfare. In the counter, smokers even literally spill the atmosphere around their annoying, KAFF, KAFF, KAFF, — portraying convulsions and "capers" every time they jump a bird trying to bite some troublesome tail feathers.

Incredible that humans will voluntarily poison themselves with nicotine habit. It's incredible that humans will be the misery of cancer and such diseases. To do so is to waste your life span in a nicotine habit.

Gene Tunney, who became world heavyweight boxing champion, was quoted in an article years thereafter, captioned, "The Time Knockout," which I wish everyone would read; wherein, he said the dangers of nicotine and tobacco for poison and fraud.

Tunney had this to say: "I smoked a pack of cigarettes for 10 years, inhaling four hundred (400) grams of nicotine a week, then in a single dose would kill me as quick as a bullet."

Tunney concluded the article with this statement: "If you smoke much as you can, you will have diseases, and you will die young. I'm a realist, believing that the only way to live is to keep away from us to use it to enable us to live with our daily problems as they are, and give us the courage to stare down the face of death and to face, look it over, and do something about it."

Greys Exist In Life

To the Editor:
In response to Mr. Defoor's letter dated January 17, "Science Is Preferred to Mystic Beliefs," I would like to point out that not everyone in the realm of mystic behavior is to be "proved" by science. Science most absurdly, has its place where do those intangible feelings of mystic behavior come from? Hate, courage, pride, etc. in plan? And why should "faith" be placed in the same category as "science" or "preference" if he wishes not to be closing his eyes to all of life? Life is not only black and white, Sen. Greys, Mr. Defoor. Variety -- not quantity.
That's the theme of the 1965
UF Police Activities Report issued to the Campus Police yesterday.
The police officials point to the report in explaining it.

The report lists 38 categories of crime. Of these, 12 show a decrease in the rate of incidence, while 11 others show an increase from last year's count. Only one category shows the same rate for 1965 and 1963.

But the report shows 14 new categories that were not listed in previous years.

Incident acts were listed for the first time this year. There were 15 reported incidents.

Five cases of possession and use of narcotics were another addition to the annual report.
There was one narcotics theft.

Two cases of kidnapping were reported for the first time.
There were one incident each of carrying concealed weapons and tapping telephones.

Other new listings are: breaking and entering, robbery, stolen tags, and, insane persons, wanted persons, larceny after trust, and driving while intoxicated.

Campus Police Chief Audie I.
Shuler explained that the new categories by saying that they are a result of both increased variety in the types of crimes being committed on campus and of a mild change in police filing.

"Many of these crimes we haven't handled before, but some of them are things that have happened only rarely, that we began to tabulate under a definite heading to see if there was a trend developing," Shuler said.

The decrease in 12 other categories, Shuler credits to the trimester system and increased academic standards of the UF.

"Under the trimester, people don't have as much time to get into trouble as they used to," he added.

Among those listings which show some decrease was attempted suicide. Two persons committed suicide here in 1962 and there were six other unsuccessful attempts.
This year there were only two attempted suicides, neither of which was successful.

The number of stolen autos and motor vehicles also dropped from a total of 134 attempts last year to 81 this year. While 76 of these were not recovered last year, the Police Department reports 27 not recovered this year.
The number of reported disturbances dropped from 49 to 34 this year, while assault and battery saw a decrease from eight to two. Disorderly conduct cases numbered 65 this year as compared to 77 in 1962.

Last property, stolen bicycles, animals calls, hit and run, distroying state property, worthless checks, and reckless driving are also categories that saw a decrease from last year.

The number of missing persons increased from 35 to 49 this year and 36 suspicious persons were reported compared to six in 1962.

Also in the increased category were 12 reported drunks, above last year's reported five.

Reported sex acts jumped to 27 this year from 14 in 1962.
Also increased in 1963 were forgery, larceny (petty and grand), larceny of university property, prowlars, recovered property, and trespassing.

Shuler did not comment on whether the increases could also be credited to the trimester.

"But you could credit the increased variety to the increase in the number of UF personnel," he said.

Davenport, Cooksey $\Delta X$ To Present Recital

Two voice students at FSU, Michele Ann Davenport and John Cooksey will present a joint recital in Opperman Music Hall, Saturday.

Miss Davenport, a mezzo soprano and Cooksey, a tenor, will open the 8:15 p.m. program with a duet, Bach's Domine Deus from the B Minor Mass. The closing number will also be a duet.

Miss Davenport attended Tift College before coming to FSU, where she is a student of Miss Betty Jane Grimm. A winner in both district and state vocal contests, she had a role in the recent production of "Orpheus and Eurydice." Vice-president of Women's Glee Club, she is a member of University Singers and on the Baptist Student Union staff and executive council.

Cooksey has studied voice with Miss Betty Jane Grimm for four years. Before coming to FSU he sang in Garinger High musicals in Charlotte, NC, and lead tenor role in NC State Junior Opera production of "Sunday Excursion." Acting state Baptist Student Union president, he is a member of University Singers, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Music Professional Fraternity and Phi Eta Sigma National Scholastic Honorary.

YPSL Meets

At the last regular meeting of the Young People's Socialist league, the membership voted to have bi-monthly meetings for the duration of the trimester.

"Castro's Cuba" was discussed, and evidence was presented by members to support the contention that Cubans support Castro.

Chapter Chairman D. Flood presented a paper concerning Communist and American Imperialism in Southeast Asia during the meeting.

The YPSL fair wage committee reported a deadlock in uncovering any discrimination in University policy over race. A special delegation was suggested to confer with Dean R.R. Oglesby and report at the next meeting.

Next meeting of YPSL will be Thursday, Jan. 30, in Room 122, History Bldg.

The Seminoles Divers Club has planned a diving trip to the Ich-tucknee River this Saturday. Members should meet in the parking lot of the Tully Gymnasium at 8 a.m. and bring lunches. All members who intend to go should contact John Huntress at 224-5819.

Debate Series

Sigma Gamma Pi began its lecture series last Tuesday night with an intercollegiate debate between Macalester College of St. Paul, Minn. and FSU.

Bob North and Jim Pratt of Macalester College debated Peyton Wynns and Richard Root of FSU on the topic, "Resolved: That the federal government should guarantee an opportunity for higher education to all qualified high school graduates. The debate was informative and a question period followed.

GREEK GIRL

OF THE WEEK

The Delta Chi fraternity presents Miss Dee Weber, sponsored by the Delta Zeta sorority, as Greek Girl of the Week.

Miss Weber is majoring in Interior Design, and she lists among her hobbies swimming, dancing and horseback riding.

Active in campus life, she is presently a cheerleader, and she is also a member of the FSU Village Vamps. The Village Vamps serve as official hostesses to visitors on campus.

Miss Weber is Pep Chairman for the Delta Zeta sorority, and her sorority sisters claim she does an excellent job.

C'MON N' TOTE THAT LOAD

...sings an old song, and that's exactly what these two international students are doing as they help

Over 100 students turned out last Saturday to work on the new International Student House on the corner of College and Copeland streets. This is a project being furthered in the interest of student international friendships, and has provided a place for all students to get to know each other in the best way -- working together for a common goal.

Dr. John Cummer, advisor to foreign students, says that the work has just begun, and that there are plenty of jobs for everyone. "Cottage industry" is the term used by Charles McGee of the Art Department.

He applied this term when he was in Ecuador, helping to raise the living standards of the lower classes. Here in town, McGee has renovated an old house and seems to have adopted this as a favorite hobby.

Last Saturday the helpers cleaned up and painted some of the inside. "We also did a little painting on the outside so it would give a good impression on Sunday," says Cum-mer.

Everyone who stopped by to work on the project had an opportunity for fun and fellowship, and even those who waved a "hello" from the sidewalk helped to promote friendliness with a smile.

There is still much to do and much fun in this project, and any and all who will be invited to come this Saturday and join the many international students in another day of hard work and fellowship.

Maintain High Standards

FSU Reaches Toward Leadership By Establishing Engineer School

By THOMAS E. NELSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The first big step toward world leadership in higher technical education came in July, 1963 with the establishment of the School of Engineering Science at FSU.

For the first time at a tax-supported state university, this school maintained selectively high standards for students. The school was primarily concerned, as its first prospectus stated, "with the preparation of students for graduate study to be followed by careers in engineering research and development."

It is expected that most of its BS graduates will earn the MS degree, and that a majority will earn the Ph.D. degree. For this reason, FSU carefully screens all applicants in engineering and requires that the students earn an average of B or better in their first two years in order to begin the work of the junior year. Similarly, it requires a B average on the work for the BS degree for admission to the graduate school.

The University of Florida already had a good engineering school. The Florida Institute for Continuing University Studies had already, since 1962, been providing off-campus courses which enabled technical workers in the state to obtain engineering degrees.

But the top standards maintained by FSU's School of Engineering Science provided the stimulus which attracted to Florida the first wave of research and development firms for which the state is so well known. This pre-eminent position in the field of higher education was a response which Florida made to the challenge presented in the 1950s and early 1960s to create an environment in which highly sophisticated space exploration-oriented industries could flourish.

The busy spaceport at Cape Kennedy represents a total investment by the federal government of nearly $10 billion.

The federal government is still investing money in new facilities at Cape. Ten years from now, a committee of Congress has been asked to determine if the government's investment will add up to $20 billion. Room for growth on Merritt Island, where most of the space exploration facilities are located, is getting harder to find. The next major new installations are expected to be placed offshore in the Atlantic, possibly on a man-made land.

If one includes employment at Cape and employment in service industries throughout Florida generated by space exploration activities at the Cape, $10 billion of Florida's personal income each year is dependent on the Cape. That is nearly a quarter of Florida's total personal income of $41 billion.

Brevard County, which includes Cape, had 23,000 population 30 years ago in 1930, when the first primitive missile was fired from the sand-dug Cape Canaveral.

Lecture Series

The ROTC Guest Lecture Series begins on Feb. 27, with Major Stephen Turner of Tyndall AFB, Panama City, as speaker. Turner will speak on honor, customs, and ethics in the military police, and will address the FSU for a sing in Westcott Auditorium. Secretary of State Tom Adams will speak at the second lecture and will discuss citizenship and American democracy on Feb. 20. The final lecture of this trimester's program will be on Feb. 27. The speaker, Lt. Orlovsky, is with the Air Force Systems Command stationed at Patrick Air Force Base, an AF missile test center. His topic will be the active duty of an officer in the Systems Command. He will supplement the lecture with films.

Dean Clarence Manion Presents Conservative Movement Next Week

The Young Americans for Freedom and Operation Information is sponsoring the appearance of a "nationally famous champion of the conservative movement" next week on campus.

Dean Clarence Manion will speak on "What Is the Alternative to National Defense?" Monday in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Manion is the former Dean of the College of Law at Notre Dame, and is presently a member of the law firm of Doran, Manion, Boynton and Kamm in South Bend, Ind.

For more than 25 years he was professor of Constitutional Law at the University of Notre Dame and for more than 11 years he was Dean of the College of Law.

In 1953 he was appointed by President Eisenhower as chairman of the congressionally created Commission on Inter - Governmental Relations and served as chairman of that Commission until February of 1954.

Manion has been honored five times by the Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Penn. for his speeches and writings on Americanism.

For the past seven years he has directed the "Manion Forum," a weekly radio program with a network of 240 stations in 42 states, on which he interviews outstanding Americans for public and business life.

He is the author of "The Key to Peace," which was distributed by the American Legion to high schools throughout the country as part of its Americanism program, and of other numerous books and pamphlets.

Gators, Seminoles Tangle Tonight

Florida

By GENE BALLARD

Florida's talented Gators, varsity and freshmen, roar into town tonight for two games against the Florida State Seminoles. Florida's record is currently 7-4. The Baby Gators are unbeaten.

The Gator long suit is height. The starting five has an average height of 6-4 3/5, and that includes little (5-10) Tom Baxley.

The Gators score an average of 84.9 points a game while holding the opposition to 75.7. They have out-rebounded their opponents 572-448. They have hit 46% of their shots from the floor, and 66% of their foul shots.

At the forwards for the Gators will be Richard Peek and Dick Tomlinson.

Peek, the big man at 6-11, plays the baseline and doesn't get too many points. What he does do, however, is get rebounds. He has pulled down 108 for an average of 10.8 a game. Against Miami, he pulled down 22 rebounds to dominate the boards.

Tomlinson, 6-4 1 2, is the second leading scorer for the Gators. He has scored 205 points for a 20.5 average, including 44 points against Tampa to tie a Gator Gym record. He also pulls down rebounds at an average of 9.4 a game.

At center is 6-7 1/2 Mont Highley. Highley contributes 11 points and ten rebounds a game for the Gators. He is the only Senior on the squad.

At guards, the Gators have the best pair in the conference in Tom Baxley and Brooks Henderson.

Baxley, 5-10, led the team in scoring last year and is currently third. He averages 14.1 a game and is the playmaker of the team.

Henderson, 6-2, is the team's leading scorer. He averages 20.7, two tenths of a point more than Tomlinson. He also has pulled down 67 rebounds, and hit on 87% of his foul shots.

Paul Morton, Edd Poore, and Bill Koss will also see action. Morton, 6-4, was the leading scorer for the Gator Fresh two years ago, but flunked out. He has played in every game, and has an average of 4.9.

Poore, 6-3, was an outstanding player on last year's Freshman team. Koss, another giant at 6-7, lends rebounding strength.

Common opponents were Miami, Tampa, Tulsa, Manhattan, Air Force, Auburn, and Georgia. Both teams defeated Miami, Tampa, Auburn and Manhattan by different degrees. Florida lost to Tulsa and Georgia by two points in their own gym, while FSU defeated Tulsa 91-76 and Georgia 64-63. Air Force defeated the Seminoles 78-53 and lost to the Gators, 74-68.

Frosh Cagers Seek Win Over Reptiles

Florida's Baby Gators come to town tomorrow night to do battle with FSU's Baby Seminoles in a preliminary to the varsity match.

The Florida Freshmen are currently undefeated, having defeated Florida State and Jacksonville freshmen, and Chipola Junior College.

The Baby Gators are one of the few teams which can match the FSU Frosh in height. Both teams average 6-3 1/5.

At center the Baby Gators have 6-9 Jeff Ramsey. In his senior year, Ramsey played for Dixie Hollins High and averaged 21 points. He made All State and is a former teammate of Moe Bloodworth.

At forwards, the Gator Frosh have 6-6 Gary McElroy and 6-3 Harry Winkler.

McElroy, a former teammate of FSU's Dick Danford, was also named to the All State team, and averaged 18 points and nineteen rebounds his senior year.

Winkler is an all around athlete. He scored 55 points in one game for Henderson record. He also holds the State record for the dash, and placed second in the shot and discus in the State Track Meet.

At the guards are 6-0 Dave Highley and 6-2 Ed Mahoney. Highley, from Akron, Ohio, is a scrappy player like FSU's Lee Canter. He was named Captain of Inter-City Conference team of Akron, Mahoney is another track star, having run the 100 in 9.9 and holding the State record for the 440 a year ago. He scored at an average of 24.5 in his senior.

Game time is at 5:45.

-F.S.U.-

Florida State's Seminoles, who defeated in six starts at home, will look out for revenge from arch-rival Florida tonight at 7:45 in Tallahassee.

Florida won an earlier game, 1963-64 opener for both teams, 78-55 score in Gainesville.

Center Gary Schull and his teammates have won four of the six home victories by a total of points. Latest wins have been by over Miami and one over both Memphis State and Georgia. The Seminoles evened its record at 7-7 with a 63 win over Georgia's Bulldogs Saturday night.

Florida, picked for a possible title before a loss to Georgia last week, is now 7-4.

The Seminoles have improved steadily since losing seven on road back in December, while Gators dropped games to LSU and Georgia. Coach Bud Kennedy says his team will be better prepared for Florida this time.

"The success we've had lately, given my boys confidence," Kennedy says.

"When we opened the season at Tallahassee, some of their personnel brand new to us, and my team is young."

Sophomore Schull and guard Peacock have been keys to the Seminoles look. Schull leads the team in points and rebounds after games, and took down 15 rebounds Saturday night against Georgia. He season FSU high. Peacock hit 14 points, 14 on far-out jump shots, thrilled the capacity crowd in Tallahassee.

A K Psi Rush

Due to the Florida game tonight, the second rush meeting of Alpha Kappa Psi, has been moved up to 5:30 p.m. in the Starry Conference room of the School of Business.

The oldest Professional Fraternity of Business in the nation will hold its final spring rush Sunday in the fraternity house, 204 W. Park, at 2 p.m.

CORRECTION

The Flambeau was in error yesterday in reporting that Trackster Graham had the highest average Seminoles athletes.

Another track team member, Lankford, had a 4.0 average to the grade honors.

LIVELY, COLORFUL FOLKLORICO

ancers of Mexico will perform tonight and tomorrow night in West-apartum. Applauded enthusiastically by the late President and Kennedy in a White House command performance last summer, they are sure to draw a wide audience throughout the U.S., Canada and Latin America. Tickets for the Saturday night performance are still available free of charge to the public.

Hunt To Probe Youth's Writing

Dr. William W. Hunt, English Professor, will discuss research study the writings of fourth, eighth and high school students. The study will be held Friday, Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the English Department building.

The research project is being conducted under a grant from the United States Office of Education. For the past twelve months an analysis has been going on of writings produced last year by the students in the University School, said Hunt. The study is expected to be completed by June 15.

Club Sponsors SCUBA Course

The FSU Seminoles Divers Club will sponsor an eight week course in SCUBA diving, starting Feb. 2 at 1 p.m. in the gymnasium.
The course will then meet each
Friday at the same place and time.
The orientation meeting for this course will be held Wednesday night at 7:15 p.m. in the Education Lecture Hall.

The purpose of the course is to teach the student a thorough groundwork in the physical and psychological aspects of diving, as well as instruction in the proper use of SCUBA equipment. Emphasis will be placed on safety techniques in both skin and SCUBA diving.

The fee for the course will be $3 for students who own their own SCUBA equipment and $10 for those who do not have equipment provided. All students must have their own mask, fins and snorkel.

Units Plan Trip To Mardi Gras

The Air Force ROTC Angel Flight, Band, Color Guard and Air Police will attend the annual Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

The groups will represent FSU at the traditional festivities which last for several days.
The AFROTC units will leave Sunday Feb. 9, and return the following Wednesday. They will march Monday afternoon in the "Crews of Freedom" parade which commences the Mardi Gras celebration. They will also march in the Tuesday noon parade, "Crews of Rex."
This function is an annual event of Angel Flight.

$200 In Prizes Available For Short Stories, Poems

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

Legend editors, Sue Worley and Hutch Johnson, announced today that this literary anthology will offer $200 in prize money for the best short stories and poems submitted to the magazine.

The new editors hope that this innovation will help promote interest in the Legend and encourage student writers to offer their work.
Johnson and Worley want to give readers as diverse a selection of material as possible. Therefore, they will accept not only short stories and poems, but also essays, sketches, satires and plays.

Any student currently enrolled in the University may submit stories.
This includes graduate students.
Once in the hands of the Legend
Staff, the stories are read and rated by its editorial staff. Worley and Johnson would like to publish as much good material as their $1,000 budget will allow.

Johnson and Worley took over as co-editors of the Legend only last week, because the previous editor, Norman, an editor serves the entire school year. This means that the new editors only have a month and a half to prepare the Legend for publication, rather than a full semester.

While neither had had publication experience they were highly recommended to the Board of Publications by Mike Shaara, creative writing instructor. With his backing, Worley and Johnson agreed to take the position; but only as co-editors. They feel that this will help make up for their lack of experience and ease the work load.

In addition to offering prize money, they also plan to initiate the practice of copy-writing the magazine. This will prevent anyone from taking material from the Legend without permission.

Anyone interested in writing for the Legend should leave his stories (typed and double spaced) at the main office of Longmire, and then to the Legend office, 405 Longmire.

International Week To Climax Events

Longmire will be a center of the final International Week activities with the International Students reception today from 4 to 5 p.m. and the International Fair tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The purpose of the reception is to honor the international students.
Members of the Mexican Ballet Folklorico will be presented with honorary Florida citizenship.
Mr. Gu Govaert of the Florida Development Commission will present
Mrs. John Hernandez with an appreciation card.

The following people will receive awards: Dr. John Cummer, advisor of the FSU international students;
Dean R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Students; Mr. Wendell Jarrard, director of the Florida Development Commission; Mr. Harper Field, president of the Tallahassee Council for International Students; Miss Rosemary Bukowitz, president of the FSU International Club.

Mrs. Harper Field, Mrs. John Aus-ley, Mrs. Paul Stokes, Mrs. Ed
Kumpe will pour.

The International Fair will be made up of exhibits from nearly every one of the thirty-seven international groups on campus.

The exhibits will consist of slides, photographs and information on the students' home country. Student representatives from the countries will also be there to talk with visitors.

Student Senate Passes Organization Proposal

Student Senate passed a bill Wednesday defining the criteria for University approval of student organizations.

The organization applying must have eight members, all of whom are FSU students and at least one advisor from the faculty.

Panhellenic Office Names New Pledges

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Greek Editor

FSU's Panhellenic office announced today that 63 coeds were pledged in ceremonies held yesterday by the 11 sororities which participated in formal ush this trimester.

The sororities and their new pledges are as follows:
Alpha Chi Omega—Suzanne Branson, Sharon Cunningham, Joan Kux, Diane McDonald, and Calire Rushton.

Alpha Delta Pi—Heidi Brose, Frances Daniel, Ann Newkerk, Elizabeth Platt, and Barbie Williams.
Alpha Omicron Pi—Joyce Hix,
Maria Lazzara, Marilyn Presnell, Martha Shears, Kandi Talbot, and Ann Hero.

Delta Gamma—Pricilla Black, Ann
Fortner, JoAnn Prandoni and Lena Koch.
Delta Zeta—Sharon Busby, Myra

Elkins, Diane Gorgins, Joann Kozel, Bobby Sias, Janet Squillante and Sherry Winn.

Gamma Phi Beta—Toni Ashmore,
Jane Fenn, Cheryl Nodurt, Alice
Osborn, Nancy Pasawicz, Claudia
Williams and Nancy Wright.

Kappa Kappa Gamma—Mary Kopp,
Norma Tanner, and Judy Weaver.
Phi Mu—Linda Jo Boozie, Beverly
Brown, Donna Galiquiere, Marcia
Haskins, Jane Hunt, June Lively,
Maralou Morton, Marilyn Pinder,
Linda Richardson, Mildred Winchester, Virginia Young and Beverly Joseph.

Phi Beta Phi—Ann Crapps, Elaine
Goins, Barbara Gramigna, Sandra
Hamilton and Barbara Van DeMark.
Sigma Kappa—Randy Griggs, Cynthia Kennedy, Mary Larko, Karen O'Brien and Suzanne Smith.

Sigma Sigma Sigma—Bess Meette,
Zeta Tau Alpha—Linda Geldert, Donna Sue Gordon and Jeanne Pentecost.

The constitution submitted for approval must clearly define the intent and purposes for the existence of the organization, in addition to the government and policy structure of the organization. Membership must be restricted to FSU students.

Organizations local to FSU will be considered on the basis of its constitution. In a local sense, whereas nationally chartered groups will be first considered on the basis of the local organization, and then upon its national constitution and by-laws, if any.

Constitution and/or by-laws will be returned for revision if the committees find any significant inconsistencies. The committee will present the organization to the senate with recommendation for non-approval if, in the opinion of a majority of the committee, the proposed organization is in violation of the interests of the state, the university or the welfare of the student body.

School Of Education Necessary?

God Loses

God lost round one Wednesday night and it looks as if the fight is over, at least for the time being.

We are speaking, of course, of a local church's decision to limit the number of God's people to a chosen few. With their decision not to let Negroes attend their church, they have in fact denied the very belief they so piously claim to uphold.

We heard a story the other night that quite aptly sums up the situation.

It seems that an old Negro moved into a small Southern community and, being religious, decided to join the local church of his denomination. The first Sunday he walked up to the door to be greeted by the pastor.

"What are you doing here?" questioned the church dignitary.

"Why, I thought I kind of would like to join this here church," replied our friend.

"Oh, no," replied the pastor, "You haven't given the matter enough thought. Go home and think about it for a week."

Our friend went home and thought about it for a while and came back to the church the next Sunday. There waiting for him was the same pastor.

"I see you are back again," said the pastor, "You haven't given the matter enough thought. Go home and meditate for another week."

Our friend was becoming a little discouraged but he again went home and meditated for another seven days and returned once again the next Sunday. Again the pastor was standing in the doorway blocking his path.

"What, you back again? Look, go home and pray to God for guidance before you make any rash moves."

The fourth Sunday found our friend slowly ambling up to the church door once again. The pastor looked at him and threw his hands in the air.

"Are you back again? Do you STILL want to join our church?"

Our friend slowly shook his head.

"No, no sir, I don't. I took your advice and went on home and prayed to God. I says, 'God, should I join that there church?' And God looked down and he says, 'Joe, that church has been here for more'n 12 years now and they haven't let ME in yet.'"

Any questions?

Is the school of education providing a useful function on the college campus today? This is a question of which I have given a lot of thought and consideration. Not long ago California abolished the education requirements for most if not all state teachers.

There have been numerous prominent men who have seriously questioned the value of a major in education rather than a major in the field to be taught.

I feel that if education courses do have a value, it is in elementary education.

Perhaps here it is more important to know how to teach rather than what to teach. Of course senior colleges don't require education courses, and so this leaves two areas of contention: high school and junior colleges.

The very minimum education course work required for teacher certification in Florida secondary schools is 20 semester hours. The junior college teacher can get by with a little less than this. Taking approximately one-third of your upper-class work in education courses should certainly be open to question.

Can a person obtain a really adequate background in forty semester-hours? The many fields that a secondary school teacher may be required to teach in necessitate a really broad background. In addition to the broad background, a knowledge in depth of a major should be a necessity. If a person chooses not to be a major in education, it is very likely that a language requirement will also have to be met. Many schools are making a foreign language a university-wide requirement, what would happen if this were required in the school of education?

A university has so many really valuable courses to offer, and these must be sacrificed on the altar of the education to only one student who has given even limited endorsement to the school of education. One mature graduate student said that he chose to take another trimester rather than take just one more education course.

A high school teacher told me that he felt that only one education course was of any benefit to him, the rights and self-determination of peoples; 3, to cooperate in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all; and 4, to be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining the common goals.

The structure of the United Nations consists of six separate and distinct departments, not merely a single General Assembly. "In which measure" he said, "is the United Nations being obstructed by the Communist Bloc."

A. The General Assembly: only body in which all members are represented; elects by itself or with the Security Council; controls the budget and the contributions of the member nations.

B. Security Council: eleven members (nations); function: the primary responsibility for maintaining international peace and security.

C. The Economic and Social Council: eighteen members; generally responsible for promoting a high standard of living with respect to international economic, social, and related problems.

D. The Trusteeship Council: member states administering trust territories; carries out functions of the United Nations with regard to territories.

E. The International Court of Justice: principle judicial organ of the United Nations; settles international jurisdiction comprises all cases involving nations which are referred to it.

F. The Secretariat: a Secretariat General and such staff as the General Assembly may require; the Secretary General is chief administrative officer of the U.N. and is appointed for five years by the General Assembly.

A professor said that he felt education courses were of little use for secondary and higher education. Students' research purposes have also expressed disapproval of the requirements of schools of education. This could be true.

Since nothing is black and white, I am not saying that education courses are all undesirable. I do agree that for a school of education to have a curriculum of perhaps one to three well-designed education courses for prospective teachers might be in line for several schools, but why is there a need for junior college teachers to have education courses?

Senior colleges don't require education courses for teachers, and they certainly include the same first two years.

Once an organization has been established it tends to perpetuate itself. I'm sure that the school of education can offer a very valid reason for their existence, but more people are beginning to question the value of their existence. They should certainly be critically examined and evaluated.

UN Is Result Of Years Of Efforts

Concerning the United Nations, rather than presenting the stale emotionalism of the self-appointed super-patriot, here I should like to pose realistic considerations supporting the existence of the United Nations.

Initially, let us consider the background of the United Nations. This organization or an organization of similar nature was foreshadowed at both the Moscow Conference (U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, United States, and China) and at the Tehran Conference (United States, U.S.S.R., and the United Kingdom).

In these two conferences international representatives discussed "the maintenance of international peace and security." Also here we must consider the Dumbarton Oaks Conferences, at which the major powers of the world were asked to present their ideas of a possible future international organization. From these discussions we see a blueprint emerging which provided the groundwork for the drafting and unanimous acceptance of the United Nations Charter.

The purposes of the United Nations as set forth in its charter are as follows:

1. to maintain international peace and security;
2. to develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the equal rights and self-determination of peoples;

3, to cooperate in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all; and

4, to be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining the common goals.

The structure of the United Nations consists of six separate and distinct departments, not merely a single General Assembly. "In which measure" he said, "is the United Nations being obstructed by the Communist Bloc."

A. The General Assembly: only body in which all members are represented; elects by itself or with the Security Council; controls the budget and the contributions of the member nations.

B. Security Council: eleven members (nations); function: the primary responsibility for maintaining international peace and security.

C. The Economic and Social Council: eighteen members; generally responsible for promoting a high standard of living with respect to international economic, social, and related problems.

D. The Trusteeship Council: member states administering trust territories; carries out functions of the United Nations with regard to territories.

E. The International Court of Justice: principle judicial organ of the United Nations; settles international jurisdiction comprises all cases involving nations which are referred to it.

F. The Secretariat: a Secretariat General and such staff as the General Assembly may require; the Secretary General is chief administrative officer of the U.N. and is appointed for five years by the General Assembly.

FSU Needs Official Time

To the Editor:
For some time now many students on this campus have been concerned with what may seem to be a trivial problem, but the solution of which could be so simple, is the discrepancy in the clocks on this campus.

In Westcott, the time may be anywhere from five to ten minutes variation with that in the Meteorology Building. Even in Reynolds Hall the first floor clock may say 4:00 whereas the second floor clock may say 4:05 and the third floor clock may say 3:55.

Does this mean that girls that show up on the second floor have an extra 10 minutes more at night before they have to be in?

Does this mean that Mary Ann and one floor can come to class 10 minutes later than Jane on third floor? As far as I know, there is no official clock on the entire campus that can be relied upon. I suggest that there be one central clock on campus with girls given the time of the F.S.U. sign, so that there will be no argument over who is late and who is early.

I'm sure most students would be glad to see their watches in accordance with one if they knew which one.

FSU-SEC 'Agreement' Unfair

To the Students of FSU:

Saturday night, Jan. 25th., the FSU and U of F swim teams meet once more in Montgomery pool. In the past, large crowds have gathered to cheer the Seminoles. Saturday I hope, will be no exception.

I am a member of the FSU team, and I am proud to be a member of the team and its generosity of quite a few people and because I gave up a promising future as a swimmer at a Southeastern Conference school to come here and swim for the best coach in the south. I have served my required one year as an intelligence transfer student and am now ready to compete. However, Saturday night I will once again be a spectator.

There is an "agreement" between FSU and the SEC schools that a transfer athlete from an SEC school to FSU can be prohibited from competing against an SEC team. He can be prohibited if the opposing coach objects. Here at FSU transfer athletes from schools all over the nation may have and are currently competing with no objections from any SEC school. The University of Florida, as could be expected, has the right to refuse to allow such an objection.

They must be terribly worried about winning this year even though have one All-American on their team. Students, I appeal to you to come Saturday night with me to watch and cheer with the Gators. Let's get shown that it takes more than an underhanded trick and a few condescending swimmers to beat the Seminoles.

Ruth Doyle Called 'Industrious' Senator

CHRISTY NOEL
Flambeau Staff Writer

One of the Senate's most industrious and respected members, according to fellow senators is Ruth Doyle, junior Class Senator, who as Freshman year Ruth worked on the Communications Committee, the Circus Committee, and the Student Government Banquet Committee. When elected Precinct Senator from Cawthon Hall in her Sophomore year, she assisted on the Organization and Finance Committee in both regular and Women's Senate, the Trimester Committee, and the Film Promotion Committee. She is now Vice Chairman of the Labor Student Services Committee, Secretary of the Class Officers Program Committee, and Chairman of the Appointments Committee in Women's Senate.

This year she has worked on bills to amend Knowledge for College and she introduced a resolution pertaining to three graduations per year. She worked on the Inter-Class Council Bill. This bill changed the chairman of class officers of each undergraduate class from five to three, and they are President, Vice President, and Secretary-Social Chairman. The bill was passed by Senate yesterday. The officers of all the classes shall form a council and work together as one body. The definitely is in favor of this because she says it will enable the students to get the best services from their class officers.

When asked if she thought Student Senate is an effective organ at FSU, she said, "Definitely. It represents the students and passes legislative laws pertaining to the welfare of the Student Body. It acts in the students' behalf."

She added, "The students are always welcome at Student Senate meetings and they can also read about Student Government activities in the "Flambeau." Students should feel free to question any student government officer about his activities."

Even though Ruth spends much time with Senate, she still finds time for other activities. Ruth is Student Party recording secretary, and the Junior Counselor, and serves on the University Union Board. Her biggest interest is her major, elementary education. She plans to teach in Florida for awhile and then go overseas to teach armed forces' children.

on the recommendation of the Security Council.

We may gauge the United Nations' system as the result of men's efforts over the past 100 years to create a method of international cooperation. That is, the result of man's efforts to live in conjunction with, rather than in opposition to, his fellow man.

I think it worthy of note that not since the formulation of the United Nations has the U.S.S.R. or one of its satellite countries been successful in getting a single measure passed by the U.N. General Assembly. However, the U.S.S.R. has exercised its veto power more than 100 times. Of further note, the United States has yet to veto a measure before the General Assembly. These are curious factors of consideration for an organization allegedly under the thumb of the Communist countries, and drafted under the auspices of an "alleged" Communist U.S. delegate, Alger Hiss.

Greek Weekend Highlighted By Rush Activities

BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Greek Editor

Highlighting this week for the FSU Greeks is this weekend jammed to the hilt with rush functions and rush functions.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA — Wednesday night the Alpha Chi's enjoyed a dessert with the SAE's.

ALPHA DELTA PI — New chairman appointed by president, John Drake are: Myra Hancock, standards; Pam Mozur, activities; Jane Wilson, philanthropy; Carol Boyer, song; Sharon Worsman, fine arts; Len George, guest; Nancy Daniels, intramurals; Linda Sue Banes, skits. Best pledge for this week is Suzanne Bradford.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA — The Alpha Gam's had Dean Oglesby as their guest for dinner Wednesday. A dinner honoring the seniors was held Sunday. A new Alpha Gam here is Cherry Payne, who transferred from Mercer.

An exchange dinner with the SAE's is scheduled for Wednesday.

ALPHA MICRON PI — The AOPI's recently won first place in the intersorority bowling league.

ALPHA PHI — Newly elected officers are: Nancy Fair, social chairman; Mary Lou Soler, marshal; and Flo Floyd, parliamentarian. Newly appointed officers are: Peggy Pasto, fire marshal; Mary Randall, assistant pledge trainer; Brenda Barnhouse, philanthropies; and Carol Talbot, historian.

The Alpha Phi's enjoyed a dessert with the PIKA's Wednesday, and are looking forward to their weekend held tomorrow. A picnic is planned at Natural Bridge tomorrow afternoon, followed that evening by an Underwater Shipwreck party, with music provided by the Gents.

ALPHA XI DELTA — As a part of their cultural program the Alpha Xi's had a dinner with their class representative, over to the house for dinner and a short speech Tuesday.

Participating in International Student Week, the Alpha Xi's had two international students as dinner guests yesterday.

A dessert party with the PI Kapp's was enjoyed by all Wednesday night. DELTA CHI — New Delta Chi brothers are Tom Brinkley, Pat Keeter, Richard Darnylock, Ed Dugger, Mike Boscoe, Frank Palms, Larry Glustrip, and Penny Shallalhammer.

The house will be open for rushees tonight, with a rush afternoon. Tomorrow night there will be a combo party at the house.

DELTA GAMMA — The DG class is having a fried chicken dinner at the house Saturday. Dinner will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. at one dollar per person, and the DG pledges ask to prepare to be pampered. Shirley Valdez was elected second vice president and Lucy Spoto was elected social chairman.

Journalist Turns Geologist

"Exclusive of my own interests, this is probably the best geologic department south of Washington, D.C., and east of the Mississippi River," commented Dr. William H. Tanner about FSU's geology department. He said it was probably one of the top ten or twelve in the nation.

Tanner came to FSU in September of 1954, when the geology department was just beginning to expand. He was the fourth teacher in the department which had just moved into a new building. He is now an associate professor in the school of geology.

Recently, he was elected to FSU's Board of Publications, bringing to the BOP much experience in journalism. He has almost as much experience in journalism as he does in geology, having a double major in geology and journalism. He combined the two for his B.A. degree at Baylor and his M.A. degree at Texas Tech.

"In college I was interested in the reporting end of fuel and mineral industries," said Tanner in explanation of this unusual combination.

After getting his M.A., he worked as a reporter for several newspapers, including what is now the Amarillo "Globe-Times" in Amarillo, Texas. When he joined "Globe-Times" he worked not only as a reporter, but at different times as oil editor, sports editor, news editor, and editor.

He worked as a newspaperman for about seven years, and then decided there "was more to be done in geology." His writing did not stop, however, because he has written two technical books and 95 articles.

Upon graduation from Oklahoma, he taught there for one year after which he worked for the Shell Oil Company, while trying to decide where he wanted to teach. He decided upon FSU and is now in his tenth year here.

Greeks Plan Tandem Race

"Gay 90" costumes will be worn by contestants in a tandem bike race to be sponsored by the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity and the Chi Omega sorority on Feb. 22. The parking lot in front of the men's gym at 2 p.m.

A sorority girl and a fraternity boy will share a tandem bike. The race will follow an obstacle course with four obstacles—three difficult ones and one humorous one, Sprinkler. The winners will be crowned as the champions. The winners will be crowned according to the shortest length of time it takes to complete the course. The proceeds from the race will be given to Campus Chest and trophies will be presented to the fraternity and the sorority winners. A prize will also be awarded for the best costume.

The deadline for applications is Jan. 29. A five dollar entry fee is required.

Announcements

Art critics or amateur "experts" are offered a new opportunity for viewing art through the exhibit room featured in the FSU Student Depository.

The Student Bank in Longmire has originals by several Art Dept. graduates on display.

Registration for rushees who plan on attending fraternity rush functions this weekend are reminded by IFC that they should register before attending these functions.

Interested students may register at the IFC office, room 16 Longmire, any weekend from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is a registration fee of one dollar.

Dr. John Cummer, International Students Advisor, announced today that Peace Corps make-up exams will be given next Monday at 4 p.m. in 310 Westcott.

This test is for those people who missed the Peace Corps tests last Wednesday. It will also be given for students who did not sign up for the tests given by Corps members.

The Pep Rally That Wasn't

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

Wednesday night, when this editorial was written, there was a "Pep Rally" at Opperman Theatre. However, this little get-together outside the Flambeau window was neither a rally nor was any pep exhibited.

A hardy little group of 75 students did their best to make up for the other 10,925 vacuums at this "University" who were so wrapped up in their own problems that they failed to grace the basketball team with their presence.

These 10,925 who were selfish with their school spirit, whether it was because they thought the "rally" trivial, or not as important as a football pep rally or didn't care either way, created a headache for the man who is responsible for the welfare of the basketball players, who could only stand by and shake their heads, questioning their decision to come to FSU.

Head Basketball Coach J. K. Kennedy was put in a spot unlike that faced by any coach that has ever been at Florida State. He had to apologize to his boys for the pitiful turnout, without expressing the disappointment and shame which he himself felt. That hardy little group that was present can verify that he did an admirable job of it.

As Coach Kennedy spoke, more than one listener wished he had a tape recorder to preserve on tape the words which the coach spoke so courageously. More than one listener wished he could hear this speech again whenever hethought of forgetting good manners and exhibiting the apathy which was so often allowed to peek through.

Coach Kennedy, who has been at Florida State for 17 years and has been coaching basketball since 1920, was "humiliated" by having to stand as the head coach of a team that was about to meet its fiercest arch-rival the next night and address a get-together of students that was 2,500 persons short of the turnout he and his players had expected and hoped for.

No doubt, last night at the game there was a gym-full of rabid students booing the Gators and giving the Tribe team its most enthusiastic support of the year. But, as Coach Kennedy asked, where were they when their support and cheers were needed most? Where was Nero when Rome burned?

These freshman and varsity players who stood by listening while their coach made a courageous attempt to hide his humiliation with optimism, have every reason in the world to be proud of him. The gentleman that he is, he thanked the handful that did show up for being loyal supporters and assured them that his players would give their all against Florida.

Although the results of the game remain to be seen, I am sure that these players did indeed give their all, but I am very sorry that too few cared enough to show up when they were needed.

Gators Topple Tribe

and
JEFF HENDERSON
Flambeau Sports Writers

Florida's Tom Baxley hit a 20 foot jump shot with three seconds left in the game, to squeeze out a 52-50 win over the Seminoles, before a capacity crowd in Tully Gym.

The Seminoles slowed down the Florida Gators highly productive offense which was averaging 84.9 points a game.

It was evident in the opening minutes of the game that the Seminoles would attempt to slow down Florida's scoring attack, while the Gators ran and played their usual run and shoot type offense.

Florida State led almost all of the first half until Florida's Mont Highly canned a basket with 27 seconds remaining to put the Gators ahead 33-32 at intermission.

Both clubs came out of the dressing rooms using their first half strategy, until the Gator's highly regarded guard, Brooks Henderson left the game with a cut eye. Then Coach Norm Sloan had his Gators slowed down the pace of the game to almost a stand-still. Florida State overcame a seven-point deficit, led by forward Cal Hoge to knot the score at 50 all with 25 seconds left in the game. Baxley then hit his jump shot to win the game.

Cal Hoge and Bobby Lovell shared top Seminoles scoring honors with 12 points each. The two teams were evenly matched in statistics, although Florida held a 34-27 edge in rebounds.

Despite having a cold spell in shooting for some of the second half the Seminoles hit a .488 clip while the Gators hit for an even .500. Top men for the Gators were the sophomore Richard Peek and Tom Baxley. Peek hit for 15 points from up close, and Baxley got 14.

The Baby Seminoles won a double overtime thriller over the undefeated Baby Gators in the preliminary. Ron Mulmen, Bill Glenn, Dick Danforth, and Ken Doyle all were in double figures. Doyle had 25, Mulmen 22, Glenn 10, and Danforth 10.

Orlando Site Picked For New University

CAROLYN CHRISTENSEN
Flambeau Staff Writer

A tract of land 12 miles northeast of Orlando was chosen as the new university site by the State Board of Control at a special meeting in Orlando, Friday.

The 1,200-acre site was offered by Orange County and finally met the state's unanimous approval after months of searching.

Frank Adamucci, owner of nearly 100 acres in the area, has promised to give the county half of whatever part of his tract is expected to be used.

The new university will be constructed on a 1.5-mile square tract of wooded land, with several small lakes. Adamucci has also offered to give 40 acres on Lake Mary Jane for a recreation area.

The land borders on the county line between Seminole and Orange Counties, which will partially satisfy the spirited competition between them to produce an acceptable site.

The site must now meet the approval of the Board of Education. BOC members felt that the Adamucci site had the greatest advantage in its closeness to the populated impact areas that the new university will serve.

The figure needed to buy the land was set at $650,000 by Orange County Attorney James C. Robinson. With donations and purchases, the county will give the state 1,227 acres.

Exhibit Brings Many

Arabic name tags, Indian dances, Colombian silver work were all seen at the International Fair in Longmire auditorium Saturday.

These were three of the many exhibits at the fair which was part of the International Students Week celebration proclaimed by President Gordon Blackwell, The fair featured displays from the countries of the international students on campus.

Displays consisted of handicrafts, clothes and slides from the various countries. Representatives from these countries were present in native dress to answer questions about their countries.

Book Contest Nears Close

Seniors at FSU have less than a week left in which to submit entries to the Book Collection Award contest from first place winner will compete nationally for the Amy Lowman $1,000 award.

Local prizes are $100 cash and $50 in books for first place; $50 cash and $25 in books for second place; and $12.50 cash and $12.50 in books for third place.

Director of the FSU Library, N. Orwin Rush said that book collections will be entered in a national contest, the Amy Lowman, sponsored by Book-of-the-Month Club, the Saturday Review, and The Women's National Book Association.

Seniors entering the competition must submit an annotated list of at least a minimum of 35 books now in their personal libraries. Closing date is Saturday. Applications may be obtained at the FSU Library and the following sponsoring bookstores—University Bookstore, Bill's and Dukey's Seminole. Co-sponsoring the contest is the Friends of the Stroz Library.

Conner Addresses Banquet For International Week

BOB CORNET AND BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writers

"I feel that the Ugly American does not exist in fact," said Doyle Conner, Commissioner of Agriculture speaking at the first FSU International Students Banquet, Friday night in the Suwannee Room.

Conner was the principle speaker at the banquet which marked the climax of International Student Week.

Approximately 300 guests from over 28 countries heard Conner speak on the importance of personal contact for international relations. Conner drew from his experiences in Russia last summer during his speech.

LACK OF COMMUNICATIONS
Conner added that one of the greatest mistakes in the school system today is the lack of comprehensive language studies. "There is more understanding between peoples when they understand each other's language."

"Misunderstanding leads to distrust. Distrust leads to international conflicts." He said that this is especially true in this time of nuclear weapons.

Conner said that this was made apparent to him in his travels in Europe. "Relations between individuals becomes much cooler when an interpreter is needed to communicate."

Conner said that he feels that only a close association of students and professional people can eliminate these complications. He considers the student exchange program our best chance for world peace.

He cited as recent examples of this "grass root diplomacy" the 7,000 peace corps members and 18,000 professional workers on foreign assignments.

UNDERSTANDING NEEDED

Conner further commended the effort for international understanding on the FSU campus. He said that he is proud that these international students have chosen one of the outstanding universities in Florida. He hopes that the students will become mutual good will ambassadors.

"This," he further said, "will add up to permanent peace and goodwill."

Preceding Conner's speech, Dr. John Champton welcomed the international students to FSU. He spoke on behalf of Dr. Gordon Blackwell, president of FSU, who was unable to attend.

Mr. Roger Stake, assistant director of the Florida Development Commission, also addressed the banquet. Stake said that it was particularly apt that the students had chosen Florida as their place of study since Florida has existed under five flags, making it one of the most international states.

He further said that Florida is living proof that men, women, and children of all nationalities can live, work, and play in an atmosphere of close harmony.

Miss Sharon Worsham, undersecretary of international student affairs, introduced special guests, including Senora Amalia Hernandez and Kirt Newman of the Mexican Ballet Company.

The banquet was sponsored jointly by student government and the Tallahassee Council for International Friends.

Man As Political Unit Viewed By Paul Piccard

By KATHLEEN ACKENHUSEN
Flambeau Staff Writer

"No man is an island unto himself," was the topic of Dr. Paul Piccard's discussion concerning man as a political unit Wednesday night.

Individuality is one of the basic beliefs in our democracy, but it must not interfere with society as a whole. "I would like to keep the individual's role in a perspective, as a member of a group," stated Piccard. Even the great Thoreau, who spent his life at Walden Pond, returned to civilization near the end of his life.

Politics signifies to many people a dirty business, run by dirty people. It is not politics that has deserved this condemnation, but the few politicians who have carried on their business in such a fashion as to merit such a description. Politics is basically neutral, affected only by those who run it. It is functioning to influence public policy. It can only serve beneficially if those who work in it use it to that purpose. A government can only be determined "dirty" if the people who control it desire that way.

Not only the official legislators, governors, and presidents, make government policy, but the people of the land — the voters. But many Americans today do not vote, and yet continue to express their disapproval of the situation of the government.

"A large percentage of Americans are what Pericles or Thucydides would call 'useless' (in their political participation)," said Piccard. Apathy cannot be tolerated if our government is to function as it was planned to function.

Americans today are surrounded by evidences that man is a member of a society in many ways. On the college scene, it is very evident that great numbers of people desire to be associated with others.

The American Pledge of Allegiance states "with liberty and justice for all" as individuals, but also as "one nation indivisible." It does not provide for interposition or nullification. Piccard emphasized that man must keep a proper perspective of his rights — rights as individual, but also as a member of society.

Sans Telephone

When barbed wire was installed around the Student Union site during the summer, many students were indignant. The barbed wire seemed to suggest that some students might not be as sweet and law abiding as they would have everyone think.

Yet just a few days ago the public telephone in the basement of Longmire building was stolen, it was immediately replaced with the same generous spirit that put it there originally and was promptly stolen again. Now there is no phone. If the powers that be are good enough to provide another phone perhaps it should be equipped with a barbed wire cage, burglar alarm and armed guard.

Likely there won't be another phone. Students must make a choice between unstealable phones, no phones or students who don't steal.

WC

Remember?

Dr. John Cummer, international student advisor, spoke some words Friday night at the International Student Banquet that it would do us all well to remember. In his introductory remarks before guest speaker Doyle Conner made his keynote address, Cummer warned that any kind of "special week" such as the International Student Week could easily lead to a special emphasis for seven days and total forgetfulness the other 358.

How true this is. How often we manage to remember someone we love only on their special day. How often we think to be thoughtful only when it is convenient. A popular philosophy has it that if one does not think of something or someone, that object or that person ceases to exist. How often have we been guilty of not thinking.

Take the time to make friends with that international student or other stranger to your way of life. Remember those who are special to you not only on St. Valentine's Day because you have to but the day after St. Valentine's Day because you want to.

Going a little out of one's way takes so little time and pays such high dividends. We can think of no better investment.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Which Is Most Important Freedom?

To the Editor:

Most of the thinking opponents of the picketing of the campus-side restaurants say that in the free enterprise system the owner of a business has the right to refuse service to anyone and that people who picket, therefore, must not believe in the free enterprise system.

But there are many kinds of freedom. There are the basic human freedoms that equal men in a society enjoy. And there is the freedom for some men to say that others are not as good as they are and should be isolated from the main-stream of society.

Which is the more important freedom? I believe that freedom which can only exist at the expense of the freedom of others does not deserve to exist. Free enterprise is fine but not when it is used as a destructive, demoralizing weapon.

The question of whether Negroes are equal to whites is ridiculous. But, sadly, some people still hold it to be a question. I admit that they are different from us—very different. But why? Could it be that we have forced the Negro to be different?

We pay them less money for equal work. We give them inferior educations. And even when they are educated, we rob them of opportunities to use it. We drive them from our society like erring children who are not exactly sure of what they have done wrong. In short, we rob them of hope. If the Negro is ignorant—then if he were educated of what use would it be to him when so many doors of opportunity are closed to him? The Negro lives in a slum—where is he to earn the money to buy a decent home? If the Negro lives in a slum, where is he to have a decent education? Where is his hope?

From most of the Negroes who know, I have heard one statement many times: "We want to live in the world for our children." This, I think, is the only real hope of many of them have. But even this becomes only a glimmer and can be away when the Negro knows of some door for days, months, years and only hears one answer: "No."

But I have faith in the Negro. I believe that he will continue to knock on locked doors for as long as he is able. I, and many of my friends, will knock on those doors with him as they open.

The campus-side restaurants only have three doors—and small ones that. But they are locked to the Negro and must be opened.

The next time you walk into a segregated business, take a look at the line of people waiting outside the front of it. Maybe they will realize there and maybe they won't. But remember, you are supporting a freedom which exists at the expense of the freedom of others.

What's In A Name?

To the Editor:

Now that "Flambeau" readers have been informed that the word "can" can "left," would somebody please define the word for me? Education communication depends on words which clearly define the message. Is anyone a "leftist" who isn't sympathetic with self-defeating Birch Society?

Individual Discrimination OK, Racial Discrimination Wrong

To the Editor:

Harred, as Everett A. Steadman, Jr., rightly said, is an ugly word. Unfortunately, people do hate. But it is wise to be careful whom one accuses of hatred.

I was with a large group of conservatives when we learned of the President's death. To a man, they leaped to the conclusion that he had been killed by a right-winger. They realize what group in America does much of the hating.

Was it the liberals that refused to fly the flag at half-staff after the assassination? Is it the liberals who have branded recent Presidents as communists or their dupes? What group is it, Mr. Steadman, that has hatred in their hearts?

Hate is an ugly word on paper. On a face it is incomparably worse. Your sign reads, "I believe in equality, what do you believe in?" and they look at you with hatred. Not many, though, thank God.

I believe a business man should have the right to refuse service to any individual. I do not believe he should have the right to extend to and refuse service to an entire race of people.

Anyone who suggests that the Negro does not want integration either does not read or is being totally unrealistic. It also seems unlikely that any students stay away from the Mecca for fear of their personal safety.

We don't pledge allegiance to the flag every morning in college. Perhaps we should. Perhaps if we did more people would work towards creating a land, "... with liberty and justice for all."

THE INNER MAN

College is fun and frolic and fulfillment—except for one melancholy omission: we don't get to enjoy Mom's home cooking. (In my own undergraduate days, curiously enough, I did not under this deprivation; my mother, a noted cross-country runner, was never home long enough to cook a meal until her legs gave out last Arbor Day.)

But most of us arrive at college with fond gastronomic memories of Mom's nourishing delicacies, and we are inclined now and then to have great racking sighs as we contemplate the steam tables in the campus cafeteria. Take, for an extreme example, the case of Finster Sigatoo.

Finster, a freshman at one of our great Eastern universities (Oregon State) came to college acclimated to home cooking of a kind and quantity enjoyed by very few. Until entering college, Finster had lived all his life in Europe, where his father was an eminent fugitive from justice. Finster's mother, a natural born cook, was mistress of the haute cuisine of a dozen countries, and Finster grew up living and eating in the Continental manner.

He rose each morning at ten and breakfasted lightly on figs, hot chocolate, and brioche. (It is interesting to note, incidentally, that brioche was named after its inventor, perhaps the greatest of all French bakers, Jean-Claude Brioche (1034-1921). M. Brioche, as we all know, also invented croissants, French toast, and in a curious department the electric razor. Other immortal names in the history of breadstuffs are the German, Otto Pumpernickel (1509-1818), who invented pumpernickel, and the American, William Cullen Raisin (1096-1812) and Walter Hye (1031-1032) who collaborated on the invention of raisin, and, of course, Hans Christian Andersen (1803-1875), who invented Danish pastry.)

But I digress. Finster, I say, breakfasted lightly at ten a.m. At eleven a.m. his Mom brought him his elevenses. At twelve she brought him his twelves. At 1:30 she served his lunch: first a clear broth; then a fish course (pongy and bass); then an omelette; then the main course—either a saddle-of-lamb, an eye of salmon, or a glass of chicken fat; then a salad of searole; and finally a lemon soufflé.

At three p.m. Finster loved his tea, at five p.m. high tea, and at ten p.m. dinner—first a bowl of petite marmite (she trapped the marmites herself); then a fish course (wounded trout); then an omelette of turtle egg; then the main course—either duck with orange or a lobster of fatness; then a salad of onion chive, and finally a caramel moussé.

And then Finster went off to college, which reminds me of Marlboro Cigarettes. (Actually it doesn't remind me of Marlboro Cigarettes at all, but the makers of Marlboro pay me to write this column and they are inclined to get surly if I fail to mention their product. Mind you, I don't object to mentioning their product—no sir, not one bit. Marlboro's flavor is flavorful, the filter filters, the soft pack is soft, the Flip-Top box flips, and the tattoo is optional. Marlboros are available wherever cigarettes are sold in all fifty states of the Union. Next time you're in the U.S.A., try a pack.)

But I digress. We were speaking of Finster Sigatoo who went from Continental dining to dormitory feeding. So, when you feel sorry for yourself, think of Finster, for it always lifts the heart to know somebody is worse off than you are.

© 1964 Max Stralman

We, the makers of Marlboro, can't say whether European food beats ours, but this we believe: American cigarettes beat the whole world, and this we further believe: among America's cigarettes, Marlboros are the finest.

Wade Returns To Teaching

Dr. Thomas L. Wade, head of the Mathematics Dept., for the past 20 years, relinquished his administrative duties this month to devote more time to teaching here at FSU. Dr. Howard E. Taylor succeeded Wade as acting chairman of the department.

Wade came to FSU in 1943 when the department consisted of two teachers and 100 students. The mathematics department now has 25 full time faculty members and 2,500 students. Wade said that he would conjecture that the Mathematics department will grow as much in the next 20 years as in the last 20. Wade also developed a master's degree program shortly after FSCW became a coeducational in 1947. Since the first four degrees were awarded in 1948, about 150 persons have received a master's in mathematics. In August, 1962, Wade initiated the doctorate program in mathematics.

The retiring department head is a native of Ridgeway, Va. He received the B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Virginia. Before coming to FSU he taught at Virginia, Mercer and the University of Alabama.

Former FSU Economics Head To Discuss Politics Tonight

Government and politics will be discussed by an economist from the University of Virginia tonight at 8 in the Library-Lecture Hall. Dr. James M. Buchanan, director of the Thomas Jefferson Center for Studies in Political Economy and a former FSU faculty member, will speak in the Strouger Library-Lecture Hall.

Buchanan headed the FSU Economics Dept. from 1954 to 1956, joined the University of Virginia faculty in 1956 and for the next five years headed their Department of Economics.

Author and co-author of several books on money and public finances, his latest (1962) publication is titled "The Calculus of Consent," written in cooperation with Gordon Tullock. This book is considered a pioneering analysis of the democratic decision-making processes using the technical tools developed in modern economics and game theory. He also co-authored the widely used economics textbook, "Prices, Income and Public Policy," with Clark Allen and Dr. Marshall Colberg, current head of FSU's Economics Dept.

Buchanan's academic honors also include two journeys abroad under the Fulbright program, first as a research scholar to Italy in 1955-56, and again as Fulbright Professor at Cambridge University, England, in the academic year, 1961-62.

His lecture at FSU tonight is one of seven to be given in a monthly series offered in the current trimester by the Government Dept. This series features outstanding guest speakers from the nation's major universities, each viewing politics and government from the perspective of his own discipline.

Gator Tankers Drown 66 - 29

The vaunted Florida Swimmers met their first defeat in two season Saturday night when an inspired group of FSU tankers dumped the vaunted Gators 66-29, winning 8 of the 11 events. The Gators, SEC champions for two years, had won six meets before meeting the Tribe.

The Gators won only the 50 yard freestyle, the 200-yard butterfly, and the 200 yard backstroke.

As with every FSU-UF meet, records fall. New meet, pool and school records were set in the 400 yard medley relay, the 500 yard breaststroke and the 200 yard individual medley events. Meet and pool records were also set in the 200 yard freestyle, the 100 yard freestyle, and the 200 yard backstroke.

Florida's two-time All-American, Jerry Livingston, had to take a back seat in this meet, finishing third in the 100 yard freestyle behind Jim Mauldin and Mike Blount of FSU. Livingston won the 50 yard freestyle over Robertson of the Seminoles. Dick Abbott, the heralded sophomore from Louisville, Kentucky, was unvelled in his specialty, the 200 yard individual medley, which he won from FSU with a time of 2:05.9, a new meet, pool and school record. Mauldin, another sophomore, was the meet's only double winner, with victories in the 100 and 200 freestyle events.

Frosh Quint Edges Jax U

The Florida State Freshmen basketball team ripped off an 18 point halftime lead, and hung on to defeat the Jacksonville Baby Dolphins 60-58. It was the Frosh's first road win in four tries. Their record is now 6-4.

High point man for the Baby Seminoles was Rn Malmen with 20. Dick Danford scored 10 points to hit for double figures.

SAILERS WAX FLEET

The FSU Salliers spent Sunday getting the new Flying Dutchman Junior fleet into ship-shape condition with a waxing party at the Reservation. All this sloop polishing was in preparation for the Mid-Winter meeting of the Southeastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association which will be held at FSU this coming weekend.

One of the chief feature of the meeting will be a discussion led by Luther Evans from the sports staff of the "Miami Herald" on the handling of sailing regattas.

Football Season Ticket Sales Hit Record High In One Week

By BOB DENSMORE

Big things have happened since the Board of Control indicated that the fate of a new addition to Campbell Stadium and a resultant home game with the Gators could hinge on a good sale of season tickets for the Seminoles. At the present time the ticket offices in Tully have sold over 3000 season passes, a new record. In fact the sales last week surpassed any previous entire season's sales.

When the Board of Control again meets on February 14, to take another squint at stadium appropriations, the Tribe should be able to flash season orders from more than 5000 seats. This would bring more than 100,000 dollars into the FSU coffers; something for the men who hold the purse strings to think about. According to Ron Melton, the athletic business manager for the Tribe, orders have increased in size about twenty percent. One advantage for the season buyer will be the fact that he will have season priority for future season, an important point when the thought of future home games with the Gators is taken into account. As a side benefit, the purchase of FSU season tickets gives the bearer priority on FSU's allotment of tickets to "the big game" when it is played in Gainesville. Last year's purchasers were the first to cash in on next year's seats when season tickets were released. Next Fall the Tribe will have four home games in addition to the Florida tilt, New Mexico State, Kentucky, North Carolina State and Southern Mississippi. Giving Impetus to the strong on season tickets has been the report of President Blackwell and Florida State faculty. President Blackwell has also been keeping BOC informed and is an important reason for the Board of Control decision to take another look at proposed expansion plans. At next meeting of the BOC President Blackwell will have new ammunition to fire for the Seminoles.

Wrestling

Wrestling practice has begun for the second trimester with 32 grapplers rolling on the mats from 4:15 to 5:45 every week day. All students and faculty interested in participating are asked to come to the wrestling room in Tully gym during this time.

Last Saturday the grapplers traveled to Jacksonville for a dual meet with the YMCA. Further meets will be held with Auburn, Tampa and UF.

Bach, Beethoven, And Band Music Is Coming

Concert To Be With Duo-Piano

NORAD Band To Be Here

Norma and Leonard Mastrogioco, pianists, will present a duo-piano recital in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m. next Monday, featuring with the Bach "Sonata in D Major" and a Stravinsky Sonata (34-44), the pianists will then perform Saint-Saens' "Scherzo, Opus 2" on the first half of the program. The Scherzo was one of the numbers recently performed at the Cummer Gallery of Art. Hugh Alderman, Florida Times-Union music writer, had the performance "showed excellent contrasts and a lucidity it is often difficult to achieve in two performances."

Final numbers on the program were also performed at the Cummer Gallery appearance. They will be "Lullaby," "Tears," "A Night of Love" and "Barcarole" from the "Fantasy Opus 55" by Rachmaninoff.

Mastrogioco, assistant professor of music at FSU, received his musical training at the Chicago School of Music. He also has studied in Italy on a Fulbright grant at the Conservatorio St. Cecilia in Rome and at the Accademia Chigiana in Siena. His appearances include a program to be under the sponsorship of the State Department and numerous concerts and recitals throughout the Southeastern states. Norma Mastrogioco studied piano with Wanda Paul and Rudolph Kohn as an undergraduate at the Chicago Musical College. She received her Master of Music degree from Northwestern University. She has been the recipient of many awards and scholarships including a Fulbright grant for study in Italy. In addition to numerous concert appearances she has served as assistant company pianist for the Ballet Ensemble de Monte Carlo in New York.

THREE FSU FACULTY MEMBERS

...present an All-Beethoven concert 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. Left to right are: Cellist Owen Sellers, Thomas Wright, pianist, and mezzo-soprano Elena Nikolaidi. The concert will emphasize Beethoven's middle period in which he was making a transition from classical expression to romanticism.

All-Beethoven Program Will Include Wright, Nikolaidi, Sellers Performing

An all-Beethoven Concert featuring Thomas Wright as pianist will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 5 in Opperman Music Hall.

Appearing on the program with the well known pianist will be mezzo-soprano Elena Nikolaidi and cellist Owen Sellers. The concert, free and open to the public, will emphasize the lyrical music of Beethoven's middle period in which he was making a transition from classicism to romanticism.

Wright will open the program with "Piano Sonata in E Minor," Opus 90. Sellers will join the pianist for "Sonata for Cello and Piano in A Major," Opus 69. Miss Nikolaidi will present a song cycle, "An die ferne Geliebte," (To the Beloved, Afar), Opus 98.

In closing the program, Wright will play "Piano Sonata in E Flat Major," Opus 31, No. 3.

Wright an associate professor of music at FSU, is also director of radio-television instruction and heads the interdivisional department of radio and television for the College of Arts and Sciences. Although known as a specialist in the interpretation of the piano works of Gershwin, Wright also has a repertoire of standard piano literature.

Miss Nikolaidi was born near Athens, Greece, and received her early musical training at a conservatory there. Soon after her graduation she was appearing at the Athens Lyric Theater. The Greek government selected her for a scholarship to study in Vienna where she soon became a member of the Vienna Opera. In the United States she has appeared with the Metropolitan Opera, the San Francisco Opera.

Sellers has concertized with major symphony orchestras in Cincinnati, Miami, Mobile and New Orleans. He was a participant in the Beethoven Festival in Prades, France. Known also as a music educator, he is associate dean of the School of Music.

A pianist who has played professionally with the Lawrence Welk Band and numerous West Coast night clubs will be featured piano soloist when the North American Air Defense Command band presents a concert on campus Monday, Feb. 10.

A 24-year-old United States Army man, Sgt. David Carlson will play both classical and jazz numbers during the Cavalcade of Music concert at 8:30 p.m. in FSU's Westcott Auditorium. The public is invited to the program and there is no admission charge.

NORAD Commanders Orchestra, part of the Norad Cavalcade of Music organization, is considered one of the finest military stage-dance orchestras of today. In 1960 it won the title "Honorary Best Band" at the National Best Bands contest held in Detroit, Mich. by the American Federation of Musicians and Ballroom Operators Association of America. No other military orchestra has ever received the award.

Among the musicians are "name" players who performed with well known dance bands before entering the Armed Forces of the United States and Canada. They include trumpeter Paul Fontaine (Woody Herman); trombonist Bob Jenkins (Ralph Marterie and Woody Herman); trombonist Phil Wilson (Woody Herman and Jimmy Dorsey); trombonist Jim Trimble (Lawrence Welk).

Tau Epsilon Wins Award

The Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity copied the IFC scholarship award for the best grade average among the 17 FSU chapters with an overall chapter average of 2.4475 for the fall trimester.

The Tau Epsilon Phi's reached first place after being 17th in grade averages last spring.

Second in competition was Alpha Tau Omega with an overall 2.3816, and Lambda Chi Alpha was third with a 2.3590 overall average.

Assistant fraternity counselor Steve McCutcheon determined that the all-fraternity average, the combined average of all 17 fraternities was a 2.23 average.

Phi Delta Theta was fourth with a 2.325, Sigma Chi was fifth with a 2.2916, and Delta Tau Delta was sixth with a 2.3825.

Phi Kappa Phi finished seventh with a 2.2814 followed by Kappa Alpha with a 2.2805, Sigma Nu was eighth with a 2.3539, Sigma Alpha Epsilon with a 2.2541 overall average.

The Alpha Tau Omega actives compiled the highest actives average with a 2.284, followed by the Phi Delta Theta pledges with 2.274, and Tau Epsilon Phi with a 2.262 overall pledge class average.

Play To Open

An original play by graduate student Sam Kilman entitled "The Waiting Room" will be presented at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday over WFSU.

The play is directed by Keith Carlin, an producer and director of WFSU's broadcasting services who also directed excerpts of two plays Kilman directed in University Theater, "The Dumb Waiter" and "The Muds." These plays like Kilman's "Waiting Room" were avant-garde type of a play called the theater of the absurd. This type of drama deals with the absurdities of man - with useless fight against the paradoxical struggles of life.

A number of inconsequential things were delayed or omitted from the play by Mary Darr and Dane, played by Sam Baker. Both feel they had until they are sure of their play. The third character in their symbolic, Barbara Jackson has the role of a little old lady who thinks living room is a bus station. The character also gives her exit line "Many years ago I began waiting for something -- I really can't remember what and one waiting led to another."

AP - Two Florida State University coeds are under arrest in Quincy, a city 20 miles west of Tallahassee, for disturbing the peace in a Negro tavern. The coeds reportedly were in Quincy while participating in a Negro voter registration drive, and had been speaking in the tavern when sheriff's deputies arrested them.

The two were identified as Rosemary Dudley and Judy Benninger. Their home towns were not available.

(Note: The Flambeau has learned through the office of Dean of Students that Miss Dudley is not a registered student of this university.)

Gadsden County Sheriff Otto Edwards said a man, presumed to be with the coeds, fled on the arrival of the deputy.

The sheriff says Mrs. Patricia Stevens Doo of Tallahassee, a leader in the Congress Of Racial Equality, told officers she was in Gadsden County to set up a headquarters for a voter registration drive. Reliable sources said there was a move afoot to register Negroes in a 13 county area of northwest Florida.

Sheriff Edwards said such a drive was unnecessary in Gadsden County because the county had no restrictions against Negroes registering to vote.

Records in the Secretary of State's Office show that Gadsden County has 361 Negro Democrats and 89 Negro Republicans on its books.

Thompson To Offer Lecture

"Through the Looking Glass," titled of Dr. Allan Thompson's public lecture tomorrow night does not concern itself with Alice's adventures in Wonderland, as one might expect. Rather, according to Thompson, it describes his plans "to use my mind as a reflection of what I believe, in an exploration of the physical spiritual and intellectual world."

He will deliver the next lecture in Mortar Board's Last Lecture Series at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Opperman Music Hall.

Thompson's lecture is the third of the current school year. A native of Great Britain, Thompson received his bachelor's degree from McGill University, the master's from Cornell and his Ph. D. from Syracuse University.

Sellers has concertized with major symphony orchestras in Cincinnati, Miami, Mobile and New Orleans. He was a participant in the Beethoven Festival in Prades, France. Known also as a music educator, he is associate dean of the School of Music.

Study in Foreign Universities Is A Rapidly Growing Trend

Nearly 19,000 American students attended foreign universities during 1963, while 78,000 foreign students were enrolled in American schools. The rapidly growing trend toward international studies is world-wide, a phase of the "education explosion." More than a quarter of a million students are at schools outside their own countries. They are aided by thousands of free fellowships and scholarships.

The 1964 edition of "Study Abroad," just published by the UNESCO Publications Center in New York, lists the opportunities for support in advanced studies outside the United States. More than 130,000 scholarships and fellowships worth hundreds of millions of dollars are available to assist the world's traveling generation of students. The grants cover every branch of learning and come from universities, governments and foundations in 116 countries. Some are for periods of a few weeks, others extend for as much as seven years.

The book lists 105 different fields of study, ranging from "administration" to "zoology." Many of the opportunities for foreign study are offered under broad headings such as literature, languages or science. Others are more specific. For example, an American student of oceanography, consulting "Study Abroad," can find more than sixty grants in his specialized subject available in countries as diverse as Canada, the Dominican Republic and Monaco. But a student of acting would find only five opportunities specifically earmarked for the theater, all of them from the International Theater Institute.

International and intergovernmental organizations, including the United Nations, provide more than 10,000 scholarships. More than 290

American universities and colleges offer assistance to students traveling abroad. Most of them also grant fellowships abroad to American students. The United States government and private foundations have thousands of additional fellowships available for Americans as well as students from overseas.

A comparison with previous editions of the 84 "Study Abroad" reveals how political and economic changes affect education. Castro's island now offers only three types of scholarships. Last year, Cuba gave nine. Russia now provides foreign undergraduates with a living allowance of 80 rubles a month, reduced from 90 last year.

On the other hand, Russian grants to scholars for advanced training have been increased to 150 rubles monthly from the former maximum of 100 rubles. Scholarship grants to students from Africa, this year last, include a 300-ruble allowance for warm clothing.

In Japan the number of grants available to Americans has been almost halved from last year's 50.

FSU And Miami Join In Study Of Oceans

A long-range program of "ship to shore" cooperation in oceanographic studies and research was announced today by FSU and the University of Miami.

Plans of the two universities, "designed to accelerate high-sea oceanography in Florida," were revealed in a joint statement issued by Director Albert Collier of FSU's Oceanographic Institute and Director F.G. Walton Smith of Miami's Institute of Marine Science.

Approving inter-dependent use of sea-going vessels, faculty and shore laboratories by the two institutions, the long-range union of facilities "forms a training and research nucleus for major areas of sea study in Florida," the marine scientists said.

"The combination of university, state and national interests in oceanic research forms a potential 'hard core' of 500 scientists, auxiliary staff and students, whose studies and findings can be rotated and consolidated for greater mutual benefit."

Programs of this kind bear directly on recommendations made by Florida's Space Era Education Study, the scientists noted. This advocated rapid expansion and development of graduate education and research centers in oceanography and hydrographic engineering.

"This cooperative step and future liaison with the proposed U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Oceanographic Laboratory at Miami, will ensure for the state a leading position in this field of science," according to the directors.

Among the first mutual projects will be a number of cooperative cruises on the University of Miami's research ships — the R/V Pillsbury and the R/V Gerda — to be manned by scientists and graduate students of both institutions.

While FSU will continue to direct a majority of its research projects toward current interests in the Gulf of Mexico and the northern portions of the Caribbean, the University of Miami will continue its emphasis in Atlantic coastal waters and in the Bahamas.

"It will increase knowledge in the whole spectrum of sea industries in this state," they predicted, calling attention to the possibilities of improving weather predictions and commercial fisheries production, developing mariculture and "farming" the seas, producing freshwater supplies and minerals from the oceans, and solving the mystery of the "red tide."

"As the Board of Control's Task Force indicated," the scientists concluded, "this last unexplored frontier — the oceans of the world — deserves the positive cooperation of all agencies, institutes and educational programs. We feel the inter-institutional program hereby announced, is a precedent in this direction."

The Student Nurses Association will hold its next meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire Clubroom.

A program on the Peace Corps will be presented by Gail Cory of Tallahassee. Miss Cory was a volunteer for the Peace Corps for 13 months, during which time she served as a nurse in Tanganyika, Africa. All student nurses and anyone interested in nursing may attend.

Alpha Lambda Delta's monthly meeting will take place today at 5 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium. The sorority's Tally-Ho pictures will be taken at 8:40 p.m. tomorrow in Longmire Auditorium.

Sentence Length Shows Clue To Age Of Writer

ANNA RUE SHEPLER
Staff Writer

average sentence length is the only clue to the age of the writer," commented Dr. W. Hunt at the English Coffee Party.

Hunt was given a grant from the States Office of Education to determine whether there are certain structural features that are found only after they have reached the fourth grade.

Analysis began with a small group of 14 students from the University School. These students consisted of three groups of fourth, eighth and twelfth graders.

Hunt found that the average sentence length of the fourth graders was 14 words, the eighth was 14 words, the twelfth was 20 words. This is an increase of one word per year of age, according to Hunt.

Hunt, is teaching the younger students to write more mature sentences. "Mature sentences reflect more variety in length and thought," he added.

The best way to increase sentence length in the younger students is to add more clauses containing more words. Hunt and his two project assistants, Robert Clark and Terry Swango demonstrated how sentence structure grows by building a basic fourth grade sentence into a mature one.

Computers have aided in much of the classification, but in one particular instance Hunt and his assistants had to hand sort and compare for likeness over 700 items.

Hunt has been working on the project for the past 12 months. The research is expected to be completed by June 15, 1964.

Seminole Spirit Is 'Exceptional'

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

BILL CRUTCHFIELD

"FSU in my opinion has one exceptional characteristic. It is in my own heart the most important single thing on which winning is based. That thing is spirit."

Bill Crutchfield, the newest addition to the Seminole coaching staff, was pausing in Head Coach Bill Peterson's office to reflect on his new assignment as an assistant coach with the offense.

"It has been my understanding," Crutchfield continued "and my belief, that perhaps more than any other school I know about, spirit has been the dominating characteristic of all the activities here, especially football."

Crutchfield mentioned several reasons why he came to Tallahassee to work under Peterson. "I have a tremendous respect for Bill and have had for several years. It will be a real pleasure to work with him and his staff."

"Of the teams we have played in the four years I have been at Miami, FSU has represented the best overall coaching job. Perhaps the old adage, 'If you can't beat them, join them' applies here. FSU reached its pinnacle at the Miami game last year."

Crutchfield comes to FSU from Miami, where he was a backfield coach, working primarily with the defensive secondary. He went to UM in 1960 after serving at Wake Forest for two years and Furman. He was earlier the head coach of Presbyterian College in South Carolina and a backfield coach at Mansfield high in Ohio, under Peterson.

Looking forward to his new duties, which begin February 24 with Spring Training, Bill has a "great respect for the personnel that I will be working with, I feel that they are all outstanding competitors. I especially remember Biletnikoff from last September."

FSU Grapplers Cop Jax Amateur Meet

By JAMES L. MYERS
Flambeau Sports Writer

With a total of 15 pins, FSU Varsity whipped all other teams in the 4th Annual Jacksonville Amateur Wrestling Meet last Saturday.

The Tribe combined to put sixteen men in the finals and amassed 62 points to win the Team Trophy. The nearest team had only 41 points.

Besides the FSU Varsity, teams such as Jax YMCA, Univ., of Tampa, Univ. of Florida, USS Forrestal from Norfolk, Virginia, and the FSU J.V.'s as well as some high school teams competed in the one day event.

Sixty-four wrestlers matched strength, skill and knowledge. This is the largest number of wrestlers in a meet in Florida.

To get things rolling, Herb Lach pinned Reiter from Jax YMCA in the 130 lbs. group. Quick Pins by Herb Knudsen over Denholm of Tampa and Carey Holland of the J.V.'s over Henry of the USS Forrestal kept the Chiefs in the lead.

Right behind this, FSU stayed in her winning streak as Jim Hill of the J.V.'s pinned Dolive from the University of Florida in 1:20 and James Ryan of the Seminole pinned another Gator to the mat in the 147 lb. division.

At 157, Sparkman, unattached, lost to Bill Miller of the Varsity. To make up for this, Brad Munroe of the FSU Varsity pinned Speir at 3:15.

Outstanding FSU wrestler was Jay Bennediti who pinned Burton, Biscayne A.C., in 1:05 and Price of the Broward County YMCA, Ft. Lauderdale in 0:50.

Varsity wrestler Mike Strayhorn was champion in the 177 lbs. class after decisioning Maccurry, Univ. of Fla., and pinning Rosenberg. Another first place winner was Billy Evans at 115 lbs.

Joe Rogers pinned Forbes, unattached, to put him into the finals. Jim Jackson of the Seminole's pinned Albee of Brow.

Despite injuries to Les Murdock, Robert Ratke and Terry Clark, Coach Budd Bieringer's grapplers from the Florida capital could not be stopped as Jim Burns, Steve Baum and John Saladin seized 3rds and 4ths.

At the end of the tournament, the team trophy was presented to Coach Bieringer by the host club, Jax YMCA.

THE FIRST VICTORY OVER THE UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA since the beginning of school was compiled by the Seminole Swim Team Saturday night with an impressive 66-29 win over the Gator Tankers, who were defeated in their last six meets. Above, the Tribe swimmers watch the 200 yard backstroke event, which was one of only three events which the visitors won. The Seminole leave Thursday morning early for Chapel Hill, where they will swim against North Carolina Friday at 4.

Tribe Cagers Travel To Auburn

The Seminole basketball team returns to action tonight at Auburn where they will meet the Tigers, 6-7 on the year. The Seminole won an earlier meeting in Tully Gym by 69-67.

The Tigers, under Coach Bill Lynn, will start the same lineup that faced the Seminole's December 7. The center will be Joe Newton, a 6-7 junior who had 17 points in the earlier contest. The forwards will be manned by Freddie Guy, a 6-6 jr., and Lee DeFore, a 6-6 sophomore. DeFore was high man for the Tigers in the Tully clash, with 18 points, while Guy amassed only three points on three free throws.

The Guards will be 6-1 junior well and 6-01 Larry Chapman, who well tied with Newton for the place scoring honors in the meeting with 17 points. Chapman bucketed eight points. The Seminole, in the earlier, were led by Jerry Shirley, 17 points, Pete Rogers had 10.

On Fellowships

President Blackwell Discusses Program

President Gordon W. Blackwell today issued the statement concerning the tentative fellowship program for professors at Florida A&M University.

"For some time there have been discussions between the two institutions about how the Florida State University might assist the Florida A&M University in meeting the standards of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. These discussions were motivated by the desire to strengthen FAMU so that it may more adequately serve the state of Florida in years to come.

"At no time has there been consideration of a merger of the two institutions. Any reference to such a plan is a mistake and can only be designed to create controversy.

"Like a number of other Negro institutions in the South, Florida A&M is under compulsion to increase the number of faculty members holding the Ph.D. degree, otherwise, its accreditation will continue to be in jeopardy. The problem cannot be solved by hiring Negro faculty members with the doctor's degree from other institutions, since there are simply not enough Negroes with advanced degrees to staff the more than 100 Negro colleges in the South.

"Because Florida State has doctoral programs in many fields in which FAMU faculty teach, discussions soon centered around how a fellowship program might be developed to allow FAMU professors to take graduate work at FSU and then return to their posts at FAMU.

"The tentative plan now developed would provide five fellowships each year. This would allow five A&M faculty members to live at home and pursue work on a doctor's degree at FSU. The fact that an A&M professor could work on his advanced degree without leaving Tallahassee provides a special advantage not only to the individual faculty member but also to the institution, for it provides some assurance that when the degree is earned the professor will be more likely to continue his affiliation with FAMU.

"If this program is launched it will be supported primarily with outside funds. However, no formal approach has yet been made to any foundation concerning this plan.

"The plan also contemplates that Florida State University on the request of Florida A&M would assist in the development of the teaching program and in the development of honor programs and other activities at A&M designed to identify and encourage talented A&M students to go on for further graduate work.

"This plan was developed in consultation with President Gore of FAMU, in addition to informal discussion with the Board of Control; we have discussed the plan with two members of the Leon County delegation, who expressed approval. One member of the delegation was not available at that particular time."

Daytona Police Issue Warning

DO NOT DRINK INTOXICATING BEVERAGES ON THE STREETS

SIDNEY WALKS, Police Chief of Police, A.O. Folom, sends this warning to students planning to visit Daytona Beach. This warning heads his list of "do nots."

On his list are cautions students must not possess or consume alcoholic beverages if under 21; of being drunk; drinking the beach with trash; dressing indecently or displaying obscene material.

Folom issues these warnings in the interests of visiting students. According to him any arrest, other than for a traffic charge, will be officially recorded by the FBI. The student's fingerprints and photograph will be sent to the Bureau and kept in a permanent file.

Twenty-One Groups To Enter Sing

Twenty-one organizations are slated to participate in the fifteenth annual Campus Sing to be held in Westcott Auditorium at 12 p.m. Saturday.

These campus organizations will be judged on tone, musicianship, diction, stage appearance, and selections used. The judges will use a grading scale on the point system ranging from one to ten.

All groups will perform Saturday and the finalists, the top three women's groups and top three men's groups, will perform again on Sunday at 2 p.m. The finalists will be notified by phone Saturday evening.

Campus Sing has been held each year since its founding in 1948. The Sing is co-sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, men's honorary music fraternity, and Sigma Alpha Iota, women's honorary music sorority. The founder of Campus Sing is Dr. Wiley Housewright, Professor of Music.

The judges for this year's contest will be Dr. Ramon E. Meyer, Director of Collegians and FSU Glee Club; Mr. Herman Ginter, Director of the Choral Union.

DR. THOMSON

Thomson Gives Lecture Tonight

Dr. Allan Thomson will take his listeners "Through the Looking Glass" tonight at 7:30 when he delivers the Last Lecture in Opperman Music Hall.

The lecture is free and the public may attend.

Thomson, who is assistant professor of English, said he will use his mind as a reflector of what he believes. He will explore the worlds of the physical and intellectual, especially in relation to the nature of the revolution of society in the areas of science, communism and religion. The lecturer will discuss these three topics from the humanist's point of view.

France's Recognition Of Red China Not Surprising

An AP News Analysis

(AP) The announcement yesterday that France granted recognition to Red China came as a surprise to no one, but authorities in this and other countries decided to treat it as such. We have known for some weeks that de Gaulle was seeking to play some sort of a role in the territories that used to be known as the colony of French Indochina. We also have known that he was thinking in terms of a third force in counter-balance the might of the Soviet Union and the United States.

Why all of a sudden has the United States denounced France's recognition as an unfortunate step? Why have officials expressed concern about the possibility that the move will increase Red Chinese ability to make trouble for the western powers, especially in Africa? Nothing is mentioned, of course, about Southeast Asia where the Chinese Reds are supplying puppets and converts with all sorts of firearms. Nothing is said about our own involvement in South Viet Nam and what effect de Gaulle's move might have on this particular situation.

Some friendly enemies of de Gaulle in his country have called him "the mandarin." He has that attitude of finality which used to be associated with old-time Chinese mandarins; as though his plans and decisions were beyond questioning. But it may be an exaggeration of sorts to say that what de Gaulle has done will harm the United States or the Western Alliance. His brusque moves are more embarrassing than harmful.

But de Gaulle may have done immense damage to France. He has created the impression that a country of barely 50 million with comparatively few resources can lord it over other nations and groups... that it can stand up to the giants with impunity.

The next government of France--de Gaulle is not eternal--will be hard put to bring down France to reality--to glide safely down from the clouds. De Gaulle has disclaimed Napoleonic ambitions.

United States annoyance at French recognition of Red China is due to arouse speculation about the future of the Atlantic Alliance. Actually, we shouldn't object too much about the Red Chinese angle. A great many countries maintain diplomatic relations with Peking, including Britain, our top ally. What should be of concern is the over-all design of French policy. It is not a friendly one, not friendly to the United States, that is.

De Gaulle is in pursuit of objectives which, outside of being unwise, are also unobtainable. He is fooling no one but himself if he thinks that recognition of the Chinese mainland will benefit his country. He is certainly not fooling the Chinese Reds who know up to fraction of a megaton the relative strength of the big powers. Chou En-Lai and company will use him long before he uses them. But arguing will not convince de Gaulle. He doesn't even argue with himself. He will soon give the world the benefit of his political wisdom--at a news conference on January 31st. He knows how to stage these affairs so as to get the maximum benefit... at least in his own country.

Logic would dictate a reappraisal on our part. There are many obstacles in the way, of course, including the fact that we recognize the Chiang Kai-Shek regime on Formosa as the legitimate government of China.

Assistance Praised

To the Editor:
We would like to express our appreciation to those people who graciously contributed their assistance to the successful display for the Syrian Arab Republic at the International Students Fair held here Saturday.

Particular thanks are due to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Moses Demetree, for the loan of numerous lovely remembrances of Syria; and Mrs. Michael J. Pollot, for the loan of several beautiful pieces of brassware and jewelry; Mrs. L. M. Mischick Leonard, for her contribution and her unflinching interest and enthusiasm; Mr. Sabah Khabani, Consul General of the Syrian Arab Republic, for several beautiful reproductions of the regional costumes of Syria; the Organization of Arab Students in the United States, for examples of Syrian handicrafts; Dr. Olive H. Cross, for her contribution of Arab clothing; Mrs. P. Stoakes for Syrian clothing and brassware; Gamma Sigma Sigma, for their exceptional assistance in setting the Fair; and the Flambeau radio stations WTAL and WNTN, providing publicity for both the International Fair and the Syrian exhibit.

Convention Delegate Bill Is Potential Dynamite

The Senate was handed a stick of potential political dynamite last Wednesday in the form of a bill introduced by Senator Gene Stearns. The bill represents an attempt to restrict the methods by which the campus political parties select their candidates.

Essentially the bill would require that the date and a complete list of delegates be supplied to the Secretary of Elections at least 15 days prior to a party's convention. The list of delegates could not be changed and members of fraternities and sororities would not be permitted to serve as delegates other than as a representative of their fraternity or sorority.

The bill was introduced with an admirable purpose. Namely, to prevent the switching of delegates during the course of a convention and prohibit "stacking the deck" against unwanted potential candidates for party nomination. In other words, it would help all candidates in knowing who the convention delegates are and thus aid a potential candidate seeking a party nomination. However, there are many undesirable effects commensurate with the passage of such a bill.

In the first place the bill would discriminate on the basis of association against particular campus organizations in place specific restrictions upon them. This is undeniably an overt case of oppression against a group of FSU students who are supposedly politically equal.

Secondly, the bill specifically discriminates against fraternity and sorority members, hardly an admirable attitude. Such an act on the part of the Senate could not be reconciled with our principles of a democratic society. Just because a person chooses to join a particular campus organization is no reason to curtail his political activity. This is a violation of an individual's civil rights.

Thirdly, there is no clause for enforcing the law or establishing penalties for violations. The bill is incomplete and useless in its present form. In fact, in no place in the statutes is a political party defined. The bill completely ignores the practical aspects of campus politics. The ability of a party to control the number and composition of its delegations is the source of its political power. If a party can't exercise control over whom it nominates it has no reason to exist. Political parties perform a preliminary process of elimination. They DO NOT PREVENT A CANDIDATE FROM RUNNING FOR OFFICE. Any qualified person can run. No one can stop him.

The process by which party delegates are chosen is stated in their constitutions. There is no such thing as the "right" to be backed by a party. For some unknown reason people seek the nominations of parties to which they don't even belong. Worse even, some seek the nomination of another party if they lose out on their first attempt in one party. Such behavior can and should not be tolerated in a party. If the person doesn't like the way party nominations are made he can leave. No one made him come.

There, the bill should be dropped on principle alone. It is not commensurate with egalitarian politics.

Mack McKinnon

Is Council Necessary?

The class officers controversy seems to have been settled at last by the introduction of the Inter-class Council bill by Ed Scott on January 15th in the Student Senate and the passage of this bill on January 22nd. Careful consideration shows that this bill changed the names of class officers to Inter-class Council members with only a few differences in their status and no improvement in the efficiency of the Student Government.

It also indicates that the students' opinion, as shown by the students' last year, was completely overlooked by the class officers committee, which was composed of about one-half as many officers who were determined that their offices were not going to be abolished, no matter what the students wanted or desired. The mandate contrived last year directed that the class officers be discontinued, but it was declared binding by the Attorney General and the Senate. The students who supported the abolition of class officers, as indicated by this mandate, should not have been ignored and their opinions should have been considered heavily by the Class Officers Committee.

The Class Officers Committee, headed by Ed Scott, was directed to investigate what could be done about the class officers and the mandate. The class officers, who served on the committee, refused to permit the discontinuation of their office and forced the committee to compromise.

One of reducing the number of student government offices and making the Student Government more efficient, as the mandate directed the Inter-class Council bill removed three important duties from the Secretary of the Interior and gave them to the class officers so that the officers might have a more delicate duty.

By removing the homecoming activities, dances, and the Christmas activities from the Secretary of the Interior, a cabinet office was greatly reduced in effectiveness and, at the same time the class officers were forced to continue to exist and perform such noble functions as "promote class identity" which is impossible under the trimester system.

I feel that the original duties of class officers should have been absorbed by a special committee of the Senate or by the Secretary of the Interior. This would have given people free to seek other offices in the Student Government and at the same time making Student Government more efficient and less stagnant.

A special committee of the Senate could have absorbed the duties of the class officers and, at the same time, efficient job because this committee would have to report weekly to the Senate its activities and cover the duties of the class officers of forty-three Senators. The Secretary of Interior could also have absorbed the duties of the ineffective class officers and, through a more effective job, could have been done.

Many of the class officers and some Senators who discouraged the mandate and the opinion of the student body will be running for re-election

Pickers Not Understood By Some

There seems to be a great deal of confusion amongst some people as to the nature of the civil rights movement in Tallahassee. An example of this confusion is the letter in last Tuesday's Flambeau by Colin H. Barrow.

The civil rights groups feel that if faculty members would join picket lines a great deal more could be accomplished for human equality. Mr. Barrow writes in "fact being accomplished."

Mr. Barrow writes "many of us are so far interested in our research and teaching that we do not have time to indulge in local politics." The question of human rights is, however, ultimately not a question of politics, but of morals. . . Who would disagree that the racial atmosphere in the United States is "distasteful"? But the off campus picketing is not, as Mr. Barrow implies, a local matter concerning three restaurants. What is happening in Tallahassee is a part of a great global re-awakening in America and the West.

Racial persecution is in the process of being seriously eliminated in large parts of the world. By limiting the Liberal form's picketing to a mere local affair, Mr. Barrow completely misses the significance of the entire civil rights movement. It is also naive to think that the three off-campus restaurants would be committing "financial suicide" by opening their doors to all people regardless of skin color.

Petitions with hundreds of names have been given to the owners of these restaurants pleading support in case of desegregation. Besides that, these places have their only reason for existence in the FSU student body.

I do not believe that the Seminole, Suwannee Room, the Soda Shoppe, or the Student Center have lost any customers, to speak of, because they now serve FSU Negro students. . .

UN Personnel Part Of Conspiracy

In New York City, stands the headquarters of the United Nations. Why is it ever alleged to be built upon American soil? It is certain that the Soviet Union would never have permitted it if they thought it couldn't be used to further their own ends.

Their very power would have been sufficient to prevent the action. However, the Communists knew that with the United Nations situated within the United States, they would have an unprecedented, unbeatable, paid-for-in-America platform for their program of espionage.

Under our agreements with the United Nations, we have no check or control over the thousands of aliens the U.N. has brought here. These aliens can travel anywhere and have diplomatic status and immunity.

They have complete freedom to bring into and take out whatever they want without search or hindrance and are above all normal laws.

To add insult to injury, Americans have to spend millions of dollars to guard these butchers whose crimes against humanity make them logical targets for thousands of refugees who have good reason to hate them.

J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has repeatedly confirmed the charges that the United Nations provides a protective front in which the Soviet spies can operate. Mr. Hoover has stated: "Historically, the official personnel of the Soviet-bloc countries assigned to this Nation, including those at the United Nations, have been used extensively for espionage purposes."

"Their efforts are directed against all aspects of our national defense effort. Data concerning strategic industrial potential, transportation and communications systems, rocket and missile development and other weapons of mass destruction, are assiduously collected by Soviet agents, many operating with diplomatic immunity from the United Nations in New York and their embassies here in Washington."

"With privileges and immunities, Soviet-bloc personnel attached to the United Nations are becoming increasingly more active in Soviet intelligence operations. These countries are expanding their representation in the United Nations Secretariat. . . ("J. Edgar Hoover's testimony before a subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations). They are guests of the United States and are supposedly doing this in the cause of international peace. But they are, in fact, carefully selected envoys of the international Communist conspiracy, trained in trickery and deceit and dedicated to the concept of fully exploiting the freedoms of the countries they seek to destroy. It is too much to expect that they would not subvert the United Nations." (J. Edgar Hoover's report to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee).

Mr. Hoover has flatly stated the situation. The United Nations has been and is being used as a propaganda and espionage tool by the Soviet Union and it is primarily directed at the United States.

Winston Churchill has already suggested: "Don't pay any attention to the U.N." but we can't do that as long as it remains within our borders. We must face up to the facts. They intend to "Rule the U.N., wreck the U.N., or ignore the U.N." and they are doing just that.

It would be interesting to ask, when approached by these perspective candidates, why they did not consider the students' opinion as expressed by the mandate about the class offices. Many of these candidates would probably have a very hard time explaining this to you.

CAROLE RENFROE

is not only a senator, but also is active in Women's Senate, Women Students Council, Reynolds Hall and Alpha Xi Delta.

By MELODY ROSS
Flambeau Feature Writer

Out of the many senators working for FSU, steps the person of Carol Renfro, a 20-year-old junior who began her political career as a freshman and is still going strong.

The active senator during her first year at FSU was a Freshman Flunky and a member of the Reynolds Hall Social Committee. Stepping up the ladder in her sophomore year, she was a precinct senator from Landis, working on the Judicial and Rules Committee in Student Senate and a member of the Social Regulations and Godflying Committee. Women's Senate, in addition, was active in Sophomore Goals and an officer of her sorority, Alpha Xi Delta. As one of the four delegates, she attended the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students (IAWS) Convention in Ohio.

As a junior class senator, Carol is a member of the Elections and Appointments Committee and is also chairman of the Campus Decisions Committee for Homecoming. In Women's Senate she is President Pro Tem and chairman of the Rules Committee. Besides these activities, she is a member of the Association of Women Students Council (AWSC) and a junior counselor at Reynolds.

As for hobbies, she claims the only one is keeping up her grades, when there is time to slow down, she enjoys reading, water-skiing, sewing. With a major in social science, she plans to work with children in either child welfare or guidance and counseling, graduate school.

Peace Corps are still "maybe." In speaking of her work in Senate and of Student Government in general, she brought out the fact that she has much more responsibility than FSU students have more say in student affairs. The administration here has given Student Government much more responsibility than administrations in other schools. Communication, however, between students and Student Government, she maintains, is the main problem. Many are unaware of, or don't understand all the activities and functions of their government.

She strongly urges students to tend at least a few Senate meetings as one way of seeing for themselves the workings of one of the important branches of Student Government (Senate meets Wednesday afternoon at 4 in Longmire Auditorium).

Frank To Answer Query 'What Is An American?'

The question "What is an American?" will be answered tonight by Dr. Elke Frank, a political scientist who will view the question as it affects American immigrants.

Miss Frank, a young assistant professor of government at FSU, is the third guest lecturer in the current American Studies Lecture Series. The talk will be at 7:30 p.m. in Strozier Library Lecture Hall.

A native of Hamburg, Germany, she will discuss America's formal requirement for citizenship, immigration quotas, the immigrant's role in American history, and the psychological implications of their acceptance as "good Americans."

"The self-conscious patriotism of the first generation immigrants sometimes causes them to go to extremes in defending their desire to be counted just as good as the next American," says Miss Frank.

Coming first to this country in 1951 as an American Field Service exchange student, Miss Frank attended FSU from 1953 to 1959, receiving her bachelor's degree, cum laude, in journalism in 1957 and the master of arts degree in political science in 1959.

She received the F.H.D. in government in 1963 from Harvard University, where she studied and taught from 1959-61, under tutorial and graduate fellowships.

Motorists, Beware!

Corner Nicknamed 'Citation Junction'

"Citation Junction" is what FSU campus police call the junction of West Call Street and Dewey because so many westward-bound motorists have received tickets there.

Lt. J. M. Lewis Jr. of the department explained, however, that the traffic barrier extending halfway across Call Street at this point with the sign for westbound motorists "One way, do not enter" is not designed to trap the unsuspecting driver.

"I think," said Lewis, "that the motorist who approaches the campus on West Call Street has forgotten the original reason for closing Call Street."

Approximately two years ago West

Call was closed at Dewey Street and at Collegiate Way from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. as a means of limiting vehicular traffic for the benefit and safety of the many pedestrians in the area. This reason was valid and it still exists, according to Lt. Lewis. Since the beginning of construction of the University Union at Woodward and West Call Street, it has been necessary to close West Call Street between Woodward Avenue and Collegiate Way on a 24-hour basis.

For this reason, it is necessary to close West Call to westbound traffic at Dewey on a 24-hour basis. West Call is open at Dewey for East bound traffic to permit motorists to leave the campus on the North Side.

Lt. Lewis said that other alternatives to this situation have been considered, but to achieve the original goal of protecting the pedestrian traffic and of preventing through traffic from being trapped on campus at the Student Union construction site, as well as providing an escape from the campus on the North Side, there seems to be no other practical solution.

Go To Afghanistan

Alumnus Begins Corps Service

Robert Vincent Ford, FSU alumnus, began a two-year assignment as Peace Corps Volunteer in Afghanistan.

He is one of 34 volunteers who left New York Jan. 25 for Afghanistan work in an education and public administration project. They joined other volunteers who have been working there for a year or more as teachers, English teachers, printers and mechanics.

The Government of Afghanistan has requested Peace Corps help in putting into effect new programs in educational and economic development. Although there are top-level administrators in Afghanistan, they must begin the projects without trained middle-level personnel, Peace Corps officials said.

The volunteers will assist the schools and ministries in carrying out self-improvement programs. They specifically, they will work as teachers, secretaries, statisticians, postal clerks, telephone operators and warehouse managers. At the same time they will train local personnel in these skills. The group trained for 12 weeks at the Experiment in International Living, Putney, Vermont. They studied Farsi, the language of Afghanistan, the culture and history of Afghanistan, United States history and institutions, and world affairs. They also received technical training related to their specific assignments. Over 6,500 volunteers are now at work in 46 nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America. Requests for additional volunteers are received daily. Peace Corps officials report that plans are being made to train some 6,000 more volunteers this summer. Candidates who apply now and take the next nationwide Placement Test on February 8 will be considered for one of the many summer training programs.

FSU Campus To Celebrate Shakespeare Anniversary

The 400th birthday anniversary of William Shakespeare will be celebrated on campus with a presentation of "Love's Labour's Lost" by the University Theater on two consecutive weekends, Feb. 7-9 and 14-16.

Dr. Arthur H. Dorlag, director, announced today the selection of the cast, which will include FSU students and a child, Jim Cahoun of Talhassee, who will have the role of the court page, Moth.

"Love's Labour's Lost" will be played as a "frothy bit of comedy" Director Dorlag said.

The King of Navarre is played by Kent Wood and his three associate lords—Jerold Gray as Berowne; Earl Fisher as Longaville; and Peter Steinberg as Dumaine—who have taken anytho to form themselves into a kind of monastic academy for study. They swear to limit meals to one a day, and for three years not to look on the face of a woman.

When the Princess of France played by Ellen Whigham and three of her ladies show up for a previously made appointment with the King, a comical situation develops. The ladies are played by Pat Britt, the caustic Rosaline; Louise Beddingfield as Katharine; and Ann Angel as Maria. Comedy interest is provided by the swashbuckling Spanish captain, Don Armado, played by Sammy Kilman; and two comic figures, Holofernes, and Sir Nabalhelm, played by Sam Baker and Rhett Bryson.

Others in the cast are: Barbara Quinn, Janquette; Paul Hutchins, Boyet; Mike Mullins, Dull; Bruce Fischer, Costard; and Allan Dermott, Marcead.

Tigers Trip Tribe

SPORTS

Auburn's improving Tigers handed the reeling Seminole cagers their eighth road loss of the season by a four point margin at Auburn. The Tigers pulled away in the last three minutes of the game to knock out a 63-59 win.

The Seminole "humped off to a 4-0 lead on two shots in Pete Rogers. Auburn couldn't score until 17:05 was left when Lee DeFore hit two Free throws. The Seminoles stretched the lead to 10-6 with 15:30 till intermission.

As both teams switched to a man-to-man defense, the score remained close. It was 12-7 with 13:25 left. The Seminole's built the lead back up to 22-11 with nine minutes gone. The inspired Tigers fought back to 26-12 with 6:25 till halftime, then tied it up at 26-26 on two jump shots by DeFore, who had 11 points for the half. DeFore gave the Tigers their first lead at 28-26 with 3:15 until halftime. A tip-up by Jerry Shirley tied it up again with 2:40 to go. Bobby Lovell hit a 20-footer to give the Tribe its 30-28 halftime lead.

In the first half, the Tribe hit 54.2 % of their shots, while the Bengals had only 38 per cent.

The teams picked up where they left off at the half and continued the neck battle. The Seminoles padded the halftime lead to 32-29 with 18:37 left in the game, but Auburn plugged away until Blackwell tied it up again at 32-29 with 14:26. Auburn pulled away to a 45-41 bulge, the largest Tiger margin of the game, on jumpers by Chapman and Blackwell. The lead was maintained at 47-43 with 9:50 in the game. An FSU spurt came close to a tie game, on a jumper and Free Throw by Gonzalez for a 47-46 margin.

At 7:39, the Auburn lead was up to 52-49. Cal Hugg followed a Lovell Free Throw with a jumper to tie it up again with 4:20 to go. The Tigers were spurred on by a wildly partisan crowd and pulled away to a 61-56 margin with 1:24 to go. After a Gonzalez foul shot, Auburn froze the ball with 50 seconds left. Gonzalez's first foul of the game sent Chapman, who had 15 points all in the second half, to the line. The Chapman basket made it 62-57.

A Gonzalez 20-footer finished the Tribe scoring at 59 points, but Chapman, who had averaged only 9.3 a game was not through. He hit another Free Throw with 10 seconds to go.

Fete Gonzalez led the Tribe scoring effort with 17 points, Pete Rogers and Gary Schull were second with 10 points each, Jerry Shirley and John Blackwell led the Tigers with 21 points. Chapman's 15 and DeFore's 15 rounded out the Auburn scoring.

Tankers Travel To North Carolina

Florida State's unbeaten swim team leaves at 6 a.m. Thursday for Chapel Hill, N.C., where they will clash head-on Friday with another unbeaten squad, the University of North Carolina.

"North Carolina always has a good team," said Head Coach Bim Stuits from a Tanker practice session in Montgomery Gym. "They have won six or seven straight meets this year over the likes of Navy and Princeton, some of the best teams in the East. They won the National Collegiate Championships some years ago."

Top personnel for the Tar Heels are Harrison Merrill, "one of the nation's outstanding swimmers, who set several freshman national collegiate records last year," and Thompson Mann, an All-American in the medley races. James Lipp averages 2:05.7 in the butterfly for the Carolinians.

"They beat us here last year in a close meet," continued Stuits. "They are better this year, and have an outstanding 400 yard relay team. They had a lot of good soph to come up and make them stronger."

After the 4 p.m. meet with North Carolina, the tankers travel to East Carolina College, where they tackle the contenders for the National Small College Championship at 8 p.m. Saturday. The next home meet will be Tulane on Monday

With three matches behind them and no defeats, members of the Quinets Club travel to Winter Park Thursday to face top competition in a three day tournament are University of Florida, Miami-Dade Junior College, University of Miami and Rollins College.

Players representing Florida State are Lynda West, Gail DeLozier (above) Kathy Spence and Stella Cunningham. Other schools entered in the three day tournament are University of Florida, Miami-Dade Junior College, University of Miami and Rollins College.

Smith Challenges Student Body To Attend Public Discussion

Johnny Smith

"I would like to challenge all skeptics of the Student Government system at FSU to attend a public discussion of Student Government today at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

"I am also asking all interested students or faculty members to attend. Discussion on any and all aspects of Student Government will be in order.

"This is your opportunity, as a student, to come and voice grievances about your Student Government, to offer suggestions and comments, to learn why we have a Student governing system at FSU, and what it does.

"In the minds of many students, the general attitude toward Student Government is negative, due to misunderstanding and lack of proper communication and orientation.

"Too many students believe that Student Government people run for offices only for the prestige involved, then do nothing during their term of office. As in any governmental structure, this is true for some, but the great majority of Student Government people spend an unbelievable amount of time working for the welfare of students.

"The fact that Student Government administrations are restricted to one year in duration is the most harmful aspect of the system. By the time a Student Government officer becomes thoroughly familiar with his office, it is almost time for him to begin thinking about training his successor so that continuity can be maintained.

"This is a valid criticism, but most of the campus scuttlebutt about Student Government being a "Mickey Mouse Club," or an ineffective bunch of puppets is, actually, the farthest thing from truth.

"Topics such as this will be discussed at length at Thursday's meeting. I would like to ask any student who is interested in Student Government, negatively or positively, to attend," concluded the Student Body President.

School Receives $1800 Loan Fund

The Department of Financial Aid at FSU announced today the receipt of a check for $1800 representing the initial payment on an $1800 loan fund for graduate and undergraduate students in nursing.

Dr. James P. Carr Jr., director of financial aid, said the fund is being set up by the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital Auxiliary. No interest will be charged and it is repayable after the student has graduated. Dean of the School of Nursing Vivian Dugbury said the first loan will probably go toward financing the education of one nurse.

The Auxiliary is a volunteer service group made up of about 300 local women of the community. Mrs. H.A. Gilliam is president; Mrs. J.M. Hogenson is treasurer; and Mrs. Lewis Lewis is chairman of the scholarship committee.

By AL GALBRAITH
Flambeau Senate Reporter

Six appointments were approved by the Student Senate, a new bill was introduced, a resolution pertaining to the Easter holiday was passed, and an appointment bill was defeated in yesterday's meeting of the Student Senator Pamela Doud, chairman of the Senate Elections and Appointments committee, recommended favorably all of the appointments which had been under consideration. The approved appointments were all approved by the Senate and are as follows:

Barbara Cox will replace Alice Marshall in the Senate. Susan Norton will serve on the Elections Commission and Bobbie Carlton will replace Betsy Boote as chairman of the University Court.

Kirk Ball will serve on the Traffic Committee. Barbara May will replace Carolyn Wronski on the Honor Court, and Jeff Jones will serve as Undersecretary of Internal Affairs. Senator Larry Wood introduced a bill which creates a new bureau under the office of Secretary of Intercollegiate and Public Affairs. The new bureau will be called the Hon. Bureau. Duties of the bureau will include such activities as welcoming guests and visitors to the campus, establishment of sound relationships between students and visiting students and dignitaries, and serving as co-ordinator and official host for the Student Government social functions.

A resolution suggesting that Good

Friday be made a holiday was introduced by Senator Marlow Morton. The resolution specified that the classes missed will be made up Saturday, Feb. 28. The resolution passed unanimously.

Senator Clyda Stokes, president of Women's Senate, reported on a poll taken recently by the AWS Executive Council in regard to the University Laundry Service.

Out of 1475 women who answered the questionnaire, 1087 use the service weekly. Eight hundred fifteen believe the rates are too high in contrast to 293, who feel the rates are very reasonable. "Seventy-six women feel the laundry service is excellent, 747 rate the service as "good," and 290 report it as "poor." Nine hundred and ninety seven would rather have a lower set fee for flat work and pay for everything else by the piece.

APPOINTMENTS
The following appointments were voted upon by the Student Senate in last week's meeting:

David Fletcher, appointed to the Elections Commission last fall, was not approved because of grades. Lynn Patrick, appointed to the Traffic Committee, did not receive approval because of class conflicts which would prevent her from holding office, and Robert Bowles appointed to the Student Union Committee, was not approved because of grades.

The appointment of Guy Sanderson, Trish Bassett, Phyllis Doud, Sandra Zimmerman, and John Campbell to the Elections Commission was approved. Pete Nealing was accepted as Undersecretary for General Affairs, and Roger Getteman was approved as Precinct 17 Senator.

Panhellenic Notice

The Panhellenic Office wishes to announce that Monday will be the only day during the remainder of the trimester that coeds may again recede their interest in being rushed this trimester.

Women concerned must have made 2, or better the last trimester. Students may sign up at the Panhellenic Office in Longmire Monday from 4 to 5 p.m.

Slow Day in Government, Senate Approves Appointments

First Delta Sigma Pi Rose Ball Coming Saturday, February 1

Saturday night from 8 to 12 is the time and time for the first annual Delta Sigma Pi Rose Ball. The place is the Swanee Room and the price is $1 per couple.

Music and entertainment will be by the Sabres, a "real rocking" combo, and the Ridge Runners, who are two of the singers with a lot of "work-shah." Tickets are being sold by members of the fraternity and at booths in front of the Sweet Shop and Bill's Book Store. Tickets also may be obtained at the dance.

The purpose of the Rose Ball is to select the Rose of Delta Sig, the fraternity's sweetheart. The contest began two weeks ago when all sororities and women's organizations were contacted and asked to submit an entry. Twenty girls were entered and after a tea held Sunday, in Welch Lounge of the School of Business, the contestants were reduced to five.

The Rose Queen will be crowned Saturday night at the dance. The finalists are: Sandra Kelley, sponsored by Angel Flight; Jo Dietrich, sponsored by Pi Beta Phi; Missy Herman, sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma; Joetta Lawrence, sponsored by Delta Gamma; and Patti Folsom, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta.

The girl selected as queen will receive along with a dozen roses, a roasting trophy to be placed in the trophy case of her sponsoring organization, a personally engraved sterling silver bowl, and a framed certificate of her queen status. She will remain as Sweetheart Rose of Delta Sigma Pi for one year.

But the big item of interest is her chance for recognition as the fraternity's national Rose Queen. Her picture will be sent to Hollywood where it will be judged with entries from other chapters of the fraternity which at this time number 125.

This number will be reduced to three and then finally to one who will be the National Rose of Delta Sig. The judging will be done by movie stars Shirley McAlaine and Warren Beatty. The winner's picture will appear in the national magazine of the fraternity. But whether she wins national recognition or not, with her permission she will be entered into the Miss Tallahassee Contest this year.

Scholarships

The National Phi Eta Sigma Fraternity offers two $300 scholarships each year on the basis of a student's scholastic record, evidence of creative ability, evidence of financial need, promise of success in chosen field and personality.

Interested graduating seniors who plan to work toward graduate degrees and who are members of Phi Eta Sigma, may get in touch with Paul Piccard, faculty adviser, in room 121, History Bldg.

Only members of Phi Eta Sigma are eligible for the gift scholarships. Deadline for applications is Feb. 24.

The FSU Women's F Club will meet in Longmire Student Lounge at 9 p.m.

Recognition...

France is in the process of establishing diplomatic relations with the Chinese mainland government. At the same time De Gaulle apparently (at this time) doesn't intend to withdraw diplomatic recognition from the Chiang Kai-shek regime on Formosa.

Several reasons for De Gaulle's behavior have been offered so far.

One is that, for De Gaulle, the reality of the government in Peking is overwhelming. From his point of view the claims of the Communist Chinese to representation of the mass of the Chinese population are valid.

From the US viewpoint, the situation is different. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has stated our position clearly at the recent press conference in Tokyo.

"When mainland China has a government which is prepared to renounce force, to make peace and to honor international responsibilities, it will find us responsive."

The list of our grievances against Red China is long. Korea and Viet Nam are costly examples of Red China at its most aggressive and bloody. Our stand, therefore, is, for us at this time, the only feasible one.

We cannot "reward the militancy" of Red China by recognition. The spectre of the over 100,000 UN dead (most of whom were US soldiers) in the Korean war is still too near and too grim to be buried by many of us.

Rusk has not taken an untenable position. He has left the door open for the future. He has said that he "does not expect Communist China to change its policies enough to warrant American recognition during his tenure in office."

If the warlike intentions of Red China change, the US must be ready to take advantage of them. But Red China is not likely to change its policies without a change in its leaders also, for such seems to be the only way totalitarian governments can change.

To extend the hand of recognition to Red China now while Americans are dying in Viet Nam would be much like a man holding out his hand while his enemy inserts bamboo shoots under his fingernails.

What De Gaulle has done, or is attempting to do, is all very well for France. The US has different world responsibilities, however, and for us recognition at this time would be folly.

Chiari Exploits Panamanian 'Mess'

Why this mess in Panama? Why this seeming impasse between America and a strategic ally? How can we have a whole embassy staff sitting in Panama City with no apparent foreknowledge of the forming situation? The atmosphere must have been pretty explosive if a simple (though illegal) student flag-raising touched off nationwide rioting and the severance of diplomatic relations with the U.S.

Though some of the individual occurrences may be partially explained with various reasons, the fact still remains that Panama blew up over a stupid little act that normally would have been handled by a high school principal. The U.S. administration, here and there, obviously have been neglectful.

Granted that the present situation is being politically exploited by Panamanian president Chiari (May elections are drawing near), and that Castroites are in the forefront of the rioting, there still is an underlying, long-neglected sore, that the American governments have ignored.

Oh, President Eisenhower granted "total sovereignty" to Panama—their flag could be flown alongside ours; but his administration or Ken-edy's did not even make an honest effort to review the treaty.

Consequently such Panamanian business groups as the Committee of National Affirmation can state, "over 3,000 Americans working in the Canal Zone receive yearly a payroll which is higher than the total payroll of all the approximately 14,000 Panamanians working in the Canal Zone." In addition to the fact that many of the American-held Canal Zone jobs could be held by the local population.

Why then can't we cope with these little problems which so easily blossom into big ones. Must we be shocked over the head? That's been tried. Five months ago Joseph S. Farland, the American ambassador to Panama, resigned with several tense words on U.S. foreign aid and the handling of the Canal Zone.

As it stands now Panama has broken diplomatic relations with us, denounced our country in the U.N., and we maintain the sixth fleet in the Atlantic and the seventh fleet in the Pacific.

A well-placed bomb or missile or sabotaged ship in the canal would make the Canal inoperative in time of war. Many of the newer and larger merchant ships presently are unable to utilize the canal, approximately seventy-five percent of the traffic on the canal is Anglo-American, and the majority of this is American traffic.

Nationalism 'Hamstrings' Chiari

The Panama Canal appears as if it will become a political football. This could well be undesirable because of the difficulty of compromise.

Panama's President Chiari is in a static position because of the searing elections. The extremely strong feeling of nationalism in Panama would make it virtually impossible for Chiari to take anything but a strong and hostile attitude towards the United States.

There is strong talk in the United States about our image if we allow tiny Panama to 'let us in.' Will we once again try to solve a very complex problem by very simple force?

The young high school student who flew our flag is no more responsible for the trouble in Panama than "Castro's agents". These two factors, if anything, simply brought to the surface again a problem that has erupted before. As difficult as it is, we should try our best to solve the problem rather than simply trying to cover it up.

An important consideration should be the value of the Canal to the United States. With a one fleet navy, the Canal was much more important. Now we maintain the sixth fleet in the Atlantic and the seventh fleet in the Pacific.

created a situation completely in actual dimensions. We, on the other hand, felt perfectly justified in our actions as explained in the Declaration of Independence.

Historically I am sure that this is really serious doubt as to the validity of the causes of the revolution. Nationalism is very difficult to suppress and even more difficult to understand sometimes.

Nationalism appears to be the only way to solve the problem. Sure we could go to war with and bomb, with a few well-placed bombs, make a canal out of the Panama. This would certainly eliminate the whole problem of the use of the Canal in Panama.

I fall to see the vital importance of even holding the Canal Zone. The canal were needed in case of war, then perhaps we would, in the end, be in a position of increasing the Canal Zone. The price the U.S. is paying in Latin America is not worth the returns accrued from holding the Zone.

Goldwater Consistently Inconsistent

It appears now that the Democrats never had to worry about Senator Barry Goldwater as a Presidential Candidate. At this time he would keep him talking and he'll talk himself out of the few remaining GOP supporters.

His verbal outbursts last week sank him even lower in popularity. He wouldn't settle for calling President Johnson a common highwayman, but that was a little far, he would say that even the most inexperienced politician would not say. He said the poor were nothing but a bunch of drunken fellows who had no gumption.

What would make Goldwater do this? Two things (1) He knew it would give him a little more publicity, and (2) He knew his hand-drawn had long ceased to roll and was willing to resort to anything to get it moving once more.

In the past Goldwater has been known for his ability to support both sides of the same issue and he would like to carry that policy into the White House. He is the only candidate that has something for everybody. If you are an integrationist, he has "done more for the Negro in Arizona than any other man."

If you are a segregationist or a states rights man, he has the same matter of school integration is left to the states under the tenth amendment. Since he first began to gather support for the Republican nomination, he has backtracked on issue after issue.

It is obvious even to the most uninformed that something has happened to his political philosophy since publication of "Conservative as a Conservative" in 1960. He has either contradicted himself or changed his mind on many issues. In practically every instance, the change has come since his "Presidential bandwagon" started rolling after Rockefeller's renunciation.

In civil rights, going back to 1956 he voted to eliminate the section of the bill authorizing the Attorney General to sue for desegregation. He voted in 1963 he stated that he now favored giving the Attorney General authority to sue for desegregation, which failed to pass.

Junior Counselors Introduce FSU To Freshmen, Transfers

By JANE HARRIS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Through the Junior Counselors an important part in the college life of women students at FSU, it is known about them by much of the student body.

Actually, Junior Counselors act as "sisters" to freshmen and transfer women students.

The counselors arrive at the freshmen dorms the day before the students arrive, and prepare for their arrival by putting up bulletin boards, placing useful campus maps in the dorms.

The day of the freshmen women's arrival the J.C.'s greet them and their parents in the dorm, and help make the new arrivals feel at home.

Each day and off-campus students are assigned to a J.C. at the beginning of the trimester, and meet with them to help make them feel at home in campus life.

The process of selecting J.C.'s begins with letters being sent to each student leaders, heads of houses, and religious and administrative personnel concerned with student life.

After the recommendations have been received, each girl recommends a J.C. by sending a letter asking if she is interested. The final selection is made from these replies.

The names are turned into two committees headed by Dean Lynn. One committee is composed of five senior women who were J.C.'s in each dorm. The second committee consists of residence counselors.

Once the applicants are agreed upon, the recommendations are submitted to Women's Senate for its approval. From 300 names submitted, 130 are selected.

Ninety-four of this number are used in freshmen dorms, and the rest are assigned to new transfer students, foundation houses, and off-campus and day students.

A list of about 30 additional women who are available for J.C. service is kept in case a J.C. must leave during the year.

The president of each freshman dorm is elected in the spring by the Junior Counselors from a slate of candidates presented to them. The top five candidates become dorm presidents, and can select the dorm they wish to preside over. It has been found that most of them choose the dorm where they lived during their freshman year.

Recommendations are now being received and the selection will continue until March. Any woman student who will be a junior or senior as of Sept. 1, 1964 and is interested may talk to the head of her house and have her name submitted.

ΔΧ Greek Girl

OF THE WEEK

Miss Jo Etta Lawrence, sponsored by Delta Gamma, is the Greek Girl of the week. She will gradually get the farmer out from under the control of government and subsidies. It might take four or five years. . . . Note that he no longer says prompt and final. He has been even more obviously contradictory in labor. He said in a 1963 Senate speech that he would never vote for a national right-to-work law because that should be left to the states. Looking through his voting record, however, one can find that in 1958 Senator Goldwater introduced a national right-to-work law himself.

She was alternate Miss Gymkans in 1964 and has a 3.8 average.

Her hobbies include art, swimming, modern ballet and dress design.

Miss Lawrence likes FSU because it's friendly. Asked what she thought of a woman for President, she replied, "I think the woman's place is in the home."

You can still be a Goldwater pusher. Just console yourself with the fact that you are supporting the most consistently inconsistent Presidential candidate on record.

Kramer Reports To Dean On Graduation Exercises

By BOB CORNET
Alumni Staff Writer

Luther Kramer, secretary of Internal Affairs, made a report to the Council of Deans Tuesday on students' request for the commencement ceremony.

The council took his report under advisement and appointed a committee to investigate this report.

The committee's report will be made before the publication of the next FSU catalog. Their decision will be binding over the next three trimesters.

Kramer said after the meeting, "It is only fair that all students and parents have an opportunity to be honored at a commencement ceremony at the time of their graduation and that is what we've been working for."

Kramer was reporting for a committee formed last June to study the commencement ceremony. The committee consisted of Dean R. R.

Oglesby, Tom Watts, executive secretary of the Alumni Association and Kramer.

The committee conducted four polls last year. From these polls they found that a majority of students would prefer three commencement exercises of some sort. The committee considered two regular ceremonies in April and August, and a banquet type in December to be the most feasible.

As further reasons for having three ceremonies, the committee claimed that such ceremonies represented a climax of four years of hard work and achievement by the student; that commencement is a revered college tradition; that it helps build a strong alumni program and finally that having only one ceremony would be discriminating against students not graduating in April.

The deans' committee will report their decision at the next Council of Deans meeting in February.

200th Game

By JOHN WOOD

As the sweaty FSU cagers walked into the training room at halftime last night with a 16 point lead under their belts, the first thing they noticed was a giant numeral chalked up on the Blackboard used in the diagramming of patterns.

The "it" which these men were after was the magic number 200, the number of victories coach J.K. "Bud" Kennedy now has won in his 16 years at FSU with the 95-77 victory.

Kennedy, who was hoisted onto the shoulders of his victorious players as the final buzzer of the Alabama game sounded, came to Tallahassee in 1948 from the Navy.

As the players gathered around the blackboard, Assistant Coach Hugh Durham drew a pattern in a little corner of the board to keep from erasing the numeral.

Durham began the halftime critique by remarking to the players, who had settled on the training tables, "we're in pretty good shape to win a ball game. We're playing pretty good basketball; moving well and shooting well."

Durham, who was doing the talking while Kennedy checked on the individual players, paced nervously. "We're moving the ball better," he observed. "That's what to do when you're up against a zone defense." "I doubt seriously if they zone us in the second half. I am anticipating a man-to-man arrangement. If they should happen to zone press, take the ball to the basket."

In the four years that Durham has been Assistant Coach, Kennedy and Durham have gone through the routine of the half time critique close to 55 times. Last night, because the team was on the way to winning victory number 200 for Kennedy, was special.

That dressing room scene last night was the climax of another year of molding men into athletes.

Tribe Rolls On 95 - 77

Coach "Bud" Kennedy won his 200th game at Florida State last night as he fired up Seminoles trounced a cold Alabama team before 3,000 fans at Tully Gym 95-77. The Tide, who lost to Florida 86-60 Monday night, could not match the strong outside shooting of Jerry Shirley, Pete Gonzalez and Gary Schull, making only 29 of 81 for .358 percent of their field goal tries.

Bama, who won the game played in Tuscaloosa on December 9 by 62-53, remained behind by as much as 21 points throughout the game. The Crimson Tide hit the court in for the night, while Sophomore Leakey compiled nine big points. The Seminole cagers have a week lay-over, meeting strong Furman, who beat West Virginia at home earlier this year, at home Saturday night, February 6.

Campus Sing Competition To Begin Tomorrow

By WALT MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

The fifteenth annual Campus Sing with 21 FSU organizations participating, begins tomorrow at 12 noon in Westcott.

This year's judges for the contest are Miss Betty Jane Grimm, Director of Women's Glee Club; Mr. Herman Gunter, Director of Choral Union; and Dr. Ramon E. Meyer, Director of Collegians and FSU Men's Glee Club.

Groups will be judged on tone, There are four men's groups with musicianship, diction, stage appearance and selections used. The grading system will be on a scale ranging from one to ten points. Tenpoints is the highest rating a group may earn.

Finalists, who consist of the top three women's groups and the top three men's groups, will perform again on Sunday at 2 p.m., when the winners will be chosen. Finalists will be notified by phone Saturday evening.

Campus Sing has been an annual affair since its founding in 1948. The Sing is co-sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, men's honorary fraternity, and Sigma Alpha Iota, women's honorary music sorority. Dr. Wiley Housewright, professor of music, is the founder of Campus Sing.

The following organizations listed are in the order that they will perform tomorrow: 1. Kellum Hall 2. Alpha Xi Delta 3. Army ROTC 4. Sigma Phi Epsilon 5. Cawthon Hall 6. Smith Hall 7. Kappa Delta 8. ## Mind Mirrors One's Life' According To Allen Thomson

... the mind is the mirror of one's life" was the subject of Dr. Allen Thomson's Mortar Board Last Lecture, "Through the Looking Glass," on Wednesday night in Opperman Hall.

Smith Answers Student Questions On Government

... small group attending last night's discussion on Student Government in Opperman Auditorium was invited to "live it out" with Student Body President Johnny Smith and other representatives of student government.

Smith said that the light attendance was fully expected by Student Government. "So many people mistrust his mind reflects. He sees the loss of individuality because everyone participates in groups; however, there must be a position where one exists beyond the group. For Thomson education is a time to think, to evaluate, and to assess the influence of the group.

There are three challenges to man today according to Thomson. Science, Communism and Christianity offer change to the present. This change has a paradox in all three cases.

Science has two aspects. It is a method of thinking of the universe as something other than supernatural, and it also seeks to deprive religion of the supernatural. The paradox of science is that it functions best in a lab away from the chaos of life, but it launches into a world which does not have this same control.

The challenge of Communism calls for a reevaluation of the spiritual and materialistic aspects of our society. Marxism's paradox is social and economic. The appeal of Communism has always been economic; however, there are below surface rumblings which show that the Utopia may not be all that is desired.

"I believe that the democratization of Russia will occur," stated Thomson. He explained this statement by reading a poem, "Freshness," written by a Soviet poet. The poet is asking the right of the human spirit to dissent. It is the power to dissent which Dr. Thomson feels will bring democracy.

Christianity offers change with the doctrines it advocates. Its paradox is that of faith versus reason or soul versus body.

Thomson feels that the place of the university in the present day is that of helping man to understand and place the ideal and real in perspective.

Education requires that the student develop several aspects of his being. It offers the student the challenge to go deeper—to the universal needs of the human spirit. It helps him develop a power of judgment. The student must learn to express his emotions and his thoughts; therefore, he must learn to write. A sense of sophisticated humor is a requirement.

Both student and university activity groups send their requests to the executive committee, which examines and trims them. Finally the requests are submitted to Student Senate for vote and final approval.

When asked how strong a voice Student Government had with university authorities, Smith replied, "We have a very pro student administration... they are very receptive to student needs."

any type of governmental structure ... are against anything of which they are not a part," he added. "The purpose of this meeting is to acquaint the student body with what goes on in their Student Government. No one can say that they did not have the opportunity to voice their grievances," Smith continued.

To get discussion moving Smith challenged his audience stating, "I'd like to hear some things you don't like about Student Government."

A question was raised as to the unequal representation in Student Senate that is given to the 6,000 off-campus students.

Smith referred to this as a "grey area" problem, where many off-campus students "don't care whether they're a part of it..."

FRESHMAN FLUNKIES

... were among the many men's organizations represented in last year's sing. Competition for this year's honors will begin at 12 noon tomorrow in Westcott Auditorium.

Today's Coffee Lecture Features Russell Weaver

Readings from "The Pooh Perplex," a tongue-in-cheek survey of research trends and criticism of the classics, will highlight today's English Coffee Hour.

Dr. Russell Weaver, professor of English, will read two essays from the book at the 4 p.m. social in the Westminister House. Written by Frederick C. Crews, an English professor at the University of California at Berkeley, "The Pooh Perplex" is a collection of essays dedicated to "all the hidden meanings" in A.A. Milne's "Winnie-the-Pooh."

Crews has captured and caricatured all of the well-known eccentricities of modern literary circles. Even a few of my own," says Weaver.

While the author calls his essays a "Freshman Casebook on Winnie-the-Pooh," Weaver sees the book as its author intended, "as a refreshing laugh at ourselves, the literary and academic critics found on all campuses."

"Take for example," he adds, "the two stereotypes used as pseudonyms for the authors of the two essays to be read at the Coffee Hour. The Theory and Practice of Bardic Verse (Notations on the hums of Pooh)," is 'authored' by P(aul) (Raymond) Honeycomb, Honeycomb, according to Crews, "never bothered to complete his formal education, and has found, in recent years, a residence at Cornell where he issues Orphic utterings for the graduates to furrow their fronts on."

"The second essay, 'Winnie and the Cultural Stream,' is the work of one Murphy A. Sweat, 'who wins every pull hands down when Yale undergraduates are asked to name their favorite teacher.'"

Campus Chest Pushes Goal

... of yesterday afternoon, Campus Chest had collected $800 towards its goal of $1,300. More funds are expected to be turned in by various groups on campus.

The campaign on Tuesday, Jan. 22, ended Jan. 28. The money collected and not turned in may be given to the committee by contacting Sue Sager, chairman.

Campus Chest this year will go to World University Service which has made a traditional donation, to the support of a 12-year-old Colombian and to the building fund of the Bahamas Rehabilitation Center.

Artistic will be presented to groups which fill their quota. Members of the Campus Chest Committee include besides the chairman, Sandra West, Kathy Dear, Susan Hill, Kim Killian, Helen Gray, Jo Ellen Reed and Annell Reed.

What To Do At FSU After Dark

General Problem

According to Drew Pearson's column in yesterday's "St. Petersburg Times," James H. Lane was duly elected to the Senate from the state of Kansas in 1861. However, a few weeks before assuming office, Lane was appointed a brigadier general in the volunteers which, according to Pearson, corresponds to today's reserves.

The governor of Kansas, upon learning of Lane's military appointment, declared his seat vacant, and the Senate Judiciary Committee ruled:

"In the opinion of the committee the office of brigadier general under the United States is incompatible with that of either House of Congress. By accepting the office of the major general, the sitting member, Mr. Lane, virtually resigned his seat in the Senate, and it became vacant at the time."

It just so happens that both Senator Barry Goldwater and Senator Strom Thurmond are major generals. Take it for what it is worth.

ELC

It's not an uncommon experience to hear someone complain about Tallahassee. It's done all the time. Either the weather is lousy or there is nothing to do—that's the way it goes—day after day after day. Weekends are especially bad, there is more time to complain about everything that bad the weatherman has saved up all week. This immediate discounts walking to the show, which has probably been on for two weeks and you have seen it last summer at home anyway. This cuts down the list of possible things to do—considerably.

There is always the good old TV set, boob tube or what you choose to call it. The only problem here is that television in Tallahassee is as about exciting as the back of a cereal box. Besides the abundance of excitement is the periodic "Don't attempt to tune your sets, we are experiencing technical difficulties from the network, they will be cleared up soon." An evening with the test pattern somehow seems to lack some kind of entertainment.

Again we delete another possibility from our never too long list of entertainment possibilities. As things begin to look really dim, we hear from somewhere across campus the dissonance of some group of discord artists. A dance, a dance, a word that encompasses a magnitude of gyrations and movements any of which however combined are right or at least acceptable. Dances are always fun, it's a great place to see people you have never seen and the drinks always manage to provide some kind of entertainment.

Never a good place to take a date and it's usually hard to find a guy that really wants to dance with you so the list grows still shorter. There is an Artist Series at Westcott, but that has been sold out town people for the last two weeks so that's out, too. They aren't having a campus movie because there is nowhere to show it during the Artist Series, and the same thing will probably be on downtown for a month or so anyway so the list grows still shorter. One of the professional fraternities is having a car wash, but you've had your car washed twice for lack of anything else to do.

It's always possible to call a guy and just go over and talk, but this idea is discarded after spending an hour attempting to get past a busy signal.

That leaves two things, the Boy Scouts are having a campout or you could call the time series all night and see how many times the temperature changes until you get utterly fed up and go to bed. Well first of all, you aren't a Scout and never were much for outdoors anyway; and second, someone has torn the phone off the wall making it extremely hard to call anyone.

Well, that takes care of the many times you have heard you see you pick up today's Democrat and read last week's news and then the rack. Wouldn't it be nice if you didn't have to study?

Editorial Page Correction

On Thursday, January 23, 1964, the "Flambeau" printed a letter by George A. Sausel entitled "A Local Man's Own History of Smoking." The "Flambeau" would like to correct a proofing error in the quote of the second paragraph.

Instead of "I started smoking in 1912, smoked cigars moderately often and on . . ." read "I started smoking in 1912, smoked 14 years, and quit in 1926. I smoked a pack of cigarettes every day and in addition to that consumed a can of pipe tobacco every 10 days. I smoked cigars moderately often and on . . ."

SG Ignores Student Body

To the Editor:

I would like to note a small point of confusion that is apparently to be used as a pivotal issue or excuse for maintaining class officers.

According to the Kramer Report, if I remember correctly, homecoming activities and alumni affairs were not in the past "duties" of the class officers. If by the establishment of an Inter-Class Council and the addition of these two chores, a sinecure is given some mental function Mr. Kramer's study can hardly be called a hasty decision on his part or on the part of the students who voted for the abolition.

I think it's noble of various student government leaders to go over the heads of the student body to protect us from ourselves, but I hardly think that it is necessary.

Speaking as part of the apathetic mass, I see no reason to elect officers who ignore their electorate. It's a naive overstatement to say, "Shut up or elect those who will represent you as you want . . ."

I trust this point is too obvious to warrant discussion. I think those of us who try to be students and work for a living on the side get a bit ill of the pile of megalomaniacs who serve no useful purpose. I think the non-mandatory mandate is proof enough of this.

Respect is a hard thing to come by. I only wonder if the "leaders" of student government know this, or if they even care. Class officers are expendable, but the student body is not.

Nice Try

The other day in Student Senate, Senator Gene Stearns introduced a bill that would limit the number of people from an "interest group" in a dorm, or off-campus party delegation.

We don't know Mr. Stearns, but we do know he must be a newcomer to the "land of pettiness." The bill is a perfectly reasonable solution to a rather critical situation in student government.

It doesn't have a chance of passing.

Better join them Mr. Stearns, you aren't going to beat them.

Asserts Dr. Frank

America Is Result Of Many Cultures

By KAY HUFFMASTER
Flambeau Staff Writer

All Americans are immigrants. This fact was pointed out by Dr. Elke Frank of the FSU Government Dept., the third guest lecturer in the current American Studies Lecture Series. In being a nation of immigrants, the energies, skills and hard work of numerous cultures have led to what is known as the American Way.

There have been disadvantages in times of crisis when Americans of one background tend to be suspicious of those of another background. The tendency of different groups to band together often has been the source of regionalism.

Becoming a citizen of the United States can happen by one of three ways: by the soil (being born in the U.S.), by the blood (parents are U.S. citizens), or by naturalization. A naturalized citizen is entitled to all the rights and privileges of a natural born one except that of becoming President.

In order to reduce the number of immigrants, immigration quotas were set up, the first being in 1921.

However, Miss Frank stated, there has never been a quota for any Latin American countries as a part of the Good Neighbor policy.

In summation of her lecture, Miss Frank stressed that immigration has primarily been a source of strength and has served more to unify than to divide the country.

Weekly Interview Schedule Given By Placement Office

The schedule for placement interviews for next week has been announced by the Placement Office. In order to be eligible for these interviews, it is necessary to establish a file in the Placement Office, room 8, Longmire. Schedules for interviews can be signed on the Bulletin Board in the office.

On Monday, Smith, Bralley and Johnson will interview accounting majors.

Tuesday three companies will conduct interviews.

Smith, Bralley and Johnson will have their second meeting of the week.

The TVA will be interviewing students seeking jobs as mathematicians, title examining, data processing analysts, industrial hygienists, land appraisers and statisticians.

The Citizens and Southern National Banks will meet with business and liberal arts majors interested in banking careers.

On Wednesday, the Royal-Globe Insurance will interview business and liberal arts majors. Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company will interview those seniors, juniors or graduates in the fields of business, liberal arts, economics, science, law, accounting, education and others.

On Thursday, Royal-Globe Insurance will have a second session of interviews, and the U.S. Naval Air Development Center will meet with physics and engineering science majors. Arthur Anderson and Co. will interview accounting majors on Thursday and Friday.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: BEN COOK

Because of Ben Cook (B.I.E., 1958, M.B.A., 1961), businessmen in five southern states now benefit from new Dial Teletypewriter Service. Ben, a Traffic Supervisor with Southern Bell in Atlanta, supervised the mechanizing of the Operating Center that serves Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Ben qualified for his latest position by skillfully handling a variety of other assignments given him by the company. On one, he supervised three groups of instructors who train customers in the use of new telephone services. On another, he was responsible for personnel administration and planning involving a $250,000 yearly payroll. On all, he showed ability that will take him far with Southern Bell.

Ben Cook, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Episcopal Head To Visit Here

The Reverend Philip T. Zabriske, executive secretary of the Division of Colleges and Universities of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will give a guest sermon Sunday at the Chapel of the Resurrection.

Zabriske will speak at the 9:30 a.m. service. He is in Tallahassee for the purpose of visiting Episcopal Centers at FSU and FAMU.

Announcements

No sailing instruction will be available at the Reservation on Saturday or Sunday because of the Mid-Winter meeting of the Southeastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association to be held at FSU this weekend.

Curtis Corbin, Negro candidate for the Tallahassee City Commission will speak at the Liberal Forum Sunday at 7:30 p.m. All interested persons may attend the meeting, which will be held in the Unitarian Chapel, 938 Wildwood Drive. Refreshments will be served after the program.

All members of the Student Alumni Bureau are asked to contact Dan Wallace today at Ext. 3444.

Students interested in working on the Executive Board of the Pre-Law Society are requested to meet in Room 202 of the Longmire Bldg. at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Organizational work for the trimester will be the subject of the Pre-Law meeting.

Student I.D. cards are now available to students in the Office of the Registrar, Room 102-A Westcott, at the information counter. Temporary I.D. cards must be brought to the office at the same time that a student claims his new card.

Areas Of Nuclear Engineering Rise To Meet New Challenges

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Feature Writer

"We are seeking knowledge for knowledge's sake," states Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, Chairman of the Nuclear Science Advisory Committee.

The fields of Nuclear Science and Engineering are rapidly growing. To meet these new challenges, FSU is doing its part to train graduate students who will serve as tomorrow's leaders in nuclear and radiation research. FSU is one of two universities in the country which has a 12 million volt Tandem Van de Graaff Accelerator. The other is the University of Wisconsin.

The Tandem Van de Graaff helps to answer such probing questions as the amount of energy which particles contain and what kind of radiation is given off when the initial particle strikes a nucleus. Recently, Dr. J.D. Fox and Dr. D. Robson ran a series of tests on the analog states of nuclei. Dr. Robert Davis and his graduate students discovered that accelerated alpha particles could split a nuclei, opening new doors to nuclear projection. Dr. Russell Johnson and Dr. Bruno Linder, by using radiation to strike a nucleus, produced new nuclei and isomers of complicated molecules.

Perhaps to the unfamiliar ear, these discoveries mean little or nothing, but to the men of free science they are new break-throughs to understanding nature. According to Sheline, "A university scientist does not aim for a goal to solve a practical problem (as a cheaper method of gas for a rocket fuel) but rather to understand the problems of nature, the structure of matter, the sources and forces of nature. Out of the study, of these forces may come the knowledge to lead to the solution of problems. Any knowledge has a potential application."

The Nuclear Science Advisory Committee is an administrative group made up of representatives of the various departments to coordinate the programs of the individual scientists and departments involved. The committee is responsible for budget preparation, allocation of funds, space allocations, fellowship awards and the establishishment of lines of communication and coordination between the research programs of the participating faculty. Each department is independent of the other yet working together for full cooperation. "The individual scientist maintains his autonomy under this system," says Sheline.

There are many research projects completed and now under way. The Biology Dept. is involved in the study of biological effects of ionizing and non-ionizing radiations on genetic systems, cell division, and cell function. The research program in Radiation Chemistry is concerned with gaining a better understanding of nuclear structure. Food and Nutrition is interested in new methods of preserving. The Geology Dept. is concentrating on the problem of the disposal of radioactive wastes. In Nuclear Physics they are performing many significant nuclear experiments. The Psychology Dept. utilizes the three MEV electron accelerator to help establish new forms of motivating stimuli. The School of Business offers programs in the management of nuclear oriented activities. The department of mathematics puts to use the IBM 709 electronics digital computer.

FSU Team Finds Culture Influences On Testing Results

An FSU research team, whose findings support those of previous researchers that cultural factors enter strongly into intelligence test scores, has developed the Southeast's first yardstick for measuring Negro intelligence and achievement levels.

Dr. Wallace A. Kennedy of FSU's Human Development Clinic and associates created the new statistical ruler from studies and tests on 1,800 elementary school children in Negro schools of the Southeast. The research team used the 1960 Revision of the Stanford-Binet Intelligence Test and the California Achievement Test in their study. Negro studies have been conducted on an ample sample of the Negro population, using modern revisions of these common tests, say the authors in a monograph just published by the Society for Research in Child Development.

Principal purpose of the survey, financed by the U.S. Office of Education, was to establish averages which counselors could use in comparing a Negro child's performance with that of his peers. This comparison will later determine his individual strengths and weaknesses in planning his future educational programs.

Kennedy and two of his doctoral students in the Human Development Clinic, Vernon van de Riet and James C. White, Jr., administered the tests in the 1960-61 school year after selecting a sample of children from six systems representative of metropolitan, urban and rural areas in each state.

Most previous studies have shown Negroes typically score lower on the scales established on other cultures, and nearly all investigators have concluded that environmental differences play the major role in this difference, the psychologists said.

"The greater the difference in cultural role, the greater the difference will be in intelligence test scores," they report in the 112-page summary of the research.

"It was concluded, therefore, that the present need is not for further evidence of differences, but rather for broad normative data on the Negro population to make intelligence test findings on this group meaningful."

"The clinician in the field has learned that a Negro child who scores in spite of the cultural deficits facing him, must be a superior child, able to surmount those enormous difficulties."

The research team describes the lack of differences in intelligence scores from grade-level to grade-level and from rural to metropolitan students as "surprising and difficult to explain." The most serious they found, occurred in the trend of Negro test scores to decrease proportion with age, rather than increase.

Greeks Prepare For Campus Sing, Sigma Chi Derby

BOB RACKLEFF
Staff Greek Editor

Highlighting Greek activities this year have been preparations for the Phi Chi Derby and Campus Sing. The Sigma Chi's will hold their annual Derby on Saturday, February 14, in the hand field south of Tully featuring Daisy Mae and Lil' Mae. The theme of this year's derby will be "Dogspatch, U.S.A." The sorority will participate in events, with the mystery event being the best ever. Points will be awarded for first, second and third places, and the sorority with the highest total of points will win the overall trophy. Tedious rehearsals by the fraternities, sororities, and dorms will end tomorrow in the annual Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Campus Sing competition at Westcott Auditorium.

The three top singing groups in the Men's and Women's categories will perform at Westcott in the finals Sunday.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA— This week the Alpha Chi's enjoyed a dessert party with the Sig Eps. Wednesday the Alpha Chi's welcomed Linda Kurth as their new pledge.

ALPHA DELTA PI — Special guests for International Week were Rosemary Berkowitz, Venezuela; William Thompson, New Zealand; and Ellen Ulfansdottir, Iceland. In celebration for the new pledges, a slumber party was held at the ADPI house last Friday night.

The pledges are preparing for Valentine's Day by selling "conversation hearts" as their project. ALPHA OMEGA PI — The AOPPI pledges and pledges had a workshop and picnic at Meyers Park Sunday. Dr. James Gould and family were guests for Sunday dinner.

ALPHA PHI— Jo Ellen Reed has been appointed intramurals chairman. Debbie Allen was recently installed as president of Panhellene.

An enjoyable social was held Wednesday with the Phi Tau's.

At the Phi's meeting, Stan Alexander was presented as Ivy Man, and a miniature trophy was given Ed Dumond, outgoing Ivy Man. Linda Passero is a new Phi pledge.

ALPHA XI DELTA — The Alpha Xi's enjoyed an exchange dinner with the Lambda Chi's Wednesday. At a joint pledge-active meeting Monday evening, the pledges presented the chapter with a console stereo.

CHI OMEGA — New Chi O initiates are Linda McWhirter, Susan West, Flo Humphreys, Kitty McChase, Millie Ball, Pam Koch, Gail Gardner, Payton Wright, Patti Carlisle, Dot Hagan, Janie Wulf, Nita Martin, Carol Rankin, Margaret Allison, Ann Claire DeVane, Nell Ball, Cicely

Walker, and Wynn Williams.

The Chi O's entertained two inter-collegiate students this week for dinner.

DELTA CHI — New pledges are Bob Hatch, Bob Figueroa, and Gregg Hollman. A second party will be held at the Delta Chi house tomorrow evening. The Little Sisters of the White Carnation will hold a meeting at the house Wednesday afternoon.

DELTA DELTA DELTA — The Tri Delta's will honor their seniors with a Pansy Breakfast at 8 a.m. Sunday. A formal dinner was held Monday before installation of officers, and guests included Mrs. Sarah Robinson, Panhellene advisor and Tri Delta alum.

DELTA GAMMA — The DG's enjoyed a social Wednesday with the Pi Kapp's, and entertainment was provided by the DG pledge class. Tomorrow the DG's will have an exchange lunch with the Sigma Chi's followed by a social at the DG house. DELTA TAU DELTA — New Delta pledges are Ted Williams, Selby Waxman, Mike Sandler, Paul Hernandez, Jim Rushing, Joe Petko, Jack Waterworth, Mickey Austin, Willy Meggs, and Joe Butler.

DELTA ZETA — Two new DZ pledges are Peggy Brown and Judy Kelley. A standards meeting was held Wednesday evening.

GAMMA PHI EPSILON — New pledge class officers are: Sharon Whaley, president; Jean Osborn, vice president; Jane Fenn, treasurer; and Nancy Wright, secretary.

At the Initiation Banquet, an honored guest was Jim Olson, the Gamma Phi's Dream Guy. The outstanding pledge was Peggy Selby, while Barbara Stewart received the pledge scholarship award.

Appointed officers are: Carol Poul activities; Val Barnes, alumnae relations; Margie Barr, Crescent correspondent; Melissa Phipers, executive; Marcia Traband, first marshal; Liz Bell, flowers and gifts; Claudia Fackelman, historian; Kay Wells, house president; Sandy Adams, intramurals; Dotcy Cygon, Panhellene executive; Joan Sanders, parliamentarian; Beth Wales, philanthropy; Marian Fabry, publicity; Marcy Singletary, rituals; Carole Lyman, sergeant-at-arms; and Claudia Brewster, song leader.

New KA pledges are Dan Durnette, Tom Carter, George Dempsey, Mike Huey, Paul Jallier, Jay MacMathews, Mike Quinn, John Robinson, and Wendell Wheeler.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA — The Theta's celebrated Founder's Day and their 94th anniversary, and are looking forward to the annual Theta Pi Phi party at Silver Lake tonight. Sunday will feature pre-initiation kite flying on Landis Green.

KAPPA DELTA — The KD's enjoyed having the Kappa Sig's over for dessert Wednesday.

KAPPA GAMMA — New officers appointed in the last week are: Susan Harrell, cultural chairman; Kathryn McCough, intramurals; Sherry Harper, personnel vice; and Pam Willis, personnel member at large.

The Kappa's last weekend entertained three sisters from the Univ. of Miami and one from Duke. Nobuko Nakamura, an exchange student from Japan was also a guest.

The Tri Delta's and Kappa pledges classes got together Saturday afternoon for a social. Claire Stanton, past Kappa president, was awarded and engraved silver tray in appreciation for her services to the chapter.

Two more Kappa pledges are Kay Ketchum and Mary Lee Phillips. KAPPA SIGMA — Kappa Sig's new pledges are Mike Johnson, Don Grieselmeier, Jim Falke, Joe Lobratto, Barry Foster, Bill Duncan, and Bob Jodwin.

A combo party will be held at the house with the Chi Delta's. The Pikes will be house guests. The Kappa Sig's enjoyed a dessert with the KD's Wednesday where the Mertrynians entertained.

The Salvation Army was provided with a day's work by the neophyte class as their "Operation Brotherhood" project last week. LAMBDA CHI ALPHA — Newly installed Lambda Chi's are James Dearing, Daniel Dillon, Gerald Duff, Kenneth Gless, Walter Hunt, Edward Krohn, Darnold Norman, Nichols, Woodruff Norman, Jr., Charles Pottoff, Jr., Walter Schaeffer, Jr., David Snyder, and Marcus Williams II. Dean of Men Donald Loucks became a faculty initiate.

The brothers enjoyed an exchange dinner with the Alpha Xi's Wednesday, and are looking forward to an exchange with the Tri Delta's next week. There will be a party at the house tomorrow night featuring a Japanese theme and music by the House Wreckers.

PI BETA PHI — New Pi Phi initiates are Pam Goodman, Gale Hester, Joy McKinney, Joyce Michel, Margaret Moore, Kathy Nathenson, Pam Pierson, Cheryl Rich, Susan Rickert, Joann Roman, Anne Sherrill, Mike Schiestinger, Liz Sims, Lynn Webb, and Linda Williams. Miss Hester, Reynolds Hall dorm counselor, was a guest at dinner yesterday.

The annual Pi Phi Theta party will be held tonight at Silver Lake with music by the Mystics.

PI KAPPA ALPHA — Initiation took place Sunday and the new PIKA brothers are Larry Barber, Eddie Blanton, Allen Bush, Lewis DeLaura Johnny French, Ray Hayes, Rick Johns, Frank Loesser, George Mehan, Jim Montano, and Van Williams.

president; Larry Sartin, vice president; Gary Bovine, secretary; and Rob Parrish, treasurer.

PHI MU — Linda Adams was welcomed as a new pledge. Saturday morning the pledges were taken on a trip to the reservation where they entertained the actives. Following the outing, the pledges were brought back to the house where they were treated to breakfast.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON — Ronnie May, Rick Millner, Rick Saunders, and Don Kelley are new SAE pledges. The SAE's and the Alpha Gals had an exchange dinner Wednesday night.

The pledge class is planning a fish fry dinner for February as their pledge project.

SIGMA CHI — New pledges are Joe Zant, Carl Benke, Bill Glenn, Tim Richards, Peter Dowling, Rudy Meyer, John Slayton, Hugh McElwee, and Bob Williams.

Following the Sig Derby next Saturday will be a combo party at Silver Lake featuring the Checkmates.

SIGMA KAPPA — The Sigma Kappa pledge class will hold a car wash tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Bob's Esso Service Station. The pledges will charge one dollar per car.

Virginia Douchan was awarded the pledge of the week bracelet. A dessert party with the Theta Chi's was enjoyed Wednesday evening.

The pledge class officers are: Hank Collier, president; Dick Acosta, vice president; Dick Acosta, vice president; Bill Sult, secretary; Wayne Childers, treasurer; and Jon Cokes, sergeant-at-arms.

There will be a pledge-active softball game next Sunday afternoon. The Snakes enjoyed a social with the Theta's Wednesday.

New Sigma Nu pledges are Ivy Broughton, Bill Ackerman, Mark Cohen, and Bob Chambers.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON — Welcomed as new pledges were Bob Troemel, John Carulus, Tom Hyde, Murray Garrett, Chuck Franco, and Ed Ulmer. The pledge class chose Jim Harrison as the brother of the week.

At last weekend's combo party, Miss Blair Albert was presented as the Sig Ep Winter Sweetheart. The Checkmates will furnish the music for a sloppy party at the house tonight, with further entertainment provided by the Burgundy Singers. Campus Sing will highlight tomorrow's activities.

The Sig Ep's had a ball at a dessert party with the Alpha Chi's Wednesday evening. On Sunday the Little Sisters of the Golden Heart will hold their first organizational meeting.

Preparations for the annual Sig Ep Calendar Girl Contest are now in full swing at the house.

THETA CHI — Wednesday night the Theta Chi's were guests of the Sigma Kappa's for a dessert party. Tomorrow night will feature the annual "Prohibition From" (this will be a closed party).

New Theta Chi pledges are Richard Booth, Hull Carr, Henry Erickson, Brad Gasque, Martin Gomon, Benjamin Harper, William Hinson, Hans Rinehals, Raymond Ritter, Thomas Schlegel, and Randall Stout.

ZETA TAU ALPHA — Barbecued chicken for $9.99 will highlight the menu at the pledge class' Western Chowdown at the Zeta house Sunday from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Entertainment will be provided by the "ZTA Pickers."

In recognition of International Student Week, the Zeta's had Mr. and Mrs. Laszlo Outay as dinner guests. Mr. Outay gave an after-dinner talk on his native Hungary.

New officers are: Linda Reed, ritual; Lynn Reibe, corresponding secretary; Polly Donigan, house president; Gail Hardman, social chairman; Edna Moore, standards chairman; Kay Lewis, activities chairman; Linda McGuire, publicity chairman; Ann Corley, scholarship chairman; Sharon Griffin, music; Mike Buehl, intramurals; and Judy Loucks, Panhellenic representative.

The Zeta's enjoyed a social with the ATO's.

The Graduate Record Examination and Teacher Education Examination Program will be held at 1:30 p.m. The examinations will also be given on Feb. 1, Sat., at 8 a.m.

There will be a Biological Science Seminar with Dr. Martin Roeder, of the Univ. of North Carolina, Greensboro, on the "Cancer and the Respiration of Fishes" at 3 p.m. in 228 Conradi.

Brogmus States Lecture Tonight

When oceanographers talk about the weather, it's generally in terms of evaporation and heat on the ocean's surface, and Friday evening's public lecture by the German scientist, Dr. Willi Brogmus, will cover both. Brogmus, nearing the end of a day visit to Florida State University, will give the lecture at 8 p.m. in Room 101 of the Meteorology Bldg. today.

Proposing some revisions in present methods of measuring these conditions on oceanic surfaces, Brogmus will discuss the effects that heat transfer and evaporation have on known weather cycles and weather predictions.

The internationally known German scientist is currently the guest of FSU's Oceanographic Institute, where he has been lecturing to classes as a visiting professor.

Dip In Dixie' Theme Highlights New Tarpon Club Presentation

RAYLE LANSFORD
Flambeau Staff Writer

The pool is a stage if you are one of the 30 girls who swim to the Tarpon Club.
The annual show "Dip In Dixie" begins on Feb. 19-22, tension is being and practice is every night during weekends.
The atmosphere of the deep South is used in this year's production of "Dip In Dixie." The acts done in rhythmic strokes set to music. The stage setting, costumes, lighting and music will carry out this southern theme.

One of the feature acts will spotlight the "Minnows," which is the pledge class, doing a minstrel to bongo music. There will be a romantic duet to the theme from "Gone With The Wind." The traditional "president's solo" with Pat Anderson will be a gay, light-hearted number about Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer. The finale features the entire club and will be a composition worked out to "Dixie."

The officers of Tarpon are: President, Pat Anderson; Vice President, Linda Gossett; Secretary, Ginger Channing; Treasurer, Terry Lord; and Historian, Judy Lester.

Each member of Tarpon must be dedicated to the club and skilled in swimming techniques and body grace. Competition is high and each girl considers it an honor to be first, a "Minnow," and then a "Tarpon."

In April this year eight members will attend the annual International Aquatic Association meeting in Wisconsin. The founder of this Association, Beulah Gundling, five time winner of the Amateur Athletic Union Award for synchronized swimming, recently visited the Tarpon Club.

Lecture Tour Begins Sunday

Seventy-five FSUers leave Sunday for a series of lectures, gallery tours, art movies and exhibitions in Sarasota at the 17th Annual Symposium on Art sponsored by Ringling Museum, FSU, the University of South Florida and the University of Florida.

The opening day's program on next Monday, will have two FSU-sponsored lecturers. They are Nelson I. Wu, assistant professor of art history, Yale University, author of "Chinese and Indian Architecture," and Horst W. Janson, professor of art history, New York University, whose recently published "History of Art" is used as a college textbook.

Other lecturers will be Albert E. Eisen, Stanford University; Friedel Druhas, University of South Florida; Ruth Wedgwood Kennedy, Smith College; Herschel B. Chipp, University of California, Berkeley.

Exhibitions on view in Sarasota during the symposium will be: Gabriel Kohn, sculpture, collages, drawings and prints lent by the Marlborough-Gerson Gallery Inc.; Ringling Museum of Art; Austrian Expressionists, water colors, drawings and prints lent by the Galerie St. Etienne, New York; Sarasota Art Association, Civic Center; and two larger galleries and St. Armands Gallery.

For the second time in the history of the symposium, a jazz concert is included. The Orleans Jazz Combo of Sweet Emma Barrett will perform Thursday evening (Feb. 6) in the Museum courtyard.

College students facing spring or summer graduation will find many examinations open for entry-level professional work with various state agencies, according to Florida Merit System Director, Gerald L. Howell.

Examinations requiring academic study to the level of a Bachelors degree will be held in the fields of accounting, administration, engineering, public health, and social work. Candidates planning to graduate in 1964 may apply by Feb. 19 for admission to March 7 state-wide examinations, the director stated. Qualifying merit examination grades rank applicants for consideration with agencies served by the Merit System, whereby five top available names are referred to an agency for occupying vacancies.

Offices of the State Employment Service maintain job outlines helpful to students seeking fields related to their educational attainment; likewise, these offices provide application blanks, or they may be obtained by writing the Florida Merit System, Doyle Carlton Bldg., Tallahassee. March examinations in the accounting field include Accountant I, Excise Tax Auditor I, and Public Accounts Auditor I. Administrative positions covered are Administrative Assistant I, Commodity Distribution Representative, Computer Systems Procedures Analyst I, Librarian I, Personnel Technician I, Purchasing Agent I, Statistician I, and Unemployment Insurance Account Examiner I.

Engineering examinations include Industrial Safety Representative I and Junior Civil Engineer.

GEORGE PARKER, a FSU Sailing Association member, rigs his FJ while waiting for the Southeastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association Meeting, which begins tomorrow.

Gymnasts Meet Tech Without Culbertson

FSU's undefeated Gymkana meets Georgia Tech this Saturday in a Gymnastic competition beginning at 2:30 p.m. in Tully Gym. No admission will be charged.

Georgia Tech will only meet FSU Gymkana under their own school's eligibility rules which means that Jon Culbertson, FSU's Olympic candidate, and Roy Schroeder are not allowed to compete. However, Culbertson will be giving exhibitions in the six Olympic events. His scores will be flashed but not added to FSU's tally.

Bill Davis, top trampolinist, is also out due to an ankle injury.

Gymkana members seeing action will be Mitch Weinstock, entered in six events, Bob Granling, Guy Atkinson, Warren Dickor, John Van Nostrand, Parker Jones, Bill Bell, and Jill Goodman.

Coach Rick Miller says that without Culbertson, who is good for 40-50 points, this should be the closest meet of the season as Tech has most of their gym team from last year, including their top gun, Bob Snyder. In order to win the Seminole are going to have to hit on all events. It should be neck and neck all the way.

FSU meets the University of Florida on Saturday, Feb. 15, at 2:30 p.m. in Tully Gym.

Powell Joins Offense Staff

Don Powell, a 1956 graduate of FSU, will return to his alma mater as an assistant coach working with the offense.

Powell was an outstanding tackle and co-captain of the 1955 Seminole gridgers, back when the Seminoles were just breaking into the big time and still played such teams as Villanova and Tampa. The Seminoles were 5-5-0 in '55.

Powell comes from Wichita University, where he served as assistant line coach from 1962-63, after three years at Chamberlain High in Tampa.

He was the co-captain with Bob Creshaw, who was later killed in a plane wreck.

DON POWELL, who recently joined the Seminole coaching staff, is shown in his playing days. Powell was co-captain and tackle of the 1955 Seminoles, who went 5-5-0.

Sailers Meet Tomorrow

SEISA Comes To FSU

Florida State University will be host on Saturday to representatives of 15 institutions in the Southeastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association (SEISA).

About 100 persons are expected for the weekend meeting, most sessions of which will be held in the Education Building. The Executive Committee will meet at 9:30 a.m. Saturday and the Board of Governors at 10 a.m., following a welcome by FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell.

Tom Evans, a graduate assistant in the FSU Institute of Molecular Biophysics and SEISA scheduling coordinator, said Terry Anderlini of Tulane University will preside at a commodore and vice-commodore workshop at 10:15 a.m. and Mrs. Maxine Evans at a secretary and treasurer workshop at 10:30 a.m.

At 11:30 a.m. Luther Evans, sports writer from the Miami Herald, will lead a discussion of regatta procedure and publicity. At 1:15 p.m., Warren Bailey, well known boat designer, will speak on hull design, and at 2:30 p.m. Charles Morgan, widely known yachtsman, will speak on racing tactics.

At a 3:45 p.m. meeting the 1964 regattas will be set, SEISA, which is a member of the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association of North America, also will elect new officers during the all-day meeting.

Present officers are Roger Straub, president; Peter Ware, vice president; and John A. Taylor, secutive secretary.

The FSU Sailing Association, organized only last fall, will be host for the meeting, first mid-winter meeting of the organization. Other member clubs expected to be represented are as follows:

Vanderbilt Sailing Club, Nashville; St. Petersburg Junior College, and Triton Sailing Club, Florida Presbyterian College, both of St. Petersburg; Georgia Tech Sailing Club, Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta; LSU Sailing Club, Baton Rouge; LSUO Sailing Club, Orleans; Rollins College Sailing Club, Winter Park; Viking Junior College, St. Johns River Junior College, Palatka; Spring Hill Sailing Club, Mobile; Stetson University Sailing Club, Deland; Tulane University Sailing Club, New Orleans; Gator Sailing Club, University of Florida, Gainesville; University of Georgia Sailing Club, Athens.

Non-member clubs expected to be represented are as follows: University of South Florida Sailing Club, Tampa; University of Mississippi Sailing Club, Coral Gables; County Junior College, South Miami.

Co-Ed Dance Intramurals To Be Offered

For the first time men and women's recreation associations will sponsor co-ed dance intramurals. Practices will begin Feb. 10 and continue through Feb. 24 when competition will start. Couples may practice Mon. through Thurs. nights from 7:00-8:00 p.m. in the dance studio in the Women's Gym.

Everyone must do a compulsory dance (to be announced) and two optional dances which may be chosen from the following: waltz, fox trot, swing, rhumba, tango, cha cha, merengue, mambo, and samba. Couples must have to represent any organization, and may choose anyone for a partner.

In order for competition to be held in any dance, at least five couples must participate. Five couples will be chosen as finalists at the end of competition. They will be judged on rhythm, style, and types of variations; difficulty will be taken into consideration. Awards will be given for finalists. All students who are interested in dancing are urged to join in on the fun.

Women's intramurals are once again off to a fast start as participants in bowling, table tennis, badminton are practicing for tournament play which began this week.

W.R.A. will sponsor an invitational tournament day March 21. All women students are eligible to participate for FSU, against four out-of-town schools. Practices and tryout for FSU will be announced. Competition will be in basketball, volleyball, tennis, bowling and badminton.

FSU Musicians Plan Tour, Opera, Recitals

Band Tour

The FSU Symphonic Band leaves Sunday on an annual three-day tour with concerts scheduled in Georgia, Alabama and Northwest Florida.

The 39-member band is made up of music students who are pursuing degrees in music or music education. Dr. Manley Whitcomb is director of the band.

The first concert will be played on Saturday at the Roman Amphitheater by Hector Berlioz, "Exultate" from Sebastian Ballez by Giuseppe Menotti, Dances from the "Fancy Free" by Leonard Bernstein and the finale of "West Side Symphony" by Robert J. West.

Concerts for "Solo-Grand Duo Concerto Op. 48," by Von Weber will be given by Harry Schmidt, clarinetist. An assistant professor of music at FSU, Schmidt has played with both the Columbus and Miami Symphony Orchestras.

He has served as assistant and first professor of clarinet in the University of Ohio State, Brigham Young, Polytechnic, August burn and the Taipei Political Staff College. Schmidt has recently returned from an assignment in the Far East under the International Exchange Program.

Clifford Nielsen will be trumpet soloist for "Solo-Dramatic Essay" by Clifton Williams. Instructor of trumpet at FSU, he is a former director of the Marching and Concert Bands of Brigham Young University.

'Carmen'

"Carmen," which is usually considered the most popular opera of all time, will be offered in the original Opera-Comique version when FSU presents the Bizet opera on Feb. 28-29.

When the opera was moved to the Paris Opera House several years after its premiere at the Comique in 1875, sung recitatives were substituted for the spoken dialogue, and this revised form has been used almost universally since.

Director Richard Collins said the FSU production in Westcott Auditorium will use the original version because it preserves some of the dramatic effect lost in later versions. The opera will be in English. Collins also announced the addition of Harry Dunscomb to the staff of the Opera Guild for the production of "Carmen." Dunscomb will be musical coach for the production. Robert Sedore will conduct the orchestra for the performance and Karl Mohr is serving as assistant director.

Dunscomb, a cellist who joined the teaching staff of the School of Music last June, was musical director of the Alumni Players at Grand Rapids, Mich., for three years before joining the faculty here. The Michigan group was devoted to the performance of Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

"Carmen," which is considered to have about everything a good opera should have—memorable tunes, strong and believable characters and much dramatic action—has been presented more than 2,200 times by Opera-Comique alone.

Despite "Carmen's" subsequent success, the severity of the critics and the shocked reception by the public are said to have hastened Bizet's death at the age of 37, three months after the premiere.

Piano Recital

Opening with the Bach "Sonata in G Major" and a Stravinsky sonata, Norma and Leonard Mastrogiacomo, will present a duo-piano recital in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m. tonight.

Saint-Saens' "Scherzo, Opus 87," which is often difficult to achieve in two piano performances, will also be on the program. "Russian Easter," "Tears," "A Night of Love" and "Barcarole" from the "Fantasy Opus 5" by Rachmaninoff will be the final numbers on the program.

Both Norma and Leonard Mastrogiacomo have studied abroad and have played in numerous concerts. Norma Mastrogiacomo served as assistant company pianist for the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in New York. She received her Master of Music degree at Northwestern University.

Leonard Mastrogiacomo has toured Europe under the State Department sponsorship, and is a graduate of Julliard School of Music.

NORAD Band

One of the finest military stage-dance orchestras will present a concert tonight at 8:30 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

The North American Air Defense Command Band (NORAD) won the "Honorary Best Band" award in 1960, and is the only military orchestra ever to receive the award.

Featured in the concert tonight will be "name" musicians who have performed with well-known dance bands before entering the armies of Canada and the U.S.

Solo pianist for the concert will be Sgt. David Carlson, who played with the Lawrence Walk Band and with numerous West Coast night clubs.

Other well-known performers include trombonist Phil Wilson (Woody Herman and Jimmy Dorsey bands); trombonist Jim Trimble (Lawrence Walk's band); trumpeter Paul Fontaine (Woody Herman); trombonist Bob Jenkins (Ralph Marterie and Woody Herman).

Filing Will Begin Tomorrow For All Student Body Offices

WALF MARTINDALE
Staff Writer

Filing for the primary student body elections starts tomorrow.

All students wishing to run for a student government office can begin their declaration of candidacy forms at the information desk in Longmire or in office 210 of Longmire tomorrow.

Sgt. Ashdown, the new commissioner of Elections.

Formal nominations for the positions will take place at the Student Party Convention tomorrow and the University Party Convention on Thursday.

Ashdown stated that the Elections Commission will be present at both party conventions.

"My purpose in having the Elections Commission present at these conventions is to see that both the FSU student body constitution and the individual party constitutions are complied with," he added.

The following list of officers will be elected in the Student Body conventions by vote of the entire student body: President of the Student Body; Vice President; Women's Vice President; Men's Vice President; Secretary of Student Senate; Chief Justice of the Honor Court; Clerk of Honor Court; Chairman of the University Court; Chairman of the Traffic Court; and the three elective student members of the Board of Publications.

Among other qualifications all students desiring these offices must have an overall 2.3 grade point average.

Ashdown also stressed that all candidates for the offices of President, Vice President, Chief Justice of the Honor Court, Chairman of the Traffic and University Courts, must attend trimester III, parts A and B.

Any aspiring candidates are also reminded to check the qualifications for office before they file a declaration of candidacy.

A complete list of qualifications has been made available to Greek and dorm presidents.

Students will be a list of qualifications posted on the bulletin boards of Longmire and in the Student Center.

Declarations of Candidacy will be accepted from tomorrow, at 1 p.m. until Feb. 11 at 5 p.m. No declaration may be turned in after the closing date.

Declarations must be turned in at the Cabinet Office, room 210, Longmire, between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Sophomore Council will be poll workers again at past elections.

The Chairman of Sophomore Council, Donna Gordon, will have girls working at the different poll locations in accordance with the Elections Commission.

"Winnie The Pooh" Guest Of Coffee Hour

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER
Flamebeau Staff Writer

"The Freshman Casebook on Winnie-the-Pooh," by Frederick C. Crews is a collection of essays dedicated to the all-hidden meaning in A.A. Milne's famous book, commented Dr. Russel Reaver at the English Coffee Hour this past Friday.

The essays are a satire on the literary and academic critics found on all college campuses. The two stereotypes used as pseudonyms for the authors of the two essays Reaver read were Paul Raymond Honeycomb and Professor Murphy A. Sweat.

Honeycomb never completed his formal education but holds a residence at Cornell University. He compares Pooh's creative-bear imagination to that of Walt Whitman.

"Honeycomb concludes that anyone who is friendly with bears can find a mythical forest of childhood," stated Reaver.

Professor Murphy A. Sweat, the author of the second essay read by Reaver, feels that "Rabbit" was the original "Bugs Bunny." Sweat states in his classroom notes that "you don't grab the logic of the book unless you see it in the light of the chain of being" (Darwinian concept).

Sweat proposes that the modern reader of Pooh can find many basic conflicts reflected such as Communism vs. Capitalism, prose vs. poetry, and men vs. women.

On Friday, at 4:10 p.m., the Coffee Hour program will offer Dr. George York on Shelley's Search.

KKG Wins Sing

Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority and Alum Hall won first place honors the fifteenth annual Campus Sing. The Division with Army ROTC singing second place in the men's division, KKG, winner of Campus Sing for the last two years, placed third in the women's division.

Kappa Kappa Gamma was directed by Jan Connelly and accompanied by the piano by Patty Henderson. The selections sung were "The American Change" by Berger and "The Snow" arranged by Ebert. Melburn Hall was under the direction of Ray Holland and accompanied by Barbara Park, Kellum sung Hallelujah, under Judas MacBallell, under Judas MacBallell, by Handel and "I Hear a Voice A-Praying" by Bright.

The six finalist groups were judged by Miss Betty Jane Grimm, Director of Women's Glee Club; Herby Guter, Jr., Director of the Great Division of the men's Glee Club; Director of the men's Glee Club, Dr. Ramon E. Meador, Director of the men's Glee Club, Dr. Wiley Housewright, former Campus Sing, was presented a trophy by Kenneth Schwarz, Chairman of the Campus Sing Committee.

Center To Be Dedicated

Dr. J. Stanley Marshall, director of the Science Teaching Center, and head of the Department of Science Education at FSU, will open the dedication program with a discussion of the concepts which brought the center into existence.

This is the South's science education showcase—a new concept in educational facilities. The center comprises a fourth-floor wing of the new Educational Building.

The keynote address will be delivered by Dr. Arthur H. Livermore, Deputy Director of Education for the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He will speak on the "Changing Concepts in Science Education."

Livermore is an internationally prominent authority in the field of science education. He is currently on leave from Reed College, Oregon. He has conducted summer institutes and seminars in the Philippines and in Japan at the request of the Asia Foundation.

Dean of the University's School of Education, Dr. Mode L. Stone, will preside over the ceremonies. Thomas D. Bailey, Florida's State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Dr. John K. Floger, Dean of FSU's Graduate School, will speak at 2 p.m. on the significance of the center to the public schools of Florida; and Roy F. Cambell, supervisor of Science for Broward County, Florida, will discuss the center's use as a service agency for science supervisors in the state and in the Southeast.

More than 150 educators and officials are expected to attend.

Education Major Does Not Agree

To the Editor:

Now that we've heard what a non-education major thinks of the School of Education, I thought you might be interested in an education major's opinion.

As a senior majoring in English education, I certainly don't intend to pass judgment on the School of Education as a whole, or even on secondary education as a whole. One thing I do know -- you'd have to talk to an awful lot of English education majors to find one who doesn't think the courses he's taking are worthwhile.

Naturally, we have one or two courses that are considerably less worthwhile than the others -- but don't think in your major of courses like that. In a couple of fields? Let's not judge the entire program on the basis of a couple of exceptions. I don't know where Paul Brown has been getting his information, but I'd like to reply to a few of his allegations:

Whatever gave you the idea that there is this "either-or" relationship between education courses and subject -- matter courses? Granted that a teacher with lots to say and no training in how to present it would be preferable to one with nothing to say and lots of training, but what we're trying to get is a reasonable balance. Wouldn't you rather have teachers with lots of information AND adequate training in how to present it? I sure would.

Don't you realize that much of the advanced material we're studying now is not stuff that you can teach to a class of high school students? Imagine a 10th grade English teacher trying to re-deliver to her class a college lecture on Milton and Chaucer, and you'll see what I mean. It's fine to keep getting more and more specialized, but somewhere you've got to stop and figure out how to relate all this to high school students.

You're right -- senior college teachers aren't required to take education courses. But how many really good teachers do you find on the college level? Experts -- definitely; lecturers -- sure; but TEACHERS -- not very many. It's not that important on the college level, but let's not try to teach high school kids -- and we're teaching high school drop-outs already.

You speak of "the many fields" that a secondary school teacher may be required to teach in, but you forget a very important fact -- we're not trying to teach everything. We want to be well-prepared in one or two subject areas, not superficially prepared in all of them. And don't worry -- we took all the same basic studies courses you did, so we're not totally ignorant of what else is going on.

You ask what would happen if a foreign language were required in the School of Education. When I graduate I will be certified to teach English, journalism, and math. And NOTHING happened. What did you think would happen?

One final thing -- do you really think those education courses you're condemning are all about? If not, please ask us, and we'll be glad to tell you. Quite a few of us in education are really enthusiastic about what we're doing, and we'd be delighted to explain and defend it. It's about time we do something to dispel the impression that majoring in education is some kind of a joke.

U.S. Foreign Policy Is Nonexistent

The Panama crisis was the result of a chronic defect that exists in our foreign policy, the defect being just this: We have no foreign policy. To fully understand this fact one must view the recent rioting in the proper perspective: not as an uprising of Panamanian patriots whose rights are being trampled as one might be led to believe by some press reports, but simply as the Cuban Communist bred and incited agitation that it was.

Army Secretary Cyrus Vance revealed last week that at least ten Cuban-trained Red agents, believed to have been instrumental in causing the bloody riots, had been arrested. Over 200 young Panamanian leftists have, according to intelligence sources, received diplomas in subversion from Castro during the past two years.

The charge made by the Communists and parroted by Liberals that Panama does not receive a fair share of the income from the canal is not true. We subsidize Panama with one third of the canal's profits, or about $87 million, which amounts to seventeen percent of the country's income. Yet, a revision of the canal agreement by executive order has been predicted by State Department sources. Any such revision of the agreement would only constitute a renunciation of our legitimate rights and another knuckling under to Communist demands, a practice which has already brought the US world prestige to an all time low.

Said Rep. Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee: "There is no foundation for Panama to demand renegotiations of the treaty of 1803.... Panama violated every rule of international comity, attacked our citizens, killed our soldiers...."

The real issue, however, is not Panama, but Cuba; for Cuba is the base from which Communism is being exported in the Western Hemisphere and against which the Kennedy Johnson Administration has promised to act if Castro were found to be exporting revolution.

The revolution in Panama, however, will be conveniently overlooked by the Administration; as will the successful revolution in faraway Zanzibar off the coast of Tanganyika in which Castro agents were conspicuously instrumental; as will news of the brand new military buildup on the Caribbean Island reported last week by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.).

In fact, nothing short of a firing of Cuban missiles on Washington will make the Johnson Administration take any action against the Fidel Castro regime. Quite to the contrary, we are, incredibly, supporting Communism, not only in Cuba, but all over the world. Witness a few of the facts as compiled in the "Washington Report" of Young Americans for Freedom, listing some 97 "accommodations" in which the Liberal Establishment has helped the Reds:

"Perpetuated a Communist base in this hemisphere by withdrawing promised air support of the Cuban invasion which military authorities maintain could have brought down the Castro government...."

"Renounced the Monroe Doctrine because it would have necessitated taking firm action against Cuba while Khrushchev declared his own 'peaceful coexistence' doctrine" in which he pledged protection of the Castro regime." (continued to page 3)

Red Weakness No Profit To West

The Communist's economy is in trouble again, but our government has jumped to the rescue. We have provided the communists with "life preservers" in the form of a sale of surplus and requesting our European allies to allow the Soviets "only" five years of credit. The CIA has reported that Russia must have two hundred dollars worth of machinery and equipment from the West.

Now that Russia needs equipment, and in view of the fact that her gold reserves are low, the West should be glad to export to her Russia. This pressure should take the form of demands that Russia would have to comply with in order to receive any credit whatsoever.

So far, the West, the US in particular, has extracted no concessions from the Soviets. We, who are supposed to be the bastion of freedom and protector of democracy, are again failing to realize that it is impractical and foolish to help Russia in any way.

The sooner several facts are understood and fully believed, the sooner our foreign policy towards Russia and her satellites will harden. These facts are that Communism is much more than an economic system; it is a way of life without freedom where men and not law rule; it is a supposed system where no class exists but the ruling; they certainly do; Communism lets the citizens enjoy an absolute minimum of private property. All communication, transportation, and industrial facilities belong to the state; most important of all Communists are dedicated to the destruction of capitalism.

That last fact seems to be ignored and peaceful coexistence seems to have taken its place. Now in addition to co-existing with Communism, our policy is starting to help it.

It is not only the US which is failing to make the most of Communism's trouble. France is preparing to recognize Red China. It is felt that all of Europe will follow this lead, thus lending prestige to the struggling Chinese Communists. English manufacturing concerns are preparing to sell German buses. They outbided our "allies" of France, West Germany, Spain, and Japan. To avoid getting on the blacklist of the US, the Britains may use East German factories. Clearly the winners in this deal are the Communies and English businessmen. Old Uncle Sam is left out in the cold.

Fair Success Applauded

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Internationalist fortunate as well as my own, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all the American students, faculty and public for the many wonderful programs and activities they helped to organize and make a success.

I am so happy with the results of the International Week that I felt compelled to glance back and sum up the things we did so well in. It all started with a work party at the new International Center two Saturdays ago where many American students and faculty joined efforts to improve and "fix up" the International Student Center.

It was heartwarming to see so many people from different backgrounds share their enthusiasm and work together to accomplish a common goal. The happy faces seen at the opening and faculty joined efforts to reward for the hard work.

The International Week was launched energetically and it continued at an active pace. Many sororities, fraternities and fraternities entertained International students during the week, thus allowing them to share the American way of life.

Friday evening the Florida Development Commission sponsored a coffee party for the Mexican Ballet group and the foreign students which was followed with a banquet at the Swanmore Room sponsored by the Tallahassee Council. We felt fortunate to have had the Mexican Folklorico Ballet add a special touch of foreign flavor to the campus activities with their superb evening performance.

The International Week reached its peak on Saturday with an exhibition at the Longwood auditorium where some 18 countries displayed their handicrafts, clothes, and art objects. This fair was especially meaningful to the students because it gave them a chance to entertain and be hosts to their many American friends. A coffee, given by the Student Government, closed the exhibition and ended the International Week on this campus.

Again I would like to say that the success of the fair was due to the participation and help with the displays by the Alpha Phi Omega and the Gamma Sigma Sigma and many individuals. I know that all the Internationalists join me in thanking all those who joined hands with us during the International Week in an attempt to establish warmer and more personal relationships, and better understanding of our diverse cultures. To our gratitude, I would like to add a plea -- let us keep the International Week theme in mind throughout the year -- let us bridge continents through further student understanding."

Pep Rally Mistimed

To the Editor:

In reply to John Wood's editorial Friday criticizing the pep rally, I feel you have failed to completely grasp the situation.

Granted 75 students was a poor turn-out for the rally, I too can understand Coach Kennedy's and the team's disappointment. However, I feel the fault lies not with lack of support, but with the scheduling of events on successive week nights.

As you predicted, a capacity crowd of cheering students attended the game. For the most part, their conduct was exemplary (except for the U of F hat stealing). I was particularly impressed with the standing ovation Brooks Henderson received as he left the gymnasium injured. I think the spirit exhibited fired up the team. Our loss stemmed not from the apathy but from Florida's zone defense and ball control.

It is just not realistic to schedule two events in a row during the week. Most of us can only attend our studies one night (with the week-end to catch up), but two nights is one too many.

So in the future, John, before you get all steamed up, think these things through. More people will listen to you that way.

ARF!

Benjamin Franklin (or The Louisville Slinger, as he is better known as) said, "A penny saved is a penny earned," and the college population of America, have taken to heart this sage advice. We spend prudently; we budget diligently. Yet, despite our wise precautions, we are always running short. Why? Because there is one item of expense that we are consistently under-estimate—the cost of travelling home for weekends.

Let us take the typical case of Basil Metabolism, a sophomore at UCLA majoring in avocados. Basil, a resident of Bangor, Maine, loved to go home each weekend to play with his faithful dog, Spot. What joy, what wretched smells, when Basil and Spot were reunited! Basil would leap into his dogcart, and Spot, a genuine Alaskan husky, would pull Basil all over Bangor, Maine. Basil calling cheery hallos to the townfolk, Spot wagging his curly tail.

But the cost, alas, of travelling from UCLA to Bangor, Maine, ran to $100 a week, and Basil's father, alas, earned only a meagre salary as a meter-reader for the Bangor water department. So, alas, after six months Basil's father told Basil he could raise no more money; he had already sold everything he owned, including the flashlight he used to read meters.

Basil returned to California to ponder his dilemma. One solution occurred to him: to ship Spot to UCLA and keep him in his room. But Basil had to abandon the notion because of his roommate, G. Fred Sigafos, who was, alas, allergic to dog hair.

Then another idea came to Basil—a stroke of genius, you might call it. He would buy a Mexican hairless chihuahua! Thus he would have a dog to pull him around, and G. Fred's allergy would be undisturbed.

The results, alas, were not all Basil had hoped. The chihuahua, alas, was unable to pull Basil in the dogcart, no matter how energetically he beat the animal.

Defeated again, Basil sat down with G. Fred, his roommate, to smoke a Marlboro Cigarette and seek a new answer to the problem. Together they smoked and thought and—Eureka!—an answer quickly appeared. (I do not suggest, mark you, that Marlboro Cigarettes are an aid to civilization. All I say about Marlboro is that they taste good and are made of fine tobacco and pure white filters and come in soft pack or Flip Top box.)

Well, sir, Basil and G. Fred got a great idea. Actually, the idea was G. Fred's, who happened to be majoring in genetics. Why not, said G. Fred, cross-breed the chihuahua with a Great Dane and thus produce an animal sturdy enough to pull a dogcart?

It was, alas, another plan doomed to failure. The cross-breeding was done, but the result (this is very difficult to explain) was a raven.

But there is, I am pleased to report, a happy ending to this heart-rending tale. It seems that Basil's mother (this is also very difficult to explain) is a glamorous blond aged 19 years. One day, as she was strolled by a talent scout in Bangor, Maine, and was signed to be a famous movie contract, and the entire family moved to California and bought Bel Air, and today one of the most enduring sights to be seen on the entire Pacific Coast is Spot pulling Basil down Sunset Boulevard. Basil cheering and Spot wagging. Basil's mother is also happy; making glamorous movies all day long, and Basil's father is likewise content, sitting at home and reading the water meter.

Nesting Service Sharpens Pencils

Testing requires certain basic tools: an answer sheet, questions and a pencil. This makes two pencil sharpeners on the second floor of the Education building one of the most important parts of the University Testing Service.

This past week they sharpened over 500 pencils for the Graduate Record Exam, Saturday, one of the many tests administered by the Testing Service.

In addition to the GRE, the service acts as a center for the College Board Test, National Teacher Examinations, Law School Admission Tests and Florida Merit Examination. They also give the Florida Ninth Grade Test. This year over 87,000 students took the test.

Dr. Grover Tully, Director of the Testing Service, said that the heaviest testing session for the service is during orientation week, when 2,200 freshmen are tested.

The testing service also aids in guidance and counseling by administering tests to students seeking help in the selection of their major. There are between 25 and 50 such students every week.

The University Testing Service is located on the second floor of the Education Building. In its four offices are five "805" IBM test scoring machines key punch and verifiers, and two electric pencil sharpeners.

Tully is aided by the Assistant Director, Howard Stoker, Betty Clemmons, lead secretary; her four assistants and eight students assistants.

The testing service was started in the mid-1940's by Dr. Mark DeGraff. It was then located in the Psychology Building. In 1958, it moved to the Education Building, when Tully became the director.

Besides their duties with the testing service, Tully and Stoker are also working under research grants. Tully is primarily concerned with learning into the merits of devices used to predict success in graduate school. The main device now in use is the Graduate Record Exam. He is also studying the effects of test scoring in high school class performance.

Stoker is working with Dr. R.P. Krupp in the construction of new tests to measure cognitive ability. He is also investigating factors causing increases and decreases in the educational productivity of students and how a school or community might control them.

... FOREIGN POLICY

"Refused to recognize a Cuban government in exile, admittedly for fear it would antagonize Castro into grabbing our Guantanamo base."

"Refused to finance and support a second invasion of the island."

The list goes on and on. All of which leads one to ask: Just what is our foreign policy? Do we have one? Are our leaders really aware that Western Civilization is engaged in a struggle to the death with an "unmoral, amoral enemy" (in the words of Dr. Mantion) bent on our destruction?

If not, something is drastically wrong. If so, there is something even more drastically wrong. For if such be the case, any one or two of the above facts, taken separately, might possibly be justified; but the "47 plus" Liberal accommodations, taken together, constitute nothing short of treason.

Thomas Wright Featured In All-Beethoven Concert

Thomas Wright, well known pianist, will be featured in an All-Beethoven concert Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Mezzo-soprano Elena Nikolaidi and cellist Owen Sellers will appear on the program with Wright. The concert, free and open to the public, will emphasize the lyrical music of Beethoven's middle period in which he was making a transition from classicism to romanticism.

The program will open with Wright performing "Piano Sonata in E Minor," Opus 90. Sellers will join the pianist for "Sonata for Cello and Piano in A Major," Opus 69. Miss Nikolaidi will present a song cycle, "An die ferne Geliebte," Opus 98. Wright will play "Piano Sonata in E Flat Major," Opus 31, No. 3 in closing.

Wright, director of radio-television instruction and head of the interdivisional department of radio and television for the College of Arts and Sciences, is an associate professor of music at FSU.

Miss Nikolaidi was born near Athens, Greece, and received her early musical training at a conservatory there. Soon after her graduation she appeared at the Athens Theatre. The Greek government selected her for a scholarship to study in Vienna Opera. In the United States she has appeared with the Metropolitan Opera and the San Francisco Opera. Sellers has concertized with major symphony orchestras in Cincinnati, Miami, Mobile and New Orleans. He was a participant in the Bach-Casals Festival in Prades, France. Known also as a music educator, he is associate dean of the School of Music.

Criteria Of Mate Selection Fascinates Capacity Crowd

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Writer

The Reverend William D. Brown, Acting Chaplain of FSU, spoke on the "Criteria of Mate-Selection" at a recent Hillel brunch.

"Perhaps if the topic had been entitled 'Sex Per Sey,' we would have had an even larger turnout," observed the Reverend before a capacity crowd. He acquainted the group with a theory of mate selection "which has practical applications and implications for all people."

"Love, understanding, tolerance, honesty, and forgiveness are universal qualities for a mate. A prospective mate would have to be physically attractive and possess a pleasing personality and a friendly attitude."

"All of us are aware that sexual relations play an important role in marriage but we are laboring with misconception when we feel that sex is THE most important ingredient in marriage," stressed the Reverend.

"Sexual needs can be fulfilled in marriage but only after adjustment on the parts of both husband and wife," he added.

graduation. Love is a vague term whose definition varies with the individual. It is fulfilling this definition which helps us to choose our life partners."

"Sometimes we are influenced by the approval of our peers and contemporaries but what one person considers a Rock Hudson-Cary Grant type, another may view as a Harpo Marx-Jerry Lewis image," warned Brown.

Through the Marriage Counseling Bureau, offered by FSU, trained "personnel help individuals to view themselves through a microscope and discover their own weaknesses and strengths."

In this way they can become acquainted with their own needs in selecting a mate.

"That which commences as holy wedlock can lead to unholy deadlock," said the Reverend. "Marriage is ordained by God but in a great many marriages, God had nothing to do with them."

Many times the way one gets along with his parents will reflect how he will adjust to his mate. "The most important decision you can make is that of selecting a life-long mate. Know what your needs are and what you are really seeking in a life mate," concluded Reverend.

Pacific Coast, Atlantic Coast, the great Heartland in between — not to speak of Alaska and Hawaii—all of this is Marlboro Country. Light up and find out for yourself.

SWEET NOTHINGS IN ABUNDANCE

... appear in the FSU production "Love's Labour's Lost," beginning Friday in Conradi Theatre. Here, Jacquenetta, a young country maid, proves to be a more fetching distraction than a study-minded court of the 1600's. Her admirer in this scene is Don Armado, a captain in the King's guard.

"Love's Labour's Lost" Begins Fri. In Conradi

"Love's Labour's Lost," one of Shakespeare's prime comedies on the eternal battle of the sexes, begins in Conradi Theatre Friday. Calling the production "a fitting birthday salute to Shakespeare's 400th anniversary," Director Arthur H. Dorlag says the play is one of the playwright's first, and that it satirizes the futility of Utopian attempts to thwart man's natural instincts, especially where they concern women.

Most of the play's action takes place in a park where the Princess of France (Ellen Whigham) and her ladies are forced to camp because the King of Navarre (Kent Wood) and his lords have taken an oath which prevents them from entertaining women in the palace.

Student Group Backs Lodge

It has been announced that a national STUDENTS FOR LODGE Committee has been formed to solicit signatures requesting Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to return from South Viet Nam and seek the Republican Presidential nomination.

It is expected that Ambassador Lodge, who has served in the US Senate, as US Ambassador to the United Nations, and as the Republican Vice-presidential candidate in 1960, may be receptive to a draft movement. Students interested in representing the Students for Lodge, National Committee on this campus and organizing a campus committee should contact: STUDENTS FOR LODGE, Box 93, Cambridge 39, Massachusetts.

Searching for the legal logic in the oath they've sworn to, King are Lords Berowne (Earl Fisher), Dumaine (Peter Steinberg).

Following the Princess' lead, outwitting their would-be suitors, Ladies Rosaline (Pat Britty), Eline (Louise Beddingfield), Maria (Ann Angell).

Comedy interest is also set by a swashbuckling Spanish captain Armado (Sammy Kilman) and pedant Holenemes (Sam Baker), a somewhat tipsy priest, Sir N.

aniel (Rhett Bryson). Other characters in the play include Jacques (Barbara Quinn); Dull (Mike [ins]); Costard (Bruce Fischer); Mercade (Allen Dermott).

Four of the current cast play the FSU production of "Henry Part I." In October of 1962, Sam Kilman, Sam Baker, and Louise Beddingfield, and Rhett Bryson, ker's previous experience expected to overcome any difficulties caused by his recent aptectomy and consequent loss of hearing.

A newcomer to Shakespeare, not to the stage is Pat Bryson, sophomore coed who plays the line lead.

According to Dorlag and the all of the "labour" hasn't been the stage during rehearsals. No preparations for this production have included demands on a barber's talent in reproducing haircuts befitting one of the in the play.

As a result, Sir Nathaniel's own, Rhett Bryson's own, first was able, in his constructive declass, to cast his own power in allusion in the shape of a 16th century cross (which is part of his Shakespeare costume).

The comedy, which turns theater into a forest of prime feminine wit and masculine wit, is sure to be one not readily forgotten by its audience.

Mermen Tackle Tulane Tonight

The unbeaten FSU swim team tagged along behind a University of Florida swim aggregation on a weekend jaunt through North Carolina, and outdid the Gators in swamping North Carolina and East Carolina College. The Seminole Tankmen splashed past North Carolina 60-35, and East Carolina College 55-40, while the Gators could manage only a 48-47, squeaker over the Tarheels and a 53-42 win over East Carolina. The Gators, whose only loss came at the hands of Bim Stults' Tribe tankers, faced the Carolina competition a full day ahead of FSU.

Friday night, the Seminoles won seven of the eleven first place finishes against North Carolina, whose unbeaten record had been blemished by the Gators the night before. FSU swimmers won four of the seven first in a strong night. The Tribe won six of eleven against the ECC Pirates Saturday afternoon.

Outstanding swimmers on the Carolina trip, the first of the year for the tankers, were Gene Dayton, Jim Mauldin, Dick Abbott, and Larry Profumo. The Tankers meet Tulane at Montgomery Gym tonight at 7:30 p.m.

UF Swim Team Lacks Attitude

Reprinted from the January 28 Florida Alligator.

DEAR SIR:

The UF has a swimming team they should be proud of. I until Saturday night they were headed for an undefeated season. Then they met an inferior team, they lost. To compound this, the team they lost to was FSU. It would stand to reason that if Florida has some of the best swimmers in the state why can't they beat a team like FSU. It is not to be denied that FSU has a good team. The big thing is, they are not as good as we are supposed to be.

I use the word supposed for a very special reason. Despreplays a very big part in any endeavor, whether it be athletic or otherwise. This is what the 1963-64 version of the Gator swim team lacks, desire. These boys care more about their success and somnolence than they do about this. This is definitely standing in the way of success. Sure, they say they have a 6-1 record, that isn't the big thing. The important point is, when they against a team the really beat, they fold up.

The most confusing thing about this team is a study in defeat. Any bunch of boys who can't swim in cold, rainy weather, or lose it to themselves suggest all every time.

Why do they choke under pressure? It could be they are just thinking of how they can just finished eating supper at the cafeteria table before the FSU meet. Maybe they are thinking of how they lost previous instead of how they can swim a little faster.

Just a small amount of extra effort could have won them Saturday night. But our boys have it in them. Isn't it true they don't care enough about school, or about the swimmer in general? I represent a school should be represented, and I'm tired per cent effort.

McGowan Resigns, Joins Kyne's Team

(Reprinted from the Atlanta Constitution) — Bubba McGowan has resigned from the FSU football coaching staff to assist Jimmy Kyne in his race for election as Florida's attorney general.

Appointed recently to the position by Governor Farris Bryant, Kyne faces the democratic primary in May. The general election will be in November.

Kyne, a former University of Florida football captain, was named by Governor Bryant when Richard Ervin became a state supreme court justice.

McGowan and Kyne were teammates at Florida. Bubba was a freshman when Kyne was a senior. Kyne said McGowan "will travel with me and be my personal representative."

McGowan's spot on the FSU coaching staff will be filled by Powell, named earlier this week. McGowan's resignation was effective Friday.

"We shall miss Bubba," said coach Bill Peterson. "He was one of the best-like members of our staff and is a fine individual. I strongly feel he will do well in this new field."

BOP Approves Opinion Polling Publication Prices Discussed

The Board of Publications approved a undertaking of a survey on campus opinion of the "Flambeau" at its meeting yesterday.

Richard Chilton, Assistant Professor of Sociology, agreed to conduct a survey, as a class project to be started out in April.

Chuck Kye, business manager, brought up the question of price for "Flambeau" subscriptions to non-students or former FSU students. The previous charge of $2.00 per trimester for 5 copies a week is inadequate in covering the budget costs according to Chuck. Pat Freeman and Dick Smith were appointed as a committee to investigate the matter.

The price of "Tally Ho" copies was also discussed.

Beth Ann Legate and Susan Folsom were appointed as a committee to investigate charges for copies of previous years and for future issues.

Dr. Reid Montgomery, director of student activities, raised a question concerning whisky and beer ads appearing in the "Flambeau." Since the Administration forbids the drinking of alcoholic beverages on campus and discourages all students from indulging elsewhere, a motion was drawn up to ban the advertising of beer or whisky in "Flambeau" publications.

The motion as such met with the Board's approval.

Cigarette advertising in the "Flambeau" was also forbidden by the Board.

Jim Yon, editor of the "Smoke Signals," introduced a bill to increase the number of "Smoke Signals" issues to five publications a year for one year on a trial basis. The BOP approved the motion increasing the number of issues to be distributed in the months of September, November, February, April and June.

Under this system, the September, February, and June issues will be distributed free to students with ID cards. The November and June copies may be purchased at a charge of $.25 per copy.

The ruling was made to increase the number of copies published by raising revenues and thus helping to meet the increasing demand for more issues.

Pat Ourley resigned as a member of BOP to begin internship.

Counseling Aids 'Undecided'

DOUG PADGETT
Flambeau Staff Writer

Have you decided on your major? Do you know what job you want to do? Do you need advice on personal or social problems?

If you are one of those students for whom these questions are a big worry, you can get help in solving them and give your life more direction by using the services of the University Counseling Center in 302 Henson, Ext. 3040 or 3041.

The Counseling Center offers its services to the students of FSU in areas of counseling, testing, and information through the help of a staff of professionally trained counselors.

Students who are undecided about their vocational or educational fields would be most likely to be successful in would probably find the Counseling Center a valuable aid. Through interviews and tests on personal interests or aptitude, the student is given useful information about himself so he can make a wiser decision about his future. And sometimes this information can be surprising as for example the pre-med student who finds that he is more mathematically inclined.

Counseling may also involve discussion with one of the trained counselors who try to give the individual attention that is so hard to find on such a large campus.

The first commandment of the Center is "the individual student is still all-important." This type of personalized service is very helpful whenever a student may have a personal or social problem which demands the attention of a sympathetic counselor. All interviews are confidential and such information is kept a professional secret.

Dr. John Cummer, Director of Counseling, maintains that counseling helps the student "not by telling, but helping him to think through his own goals." Even though various kinds of tests play a large role in evaluating, they are not exact.

He likened the vocational tests to using the back of the hand instead of a thermometer to discover a fever; it gives merely a rough estimate as to the condition of the body.

DR. ROGERS

Rogers Marks 70th Birthday, Teaches 50

Dr. William Hudson Rogers, FSU's first Distinguished Professor of the year, celebrates his 70th birthday today.

Although this will be a happy occasion for him it will be a sad one for students who are reminded that it will also bring the close of a long teaching career.

Rogers is scheduled to retire in June, drawing the curtains on a teaching career begun in 1913.

Many honors have come to the English professor. One of the first was won during two years of service in World War I.

He was awarded the French Croix de Guerre, while serving as an ambulance driver in France.

Rogers, a Phi Beta Kappa, graduated from Davidson College in 1913 and immediately went to Grundy, West Virginia, to teach high school for two years.

He then completed his masters tion.

degree at the University of Virginia in 1916.

Following wartime service, which ended in May, 1916, he returned to the university where he taught for part of the morning, then taught at a high school the rest of the morning and until 2:30 in the afternoon. Afterwards he did his own classwork for his Ph. D., which he received in 1922.

After receiving his degree he was invited to teach at Florida State College for Women. He is now completing 41 years of teaching at this university, where he once served as acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Rogers was named Distinguished Professor of the Year in 1957. He then was named an honorary member of Gold Key in 1958. In 1959 Omicron Delta Kappa elected him a member of this service organization.

Three Faculty Members Perform

Three members of the FSU music faculty will present a program tomorrow night in Opperman Hall tracing the transition of Beethoven's music from classicism to romanticism.

Thomas Wright, Elena Nikolaidi, and Owen Sellers will perform the lyrical music from the "Sonata for Cello and Piano in A Major."

Following the intermission, mezzo-soprano Nikolaidi will perform the song cycle, "Beloved Afar." Wright will close the program with, "Piano Sonata in E Flat Major."

The three musicians have previously appeared together in an all Rachmaninoff concert two years ago. Since that time Wright and Sellers have appeared together several times.

Wright is particularly well-known for his Gershwin Festival, which was video taped and scheduled for ETV broadcast as a 1964 special.

Wright is an Associate Professor of Music at FSU and is also the Director of Radio-Television Instruction. He heads the interdivisional department of radio and television for the College of Arts and Sciences.

Nikolaidi, Professor of Voice at FSU, was born near Athens, Greece and received her early training at a conservatory there. She later studied in Vienna on a government scholarship. She has sung with the Metropolitan Opera and the San Francisco Opera.

Theatre Fetes Shakespeare

A personalized birthday card to William Shakespeare will be presented to FSU and to the "spirit of the English bard" Friday when "Love's Labour's Lost" opens in Conrad.

According to director Arthur Dorag, the play is a satire on pedantry over earnest scholarship which takes place in the sixteenth century. "One's initial reaction is one of silliness; but when it tends to be fun we are inclined to accept the abilities of the plot and follow along with the game," said Dorag of his reaction to this type of play.

"Love's Labour's Lost" is one of Shakespeare's least often performed plays, but wherever it has been presented it has earned a reputation for fun and gentle satire.

Most of the original comedy is based on word play, but much of the dialogue has been trimmed due to the average audience's inability to understand Shakespeare's game with words.

The FSU Theatre cast seems quite taken with their roles in the play. Sam Kilman, playing Don Armado (a fantastic character), said that "any kind of Shakespeare play is like a Disneyland for actors and spectators as well, because there is so much to do."

Actors will follow seventeenth century stage rules.

FSU Coeds To Compete For Stephen Foster Title

By RANDY GRIGGS

Flambeau Staff Writer
Five FSU students, three of them freshmen and two sophomores, are among the score of entries in the 13th annual "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" auditions, which will be held at the Stephen Foster Memorial in White Springs, Feb. 15.

Entry of the FSU students was announced by Miss Thelma Boltin, director of special events at the music shrine on the stream immortalized by Foster in his classic "Way Down Upon the Suwannee River," the official state song of Florida.

The two sophomore students taking part in the auditions are Joyce Ann Graham, sponsored by the St. Petersburg Male Chorus and Diana Roland, sponsored by the Bertha Cole Music Club of Lakeland. The freshmen student entries and their sponsors are Carol Epperson, St. Cecilia Music Club of Lake City; Cherry Isbell, Wednesday Music Club of Orlando, and Donna Dickenson, Quincy Music Club.

The winner this year will receive a cash scholarship of $1,000 along with the coveted "Jeanie" title, to assist in her musical education. In past years, the winner has received a $500 scholarship by the Institute of Stephen Foster Memorial Commission. The four runners-up, who compose the winner's court, will each receive a $200 scholarship.

Sponsored by the Stephen Foster Memorial Commission, in cooperation with the Florida Federation of Music Clubs, the colorful event is open to young women who have advanced far enough as vocalists to give creditable radio, television or concert performances. Entries are restricted to those who are legal residents of Florida and between the ages of 17 and 21.

Following the 1964 auditions, to be held in the auditorium of the Foster Memorial Gaudin Tower, the annual "Jeanie" ball will be presented at which time the winner and her court will be feted in the Foster Museum building.

The annual event was instituted in 1952 by the Stephen Foster Memorial Corporation of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs, with Mrs. Leon Whitehurst of Brooksville as president. The Stephen Foster Memorial Commission is a State of Florida agency.

Donna Letitia Dickenson
Miss Dickenson is sponsored by Quincy Music Club in Quincy, Florida. She is a freshman.

Carroll Award Entries Open

Rev. William D. Brown, university chaplain, asked today that all groups making a nomination for the Blanche Carroll award send their nominations to his office by Feb. 21.

His office is 245 Suwannee Arcade. The Carroll Award is presented to the student who exemplifies the highest type character and leadership in spiritual and moral activities. The award will be made at the student banquet, March 10, during the Religion in Life Series.

A committee composed of the Chaplain, and two other members appointed by the President of the University will make the final selection. The committee will accept nominations, including biographical data and reasons for the nomination from any campus organization.

The winner of the award will receive $100 and have his name inscribed on a plaque displayed in Longridge. The money will be used to assist in paying the expenses to a student religious conference or at the University.

The award was established in the memory of Blanche Kinyard Carroll, of Jacksonville by her son who lives in Tallahassee.

Alumni To Speak

Ad Day Lecture Tells How To Succeed

Four successful advertising graduates from FSU return Thursday to take part in Advertising Day and to give their versions of the theme, "How You Can Succeed in Advertising by Really Trying."

The panel discussion by the FSU grads beginning at 3 p.m. in the Library Lounge of the Business Bldg. will climax a full day of meetings. Advertising Day is part of Advertising Recognition Week as proclaimed by Florida Governor Farris Bryant and is sponsored jointly by the FSU School of Business and the fourth district of the Advertising Federation of America.

Leader of the panel will be Louis Calderini (class of 1963), advertising executive of Barron's and charter president of FSU's chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity.

The panelists will include Arthur J. Albrecht (class of 1958), assistant advertising manager of the Vick Chemical Company; Eugene Moore (MA degree, 1956), manager of corporate information public relations and public affairs, Armstrong Cork Company; and John M. Brennan (class of 1962), advertising manager of the St. Petersburg Times and Evening Independent.

Other professional notables on the agenda earlier in the day will be Josephine Foxworth, vice president and creative director of Johnson, Inc., and president of the Advertising Women of New York City. They will speak on "How Women Succeed in Advertising."

"How to Succeed in Newspaper Advertising" will be the topic of James F. Urbanski, sales manager, retires advertising of the Tribune and Times Company of Tampa. R. Carl Chandler, chairman of the board of Standard Packaging Corporation, will speak on "Packaging," and Joseph Sheehan, advertising director of the Retail Credit Company, Atlanta, will discuss "How to Succeed in Selling a Service."

FSU Racquettes Capture Crown

Racquette members amassed total of 13 points to clinch victory the first time they were in the Third Annual Florida Collegiate Tennis Tournament for Women at Rollins College last weekend.

Trailing from the first and unable to catch the Seminole players were the University of Florida, 10 points; defending champion University of Miami with 7; Rollins with 5 and Miami-Dade with 3. Top Racquette player, Lydia West, was eliminated in the singles semifinals by Alice Tym (U of F) who is ranked 19 in the latest national ratings. Mrs. Tym won the singles title with a three set victory over Peachy Kellemeier, ranked 13 nationally, 0-6; 6-4; 6-3.

The most exciting singles match according to officials was the marathon between Racquette teammates Lydia West and Kathy Spence. In the two and a half hour duel, West won the final set 6-4.

In doubles competition, the combination of West and Kathy Spence topped to ranked Kellemeier and Susan Conner of Miami 6-0; 5-7; 6-4. FSU's number one entry of Gail Deloater and Kathy Spence eliminated U of F's top doubles team, 6-0; 6-0.

The Racquettes' next appearance in a sanctioned tournament will be in the First Annual Women's College Invitational Tennis Championships in Jacksonville. These scheduled for Feb. 28 - March 2 has already attracted 110 of the top eight Florida colleges and universities.

FSU's Kilenyi Plans Recitals

Edward Kilenyi will return to his native Pennsylvania this month for two solo piano recitals.

The first, Feb. 16, will be presented at Philadelphia's Museum of Art. The second will be given Sunday afternoon, Feb. 17, at the Crest Collection in Allentown. Selections for the two recitals will include works by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Kodaly, Bartok and Liszt. Bach compositions on the program include "Fantasy," "Gigue," "Part Fugue," and the "Italian Concerto."

Beethoven variations and selections from Dohnanyi's "Ruralia Germanica" will also be played. Acclaimed nationally in his appearances with the Philadelphia Symphony, the New York Philharmonic, the Cleveland Orchestra, and the Boston Symphony, Kilenyi also has an extensive European following.

Club, TV State Make Mine Mink

The fourth feature film "Make Mine Mink," a joint venture of FSU Film Club and WFLA-TV, Channel 11, will be presented Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

The full length program, featuring a cast of 15 members, is a British comedy involving modern Robin Hood and his improbable gang of merry "robbers" who break on a Friday broad daylight, only to contribute the proceeds to worthy charities. The film has been called "A job good show indeed" by "Time" magazine.

Joyce Ann Graham
Miss Graham is sponsored by St. Petersburg Male Chorus, Inc. She is a sophomore.

Diana J. Roland
Miss Roland is sponsored by the Bertha Cole Music Club of Lakeland, Florida. She is a sophomore this year.

Nine European Scholarships Available To Undergraduates

College undergraduates have until Feb. 15 to apply for nine scholarships being offered by the Institute of European Studies with centers in Paris, Vienna, and Freiburg, West Germany.

The scholarships, for the year 1964-65, will be awarded on the basis of academic achievement, financial need, and recommendation by the applicant's US college or university. They are intended especially for outstanding junior students majoring in history, political science, international relations, literature, philosophy, psychology, and German and French languages.

One full and two partial scholarships are being offered for study at each of the three centers. The full scholarships for Vienna and Freiburg are valued at $2,380; that for Paris is valued at $2,650. Partial scholarships at each center are valued at $1,000 and $500.

The full scholarships include all basic costs for tuition, room, most meals, round-trip transatlantic passage from New York, and two field trips in Europe.

The Institute's Paris program includes opportunities for study at the University of Paris, the Centre d'Etudes Politiques and other institutes and "grandes ecoles" in Paris, junior standing, a B average, and at least one year of college French are required of all students.

The full-year program in Vienna offers a choice of German or English taught courses conducted by the University of Vienna and the Institute, with the possibility of enrollment in regular German-taught courses at the University. Sophomore or junior standing is required, and previous study of German is preferred in scholarship applicants. All courses in the Freiburg program are taken within the University of Freiburg, located in Germany's Black Forest, Intermediate German, junior standing and a minimum average of B are required. Full information and application forms are available from the Institute of European Studies, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois.

Debate Team Wins Trophy

The FSU Debate Team won the Sweepstakes Trophy for the best overall average among over 15 schools in the Fourteenth Annual West Georgia College Invitational Debate Tournament this weekend. Held in Carrollton, Ga., the FSU team also won team and institutional awards in the following categories: Novice division-second place negative; Varsity division-second place affirmative and second place negative; Novice division, third place overall; Varsity division, second place overall.

In individual events, the FSU members won four awards. Joan Corey took second place in both persuasive speaking and oral interpretation. Richard Root placed third in Impromptu speaking. Peyton Wynns was in the top ten percent among the debaters in the varsity division.

Recent radio observations of Jupiter will be the subject of a colloquium Thursday at 4 p.m. in Room 124 Science Bldg.

Colin Home Barrow of the Physics Dept. will discuss recent research at the FSU Radio Observatory.

Barrow will show slides on the polarization of the radiation from Jupiter obtained at the FSU Radio Observatory in late 1963. He will give a progress report on the experiment to study the relationship between Jupiter radiation and solar activity which is being conducted with the cooperation of a group in Rhodes University, South Africa, and the FSU out-station at St. Oysth, England.

The radio astronomer will also outline plans for a new experiment to study the effect of the earth's ionosphere on Jupiter radiation to be operated by the University Observatory in 1964.

Polarization results were reported first by Barrow at the American Geophysical Society's meeting at Boulder, Colo. in December.

Announcements

All students are invited to attend the Sophomore Class Dance Saturday night at the Student Lounge, from 8 p.m. to midnight, featuring the Chaotics.

In the FSU "This Week" for the week of Feb. 3-9, the Tarpon Show was mistakenly scheduled as beginning tomorrow and running through Saturday.

What happens when you come to work for Southern Bell is up to you. We offer opportunity. An atmosphere where new ideas thrive. Time to think them through and develop them. Openings for graduates in many fields. If this is the kind of place you are looking for, why not talk to Southern Bell's representative. He will be on campus in the College Placement Office February 11, 12 and 13, 1964.

" It ought to be possible, therefore, for American students of any color to attend any public institution they select without having to be backed up by troops.

' It ought to be possible for American consumers of any color to receive equal service in places of public accommodation, such as hotels and restaurants, and theaters and retail stores without being forced to resort to demonstrations in the street.

' It ought to be possible, in short, for every American to enjoy the privileges of being American without regard to his race or his color. "

John F. Kennedy, June 11, 1963

Ward Analyzes Situation of Student Government

By DOUG PADGETT
Flambeau Feature Writer

student government, an acting faculty administration, and student representatives in the political arena is a bird's eye view of the situation at FSU.

In an interview with junior class Sen. Bill Ward, the above sentiments were expressed. Ward is now a second trimester as student body president and is current Vice Chairman of the Judicial and Rules Committee. So he is in a bird's eye view to appraise the activities of the student government but is not at all satisfied with its results of action.

Ward feels the government grind is slow, although not entirely true. Take for instance the effort to abolish class officers which was voted on and passed by student body last year. Where is the past year since April of '63 has been laying around gathering dust since the attorney general vetoed it unconstitutional.

Ward takes action on the bill, he has confined its efforts to "pig, and-ing and but-ing" the work before it. Squabbling over charges instead of coming itself over more important issues seems to be in vogue.

The main cause of this situation is due to the lack of interest of the senators and other representatives brought on by tight-knuckled and of course the old "if the 'don't give a jump" attitude of students.

Ward seems to feel that the senate has lost their feeling of importance as a legislative body because everything they do must meet the approval of the faculty.

Whenever a bill passes the Senate is referred to the Faculty Senate and if it is actually decided on, it is actually Senate vetoes a bill, it is sent back to the Student Senate.

Ward feels that this change in mind will until it meets with faculty approval.

Ward feels that this type of system that chokes the initiative of the senators and members of the Judiciary who feel like an exclusive kindergarten whose sole job is to amuse themselves. Of course, student apathy also plays its part in stagnating the student government.

In Ward's entire year in office, not one of his constituents has come to him with suggestions or desires for him to act upon. This same problem he feels is faced by other senators and the result is a feeling of isolation which saps their desire. The government is not run for the pleasure of its politicians.

Another gripe of Senator Ward is the "pettiness in the political parties." In his experience, members of the senate tended to place more emphasis on how their party supported a measure rather than on their own individual reactions to it. This was the fate of the bill that would have regulated the powers of the student body president. The bill's aim was to delegate to various committees some of the president's power to fill senate vacancies.

In Ward's estimation, the bill was needed for a more equal distribution of power, but because of a strict party vote it was thrown out, and a critical study of the bill was prevented. This is not the function of the party system.

Its function is not to regulate the thinking of its members, but should give them free rein to exercise their views however different from the party. Ward believes that too many senators tend to follow the party rather than their own thinking, and that this is detrimental to efficient government.

In conclusion, Ward believes certain measures should be taken in order to make student government what it should be. First, more students should drop by the senate chamber and see for themselves how little it is being done. Second, the senate and judiciary should be given more power to enact the bills they pass without as much interference from the faculty as there is now. Third, the senate should spend more time on important matters, instead of word changing. Fourth, the senators should take it upon themselves to propose bills for a more legitimate reason than trying to get their names in this paper. Fifth, more students should take it upon themselves to talk to their respective representatives instead of griping to their roommates.

Study Offered In Rumania

Opportunities for research and study in Rumania are now available to a limited number of graduate students, research scholars, and instructors in all fields of study. A book exchange program between American and Rumanian libraries is also available.

In recent agreements with the Rumanian government, arrangements have been made for an exchange of academic talent in an effort to further understanding between the two countries. This program has been going on for the past few years and now new openings are available, for any interested scholars.

Up to four graduate students in any field of study are offered for research work for the academic year 1964-65.

Interested students should write to Mr. Richard Myer, Institute of International Education, 800 Second Ave., New York City, for information and application.

Research scholars with a knowledge of either French, Russian, German, Rumanian or any other language useful for communication are needed for periods of up to one semester. Wives and children may also be accommodated with financial arrangements to be arranged. There is also no limit to the field of study.

Interested persons should write to the Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants, 921 Atwater Ave., Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana.

Two professors or instructors, one in the field of language and literature, are needed for lecturing purposes for the academic year 1964-65. No foreign language is required except English.

Interested professors should write to Mr. Yale Richmond, Soviet and East European Exchanges Staff, Dept. of State, Washington, D.C.

The FSU Cadet Corps Military Ball will be next Friday, Feb. 14, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Tully Gymnasium with St. Zenter and his orchestra. Several acts have also been scheduled.

1964 Summer Travel Program To Feature Study In Hawaii

The 1964 Summer Travel Program to the University of Hawaii Summer Session is now accepting reservations. Dr. Robert E. Cralle, Executive Director of The Adler University Study Tour to Hawaii, announced today.

Special rates for students and teachers for the six week (47 day) Summer Session Tour begin as low as $585 and include Pan American round-trip jet air travel from the West Coast, deluxe accommodations in Waikiki Beach hotels, a fabulous schedule of over 22 sightseeing trips and tours, cruises, dinner dances, Luau and beach activities.

For earning extra credits transferable to Mainland colleges, both students and teachers can attend classes at the University of Hawaii's famous Summer Session. A wide range of subjects will be offered again this summer by a distinguished visiting and resident faculty. Enrollment normally exceeds 8000 men and women who come to Honolulu from all over the world.

This year's Program will depart via Pan American Jet on June 25 from Los Angeles and San Francisco. Registration for members attending the Summer Session is Monday, June 29. The Program will return Aug. 10.

Considered to be one of the outstanding travel programs to the Islands, it is described in a new, 24 page illustrated Bulletin. For free copies including 1964 Application Forms, write: Dr. Robert E. Cralle, Executive Director, The Adler University Study Tour to Hawaii, 345 Stockton Street, San Francisco 8, Calif.

Schull - Smirley Set Cager Pace

Sophomore center Gary Schull continues to lead the way for Florida State, but he's getting a stiff challenge in the Tribe's statistical figures from junior Jerry Smirley. The Seminoles, now 8-9, don't play again until Feb. 6, when they host Furman at Tully Gym. Schull and Smirley, the Seminoles S-boys in the pivot, led the Tribe at the break with 216 and 200 points, respectively. Schull's rebounding is slimmer, 155 to 144 for Smirley, who led last year's team with 199 in 25 games.

The Smirley-Schull duo, along with guards Bill Peacock, Pete Gonzalez, and Bobby Lovell are the best of a host of hot Seminole shooters. The Tribe is hitting at 46 per cent team-wide from the floor, and Smirley ranks with America's best collegiate foul shooters on 46 hits in 51 tries from the line for a sparkling .902 percentage.

Schull and Peacock are above the 50 per cent range from the floor with 51 and 52 per cent, respectively, while Lovell is even at 50 and Gonzalez has 48 per cent from the field.

The Seminoles bounced Alabama in their last outing, winning 95-77 and leading by 22 twice during the game. En route to Coach Bud Kennedy's 200th Florida State basketball victory, the Tribe hit 56 per cent from the floor and 33 of 40 free throw attempts for 83 per cent, all season highs.

Latest sensation for the up-and-down Seminoles has been junior guard Gonzalez, a Miami Senior High graduate who has moved from seventh to fourth in scoring. He scored 19 points against Alabama, 17 the previous night versus Auburn, and had a season high of 24 earlier against Miami, a school that once refused him a scholarship.

Thinclaus Set For Chattanooga Meet

Florida State's 1964 track team gets its first real test of the new year when the Seminoles participate against a strong field in the Chattanooga Invitational Indoor Track and Field Meet, February 8.

Traditionally one of the south's strongest track teams, Florida State has won 39 dual meets, lost seven during Coach Mike Long's nine years at the helm. Last year the Seminoles won three and lost two—the first time in history that an FSU track team lost twice in one season.

Florida State opened its season in the Orange Bowl Invitational Meet, Jan. 2 in Miami, competing against a field which included world record holders Robert Hayes in the 100 yard dash, John Fennell in the pole vault, and Gary Gubner in the shot put.

Seminole headliners this season are Al Williams, the south's best weight man, who finished fourth in NCAA Championship competition last June, Williams' best throw last year was 59 feet 10 inches in the Georgia AAU meet. The 6-2, 240 pound Atlanta, Ga., senior finished second to Gubner in Miami. Williams won the shot put in Chattanooga last year.

Another second place at Miami was taken by sprinter Jerry McDaniel, who finished behind Florida A&M's Robert Hayes' 20.4 time in the 220 yards dash. McDaniel, a 6-1, 195 pounder who consistently finishes in the 21 seconds in his specialty, qualified for the NCAA Championships.

Florida State's main team strength is in the dashes and relays where McDaniel is backed by a supporting cast which includes Hutch Johnson and Al Cato, both under ten seconds in the 100 yard dash.

Distance runner Dick Roberts ran a 4:21 mile as a sophomore two years ago, but injuries kept him from peak from last year. Richard Carrioco, Tom Graham and Jim Lankford will also participate at Chattanooga. Doug Ferry, a steady middle distance runner, and finished fourth in the 440 at Miami. Ross Winter and Hank Raehn add strength in the relays and individual events.

Weinstock, Goodman Lead Gymkana Over Tech

The Florida State Gymkana defeated Georgia Tech in a gymnastic competition Saturday in Tully Gym by the score of 76 1/2 to 65 1/2, to up their season record to 3-0.

The win over Tech was especially impressive without the services of Jon Culbertson, an all-around performer worth about 50 points each meet, who was ineligible for the Tech meet. Culbertson, a graduate student in biology, was ruled ineligible for undergraduate competition.

High point man of the meet was Bob Snyder of Tech with 22 points. The high man for the Seminoles was senior Mitch Weinstock with 19 1/2, followed closely by Jim Goodman, a freshman, with 17 points.

The FSU Gymkana will meet the University of Florida here on Saturday, February 15 at 2:30 p.m. After the sixth event, Long Horse Vault, Tech pulled to within one point of the Tribesmen. In the final event, High Bar, Trampoline, Vault and Tumbling, FSU increased its lead with Goodman taking first on High Bar and John Kimbrough taking a second place finish. Gary Sheenan and John Van Nostrand picked up valuable points on the Trampoline event with second and third place finishes. Bob Gramling and Frank Dennard finished second and third in the Tumbling for the Seminoles.

"The men really wanted to win this one. Guy Atkinson performed a fine floor exercise routine to win the event and Gramling did the best Still Rings of his life to win his favorite apparatus."

THIS WILL BE THE SCENE ON FEBRUARY 24

... as the Seminole Gridders, under Coach Bill Peterson and his staff, take to practice field to work out the kinks in preparation for the 1964 season.

Peterson will stress fundamentals of the sport during the drills, which end March 21 in the annual Garnet-Gold game, and will keep an eye open for hard-running backs and accurate-passing quarterbacks.

Spring Practice Starts Feb. 24

Coach Bill Peterson has announced Feb. 24, as the opening day of spring football drills at Florida State University.

The Seminoles will work four days a week for five weeks. Workouts are scheduled on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

The annual Garnet and Gold game will be held March 21, in conjunction with Spring Alumni Weekend at Florida State. The final week of spring practice will be held after the game.

An all out search for running backs will be held this spring Peterson says. The Seminoles lost nine lettermen from last year's squad, including the team's top three ball carriers.

Graduating are halfback Dave Snyder, fullbacks Larry Brinkley and Marion Roberts, tackles Jerry Bruner and Ferrell Henry, center Bill Daly, guard Chuck Robinson, quarterback Charlie Calhoun and place kicker Doug Messer. Halfback Jim Loftin has said that he will not attend school next fall because of academic difficulties.

Seminole hopes for a stronger running attack received a boost recently when halfback Phil Spooner was cleared for competition next fall. Spooner, a letterman in 1962, did not play last season because of a kidney injury.

Peterson approaches spring drills with an open mind as far as the new substitution rule is concerned.

"We'll work everyone on our squad both ways all spring," he says. "Then we'll decide whether to use a two or three team system. It depends on the development of our personnel."

As usual, the major concentration will be on fundamentals.

The coaching staff is also in for some thorough preparation for next season.

DeVane, Merting Nominated At Student Party Convention

"We'll trim the fat off Longmire," said Mike DeVane last night, in accepting the Student Party nomination for President of the Student Body.

Other nominations for student government officers were: John Merting, vice president; Jack Cannon, Men's Vice President; Jean Norman for the office of Secretary of Student Senate, and Judy Loucks for Chairman of University Court.

Further nominations were made last night for the Chairman of Traffic Court, and Bobbie Haney and Al Galbraith for positions on the Board of Publications.

No nominations were made last night for the office of Women's Vice President or for the third position on the Board of Publications.

In his acceptance speech, DeVane touched on three points that he considered important for a nominee and his party. They were pride, enthusiasm and humility. He called for pride in our growing university, its future as well as its past. He also outlined plans that he would like to see put into effect; more money spent for visiting professors for the baseball field. He then asked for individual zeal in student government officers. He asked for dynamic people to lead the student body.

DeVane said next that he was dedicated to his education and dedicated to his fraternity. Now he would be dedicated to the students of FSU. With the help of the party, he said, and the Almighty, the Student Party will again succeed.

Student Party also elected new party officers last night. The new chairman is Al Milton; vice chairman is Ron Borst; and recording secretary is Nancy May.

Pam Kilgore will be the corresponding secretary, Jim McCloy the publicity chairman.

Wright All-Beethoven Concert To Be Tonight

Thomas Wright, well-known pianist, will be featured in the All-Beethoven concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Mezzo-soprano Elena Nikolaidi and cellist Owen Sellers will be featured on the Beethoven program along with Wright.

The concert will emphasize lyrical music of the famous composer's middle period in which Beethoven made a transition from classicism in music to romanticism.

The concert will begin with Wright performing a "Piano Sonata in E Minor," Opus 90. Sellers will join the pianist for "Sonata for Cello and Piano in A Major," Opus 69. Miss Nikolaidi will present a song cycle, "Andie ferne Geliebte," Opus 98.

Wright will play "Piano Sonata in E Flat Major," Opus 31, number 3 as finale for the evening of Beethoven.

Miss Nikolaidi was born near Athens, Greece, where she received her early musical training.

Sellers has concertized with major symphony orchestras in Cincinnati, Miami, Mobile and New Orleans. He was a participant in the Bach-Casals Festival in Prades, France. Known as a music educator, Sellers is presently associate dean of the FSU School of Music.

O'Conner Hurt

Miss Jerry O'Conner was injured while working on a free-land break-away at the Circus last Monday afternoon.

The trick calls for someone to catch her legs. The hands of the catcher slipped, and the person holding the safety line pulled up just in time to keep Miss O'Conner from crashing to the ground.

She hit her forehead above the left eyebrow and had to have several stitches. Miss O'Conner was scheduled to return to school yesterday.

Right Is Duty

We wonder why it takes a faculty petition, demonstrators, snarling police dogs, and bombed churches to try to give people the elemental rights that should be the birthright of any human being.

How, in this land that promises "liberty and justice for all" can people not have the right to vote, the right to equal police protection and fair trial by jury, and the right to go anywhere at any time without fear of persecution due to race or religion.

Would any of you deny that these things are not right? Would anyone deny that by keeping out the "undesirables" from your church you are, in fact, denying your own beliefs?

Would any of you actually admit that the smearing of a man by calling him a communist or homosexual or whatever without a shred of evidence is not against every principle that America has come to represent?

We as the generals of the next generation must open our eyes to a very real and desperate situation. We can't sit back and worry only about dates or student politics. We must do everything in our power to become educated, to weed out the truth and then have the courage to follow it wherever it may lead.

It is time to tell mom and dad that they are nice folks and you love them but this does not make them right. We must evaluate the world for ourselves and not blindly follow the threats of our parents, or a demagogue political hack, or an itinerant backwoods preacher.

Open your eyes and look around. Put yourself in the place of the man who cannot go everywhere he pleases to merely get something to eat. Imagine being beaten or killed by a civilization that calls itself Christian.

If you don't like what you see, if you dislike having your rights and the rights of your neighbor trampled upon, go out and change things.

It is not only your right, it is your duty.

Election News

Convention time is with us once again as both the University and Student Parties move into the spotlight regarding their candidates for the upcoming elections.

"The Florida Flambeau" will attempt to give as accurate and objective reporting as is humanly possible. We will also bring to our readers a look at the candidates for the major offices in a special "meet the candidate" series.

Student Apathy SG Leaders Fault

There is a new atmosphere around Longmire these days. With the major elections about a month away an air of tenseness and curiosity has suddenly pervaded the second floor of Longmire where the offices of Student Government are located.

Party conventions are upon us. Already the Student Parties have plastered prominent off-campus dining places with their yellow leaflets announcing their first convention of the year. Shortly the University Party will follow suit, preferably in another color.

However, to Joe College, average student at FSU, the whole "shebang" sounds like a truckload of "malarky." He simply doesn't give a damn about student elections. He would care if he had a reason, but no one has given him one strong enough to shake him out of his determined state of apathetic disdain. And, here in this nondescript's mental state and attitude rests the future of Student Government alias the "Mickey Mouse Club."

Don't blame Joel! Who wants to get concerned with some problem that is seemingly as remote as the Himalayas? Who cares who appoints whom as long as the lunch line doesn't get any longer? Here is the essence of the problem. How do you expect anyone to care about Student Government when someone takes the time to explain things to the student in understandable and concise terms?

Joe knows about what goes on around the second floor of Longmire, don't worry; he will be interested in Student Government. He will be repulsed, he will cry, and most of all he will laugh. He will also be surprised at how hard many students work for free with little or no publicity.

The really pathetic thing is that Joe College is never told that he is un-informed until those who are supposed to inform him seek his vote. Why? The potential candidates come around to dorm rooms and are asked a few piercing questions by a voter, many times the candidate retreats behind a smokescreen of epithets and cliché's trying to conceal the fact that he doesn't know the answers.

Sometimes, the voter is told that a bureau or committee takes care of things. What he is not told is that many of these ad hoc groups do function in numerous instances. Fortunately, most committees do function adequately. Someday the people who comprise Student Government will realize that informing the student will result in a more interested and concerned student body. A little free publicity never hurts the incumbents at election time.

Until Student Government officials fulfill their responsibility of informing the students, Student Government will remain the "Mickey Mouse Club" to most voters. So when candidate comes around asking for your vote give him hell. Ask what he is going to do for you if you vote for him. Ask him why he can't be a better job than his opposition. Ask him as to how he is going to do you know during the year what is happening on the second floor of Longmire.

On second thought, don't ask the questions. You will only embarrass him. Be nice, slam the door in his face.

Thomas Riggins

US Should Recognize Chinese

France's recognition of Red China last week has again raised the "Chinese problem" for the U.S. While some feel that it "would be folly" for our government to recognize the Red Chinese mainland, I feel that good can be made in favor of our government's recognition of China, and her admission into the U.N.

China is the de facto ruler of over 500 million people. There is no likely prospect that Chiang will ever recover the mainland, or that the people of the mainland even want him to. Recognition, therefore, would allow our government to carry on first hand negotiations with the rulers of China. This would also reduce tension between the two governments.

Arguments offered by our government against recognition apply as well to our own policy as to the Chinese. "When mainland China has a government which is prepared to renounce force, to make peace and to honor international responsibilities, it will find us responsive" --so says Dean Rusk. But the U.S. will not renounce force. We call for the forcible ouster of Castro and have even sponsored invasions of Cuba (Shades of Tibet).

We are willing to blame China for our problems in Korea, Vietnam, and will deny that China played a large role in the Korean War. Nevertheless the South Korean Rhee government, which we supported, was both a dictatorship and a barrier to the Korean people. We have no more reason to be anti-Chinese than they have to be anti-American.

As far as Vietnam is concerned, the role of the U.S. is neither to be admired nor lauded. We backed a corrupt and reactionary regime against the will of most of the Viet Nam people. There is some evidence that the Viet Cong is still very popular in South Viet Nam with the majority of the people.

To blame China for the Viet Nam trouble is to ignore our own imperialist role, and to overlook the basic social causes of the revolution we try to destroy.

Our only reason not to recognize China is a pragmatic one, not a moral one. The world is too little to exploit as it is without our aiding the Chinese to exploit it as well.

In the majority of cases both China and the U.S. have acted in their own interests in disregarding the rights of the peoples involved.

We should recognize China and seat her in the U.N. This would be a first step in the easing of tensions in Asia. Recognition alone will not be of much aid to world peace, however. It must be followed by meaningful negotiations to end all forms of exploitation in Asia, American as well as Chinese.

Southeast Asian peace will only be secured by making the area neutral. While it may, therefore, not be the best interests of the military and industrial leaders of the U.S. to grant recognition to a rival, it is in the best interests of the peoples of the world.

SG Delegate Bill Explained

To the Editor:

The recent controversy in Student Senate over the bill I proposed for political party regulations has many implications which strike much deeper than our former crusader, Sandy Turner, would have us believe. Much of the early comment if this bill will be no worthwhile if it is available for reference.

Chapter 714.7 Delegates to Party Conventions

A. At least fifteen days before the first day of a party convention the Sec. of Elections shall be notified concerning the time and place of said convention.

B. The list of delegates and alternate delegates to a recognized party must be made available to the Sec. of Elections at least fifteen days before the first day of the convention. This list shall also, be made available to any interested person at that time by the Secretary.

C. Only those members on the original delegate and alternate list can participate in the party convention.

D. Members of social fraternities and sororities shall not be allowed to be delegates or alternates to any party convention except those single

New Science Program Is Seen

An end to the old "cookbook demonstrations" of most science classrooms was forecast Monday at FSU by one of the nation's leading science educators.

Keynote speaker at ceremonies dedicating FSU's new Science Teaching Center, Dr. Arthur H. Livermore said "There's just too much science in existence today, to teach in any 12-year span of education" and the old "cookbook" approaches must give way to methods that permit students to invent their own recipes for knowledge.

Deputy director of education for the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Livermore told an assembly of some 150 educators, industrial representatives and school administrators that memorized facts alone are not enough for an understanding of today's science.

Praising the Science Teaching Center's potential uses in the development of curriculums which will enable students to draw their own conclusions from an experiment, Livermore also called attention to the fact that 10 teachers in four Tallahassee public schools are currently testing new teaching methods developed by AAAS projects.

The new science calls for a combination of "bench and blackboard" techniques. The experimentation made possible in centers such as this one at FSU will enable students to build their own "mental models" of scientific concepts, which can be applied in later, more specialized studies.

Dr. J. Stanley Marshall, director of the new Center and Head of FSU's Science Education Dept., said the facility provides present and future teachers with the chance to become thoroughly acquainted with the tools of modern science, and the opportunity to develop creative, laboratory-centered materials for instruction use.

The Science Teaching Center's stockpile of $70,000 worth of modern laboratory equipment, books, and tools will be a boon to Florida's use of NEA funds.

Bill Explained

representatives of the fraternity or sorority living area.

The essence of this bill is the belief that student government should not accept political parties as exclusive clubs, belonging to those individuals or fraternities who are currently required to be responsible to the student body. If these parties are not responsible, then the process of elimination that they exercise is, obviously, to the detriment of student government.

The University Party has a modified version of Section D included in its own constitution. If this section is discriminating against the fraternal groups, how can those groups in the U.F. tolerate the discrimination is non-existent?

A close investigation would show this to be true. Providing dormitory delegations with fraternity and sorority members solely to fill vacant seats is a patently poor excuse to avoid.

If the criteria for a winning candidate is the number of brothers or sisters one has on the delegations, the purpose of the party is not what they would like us to think. Block voting among several groups also achieves the same end a little more subtly.

Political parties are powerful instruments of government. If they refuse to clean their own house then it becomes the responsibility of government. It is inevitable that this will become necessary if the student body becomes aware of the present situation.

Cast Member III

"Love's Labour's Lost" lost to a surgical ward one of its cast-members for the week-end's production of the play.

A replacement, brought from his honeymoon at Panama City, now is rehearsing the part of Holofemes for the production of the Shakespeare play in Conradi Theater opening Friday night.

Sam Baker had an appendectomy last week. Director Art Dorlag thought at first he would be back in time for the production but because of the tight rehearsal schedule Dorlag shifted to a substitute on the week-end. Baker still is in the hospital.

Keith Carlson, producer-director for FSU's educational television station, WFSU-TV, was picked for the job. He was married only on Saturday but on Sunday afternoon rehearsed for the part. He had not understudied the part and said today, "I'm carrying a script around everywhere I go."

Carlson played Ben in the recent production of "The Dumb Waiter". Before coming to FSU as a staff member two years ago, he worked for National Educational Television station WQED in Pittsburgh.

He has studied at the Pittsburgh Playhouse and attended Pennsylvania State University. He did a show in summer stock in Pennsylvania at the White Barn Theater.

Elections Council Is Working Again

With party conventions coming onto the horizon once again, the Elections Commission returns to a prominent position in Student Government activities.

The commission is a permanent body in the executive branch of the Student Government. It is composed of a Commissioner of Elections, twelve commission members, and the Sophomore Council chairman for elections. The Attorney General is an ex-officio member.

The commission is in charge of Student Body Elections. Chapters 700 through 715 in the Student Body Statutes, also called the Elections Code, clearly define the authority of the commission. One part of the Code states that "The Elections Commission shall, by and with the consent of the President of the Student Body have the authority from time to time to issue, amend, or rescind such rules and regulations as are necessary to carry out the provisions of this act." This statute gives the Commission the authority to make necessary changes and any other interpretations deemed necessary.

Senator Gene Stearns introduced a bill two weeks ago which, among other things, called for the list of delegates to a party convention to be made public 15 days before the convention. The bill also stated that delegates from the dorms may not belong to any Greek organization. The Student Party Constitution states that the list of delegates shall be made available to the "Flambeau" two weeks prior to the convention. Al Milton of the Student Party says that there are no plans at present to change the SP Constitution.

The University Party Constitution states that the list of delegates shall be made available prior to the convention, and it states that dorm delegates must be non-Greek. Darryl Wood of the UP feels that the bill would little effect on the party. The Elections Commission will have representatives at the conventions. Chapter 714 of the Statutes concerns political parties. Under this section the Commission shall officially recognize any political party which "files with the Secretary of Elections three copies of its constitution, a list of its candidates for offices filled in the student body election and in the class election, and agrees to obey the student body constitution and statutes and its own constitution." Recognition is from election to election and "may be revoked by the Commission if it finds that a party has failed or ceased to meet the requirements of the statutes.

Happy Birthday, Dear. . .

Shakespeare

Birthday plans for the 400th anniversary include a production of Shakespeare's "Love's Labour's Lost" by FSU University Theater players, Feb. 7-9 and 14-16. Left to right are Kent Wood as the King of Navarre and Ellen Whigham as the Princess of France, at practice.

Placement Conference Begins Thursday

The Fifth Annual Teacher Placement Conference, open to senior and graduate students interested in seeking employment, will be held tomorrow and Friday.

The Conference is planned to provide an opportunity for public school officials to acquaint prospective employees with the different school systems through group meetings and personal interviews.

Each school system will conduct three group meetings tomorrow, 1, 1:30 and 2 p.m. Interested persons are asked to come to the Foyer of the Education Bldg. between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to obtain a list of group meeting locations.

The meetings will provide students with general information such as salary schedule, living and working conditions, and employment procedures.

Personal interviews will be conducted tomorrow from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Friday from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. in the lobby of Tully Gymnasium.

Dr. Garth K. Blake, director of Educational Placement and Internship Office, urges students to take full advantage of this opportunity to learn about the different school systems and to arrange personal interviews with as many school officials as desired.

Lecture Will Feature Jones

In its public lecture series, the FSU Government Dept. will feature Harry W. Jones, speaking on legal discipline as it relates to government and politics, Monday night at 8 p.m. in Strozier Library Lecture Hall.

Jones, Cardozo Professor of Jurisprudence at Columbia University and visiting professor of law at the University of Chicago, is author and co-author of a number of books on legal method, legal realism and natural law.

His 1962 Danforth Lectures have been published in MacMillan's "Religion and Contemporary Society." Last December his series of lectures at Western Reserve University dealt with "The Law Explosion and the Problem of Justice."

A prominent authority on public law and a member of the Board of Editors for "The Natural Law Forum" and "Religion and the Public Order."

Vows Lose Out

Never speaking to a woman and sleeping three hours a night is in essence the oath taken by the King of Navarre and his three nobles in Shakespeare's play "Love's Labour's Lost."

The King, forgetting about the diplomatic mission of the French Princess and her three ladies, is taken aback. The Princess is forced by the King's vow to camp outside the palace. He can't even entertain her.

The oath is entirely forgotten when the King and his lords become infatuated with the lovely ladies at first sight. The men can't contain themselves any longer, and end up writing letters to their favorites. One of these letters gets mixed up and is delivered to the mistress of the palace's clown; the clown's letter, likewise, is delivered to one of the ladies. This comic mix-up provides funny moments when the lord's refined poetry is sent to the mistress, and the clown's artless writing is sent to the lady.

The King and the lords discover each other's love letters, and decide that women are really all-important. Pretending to be Muscovites, the men make love to them, but the girls find out and let them court the wrong girls, who are in disguise.

Everybody ultimately gets the right mate. Then, a messenger arrives with some sorrowful news—the Princess's father has died, and she must return immediately.

YPSL To Back Voter Drive

At the last weekly meeting of the Young People's Socialist League a drive was initiated to enlist FSU students in the Big Bend Voter Education Drive.

Derby Scheduled

The Sigma Chi Derby will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. on the band field directly south of Tully Gym.

Sponsored by the Sigma Chi fraternity, the annual derby is a competitive event between FSU sororities consisting of a series of eight events in which each sorority enters contestants.

The winning sorority in each event receives a trophy, as do the chapters who place first, second and third overall in the derby.

The theme of this year's derby will be "Doggatch, U.S.A.," with the contestants and their coaches dressed like Daisy Mae and Lu' Abner.

Purpose of the drive is to educate Negroes in Leon and Gadsden counties to their rights as citizens.

Any FSU student who would like to help in the battle for civil rights may join the Big Bend Voter Education Drive to help educate the Negro population on the right to vote and to be treated as free and equal citizens of a democracy.

The Big Bend Drive is run under the auspices of CORE (Congress of Racial Equality).

Interested students should call 278-9255 or drop by the Tallahassee office at 408 North Macomb Street for information.

Senate Not "Mousy"

LESLIE ROSS

Staff Feature Writer

He is not Mickey Mouse," Gary Hurlbut, sophomore class senator, he claims, because the Senate does not act like a mouse. On the contrary, things are not mousy, though they may not seem so to every student.

Example, work in streamlining the institution is not a concrete thing, but it affects many people, not only present FSU students, but those to come.

Senators, however, that the Senate does not have enough authority, strictly a legislative body and merely enact bills. The rest is left to the Faculty Senate and to resolutions submitted. (In this the Senate acts as a liaison between the students and the Administration by presenting the students' views.)

Senators would like to have the Senate with some money, such as more "senate funds." Gary continues, "I see how it would handle it."

He adds, however, that he realizes the Senate hasn't nearly the amount of experience as the Administration.

Although this is his first year as a senator, he is already engaged in numerous activities of Student Government. He is a member of Alpha Council and, in Senate, he is on the Homecoming Committee, the Judicial and Rules Committee, and the Inter-class Council Committee.

Last year he was a member of the steering committee of the FSU Promotions Bureau.

Gary has a wide variety of hobbies, from collecting to photography and swimming. (He was a member of the swimming team during his first trimester at FSU.)

Travel, however, seems to be his main "hobby." He has already visited Washington, D.C., gone exploring in North Carolina, traveled throughout the Mid-West, toured the island of Nassau, and he is now anticipating a trip to Alaska this summer.

After obtaining a degree in finance, he plans to enter the stock market in some field, possibly as a broker. He is uncertain as to any graduate work, but if there should be any, it would be in business or corporation law.

In regard to his work in Senate, Gary, says of the Inter-class Council, "In the past their (the individual class officers) powers haven't amounted to much. However, by getting a larger, organized group together, by having elected duties, and by giving it more power and activities to undertake, it (the Council) should do a lot better job than before."

As to the problem of Senatorial action on integrating off-campus restaurants, he believes that the Senate could perhaps issue a recommendation to the owners. The recommendation would present the views of the Senate but would leave the owners to make their own decision.

Gary is also in favor of having a committee set up to act as a hearing-board for both the owners and the picketers to see something can be worked out between them.

Grants Offered

Students interested in a career in the public service who will receive their BA in June are offered an opportunity to apply for fellowships to study at three different universities.

Each fellowship has a total value of $3,000. The stipend is $2,500, and the remainder of the grant consists of fees and tuition, which are paid by the program for each fellow at the three cooperating universities. Beginning this fall, fellows will serve a three-months internship with a governmental agency.

For information and applications, students should write to Coleman M. Ransone, Educational Director, Southern Regional Training Program in Public Administration, Drawer 1, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, for submitting applications is March 2.

Colberg Appointed

Dr. Marshall R. Colberg, head of the Economics Dept., has been appointed for a four-year term to the Committee on Economic Education of the American Economic Association.

The Committee on Economic Education will have responsibility for the Association's work in high school and beginning collegiate education in economics.

Colberg has been head of the Economics Dept. since 1950 and is Past President of the Southern Economic Association.

Radio, TV Meet

A Broadcasting and Advertising conference open to juniors and seniors majoring in broadcasting, advertising or journalism will be held in New York City, Feb. 20-21.

The conference is designed to bring together top professionals with college students interested in the practical aspects of the industry.

Professionals from radio and television station and network management and others from major advertising agencies will conduct a series of seminars in an effort to answer the complex problems that face the broadcasting and advertising industries.

Newman Elected

Mrs. Marjorie Newman, program director for WFSU-FM, has been elected a regional radio director on the board of directors of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

Mrs. Newman will represent the southeastern states on the Board. These include Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia, along with Puerto Rico. She will serve in this capacity for the next two years.

Mrs. Newman attended a board meeting held in conjunction with the National Educational Radio Seminar several days ago at the University of Chicago.

SPORTS EDITORIAL — Gene Ballard

FSU To Replace Tech?

There has been considerable speculation as to whether or not Florida State will take Georgia Tech's place in the SEC. In my judgment this would be a very wise move.

There are several advantages in belonging in a conference, especially a big one like the SEC.

The first is that as a member of the SEC, FSU would be receiving a split of all television money, and Bowl money. Last year for instance, five SEC teams went to Bowl games. This would give FSU a split in the gate receipts, and television rights. More money than FSU could hope for operating as an independent.

Secondly, being a member of the conference would guarantee a representative schedule. In football, all SEC teams are required to face at least six Conference opponents. The same would be true in basketball and baseball.

Thirdly, belonging to the SEC will put FSU on the map football wise. As a member of the SEC, FSU will receive more nationwide publicity than as an independent.

Lastly, belonging to the SEC will make it much easier to recruit. Belonging to a strong conference is a high factor in the recruiting of outstanding prospects.

Another question to be asked is what can FSU offer the SEC, if anything. There are many things that this school can offer.

First, we have a high quality institution, with a high grade average. We have one of the best academic institutions in the South.

FSU also has good facilities. With the addition to the stadium, it will seat 35,000. We have one of the bigger gyms in the conference. Next year we will have a new swimming pool, which will be one of the best in the South. It will be possible to hold Olympic trials at our pool.

We also have one of the finest sets of coaches anywhere. With Bill Peterson in football, J. K. "Bud" Kennedy in basketball, Fred Hatfield in baseball, Mike Long in track, Bim Stults, and Paul Scarpa in tennis, FSU is certainly blessed with great coaches.

Also, we field good teams in all sports. In addition to football, and basketball, our baseball team has gone to the World Series twice, our swimming team has beaten the Florida Gators, champs of the SEC, and the gymnastic team is also unbeaten.

From this corner, it looks as though FSU and the SEC will be good for each other.

Tulane 57-34

The Florida State swimmers, tops in the South, won their sixth straight dual meet Monday night defeating the Tulane Green Wave 57-34.

Highlight of the meet was the record set by the 400 yard freestyle relay team of Mike Blount, John Rangely, Jim Mauldin and Richard Abbott—none of whom had seen action previously. The team broke the existing meet pool and Florida State marks with a blazing 3:18.6 time.

The Seminoles captured nine of eleven events, with Mark Cohen, Dale Smith, Mike Rowe, and Thornton DeWitt setting new meet records. Cohen broke the record in the 200 yard butterfly, Smith in the 100 yard freestyle, Rowe in the 200 yard backstroke, and DeWitt in the 500 yard freestyle.

The Seminoles are idle until February 15, when they meet Florida in a rematch. The match against the Gators will be their last dual meet of the year.

University Party Plans Convention For Tonight

University Party Chairman Darryl announced that the University Convention will be tonight at 8 p.m. in the main auditorium of the men's gym.

Delegates from various groups at will decide party nominations for officers in the coming Student Body Elections, as well as to choose officers for the year.

Dr. James P. Jones, assistant professor of history, will deliver the keynote address.

Nominations will be decided for the following Student Body offices: Vice President, Men's Vice President, Women's Vice President, Secretary of Student Senate, Chairman of the University and Chairman of the Traffic Court and three positions on the Board of Education.

In order for students to gain entrance to the convention floor, UP membership cards and a $15 lobby fee is necessary.

Wood added that anyone who is interested in observing the nominating process can watch the proceedings from the galleries at no cost.

In urging all interested students to attend the convention, Wood stated, "I feel that this is an excellent opportunity for students to observe one of the least known but most important steps in the political process in FSU's student government."

He added that many students are not aware of this phase of campaigning and, "Everyone should take advantage of this chance to see democracy in action on the FSU campus."

Group meetings and personal interviews with representatives from school systems from 24 Florida counties are being conducted on campus today and tomorrow as part of the Fifth Annual Teacher Place-

BILL NUMBER 22

... was under debate yesterday in Student Senate. The bill was concerned with FSU's system of political parties and their relation to the proper selection of persons to fill student body offices. (Photo by Cowart)

Restrictions Passed By Senate Will Regulate Student Parties

The bill regulating delegates to party conventions was accepted in yesterday's meeting of the Student Senate, after a clause restricting members of social fraternities and sororities from becoming delegates was deleted.

The deleted clause would have prevented members of social fraternities and sororities from becoming delegates except those single representatives of the fraternity or sorority living area. The amendment deleting the clause passed by a vote of 18-16.

The Elections and Appointments committee recommended the amendment to the bill, which was introduced by Senator Gene Stearns. The committee also recommended a change in the time by which the Secretary of Elections should be notified as to the time and place of conventions. The amendment, approved by Student Senate, requires seven days' notice.

A bill introduced by Senator Darryl Wood creating a Host Bureau passed unanimously. The bureau's functions include welcoming of guests to the campus and serving as co-ordinator and official host for all Student Government social functions.

The feasibility of establishing a clinic to assist students in preparing for law school admission will be investigated by a special committee set up by a resolution introduced by Senator Ed Scott. The resolution was accepted unanimously by Student Senate, and Sen. Scott was named chairman of the committee, which includes Senators Jeanie Williamson, Gene Stearns, Lucy Bland and Hugh McElvay.

The clinic would offer a refresher course for all interested seniors, and would be conducted under the auspices of the English, Humanities and Mathematics Departments.

Senate passed by a vote of 19-12 a resolution introduced by Senator Margaret Lynn Patterson which suggests alterations in the laundry service requirements. The alterations would include discontinuation of the compulsory laundry fee for all women and the requiring all freshmen men and women to pay the set laundry fee.

The resolution would also require upper-class women to send flatwork to the university laundry at a modified price, and, finally, would permit students to pay the set fee with the present services included if they so choose.

The following appointments were approved: Ray Hayes as Senator from Precinct 14, replacing Lee Farmer; and Suzanne Brown, Pat Rogers, Mark Howard, Floyd Whitten, Marsha Lynn, and Jack Siperley to the Bureau of Budget. Jean Norman's appointment to the Elections Bureau was not approved because of her candidacy to an office in the coming elections.

At the close of the meeting, Senate President Julian Proctor urged the senators to bring forth their criticisms during Senate meeting, rather than remain silent and later make their complaints known to those outside the Senate.

He further cautioned the senators to, "Say what you feel, but don't make completely erroneous statements." He mentioned that the Faculty Senate never reviews Student Senate bills.

Florida Counties Offer Teaching Opportunities

Group meetings and personal interviews with representatives from school systems from 24 Florida counties are being conducted on campus today and tomorrow as part of the Fifth Annual Teacher Placement Conference. Dr. Garth K. Blake, Director of Education Placement and Internship Office announced today.

Interns, seniors, and graduate students are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to learn about the different county school systems and changes for permanent teaching positions. Each school official is asked to conduct three separate group meetings in order that all students may attend the meetings of three different schools.

General information, such as salary schedule, living and working conditions, anticipated vacancies, and employment procedures, will be offered at the general meetings. These will be held at 1 p.m., 1:30 p.m., and 2 p.m. today.

A list of the rooms in which the group meetings will be held can be obtained between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the East Foyer of the Education Building.

Personal interviews with school representatives will be scheduled on a thirty minute basis today from 2:30 until 9 p.m. and all day tomorrow.

Arrangement for personal interviews with school officials should be made at the group meetings. These interviews will be conducted in the lobby of Tully Gym. Credentials for all students will be available upon request.

Freedom Of Choice Expressed

To the Editor:

Re: Letter by Mary Ann Stevens, in the January 27, 1964 issue.

Whether an American believes in freedom and equality for all should be a ridiculous question as it is the founding principle of our nation; but by forcing, even through peaceful picketing, private businesses to segregate you are violating their freedom.

If I were the owner of a private establishment and sided that people with red hair, or no one at all, could enter said establishment, I would be within my rights. This may seem ridiculous, but I have the right to choose and so do the owners of the campus-side restaurants. The right of the owner of a private business to refuse admittance to anyone or everyone is a basic attribute of a democratic society, and one which we, as members of a democracy, must uphold.

Public institutions are, of course, another matter. They should, and must be open to everyone regardless of race, religion, or creed.

The question of equal wages for Negroes is another which I have heard hotly argued. However, as long as employers uphold the labor law and minimum wage scale, there is no question.

To use the cheapest labor available for a certain job is basically sound economics, and as an employer I would attempt to hire labor as cheaply as possible thereby cutting costs and increasing profits. Employment, in a particular business is a voluntary thing, and no one is forcing a person to work for the wages he offers.

In regard to equal education, I have heard it said that the Negroes do not have it, but I have yet to see any proof of this. An education equal or better than one the you and I are receiving is available to anyone regardless of race. This is obvious to anyone who looks into the matter beyond hear-say and commonly accepted ideas.

Segregation has nothing to do with the quality of an education, it has absolutely no effect on it. Another question raised by Miss Stevens is equal opportunity. Again as an employer I might choose to hire only people six feet in height, or I may hire only Caucasians or only Negroes. The decision is mine and mine alone. As I stated above, public employment should be open to all with no discrimination as to race.

When I see the picket lines again, I, for one, am going to uphold freedom of choice rather than forced segregation, something that is entirely incongruous with a free, democratic society.

Smith Relates Fallacies Issued By Senator Ward

To the Editor:

There are a number of fallacies and incongruities in the statements made by Senator Bill Ward in Tuesday's "Flambeau" that need to be made known.

1. Contrary to Senator Ward's statement, the mandate on class officers has never been declared "unconstitutional." Furthermore, the statement made by the Attorney General was made within the past month, not last April. Also, there was no immediate need for Senate to take action on this bill, since it will have no effect until the second elections in March. I compliment the Senate for having the wisdom to study the class officer program revision as thoroughly as it did.

2. At no time is a Student Senate bill or resolution ever referred to Faculty Senate for "mommy's approval." Faculty Senate has nothing to do with Student Senate affairs. Senator Ward's statement that a Student Senate bill "voted" by faculty is completely erroneous.

3. Senator Ward criticizes his constituents by saying that none have ever come to him with suggestions or desires for action upon it. I wonder how many times he has approached his constituency in the same manner and exercised some initiative. There is a dual responsibility here that Senator Ward fails to recognize. For instance, where were you Senator Ward, during the freshman orientation sessions in October, the various Student Government offices and open houses for visitors, dignitaries, international students, etc., the Student Government Retreat, or the public discussion held last week on Student Government? Any of these occasions would have been a great opportunity to hear the feelings and attitudes of your constituents.

4. I was extremely amused at Senator Ward's gripe over "pettiness in the political parties in student Government," including myself and Senator Ward, is exempt from party politics. Without parties there would be no stability in the actions of government.

5. Concerning Senator Ward's concern over the bill regulating powers of the Student Body I find it absurd he knows it is the passage of that bill would mean the most serious dismantling of the check and balance system of government. In quite a short time, it has always been the case since the executive power to fill vacancies in office. He is also claiming that the President's appointments is held by Student Senate anyway.

6. Senator Ward suggests that the Senate is the one who sees how little is being done. Perhaps while they are there they check the Senate record of Senate absences, and also check the Senate record of Senate appointments.

Criticism is good, Senator Ward. If it is well-founded and not based on misconception, had this occurred in your statements, this letter would have been unnecessary.

Good Friday Forgotten?

To the Editor:

On looking at the calendar for the second of February, I noticed that they forgot Good Friday again. It seems that "they" are being a bit too utilitarian. Is one day too much to ask?

After all, from January 7 to April 17 is a long time. In that time we have 14 weekends, the majority of which require at least one day spent working. Nervous tension has risen since the advent of the accelerated '71'.

I believe that one three-day weekend would be a Godsend. This would be especially applicable to those who need an extra day to make a trip home and be able to spend a whole day there. In my case I merely want to pay my respects to Daytona Beach.

Not only would it give the students and faculty a chance to unwind, but it would be a boon to the religious. I should think that if the minority sects on this campus can be excused for a religious holiday, if classes are closed to give thanks for a puritan group's safe establishment in the vicinity of Palm Rock, and if school days are disrupted to pay tribute to an assassinated President, then the Crucifixion and Resurrection would be given precedence to a few lectures.

Of course, I realize that this is in vain. The glorious system, plan, manifesto, trimester or whatever you cannot be interrupted. The Machine must not stop. It's just too expensive.

Student Commends Barrow

To the Editor:

Mr. Colin Barrow of the Physics Department faculty, is to be commended for his sensible and mature refusal to be conned into participating in non-academic demonstrations. Every fees-paying student who pursues excellence in his research and teaching of astronomy, for keeping his head out of the clouds and his decision-making down-to-earth. In short, for minding his own shop. Other employees of the institution should follow suit.

Sign carrying and picketing targets for intimidation is a fad of the decade. As middle-aged alumni, we will look back upon it as our parents look back upon coon-skin caps, goldfish swallowing, and what have you. We have seen panty-raiding, phone booth stuffing, and bed pushing come of age. Admittedly, by contrast, the civil rights demonstrators have what many people consider to be a serious and just motivation and goal. That their efforts have been effective locally is a fact well-documented by the closed doors of the defunct University Inn. However, they are battling against, and not in league with, the flowing tide of history, which is an unfortunate condition of which the Lard Marx himself would despair. While the signs carried by picketers convey their idealistic messages in well-worked out phrases, it is in the faces of the demonstrators that a more telling sign can be discerned. Where passers-by once noticed a ray of hope, they now detect little or no ray of hope and the first furrowing of disappointment.

Wiggins' janitor, who is a columnist in the "Racial persecution is in the process of being seriously eliminated in large parts of the world." This is startling news. It would be a shame for us in a future column to give us parts of the world" and give us specific instances of racial persecution being seriously eliminated. Where have all the established gatherings and information networks been while this world-wide rebirth has gone unnoticed and heralded?

As long as there are racial differences, there will be racial persecution, both at home and abroad. We are faced with the dilemma of eliminating either racial differences or the consciousness of them. Obviously, the solution lies in transformation of mankind's sameness of mind and spirit, so proper controls to insure its persistence. Perhaps this can be accomplished through civil demonstration, group pressure, and, finally legislation or forced submission.

While faculty members are joined to remain at their posts, students who wish to plunge into front line action in the local theater should put on a good pair of shoes, move out smartly from Westcott, and go to the left.

Scott Accomplished In Various Areas

By MELODY ROSS
 Flambeau Feature Writer

Bringing with him an impressive list of accomplishments in junior college politics, Ed Scott joined the ranks of FSU senators as a University Party member.

He decided to run for Senate because he "likes getting out to meet people and being able to do something for the school." He adds that he has a lot of ideas about a lot of things and he wants the authority to do something with them.

Ed began his political career at Dade County Junior College as a freshman. It was the school's first year in existence and he helped organize its student government. As a senator there, he was a member of the Ways and Means Committee and attended, as a voting delegate, the Florida Junior College Student Government Association Convention.

As a sophomore, he transferred to Daytona Beach Junior College where he was again a representative in student government and a delegate to the state convention.

In addition he was chairman of a political party, president of a social fraternity, a justice on judiciary, and parliamentarian of the debate club.

In conjunction with the city of Daytona, he helped plan the Easter Festivities and was chairman of the information bureau.

This year Ed represents precinct 14 (off-campus) and is chairman of the Class Officer Program Committee in Student Senate. In Men's Senate he is president pro tem.

In the meantime, he is administrative assistant to the President, a member of the Who's Who Committee, the Library Committee, and the University-Community Promotions Bureau. In his fraternity (Sigma Chi) he's president of the pledge class and soloist for the Sigma Chi Sweetheart Song.

His hobbies are music (singing), golf, tennis, and water-skiing, which he taught for two summers in New York. With a major in pre-law and economics, followed by law school he hopes to someday be a US Senator.

Regarding the effectiveness of the Senate at FSU, Ed contends that "anything that allocates a half-million dollars has to be an effective organ." Although the Faculty Senate has the power to stifle Student Senate, he believes it highly respects the opinions of students.

Roundballers Home For Furman

Florida State's Seminoles, idle for eight days, host an ambitious Furman team here tonight in Tully Gym. Game time is 7:45 p.m.

A victory for FSU would even the Seminoles' record at 9-0, and mark the Tribe's eighth win in nine appearances before the Tully crowd.

Furman's Paladins entered a Wednesday night meeting with Clemson 5-12 for the year and had dropped nine of 11 road games. But two of the Paladins' wins have been shockers, over Richmond and West Virginia, the latter marking Furman's first win over West Virginia in Morgantown in 20 years.

The Seminoles haven't played since Jan. 29th, when they scalped Alabama 95-77 here. Following tonight's game, they leave Friday for Shreveport, La., where they meet Centenary College Saturday night. Then they'll fly to Memphis for a Monday night return game with Memphis State.

Six-foot-six Cary Schull, leading scorer with a 12-point average, will start at center for FSU, flanked by 6-4 Pete Rogers and 6-4 Cal Hoge. Guards will be 6-0 Bobby Lovell and 6-1 Pete Gonzalez.

Furman can't match the Seminoles' height. Six-foot-seven Jack Halford and 6-5 Norm Schaffer handle the middle, while 6-4 Don Frye and 6-2 David Selvy are at forwards, with 5-10 Leroy Peacock and 6-4 Les Heicher at the guards. Frye leads the team with a 14.7 scoring average and hit a year's high of 26 against Richmond.

Selvy is a brother to Frank Selvy of Furman 100-point-a-game fame. A junior, Dave scored 25 in the win over West Virginia.

Joe Williams, who last year coached the Florida State freshmen, is now assistant coach to Lyles Alley, Furman's head coach.

The current Baby Seminoles, boasting a 6-4 record, meet Manatee Jr. College of Bradenton in a preliminary game at 5:45 tonight.

Frosh Meet Manatee J.C.

Florida State's freshman basketball team is burning up nets all over Florida and Georgia. Led by 6-4 forward Ron Malmen's 22 points a game, the FSU frosh have compiled a 6-4 record and are hitting better than 49 per cent of their shots from the floor. Four players, led by ace newcomer Bill Glenn, are shooting above the 50 per cent.

Glenn, who has played in seven games now after missing the pre-Christmas games with an injury, has a .557 percentage, on 39 of 70 shots. The 6-5 Tallahassee native has scored 85 points, a 12.1 average, to rush into fifth place on the team behind the leader, Malmen.

The Baby Seminoles two 6-9 centers, Ken Doyle of Tampa and Dick Danford of St. Petersburg are 2-3 in scoring with 12.7 and 10.9 point averages, respectively, and Danford has a .535 field goal percentage. Doyle a .521 mark. The other FSU freshman connecting on more than half his shots is 6-0 guard Moe Bloodworth of St. Petersburg. Speedy Moe has 23 hits on 43 attempts for .535.

Malmen, the Orion, Ill. native and Air Force veteran, plunged considerably from his pre-Christmas 28 point average, but he hit for 34 in a win over Pensacola Jr. College and had 28 in a 120-88 victory over St. Leo Jr. College.

Doyle was the hero in the Baby Seminoles' biggest victory to date, an 89-87 double overtime win over Florida's Freshmen. Doyle scored 25 points, 13 in the overtime period and hit the goal that tied the score at the end of regulation time. Games remaining for the frosh: Feb. 6 -- Manatee Jr. College, Tallahassee, 5:45. Feb. 10 -- Manatee Jr. College, Bradenton. Feb. 12 -- Gulf Coast Jr. College, Panama City. Feb. 14 -- Pensacola Jr. College, Pensacola. Feb. 15 -- Pensacola Jr. College, Pensacola. Feb. 17 -- Abraham Baldwin College, Tallahassee, 7:45. Feb. 22 -- Jacksonville U., Jacksonville, 5:45.

Rick Barry, University of Miami's sensational basketball forward is a clinch to become the first Hurricane player ever to score as many as 600 points in a single season.

a new slant to the past dominance by Ferrari's championship cars and drivers over all other manufacturers.

Not vanquished by any means, but the long famed builder and designer of the famous Ferrari automobile stated to an international press party at his factory just a few days ago that the threat of the Ford Company to his (Ferrari) Company is no longer an idle boast.

Coming from the man who made a clean sweep of sports cars and GT auto racing events in the past few years, this is one of the finest compliments possible to pay in tribute to an American automobile company. With Ford designed cars and Ford powered cars in confirmed entries for the 1964 running of the Sebring 12 Hour Endurance Race Saturday, March 21st, a new breed of cars may well add their laurels to the championship rosters of auto racing car developments.

The annual Sigma Chi Derby will highlight student activities this weekend when the derby gets underway tomorrow at 2 p.m. on the band field directly south of Tully Gym. Featuring "Dogpatch, U.S.A." as this year's theme, the Derby is going into its 14th year as one of the top sorority competitive events at FSU in the Spring.

Contestants from all of the 19 sororities at FSU will compete for top honors in ten events designed by the Sigma Chi's to frustrate the contestants and entertain the spectators.

The winning contestants will receive trophies for their sororities, and the sororities with the highest scores on the point system will receive overall trophies for first, second, and third places.

Beginning with the "Dogpatch, U.S.A." theme, the sororities will decorate their booths in the true Dogpatch style. In addition, the contestants in the Sigma Chi Derby Queen contest will dress like Daisy Mae, while their Sigma Chi coaches will wear LBJ Abner costumes.

Activities will start shortly before 2 p.m. when a parade of cars decorated by the sororities and carrying the Derby Queen entrants will start out at the stadium, travel through the campus, and wind up at the band field to begin the competition.

Eight of the events included in the afternoon's competition will be the chicken chase, the flour hunt, the ball and plank contest, the tug of war, the sleeping bag event, the coke drinking contest, the dress-the-pledge event, and the outhouse.

Early in the afternoon's schedule, the Sigma Chi Derby Queen will be chosen from entrants of each sorority, with the winner and her court reigning over the remaining part of the Derby. Last year's queen was Viretta Rozhorn, Delta Delta Delta. Points will also be given to the sororities which manage one way or another to obtain derbies off the heads of the Sigma Chi's during the course of the afternoon.

The climaxing competitive event of the afternoon will be a brand new mystery event, and the Sig's claim that this year's will be the best one ever.

The winning sorority in last year's Derby was Delta Delta Delta.

By no means a local event, Sigma Chi Derby Day had its origin at the University of Tennessee when the Sig chapter there decided to sponsor a competitive event for the sororities. The idea of sponsoring such an event spread to other chapters in the South, so that presently almost every Sigma Chi chapter around the nation sponsors a Derby Day.

The "Flambeau" learned late last night from reliable sources in the Social Action Committee that negotiations with the off-campus restaurants at FSU have resulted in their acceptance of the S.A.C.'s integration demands.

Jones, Henderson, Are UP Nominees

John E. Jones received the nomination for Student Body President last night at the University Party's fourth annual convention.

Sherman Henderson was selected the party's vice-presidential nominee. In a surprise move, Luther Kramer opposed Henderson's nomination and put before the convention Norbart Martin.

Kramer said, in nominating Martin, that he had worked with both men in the Dept. of Internal Affairs. In his opinion he feared that Martin was more dependable, creative, aggressive and concerned for the student body than Henderson.

Henderson won the nomination by a close margin.

Also selected were: Sandra Brooks for Secretary of Senate, Joyce Killian for Women's Vice President, Ed Scott for Men's Vice President, and Dick Smith, Scooter Rawls, and Matt Straub for Board of Publications.

There were no nominations made for Chairman of Traffic Court or Chairman of University Court.

In party elections, Darryl Wood was elected University Party Chairman. Ray Hayes was elected vice-chairman. Also elected were: Nancy Dale, corresponding secretary; Beverly Bonner, recording secretary; and Sandy Shulman, treasurer. "I believe that the student should be put back into Student Government," said Jones in his acceptance speech. He called for better communication between Student Government and individual students.

He also reminded the convention that FSU was undergoing an enormous growth in its population, and that Student Government was moving into the new University Union next year.

Tri-Delts Robbed Sunday; Possible Victims Of Rob-Rash

Six girls in the Delta Delta Delta house were robbed of $34.00 Sunday night.

Sometime between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Betty Bonte, Laurie Crawly, Beverly Brand, Anne Strickland, Beverly Clapp, Kathy Mosley and Susan Cawthon were robbed while sleeping.

While police officer R.S. Howell could find no positive means of entry, several girls surmise that the thief came through a sundeck window.

Delta Chi and Delta Tau Delta fraternities have also been victims of recent robberies.

Clothes worth $531 were missing from the Delta Chi house. The thief took sweaters, coats, shoes, cologne and a record player, someone believes. Dec. 21 and Dec. 29, Mike Schink discovered the robbery.

Thieves stole $851.00 in clothes, a record player, radio and typewriter from Raymond Cosby, Clark

Polk and Ronald Marshall in the Delta Tau Delta house. The robbery occurred the weekend of Nov. 29.

Dr. Harry Beard Dies In Tallahassee

Dr. Harry Beard, Associate Professor of chemistry at FSU since 1947, died Wednesday at Oak Grove Convalescent Home after being hospitalized since October, 1963.

Beard, who had been recognized for his 40 years membership in the American Chemistry Society, received his BA degree at Oberlin College in 1921. After that he went to University of Columbia for his MA degree, and then to University of Pennsylvania for his MS and PhD. He was an instructor at State College of Pennsylvania from 1932 to 1937 and was head of Physical Science Department there for five additional years.

Segregated Business Violates Civil Rights

I would like to attempt to state in very simple words "a reply" to Mr. Everett A. Steadman Jr.'s letter published in the Flambeau on January 22, 1964. I must admit that I found some of the concepts Mr. Steadman employed to be somewhat confusing to me.

For instance, Mr. Steadman stated that no one has the right to trespass on private property. To this I will agree wholeheartedly. But I am afraid I do not quite understand the concept "private property" as Mr. Steadman seems to have it mean. Webster's New World Dictionary "describes private" as "belonging to oneself, not public or state." "Property" is described as "one's own, ownership." Mr. Steadman's letter would lead one to think that the concept "private property" is a very simple one.

His letter would lead one to believe that there is no social distinction between the rights of an owner of a small private home and the rights of an owner of a small private business.

When a proprietor opens his doors to serve the respectable public can his property still be looked on as strictly private? What Mr. Steadman seems to be overlooking is that in a most basic way the concept "private property" is supposed to be modified with the acquiring of a state or local license to serve the general public.

Public is described as "concerning the people as a whole." When a business is licensed by the people of this state to do business with the general community, in a certain sense, it becomes a public place. The Mecca, for instance, is supposed to be of this kind of a place.

It is open to all respectable individuals—unless they are black. I suppose Mr. Steadman believes that this is just because it is a "private public" place. This is a strange concept which certainly seems to overlook the fact that such businesses are licensed in the interest of all of the people.

I cannot see clearly how Mr. Steadman comes to feel that property owners of public businesses have the right to exclude some of the respectable public simply because they are black of skin. I think Mr. Steadman has let his abstract ideals confuse the human issues.

Mr. Steadman appears to think that it is a mean trick to place protest pickets before the doors of a segregated business. This is a violation of that individual's right to be a "private public" segregationist. Mr. Steadman, these few "private-public" segregationists are violating the individual rights of an entire race. Let me share the responsibility, the obligation of each and every American, and if I so choose to remain a second class citizen, let it be by choice, not color. As for the pickets, I think it is great that they have the courage to protest these segregated places. I consider the pickets to be true Americans standing up for the principles they believe in. I am sure you will agree with me Mr. Steadman, that true Americans will always believe that all men should be given equal rights to develop in their own chosen way.

Innsbruck Olympics Reveal US Gap

The entire free world has been shaken from the warm bed of complacency by the recent alarming developments on the cold war scene.

In years past the western nations have always looked to the United States as a leader in global hockey competition.

The defeat of the American team at Innsbruck demonstrated to the world that we are woefully, pitifully, behind in hockey research. In short, a hockey gap now exists between the USA and the USSR. The reasons for this gap are several and obvious.

First, the administration admits that it was poorly informed on the present status of Soviet hockey. There are ominous rumors that heads will roll in the C.I.A.

Secondly, up to now Congress has refused to admit that an international hockey race existed. It's hard to believe, but not a single dime has ever been appropriated for hockey research. Consequently, there have not been any major breakthroughs in hockey research in the past 25 years.

The last and most important reason has been the apathy of the American public concerning the global hockey situation. It's a fact that up until last week John Q. Public just didn't care. Now he not only cares, he is in a state of shock and panic.

Exactly what are the international ramifications of the debacle at Innsbruck? How will it affect the cold war scene?

They are: This only 36 hours after the American defeat Khrushchev was able to rattle his hockey sticks at Lichsteinstein, which doesn't even have a team. Premiere Nasser is already negotiating to buy hockey equipment from behind the Iron Curtain.

Moreover, reports indicate that Russia has been pouring players and coaches into Castro's Cuba. Aerial photos reveal huge portable ice rinks located throughout the island. America is now faced with a hockey war only 90 miles from its shore.

We ask ourselves, "Is it too late?" Informed sources say the Soviet team has no. A few dedicated, fan-seen individuals have always been aware of the hockey lag in this country. They form a nucleus for hockey research in America. Experts maintain enough money is appropriated to finance a crash program for the hockey gap could be closed by 1970.

Congressional leaders have indicated that this money will be forthcoming. In his televised speech last night President Johnson outlined plans for a huge ice hockey complex just outside of Broward, Texas.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, interviewed at Gettysburg Farm, had this to say: "As it seems to me, in view of the present situation that is, somewhat most certainly can and will be done."

Gen Eisenhower urged that party politics be put aside during this time of trial. He also announced that he is taking a short vacation next week in Thomassville, Ga.

The leaders of the free world rallied in support of President Johnson's proposals. Great Britain suggested that we pool our hockey secrets in an all-out effort to catch up. Only De Gaulle remains insisting that France develop its own hockey program.

In the meantime, a California farmer has announced immediate production of backyard ice-skating rinks. Militant student groups continue picket Madison Square Garden carrying BAN THE PUCK posters.

Christians Exclude God

To the Editor:

By the action taken recently by one of our "churches" (?) here in Tallahassee, it seems that the people who make up the membership of these organizations have forgotten who is the real host at a church that is truly Christian.

We refer to the church as the "House of God" but seem to be making the maids and servants (the members) the masters of the house—thus it is no longer the "House of God."

We must all remember that when we act in the name of God we cannot think to ourselves, "What would I do in this situation?" but, we must think and act upon the thought, "What would GOD do in this situation?"

For all I know of God, he is not a bigot. God does not look at a man's hair, or at how tall he is or at the color of his face. God looks at the soul of a man and accepts him on this basis.

The statement of Christ, "As ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me," seems to be well illustrated in this poem by an unknown author:

I slept, I dreamed, I seemed to climb a hard, ascending peak. While far behind me labored one whose face was black.

I pitted him, but hour by hour he gained upon my pace. He stood beside me, stood upright; and then I turned in wrath.

"Go back!" I cried, "What right have you to stand beside me here?"

And then I paused, struck dumb with fear. For lo, the black man was not there, but Christ stood in his place. And, oh, the pain, the pain, the pain, that looked from that dear face.

Apartheid Is Solution?

The Editor:
Is it that FSU Negro students are going to be able to eat at the three restaurants located near the FSU campus? That this settlement may possibly be revealed to Liberal Sunday night by three FSU city members, Drs. Walborsky, de Vate and Chilton, whose information was based on the (until secret negotiations, to change, while favorable to the cause of civil rights and the loss of human dignity, would be a victory.
re-Negro students at FSU would be too likely to frequent these restaurants regularly because of the tremendous pressure which they are under. Moreover, under such an arrangement, these students still would be denied equal rights, as they would not be allowed to bring assents their friends, dates, and relatives who do not attend FSU. It is not clear that such an arrangement would do little to alleviate the pain of racial discrimination.

Have you ever wondered how the restaurant people would identify FSU Negroes and separate them from all other Negroes who might like to eat in their places?

One suggested method worked quite well in South Africa, that of presenting identification cards. (Shades of Apartheid) Another might be something analogous to the system used in Nazi, Germany, which was for identification purposes, forced all persons of Jewish origin to wear the Star of David.

Other systems of identification could doubtless be created by the imaginative faculty and students of FSU. Wouldn't it be better by far, though, if these persons used their energy and imagination to help bring about the logical settlement of complete and clear-cut desegregation?

To the Editor:
I have recently completed two years that time I had the opportunity to look at our country from a different perspective, that of an outsider.

I would like to tell you a little of what I saw and then make a request for identification purposes, forced Nigeria is the most populous of all African nations and enjoys a sound economic and political platform from which it has emerged as a leader in both African and world affairs, the latter as a spokesman for the moderate group of African nations. I enjoyed my two years there and left with the mixed

Ugly American Image Harmful

of Nigeria is not the purpose of my letter. I want to tell you about the United States. Not the one you see but the one that exists for a Nigerian.
A large land of plenty where everyone owns many things, and drives large automobiles, and has the opportunity to go to school and to work where he wants, and at what he wants if he is qualified. This almost completes the description, but let me add a final qualification—if he is white. Yes, everything is placed around this one thing—the Racial

Issue. Nothing exceeds its importance, both from newspaper coverage and from common man interest, in all of Nigeria.

I don't think I exaggerate when I say that a majority of W. Africans judge America solely on this one issue. The last two years we were watched intently and commented upon freely by the man who counts, the educated man, here in Nigeria.

What did he see? Among other things, pictures of young women being man-handled by Birmingham police-thugs, of four young children found dead after a church bombing, of a young man joy-killed while riding a bicycle, and of a Negro leader killed in his own front yard.
I could go on, but I'm sure you see the ugly point I'm making.

Oh, how grotesque and warped we appear. And where do these things happen? In the south! And where are you from Mr. Ulmer? "Why, from Florida." Oh.

Of course there are other sides and different points of view but don't you see that they aren't important as long as this one exists?

It is very sad when someone is asked to say where his home is,
and what some of his friends say and think about what his people are doing to help change things, but I am.

Why can very dark Indians or tan Thailanders go to our University but not our fellow Americans, the Negro? Why the restricted covenants in housing developments, why the segregation of bathroom facilities, why the non-sensical thinking, why the hate?

Clarification

To the Editor:
For the benefit of Mr. Thomas Riggins and anyone else who might Choose to misinterpret part of my recent letter I would like to point out that the term "... financial suicide" refers to possible pressures from local business groups and not to student patronage. As Mr.
Riggins observes, it is indeed naive to imagine that student patronage seriously enters into the situation.
The University cafeteria is not a reliable indicator in this discussion as commitment to the food plan ensures a steady level of patronage and local pressures can hardly affect a catering concern with considerable resources outside of Tallahassee.

I regret that I cannot engage further in an exchange of correspondence on this matter. As you remarked so aptly, "Prof. has no time."

...Image Harmful

The America visible from Nigeria is not a pretty place and the ugliest area of all is where I come from, the South. And we wonder why developing nations fail to put complete trust in US? What can we do?

I was proud when President Kennedy backed Civil Right's actions, and proud again when legislation was planned including needed factors such as the accommodations section. But now I am ashamed because it appears the South will once again show its ugly head.

Senator Smith holds the bill in Committee needlessly. Senator Russell plans another Southern filibuster regarding it. Will we never wake up?

Isn't there one Southern Congressman who has the guts to forget political expediency and back a bill that will be a vanguard, a solvent for some of the tarnish caked on America's coin of liberty?

Have you written to any of our leaders saying what you think? Have you, as a University student tried to provoke any action from our representatives in Congress?

The bill is important, yes, but only as a beginning. We, as young people of America, as young southerners, need to do a great deal of re-evaluating in the moral department. Only if we change—and we are the important ones, because the others will soon die and take their folly with them—can we hope to present to the nations of the world an America that is worthy of the responsibility of leadership gained mainly by might, but lacking in right in this critical area.

There is much more to be said, perhaps at another time. Maybe by then it will be possible to say you are from the southern part of the United States, and be proud of it.

Greeks Honor New Initiates

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Greek Editor

ALPHA CHI OMEGA -- The pledges were road tripped last Sunday to the Skyline Restaurant.

New initiates are Gene Garvey, Christy Walker, Colee Richards, Sandy Spear, Sandy West, Janie Goodin, Bookie Reynolds, Karen Lackey, Andy Anderson, Elaine Hixon, Diane Knudson, and Mary Howard Lipscomb.

ALPHA DELTA PI -- The Phi Deltis hosted the ADP's at a wicker roast Wednesday, and they were their guests at their intramural game afterwards.

The pledges will take over the house tonight, leaving the actives to find a place to stay. Margie Emmons was the best pledge for the past two weeks.

Carolyn Wronski received the rose bracelet for outstanding service to the chapter and Bunny Moreland received the activities bracelet.

This weekend Eloise Camerlon, past president of Gamma Beta Chapter will be visiting the Alpha Gam's. ALPHA OMEGA -- A scholarship banquet was held Tuesday to honor those who made a 3.0 or above.

Cheney Wurst was chosen outstanding pledge of the week. Doris Whigham is a new pledge.

ALPHA PHI -- The Alpha Phi's are looking forward to competing in the Sigma Chi Derby tomorrow. Inspiration Week began last Friday with turnabout day, when the pledges enjoyed the privilege of the actives. Having had a busy week, the neophytes are looking forward to initiation.

The Phi's will have a social with the Phi Psi's next week.

ALPHA XI DELTA -- New Alpha XI Initiates are Nancy Jean Adams, Tuckey Blay, Janis Brookling, Jo Ann Coleman, Elizabeth Cudler, Kendra Crawford, Ann Dibble, Marjelyn Eliseberry, Shirley Gable, Glenday Granberry, Sharon Howell, Martha Inglis, Patti Mann, Janet Maracci, Mary Riordan, Judy Sapp, Tomi Taravos, Janet Tyrrell, Ginny Walker, Christy Wardlaw, Susan West, Penny Ziegler, and Maria Sartwell.

The Alpha Xi's entertained the Kappa Sig's at an exchange dinner Thursday.

CHI OMEGA -- Chi O seniors and officers were entertained by Tallahassee alums Sunday night.

Dr. and Mrs. W.W. Rogers were dinner guests Wednesday; Mrs. Rogers is a Chi O alum.

DELTA CHI -- The Delta Chi's will have a dessert with the Alpha Chi's Wednesday.

The pledge class selected Tom Woodruff as the brother of the week.

DELTA DELTA DELTA -- Tri Delta's will have an exchange dinner with the Pi Kapp's next Wednesday.

DELTA TAU DELTA -- New Delt officers are Bob McKee, president; Marty Sobol, vice president; Emory Morris, recording secretary; Randy Cameron, corresponding secretary; Jack Jemison, treasurer; and Ray Cosby, sergeant-at-arms.

New pledge class officers are Nick Kerns, president; Paul Henderson, vice president; Tom McCurdy, secretary-treasurer; and Dayton Johnson, sergeant-at-arms.

New Delt pledges are Gary Farnaby, Earl Long, Harry Childers, Jim Eaves, Tony Qero, Charles Fennie, Mario DelLiberty, and Thompson.

DELTA ZETA -- Linda Goldstein was selected 2nd runnerup in the National Guard contest. Uchida, who was elected president of ATO in 1979, was elected president of ATO in 1979.

Seminoles Trip Paladins 57-48

With the help of a misplaced bat, FSU defeated the Paladins of Furman last night 57-48. The victory sets the record for the Tribe at 9-9.

Confusing both the opponents and the referees, the lost bat enabled the Tribe to take a five point lead in the first four minutes. The lead increased to read 11-5 with 13:18 left in the first half.

However, Selvy and Frye combined for 24 points to put the Paladins back in the running by cutting down the FSU margin to two points. Lovell scored 10 points during the first half to put the Seminole back in the drivers seat.

Furman's Heicher pumped in eight and the scoreboard showed a 23-23 tie with 3:51 left. The Purple cagers took the lead with 1:42 left in the half as Frye pushed in a free throw and the score was 25-28. At halftime Furman commanded a two point edge.

At the start of the second half, Pete Rogers tossed in two field goals to tie the game at 33-33 all.

Paladin's Peacock dropped in seven points to put his team back in the lead.

At this point, the cagers from Greenville, S.C. drew away from the Tribe to lead 40-43. Cal Huger, not to be outdone, scored two field goals and the Tribe was leading once more.

In the last five minutes FSU capitalizing on Furman mistakes and personal fouls stole the ball several times. Pete Gonzalez and Shirley rejoined the team and put the team into a 9 point margin.

FSU's Baby Seminole showed a hot hand in the second half to defeat the Manatee Junior College Lancers 103-89.

High man for the Baby Seminole was Center Ken Doyle with 27 points. Also cracking the 20-point barrier was Ron Malmen of FSU and Gene Myatt of Manatee. Malmen scored 24 and Myatt rang 20.

Also in double figures for the Baby Seminole were Lee Canter, Brian Murphy, and John Rogers. Center the other half of FSU's Mutt and Jeff combo from Plant High, scored 13 points. Murphy scored 12, and John Rogers, brother of the varsity's Pete, scored 10.

The Fresh outshot the Lancers 51% to 47% in field goals, and 77% to 76% in foul shots. In addition, the Baby Seminole out-rebounded the Lancers 42-31. High men were Malmen and Doyle with 12 and 11 respectively.

It was a nip and tuck battle down to the last ten minutes. Then Malmen, Canter, and Rogers took dead aim on the net, and broke it wide open for their third straight victory.

The Baby Seminole take to the road next week playing Manatee, Gulf Coast of Panama City, Pensacola Navy, and Pensacola Junior College all on the road.

BOBBY LOVELL (34) lays one in the bucket in the first half of basketball action last night against Furman.

Lovell, a senior guard from Chattanooga, paced the 57-48 Tribe Triumph with 12 points, ten of which came in the first stanza.

There will be a required meeting of the "Flambeau" sports staff today at 5 p.m. in 213 Longmire.

Any person interested in working with this "elite" staff may also attend.

Plans for the coming trimester will be discussed.

Skiff Denies Friday Story

Skiff, president of Liberal Forum, said today that the owners of 46-campus restaurants have agreed to total integration, as reported in Friday's "Flambeau."

He said, however, that the restaurant owners have agreed to integrate on the admittance of all students. The President of Liberal Forum added that such a compromise was not satisfactory.

According to Skiff, the Social Action Committee has countered with a proposal to admit all guests of FSU students.

Liberal Forum has requested the faculty to consider the point of such a compromise (admitting FSU students), even if it were made by the restaurant owners, as it is a compromise in name only, and those restaurants would remain segregated.

A letter sent to all faculty members who signed the petition which appeared in Tuesday's "Flambeau," maintained that the 10 Negro students at FSU are under tremendous pressure to be on their best behavior, and would probably be intimidated not to enter those places.

In plotting against these restaurants have been greatly aided by the efforts of students of the A&M University, the letter continued, and the rights would continue to be under such an agreement.

He also wrote that under such an agreement, true equality would be accorded to even FSU Negro students, as they would be prevented from bringing their parents, friends and dates into these restaurants.

In Liberal Forum's contention, therefore, that any such compromise would result in the continuation of de-facto racial discrimination near FSU, and would compromise the ideals of Liberal Forum at the University.

He said that the Social Action Committee is always ready to negotiate for a clause providing for admittance of all FSU students and guests.

Elections Commission Urges Parties Make Platforms Known

The Student Party and the University Party will be officially recognized when they have filed a list of their candidates nominated at their respective conventions, said Sam Ashdown, chairman of elections today.

This must be done by Feb. 11, at 5 p.m.

The Elections Commission feels that the Student Party should clarify the process for nominating day student delegates and that University Party should officially acknowledge the deletion of the non-Greek qualification clause in the selection of dorm delegates in their Constitution.

The Elections Commission suggests and encourages all political candidates for office in the Student Government to make their views and/or platform known to the student body. This may be done by speeches at dinners, rallies or standing on soap boxes.

The Commission reminds the candidates, however, that at no time may any campaign literature or material be disseminated. Any campaigning prior to Feb. 18 must be verbal.

The Elections Commission further suggests to candidates for office that the members of their campaign committees understand the general rules and regulations governing the election because ignorance of the law is no excuse, and the candidate will be responsible for any mistakes that take place.

As of Friday, at 5 p.m., seven students had filed their Declaration of Candidacy for the coming Student Body Elections, (Feb. 25). The following have filed for the designated position: John E. Jones, President of the Student Body; John Merting, Vice President of the Student Body; Joyce Killian, Women's Vice President; Hines Boyd, Chief Justice of Honor Court; Judy Loucks, Chairman University Court; Al Galbraith and Matt Straub, Board of Publications.

Band Plays In Westcott

The North American Air Defense Command band will present a concert at 8:30 tonight in Westcott Auditorium.

The concert will feature Sgt. David Carlson, a pianist who has played professionally with the Lawrence Welk Band and numerous West Coast night clubs. The pianist, a 24-year-old United States Army man, will play both classical and jazz numbers during the Cavalcade of Music concert.

The public may attend the program and there is no admission charge. NORAD Commanders Orchestra is part of the Norad Cavalcade of Music Organization and is considered one of the finest military stage-dance orchestras of today.

It won the title, "Honorary Best Band," in 1960 at the National Best Bands contest of the American Federation of Musicians and Ballroom Operators Association of America, held in Detroit, Michigan.

Several "name" players who performed with well-known dance bands before entering the Armed Forces of the United States and Canada are among the list of musicians. They include trumpet Paul Fontaine (Woody Herman); trombonist, Bob Jenkins (Ralph Marterie and Woody Herman); trombonist Phil Wilson (Woody Herman and Jimmy Dorsey); and trombonist Jim Trimble (Lawrence Welk).

Circus Week For Parents

Circus Weekend is designed to give students a chance to become better acquainted with college life, and, in keeping with this idea, all activities are planned in such a way that parents may enjoy themselves while leaving about FSU's campus.

This was the report of Mickie Neumann, chairman of Circus Weekend, yesterday.

The principle attraction will be the Home Show of the FSU Student Circus and parents, and alumni are urged to purchase tickets for this event through the mail.

Also this is the time for parents to make motel reservations as they are already starting to fill. A tentative schedule of the weekend's activities would run as follows:

Friday, March 6
8-5 Classes open for parents
2-9 Registration at Longmire
2:30 Track meet between FSU and U of Miami.

Saturday, March 7
8:00 Circus performance - Tickets will be sold only at the Athletic office or purchased through the mail. Open house - women's dorms and sororities.

Saturday, March 7
8-12 Registration at Longmire
11:30-1:30 Circus picnic - featuring a hootenanny. Garnet Key will be hosts and hostesses and the picnic is for the students as well as the parents.

Sunday, March 8
4-8 & Circus performance
Open house - men's dorms and fraternities.

8:15 Concert by University Singers. It is hoped that as many families as possible will try to attend these events, which are expressly for the students' and families' fun and enjoyment.

Tarpon Show Is Next Week

Lights, water, music, -- and the Tarpon Show is on! Thirteen intricate compositions will be featured Feb. 19-22 at this year's annual show, full of girls and glamour.

The theme "Dip in Dixie" will be illustrated by numbers such as "Gone with the Wind," "Dixie," and "Those Minstrel Days."

"A Call to Arms" will lead the program, directed by Nancy Huff. One of the feature acts will spotlight the "Minnows," or pledge class, doing a minstrel to banjo music. "Gone with the Wind" is arranged as a romantic duet sure to recall fond memories to the audience.

As tradition goes, the president will do a solo -- this year Pat Anderson will perform a gay, light hearted number about Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer. The finale will feature all the girls, and their routine will be accompanied by "Dixie."

Tickets, at 50 cents per student with ID, and $1.00 per adult, may be purchased today through Thursday in the main office of Women's Gym for the Friday and Saturday shows. Other evening tickets will be sold at the door.

No Communication

At the expense of their safety, solvency, and social reputation members of the Liberal Forum's Social Action Committee have for some months maintained a picket line in front of first the University Inn and now the Mecca. Many individuals and organizations have offered encouragement to these picketers. Yet, all of the expense remains in the hands of the members of the SAC.

Last week the University Religious Council took under consideration a proposal to accept an offer to negotiate with the restaurant owners. Reportedly the restaurants wish to talk about admitting only FSU students. The proposal also directs the SAC to drop its picket line. No one, however, has taken time to advise the SAC of the URC's proposal. Perhaps, it's time the brains of this operation got in touch with the muscle.

No Room

Wednesday night it was our good fortune to hear another of Thomas Wright's concerts.

There is something extra special, a professional touch perhaps, about every one of Wright's presentations. Not only do we marvel at his piano artistry but his choice of musical partners, the selection of a theme upon which the whole concert is based, and the attention to the little details so often lacking in other performances attest to his artistic genius.

We are disturbed, however, at the choice of Opperman Music Hall as the site of the concert. Either the music department isn't used to large crowds or someone is not planning ahead. The performance had to be delayed for a full 20 minutes while men brought extra chair to try and seat the overflow crowd. Even at this, many had to stand through the entire performance.

We feel that this is unfortunate. With so few students having or willing to take the time to take advantage of these cultural events, we do not believe that these few should be discouraged from attending for lack of seating arrangements.

With an auditorium available that is capable of handling a large audience there is no excuse for the inconvenience caused many people Wednesday night.

When Mr. Wright, Miss Nikolaidi and Mr. Sellers are willing to take time from their busy teaching schedules in order to present musical events of this high caliber, no one should be turned away for lack of space.

Disillusion 'Infecting' Integrationists

One of the most remarkable failures of the last decade has been the inability of the liberal negro and the self-styled white integrationist to convince the average white Southerner that integration is morally desirable from an economic and social point of view.

The results of over ten years of pressuring, cajoling, and morally blackmailing the staunch Southerners will remain true to the status quo have been taken in nature. The Southerner is still not convinced by the arguments and exhortations of the integrationist that segregation in certain areas is morally wrong.

Almost all of the examples cited by the integrationist as real evidence of the success of complete integration on an economic and social level are surrounded by a "hothouse" of vulnerable and idealistic conditions. In fact many of the Northerners who advocated forcible integration are now looking inward and examining their own motives and attitudes toward complete integration.

Why the failure and what are some of the significant reasons for it? In the first place integration is largely a moral issue based upon abstract arguments and emotions. This is the integrationist's most lethal weapons. Yet, most of the so-called non-violent groups agitating the status quo indirectly and sometimes openly endorse and advocate defiance of the courts and violence in the streets. This accommodation or violence by these groups moves the reasoning behind the action from the realm of the abstract to the real-life situation—the point as which the integrationist's argument is weakest.

The moral coursing through the streets is not rational in its reasons or actions. The argument has been moved from the rational to the emotional level, hardly a meeting ground for long-term agreement and understanding.

Another factor contributing to the failure is the expose of the difference between the real situation and that which was paid lip service in the Northern cities. The Northern liberals betrayed their cause by their contradictory actions—a fact which has proved embarrassing to the negro and white integrationist. All of a sudden the didactic Northerners would their son or daughter to marry a negro or his son daughter to persons for that matter. Thus again the Southerner has no reason to believe the rhetoric of the integrationist.

John Birchers Distort Facts

I am continually amazed as to how ends the John Birchers and their flock will go to in misquoting, distorting the facts, and becoming immune to understanding the facts and true concepts of our world situation as it exists today and not in 1964 (pardon me for being modern).

Their method is easily understood: adopt vague phrases and clichés, will them to generalizations, attach all sorts of disconnected ideas in many nonsensical ways, then play a game of follow-the-leader, calling everyone who isn't willing to swap status propaganda a leftist, liberal, or some other meaningless term.

Newspapers print letters in which conservatives, as they call themselves, ask the liberals (it used to be cowboys and Indians) if the liberals are surprised that Oswald is "in their camp." What a power of association. No wonder these tarnished Goldwaterites can come up with some of the conclusions that they do.

I personally believe in the UN (this is so perhaps someday the President of the US will not have to stand on top of some public one known as the White House and, while staring waving his US democracy flag, yell, "I fought and defended our nation against Communism"). Hummm. Let's follow some fallacious reasoning now. Because of my beliefs in the UN, I am for backing down on Cuba (not that the Cuban situation aren't handling the Cuban situation quite well, sort of war), peaceful existence (excuse me, co-existence), helping Communism by selling wheat to the USSR (helping their standard of living in this respect will make them more determined to want to live in a peaceful world), and on the implications go.

Honestly, can't a person believe in one thing and not the other, or does he have to follow the ABC's of the thinking of ALL the liberal types to points, whatever they are supposed to be.

The old argument, from you know who: Kennedy was slowly taking away people's rights, such as being determined to let a hungry Negro eat at the closest restaurant available. Metaphorically in the jungle.

The gripers announce that somebody is going to monitor radio and TV stations so that they give equal (which they generally don't like) to "equally" time to the conservative (i.e., Christian) and the otic, anti-Warren) folk along with any time they give to the American

Shortly thereafter, these same people, again denouncing the slow loss of their freedoms by the demagogical, tyrannical government of this democracy, are bold (?) enough to print a private letter circulated by some FSU faculty members and simultaneously denouncing the faculty members rights to collect funds or whatever they might want to do privately. I guess it's all a matter of which "side" you are on, as to what you mean freedom and rights for the individual.

A church newspaper ad recently announced that they are against modernism, Communism and socialism, while being for fundamentalism, Americanism, and patriotism. I always considered Christian doctrine and theology to transcend political thought and trends. But after all, maybe this church has a good thing going. Also note the implication: if it is released (and that is the next step to Communism. Similarly, I suppose that being personally rich leads to alcoholism, or some other statistically unrelated phenomenon.

The latest fad is, of course, documentation. If some sailor-boytestifies that FDR knew about the communist disaster at Pearl Harbor but failed to do anything about it, then perhaps the sailor really understands what he is saying, then FDR's documentation becomes FACT. The Warren Commission becomes FACT, and the evidence concerning the evidence not become distorted if it is released (and that evidence is not necessarily fact). This is understandable.

In addition the aforementioned fluences there is the fact that the leaders of the integration movement have deliberately excluded those persons who agree with their methods or goals. Many a conservative has been rebuffed because he does not favor forcible integration of our people despite the fact that he accepts voluntary integration in public schools.

The concept of integration has expanded to include the social and economic aspects of our public and private life. Unless all factions of the concept are accepted one is incomplete. By defining the integration movement in such terms the stability of a realistic compromise is severely limited. Such an approach is unwelcome in the real situation. The use of Madison Avenue techniques in obtaining publicity for cause is a tremendous source of sentiment toward the integration. Scheming and distorting are common facts of the trade in agitation. The acceptance of peripheral goals to advocate violence and delay to disrupt civil order to gain publicity to further their cause is a fact. The constant violation of the principles of our democracy to promote a particular social plan is inconsistent and intolerable to the logical Southerner.

To date the results have been questionable. The long existing lines of communication between the negroes and whites in the South have been destroyed. Attitudes have become hardened and inflexible. There is increasing violence in the streets of the South.

This is a real harm. Are doctors and bombed churches sending one negro to a school 1,700 whites?

Most Southerners have a hard time with this. They are dedicated with Christianity, fighting communism and then returning to segregated toilers, and having segregated food to be eaten in segregated diners. But, these are the real people they aren't abstractions. Neither Southerner nor Northerner want mixed marriages, but according to the integrationist's logic this is consistent with their philosophy.

The fact remains that there is a difference between the colors and white. All men aren't equal in things. Our only hope is to build a more realistic society on an informal basis.

Let the laws then reflect the men and folkways of the people. Don't let the law destroy the society, whose argument is predicated on belief that people like other people for what they are, not for what they could or should be.

"Corrects Reporter"

To the Editor:

I should like to make an important correction in a statement which your reporter made in his article of Monday, February 4, 1980.

I did not say that science "seeks" to deprive religion and the supernatural. This is an absurd statement. Science does not "seek" to deprive anything.

What I said was that science employs a methodology that does not use the supernatural, and, because of this, it is not subject to a non-superficial point of view which influences our capacity to accept the religious view of the supernatural.

"Life Spurred Shelly" Says Yost At Coffee

By PAULA HOLLIMON
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Shelley, who was the most cerebral of the English poets, was spurred on by life and his own temperament," said Professor George Yost of the English Dept., as he addressed students and teachers at Friday's Coffee Hour. Shelley wrote primarily in four directions: prophesy, despair, revolt and search. He uses a lot of imagery and in much of his poetry he uses his life and attitudes as his central themes.

One example stated by Yost was the searching for the platonic ideal through women in Shelley's poetry. Shelley even looked for an earthly woman to fit his ideal which resulted in several marriages and much unhappiness for the poet. Yost stated that after a trip to Italy, Shelley's atheistic ideas crumbled a bit and he began to search for God in nature. Shelly felt that "there was no meaning in nature except for that which was injected by the human mind." Most of Shelley's poetry, said Yost, was founded not on optimism nor hope but on utter despair.

After the death of Keats, Shelly is believed to have shifted from atheism to agnosticism. In his poem "Adonais," which was about the death of Keats, Shelley says "the wails, or sleeps with the enduring dead."

Yost said, that here Shelly can't be sure if Keats wakes or sleeps which shows that his is professing agnosticism, rather than atheism. In his last poem Shelly prophesied his own death which was a death at sea. Thus ended the troubled life of Shelly, but his unending and never-ending search still remain with us today in his immortal poetry, concluded Yost.

These deliberate acts to undermine the American people's faith in their duly elected leaders (elected in our democracy) and to provoke reactionary attitudes, as well as to create them, are splitting our nation ideologically into "various camps (those who are "for" and those who are "against"). # Tokyo Is Destination Of Gymnast Sontgerat

By NANCY ALMAND
Flambeau Feature Writer

"Sports bring countries together," commented Gail Sontgerat, prospective U.S. Gymnastic Team Member for the 1964 Olympics, during a recent interview.

Gail was on the 1960 United States Olympic Gymnastic Team. The events were held in Rome, Italy, that year. It was a very exciting trip for Gail, who lived in an Olympic village where all the competitors live.

Olympians had access to the gym to practice about two hours a day. Sometimes they were lucky and had the gym three hours. Other than the time they were practicing, members were free to go sight-seeing as long as they went in pairs.

Gail began working in gymnastics when she was 11 years old. She was introduced into gymnastic competition through the Recreation Department of her home town, West Palm Beach. She first entered competition at the Elk Club and then went into open gymnastic meets.

It was from these open meets that Gail finally went into the National Amateur Athletic Union. Twelve girls were chosen from competition as Olympic finalists who were proficient in the uneven bars, balance bar, free exercise and vaulting. Gail says she works best on the balance beam but enjoys all four.

Six girls comprising the team were later chosen from the 12 in a competition at Westchester, Pa. Gail was among these six who went to Rome as the U.S. Gymnastic Olympic Team. She was 15 at the time, the minimum age for gymnastic team members.

She finished the competition in Rome 28th out of 146 girls. She also had the highest score of any American in 1960.

Gail was a member of the Pan-American Team in 1959 at a meet held in Chicago. Similar to the Olympics, it is limited to Pan-American countries.

In 1961, she toured eastern Europe on a gymnastic tour, and 1962 found her in the world championship in Czechoslovakia. This competition is the second biggest international athletic event; the Olympics being the biggest.

Gail was unable to enter anything in 1963, because she was busy with her college career here at FSU. Now, in 1964, she hopes to be on the U.S. Team to Tokyo. She will be going to an open gym meet in Tampa Feb. 7 to see how she stands in relation to the other contestants. Also this month she will go to a second open meet in Baton Rouge.

In April Gail will try out for the Olympics. Those selected from these try-outs will go to the Nationals in New York at the World's Fair in May. In the Nationals, 12 women are picked, and from these 12 come the seven who will go to Tokyo on the U.S. Team. The seventh is an alternate.

A physical education major, Gail enjoys all sports, especially golf, horseback riding and bowling.

Gail is greatly pleased with the Roy E. Moore Award which she received in 1962. The award is given on the basis of sportsmanship, citizenship and best-all-around member of the team.

When Gail leaves to compete at the Nationals she will be sponsored by FSU.

Orders Filled For Tally-Ho

Apeda Studio has notified the Tally Ho that picture orders placed before the end of December have been filled and students notified at their home address.

The notification came after Tally Ho editors and individual students had written the firm about pictures which they had ordered. Co-editors of the Tally Ho apologize to all students who have not received pictures, and they are doing everything possible to get the matter taken care of. The studio requests that anyone who ordered before Christmas send them a postal card so that they can notify them again regarding balance due, etc. The sitting number printed on receipts given by the photographer should be included, if possible.

The address is Apeda Studio, 54th St., New York 19, N.Y.

Twelve FSU Coeds Tapped By Garnet Key

Garnet Key recognized 12 FSU coeds (seven juniors and five sophomores) Wednesday night for their outstanding contributions of leadership and service and spirit.

Those tapped for membership in the key were Ann Angeli, Jan Hickey, Sandra Brooks, Margaret Jeff, Irene Dixon, Ruth Doyle, Linda Fletcher, Linda Gross, Sandy Hickey, Jennifer House, Gay Osborne, and Margaret Lynn Patterson.

Ann Angeli was Clerk of Women's House, has been active in drama, and is a member of Mortar Board.

SAI Pledges 7

The Alpha chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music fraternity, pledged seven musicians Tuesday.

The new pledges are Jarvis Rose, Linda Brown, Lois Ann Conroy, Sally Fuller, Lana Paulk, Dory Simpson and Lowell Turner.

Chapter officers for the coming year will be Sylvia Rosser, president; Sharon Bigelow, first vice president; Terry Schreckengost, second vice president; Martha Putnam, corresponding secretary; Ann Tully, treasurer; Judy James, chaplain; and Roland, recording secretary; and Carol Donaldson, editor.

Jan Brantley is secretary of the Junior Class, president of her sorority, and a member of Mortified. Sandra Brooks, has been secretary of Senate, president of her sorority, and is a member of Mortified.

Margaret DeHoff is treasurer of the Sophomore Class, chairman of the Homecoming Queen Committee, and on Sophomore Council. Irene Dixon, who is secretary of Westminster Fellowship, is vice president of her sorority and a member of Mortar Board. Ruth Doyle, a senator, is a junior counselor and a member of Mortified.

Tina Fletcher is a junior counselor, a member of Mortar Board and has been vice president of her dorm. Linda Gross, who is president of her dorm, was pledge-trainer of her sorority and is a member of Mortar Board.

Sandy Hoff has been chaplain of her dorm, president of her dorm, and vice president of her sorority. Jennifer House, vice president of her dorm, has served on Sophomore Council and Sophomore Judiciary.

Gay Osborne, historian of her sorority, is in Angel Flight and Tarpon. Margaret Lynn Patterson has been treasurer of Sophomore Council, vice president of her dorm, and a senator.

Angel Flight In Mardi Gras

Angel Flight left for New Orleans yesterday morning, where they will participate today and tomorrow in two Mardi Gras parades, along with the AFROTC Drill Team and Band. New Angel Flight officers for this and the following trimester are Sandy Lewis, commander; Joyce O'Jala, executive officer; Sandy Hayes, national administrative service officer; Jackie Wrenn, comptroller, and Hilda Jones, information service officer.

Newly tapped members of Angel Flight are Jana McLucas, Sara Everson, Linda Gross, Jean Pasteur, Karen Hammond, Haley Livingston, Sue Kimbrough, Anna Paulk, Nancy Parker, Joan Bennett, Valerie Camfield, Frances Smith, Gay Osborne, Mary Arlissas, Mimi Webb, Flo Smith, Jane Murrell, Amy Meng, Suzan Hill, Sue Worley, Sheryl Gedney, Joann Elliott, Jan Connolly, Lois Stoker and Janet Harris.

Angel Flight is an honorary service organization, sponsored by the Arnold Air Society. The society exists to further interest in the AFROTC program on campus.

Beginning in April, the FSU Angel Flight and its officers will coordinate all activities of the ten colleges and universities in the region. FSU was selected as the new Angel Flight Area Headquarters during the area conclave at Robins Air Force Base last November. The selection was made on the basis of flight organization, activities and services to the school and community.

As area headquarters, FSU will send two delegates to the National Conclave in Denver in April.

Patty Warren was elected "Little Colonel" at the Robins Air Force Base conclave. Miss Warren was selected over seven other contestants for her beauty, poise, personality, extra curricular activities, scholastic achievement and for her contributions to both Angel Flight and the Arnold Air Society.

As "Little Colonel," Miss Warren will attend the Denver Conclave, April 8-11, when the national "Little General" will be chosen from the 16 areas throughout the United States.

Thus far, Angel Flight has marched in several parades, including the North Florida Fair Parade, the Veteran day parade, and the Homecoming Parade. Angel Flight also drilled in the pre-game show for the FSU-VPI football game, along with the entire cadet corps.

Service projects of Angel Flight include ushering and handing out programs for Gymkana and the participating of Angel Flight singers in Veteran's Day Programs held yearly.

Two Juniors Win Awards

Two FSU juniors—Donald R. Crisp and Louis H. Higdon—have been named winners of the 1964 Penninsular Life Insurance Company Award.

The annual award, presented to outstanding students in the Risk and Insurance Dept. this year provides $150 for each recipient. Checks were presented to the students by J. P. Griffin, manager of the Tallahassee office of Penninsular Life.

Crisp and Higdon "possess a great potential for careers in insurance" according to the FSU department chairman, Dr. Richard deR. Kip. Recipients of the annual honor are selected by the faculty of the department, who base their recommendations on scholarship records, need and capacity for contribution to the profession.

Centenary Tops Tribe

Centenary College of Shreveport, Louisiana, handed Coach "Bud" Kennedy's Seminole Basketball team its ninth road loss of the season Saturday night at Shreveport, 79-72. The Tribe, plagued by poor floor shooting throughout the match, hitting only 33% of its 76 attempts from the floor, came close to taking the lead only one time, when a Pete Gonzalez jumper tied it up with eight minutes remaining in the contest.

The tie-game with minutes remaining indicates the fast and furious pace of the last quarter in which the Seminole effort to gain the lead failed. Centenary had 38 points in the final stanza to the Tribe's 36.

FSU was led in the game by Senior Forward Pete Rogers' 21 markers, 13 of which came in the first half.

Ticket Sales Reach 4500

4,500 orders for season tickets to the five home football games is the answer to the Board of Control's request for support of the Seminoles. Athletic Business Manager Ronald Melton states that in addition to the 1,000 tickets purchased by the FSU faculty and staff, the regular ticket sales have increased 20 percent.

Tallahassee residents have placed most of the orders; however, interest has been shown in Quincy, Perry, Panama City, Thomasville and Cairo.

The show of support makes a strong argument for the expansion of Campbell Stadium from its present capacity of 24,000 seats to a minimum of 35,000 seats. The needed funds have been approved by the Board of Control, but final action has been delayed until the results of a meeting in Gainesville are known.

Center Gary Schull came through with 15 points to be the only other Tribesman in double figures. Senior Guard Bobby Lovell was the next highest with eight points.

Centenary, which has an enrollment of 770, is now 12-6 overall. The Gents were led in scoring by 6-7 Center Thomas Kershwin's points, while Guard Stan McAfios had 24 points for the evening. Kershwin pushed through 19 of his points in the first half, which ended with Centenary leading 41-38. The Gents, scored on 47 percent of their field goal attempts (28 of 60 shots) and made 79 percent of the charity tosses.

While hitting only 33% of their field goal shots, the visiting Seminole's put in 85 percent of the free throws. The Centenary team, despite missing its top rebounder, Cecil Upshaw, a 6-6 center, led the Tribe in rebounding 49-43. Barrie Haynie and Larry Shoemaker pulled down 15 and 13 for the visitors.

Rogers' eight were high for FSU. The victory gave Centenary a lead in the series, 3-2. The Seminole's won the last game, played here in 1963, 82-68.

The Tribe cagers, now 10-9 on the year, meet Memphis State tonight. The game will be broadcast on WTNT at 8:45 p.m.

Secretary Of Internal Affairs Announces Personnel Bureau

By LUTHER KRAMER, III
Secretary of Internal Affairs

In the past most Student Government organizations have obtained personnel through the appointment of friends and close acquaintances, referred to be most people as patronage, or when fraternity brothers and sisters of an elected official are appointed it may be called, in a loose sense, nepotism, said Luther Kramer, Secretary of Internal Affairs.

For the most part in Student Government this is a "back against the wall" necessity because the elected official needs people he can trust and knows he can work with.

The surest way then is to turn to friends and fraternity brothers.

This type of selection has many grave shortcomings and can, at best, hope to tap only a very limited source of talent.

To correct this situation Student Government, through the department of Internal Affairs, is establishing a Personnel Bureau in order to attempt to open up new areas of previously untapped leadership talent.

There are a great number of persons transferring to FSU from other colleges throughout the state. Many of these people have experienced extensive participation in their JC student government and service organizations.

Yes, because of either lack of "connections," limited knowledge about student government, or the small number of elective positions open to them in the fall and spring, in most cases these people are left by the wayside, their talent either overlooked or re-channeled through other interests. This is just one area.

There are also huge reservoirs of interested students, both Greek and non-Greek, that look upon Student Government work as unobtainable for them.

In an attempt to correct this situation, within the next week or so forms will be distributed to all dorms, Greek organizations, scholarship houses and other living areas.

By filling out this form and returning it to the Information Desk on the first floor in Longmire each person will have an opportunity to have his talents used without having to rely on the prejudiced "who-you-know" method.

Appointments will be based on (1) listed qualifications for the particular positions being applied for, (2) the position of the application in the file, and (3) need for people to fill certain positions.

It will then be possible for student government to utilize this file when there are jobs to be filled. Most important of all this, new bureau will enable Student Government to be of greater service to the student body.

If you feel that you would like to have an opportunity of working on student government at FSU please fill out one of these forms. We have a place for you.

The major student body elections will be held shortly and all cabinet positions, assistant secretaries and undersecretaries positions will need to be filled for next year.

Extra forms may be picked up at the Information desk in Longmire or in room 210 on the second floor of Longmire.

University Religious Council Opposes Senate Resolution

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

The University Religious Council voted yesterday afternoon not to support the Student Senate resolution to cancel classes Good Friday and substitute a Saturday class day.

The URC passed the following resolution: "Whereas Florida State University is a state-supported institution open to men of all religious beliefs, and

Whereas the practice of religious freedom is a matter toward which a secular institution must necessarily remain neutral, and

Whereas the University Religious Council, which consists of representatives from all organized religious groups on campus, must recognize the rights of all,

Now therefore, be it resolved that the University Religious Council petition the University Administration to disregard all appeals to discontinue the regular University schedule for the purposes of observing any specific religious observance....

The URC also pointed out that re-scheduling classes from Good Friday to a Saturday would interfere with the Jewish Sabbath.

Other business centered around the URC position concerning picketing of off-campus restaurants. The original agenda, presented by Dr. Maurice Vance, called for a vote on whether or not the council should make a statement at all.

Several members pointed out that it would be impossible to act on this question until they knew what the statement would be. The council decided to have the Restaurant Desegregation Committee formulate a statement of policy to be acted on at their next meeting.

In the ensuing discussion, suggestions to help the committee form its statement were made.

Luther Kramer, the Presbyterian Westminster Fellowship representative, presented his organization's suggestion for the statement.

He said that it was his understanding that the off-campus restaurants had agreed to integrate to the extent of all FSU students. He felt the URC should be in favor of integration but in disagreement with the action committee of the Liberal Forum.

In response to the questions of committee member Dr. Harry Walborsky, Kramer stated that he was interested in having all persons admitted to the restaurants, but he would go along with limited achievement in heading for the larger goal.

Tony Skiff, representing the Liberal Forum, said that this mandate particularly applies to Florida Statute

Memorial Gardens Under Construction

A memorial garden in honor of Dr. Chester S. Nielson, former professor of biology who dies this past summer, is now under construction in front of Landis Hall between Florida Drive and Jefferson.

Mrs. C.S. Nielson, Dr. Nielson's mother, is establishing the memorial. It will consist of a garden of 175 camellias from Nielson's personal collection.

Henry Martin, University horticulturist, has designed a circular garden with three inner-ring walks. The walks will be made up of stepping stones and grass patches.

In addition to the camellias, Martin is planning to use some azaleas and holly around the perimeter.

Two concrete sidewalks will divide the garden into four quadrants. A third broad walk will lead from Florida Drive, directly across from Landis, to the center of the garden. Here a dedicatory plaque will be placed.

Up to the time of his death last summer, Nielson was the chairman of general education for the biology dept. He came to FSU in 1946. Since that time he had taught 8,600 students.

Forum Backs Disobedience

Liberal Forum Sunday night passed a mandate allowing members the Direct Action Committee to participate in civil disobedience.

The mandate states that members can disobey according to the dictates of their conscience, where they feel laws of questionable constitutionality are being used against them.

Tony Skiff, president of Liberal Forum, said that this mandate particularly applies to Florida Statute 821.01. This statute makes it an offense to return to a place, without an invitation when once ordered away.

According to Skiff this law is primarily concerned with rural situations. This was determined by its relationship to adjacent statutes. At present, this statute is before the United States Supreme Court, as being abused in application.

The Forum also voted last night to allow their lawyer, Earl M. Johnson, sue the University if needed.

Currently the Forum is in dispute with the University over use of Westcott Auditorium. They would like to use it to sponsor a Joan Arneson concert to raise funds.

The University contends that no religious group can use University facilities to raise money.

According to Skiff this is inconsistent since university facilities are used when the Religious Council publishes its directory.

The directory is a fund-raising project.

Skiff said that the Forum decision is not a threat.

Top Grades Announced

The Panhellenic Office announced that the Alpha Xi Delta sorority placed first place in scholarship competition among the 19 FSU chapters by compiling an overall chapter average of 2,965 for last semester.

Kappa Delta came in second place with an average of 2,755. Sigma Kappa Gamma finished third with an overall average of 2,496.

Delta Delta Delta wound up in fourth place with a 2,7074, and the Alpha Gamma Delta was fifth with a 2,497 overall.

Miss Sarah Robinson, assistant dean of women and Panhellenic advisor, reported that the all-sorority average, the combined grade averages of 1,415 sorority members, was a 2,598. The all undergraduate women average was a 2,586.

The sorority with the highest average was Alpha Xi Delta with a 2,918, while the Alpha Gamma Delta active were second with a 2,875, and Kappa Kappa Gamma was third with an active overall of 2,852.

The Kappa Alpha Theta pledge class topped the highest pledge average with a 2,538, the Alpha Xi Delta pledges were second with a 2,490, and a 2,469 gave the Kappa Gamma pledges third place.

Good Friday

In the most backward of all days in four years (Saturday 29, 1964), FSU students may find themselves going to class. A recommendation passed as a resolution in Student Senate states that "Whereas Easter is an important holiday and whereas many students observe good Friday by attending church services, be it resolved by the Florida State Student Senate: recommend that Good Friday be made a holiday and classes by (sic) made up Saturday, February 29, 1964."

This resolution excludes one of the most important principles the thirteen original states included in our constitution, the separation of church from state.

The Student Senate is issuing resolutions and influencing legislation giving preference to one religion, Christianity. By doing this it is not only ignoring the rights of other religions, but also infringing upon their days of worship.

The religions that Student Senate is ignoring are all the religions other than Christianity. It is true that all these religions combined constitute a small minority of students on this campus. It is also true that every religion has the equal right to believe and worship as they see fit without interference.

The two holiest days of the Jewish religions (both fell this last trimester) occurred on regular class days. The several hundred Jewish students on campus had to skip classes on those days to go to Temple. The Student Senate ignored them by not passing a resolution to observe the one about "Good Friday." Yet it would be just as unfair to the other religions had they passed a resolution stating that Yom Kippur be declared a holiday to be made up on a Sunday.

... Which brings up something that God said, "Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God." Unfortunately God did not designate which day of the week would be Sabbath. The Seventh Day Adventists and the Jews both observe their Sabbath on Saturday. The resolution states that Good Friday be made up on a Saturday thereby interfering with these religions' day of rest. A day of rest? Saturday, Sunday, or any day of the week, is not a day to go to class.

The main fault of causing this situation is the lack of planning on the part of the administration. The trimester system gives less time for holidays; but it would have been better if the administration had planned all holidays in advance and made up the required time by subtracting days from Christmas vacation or trimester break.

The Student Senate has passed this resolution without any discussion of the previous objections. The University Religious Council has presented the resolution to each religious organization on campus for their opinion. Some of these groups do object. Whether this resolution is put into use or not is now being decided by the Council of Deans. If this resolution is passed (Leap-day or not Leap-day), it will definitely be the most backward thing that the Student Senate has ever done.

School Of Ed. A Necessity

To the Editor:

As a student who plans to teach social studies in the secondary schools of Florida, I was most interested in Mr. Brown's article, "Is the School of Education Necessary?" Mr. Brown, in his column wonders if the School of Education is providing a useful function on the college campus today and he states that many prominent men have seriously questioned the value of the School of Education. He then states that if there is any value to Education courses it is at the elementary level where he feels the need to know how to teach is just as important as what to teach. Mr. Brown ends his article by saying that the School of Education can probably offer a definite reason for existence, although more and more people are questioning its existence and that it should be critically examined and evaluated.

I agree with Mr. Brown that the School of Education should continue to be evaluated and examined and I believe most educators would agree, but I disagree quite strongly with two statements Mr. Brown made. First, that learning how to teach as well as what to teach should be confined to elementary teachers only and second, he seems to imply that the School of Education is only a "vested interest" and that it has made up reasons for existence so that it can perpetuate itself.

As an education major, I have given serious thought as to the need of the School of Education and to the courses it renders to future teachers. As a student, who has experienced the art of teaching for fifteen years of my life, as one who has taken few education courses and one who has had some teaching experience, I cannot stress how badly the School of Education is needed and of the immeasurable value of education courses. I do not believe that the need to know how to teach, rather than what to teach stops at the elementary level, nor even at the secondary or junior college level. How many times after class have you heard a student speak of a professor, "Mr. X really got me on his subject, but he certainly can't teach it." I ask, what does it profit him to be in a class taught by a Ph.D. who is an expert in his field, but just doesn't know how to get his subject matter across to the student.

The student doesn't understand the subject, and the professor doesn't understand the student, and the taxpayer is paying for "educational courses" that are never received by the student who is the "consumer" and the professor who is supposed to be the "producer." Instead, the student is required to get the vast majority of his knowledge from a textbook and from library resources.

The knowledge as to how to teach (which can apply to any profession) is just as important as what to teach. A University professor or a high school teacher who cannot illuminate material that can be found in the text is a parasite to the taxpayer. An important area of learning how to teach is in the area of testing. How many times have you heard on this campus, "That test was unfair, it was so ambiguous and besides, half the questions did not come from the text or lecture." I suggest that many of the professors at FSU get some information from the School of Education's Educational Testing and Research Center.

Mr. Brown mentions the fact that the School of Education does not require a foreign language and feels that Education courses sacrifice the need for a foreign language. I personally do not feel this is any sacrifice and there are many who hold the same view who aren't even Education majors. Last trimester a great many letters to the editor of this newspaper were written by students in the Sciences who felt the language requirement was not justified in their curriculum and they put up many convincing arguments for its abolishment. The late Ray Lyman Wilbur, while president of Stanford University, said that "it is as difficult to change the curriculum of a college as it is to move a cemetery."

We should ask ourselves why we teach the courses that we offer, the every level of education, and whether our reasons for these offerings are absolutely essential for the education of students.

I believe that this statement is valid, but I would not advocate abolishing the School of Medicine, Business, Law, etc. because some of their courses were not essential, but instead we should constantly im-

Panama Issue Political

In the highest tradition of liberal "accommodation" and "treason," I would like to further discuss the Panama situation. A brief review of my last article on Panama would be in order now. The Panama Canal doesn't appear to be as important as it was in our earlier history. Some of the reasons are a two fleet navy, the vulnerability of the canal during war, and the headlights in which we are placed in Latin America.

The contention that the Communists are the reason for the trouble in Panama probably has as much basis as the contention that the Communists are the cause of the racial crisis in the United States today. My contention is that if the Communists are involved, they are simply exploiting an already explosive problem. In this is true, it would certainly appear logical to try to solve the problem that is being exploited. That should be considerably easier than trying to liquidate all of the Communists. It might be said that the Communists are like most germs that can only make progress in an unhealthy climate.

It has been said that the rest of Latin America really prefers that the U.S. controls the Canal. They can take advantage of the present process by adding their two cents worth of "Imperialism," etc. A possible way to remedy this would be to allow the Organization of American States to vote on whether or not the U.S. should control the Canal. They would probably vote yes for several reasons.

First, it would probably be a more stable operation in the hands of the U.S., and second the U.S. takes a financial loss on the operation of the Canal (the rates have remained very low for many years). If the OAS were to take over, we could cut and say it was their decision and not ours unilaterally. This should eliminate most of the propaganda which is directed against us for holding the Canal Zone.

In my humble opinion, I don't think the U.S. Government should do this. In Panama we were men in the previous article, the U.S. perfectly justified in telling Bello to get out of her own colony. In Panama we were concerned with a treaty that was negotiated in 1903 when we helped Panama gain independence from Colombia. I just what kind of bargaining position we are in today. Panama has been in it. Presently we hear cries of treason and accommodation trying to rectify an outdated treaty. Overall it would benefit the U.S. by withdrawing from the Panama Canal Zone. It would help curb the outflow of gold over which much crying is done, and it should help our world image.

We speak of imperialistic nations like Portugal, but... Agreed on U.S. shipping interests would could be hurt, but should we risk our foreign policy around American shippers? Oh, I forgot, we do have foreign policy.

As for the Monroe Doctrine, could we expect any respect for unilateral treaty which has been inconsistently enforced? Has Menzies been a great physicist? Goldwater said seems to say anything is moral as long as it is done in national interest. This is philosophy might be consistent with the inconsistent application of the Monroe Doctrine.

In summary, there seems to be little reason for staying in Panama and many reasons for giving it to Panama. There is rarely a reason given for staying other than the fact that we do have a treaty in force. It is right to stay in "perpetuity." Now that it is political issue on both sides, the will be little chance for a sensible solution. The situation in Panama and Panama's public. Accommodation and treason will be based above reason and fairness in the hall ways of the Congress and the Whitehouse.

Open Letter To Petitioners

To the Editor:

After reading the "moving" petition, written by a minority of FSU staff and faculty, printed in Tuesday's "Flambeau," I would like to know why you feel it is imperative enough for the owners of these off-campus restaurants to affirm their loyalty to these "American" ideals to justify the expense of signing the "Flambeau's" space to say this. If you (all 250 listed on the petition) are so deeply concerned with the racial imbalance and feel that FSU is not teaching any thing that can be learned by a student until said student finds that an establishment is made a holiday and campus where all may enter and be served, (from the concern shown this seems to be felt by some people) then I would suggest that you form a corporation, each of you buy stock in it, and purchase the University Inn and its facilities.

You could then operate this restaurant as you see fit without having to pressure the management of the University Inn. If you do this as you are doing now, by this means you could use capitalism to expose your ideas and set an example of way in which you feel a business should be run. If the business succeeds, you will have met your goal. If it fails, you will have learned a lesson.

See Senators About Holiday

To the Editor:

In reply to Mr. Neale's letter regarding Good Friday, I would like to point out to him that the Student Senate has just recently passed a resolution. It resolved, "That Good Friday be made a holiday and classes be made up Saturday, February 29, 1964."

This resolution was introduced by Mark Morton and was sponsored by all of the Women's Senate. I feel that this is especially important in light of the complaints being made against Senate. An organization is "Mickey Mouse" only when it has no support. I would suggest to Mr. Neale, and to the Student Body in general, that they see the Senators about things like this. Senator Morton's resolution should prove to many students that the Senate does more than approve appointments.

If you want Senate to do something for them about Writing "open" letters to the "Flambeau" look only a round-about method, which may or may not achieve your purpose.

And there is always the thought that your Senator is your representative in Student Government. The "Flambeau" is not.

prove the curriculum of all the departments within the University. When put in the light of the overall situation the problems and challenges of a better University education should not be handed to the School of Education only, but to the entire university.

I am enrolled in the School of Education because I gave a great deal of thought as to the type of teacher I wanted to be. I decided I wanted to be a good teacher. I feel the School of Education will give me this basic orientation which I feel is just as important as the subject matter I will teach. I know, as I'm for sure the School of Education knows that there are many improvements, reforms, etc. that are needed today in the training of teachers and of the schools they will teach in, but I ask of those who are, or wish to be critics of education that they first study the situation and then constructively criticize.

Since Russia launched its first satellite, the American citizen has been concerned with our educational system. Admiral Rickover constantly points out the need to copy the Soviet Educational System, but he fails to realize that Russian goals and methods in education are entirely unsuitable for a country with democratic institutions and ideals.

Our nation's schools are not improving because of all the "Admiral Rickovers" who are so vocal these days, but by people who have faith in America enough to create the type of schools that are fitted for our needs as Americans, rather than adopting a school system completely foreign to our culture. Let's not abolish the most important institution creating the type of education Americans want for their teachers, instead let's work together to improve the Schools of Education by every means possible.

The First Annual National Lithography Exhibition will open tomorrow night, placing on view 53 works representing an art form which has enjoyed a revival in the past two decades.

Eighteen of the works will be those of invited exhibitors and the 35 others have been selected from among approximately 300 entries received from coast to coast. The juror for the show was William S. Lieberman, curator of drawings and prints for the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

The works selected for the exhibition will be made public simultaneously with the opening of the show, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the University Gallery. They will be on view at the Gallery until March 14.

William Walmley of FSU's Art Dept. was primarily responsible for arranging the exhibition.

Cadets Appointed

Fifteen cadets currently enrolled in the Army ROTC program have received branch appointments, according to Lt. Col. Milton J. Tankersley, professor of military science at FSU.

Upon graduation the cadets will be appointed Second Lieutenants in the US Army Reserve. Six of the cadets have already been appointed Distinguished Military Students by Tankersley. These cadets, with their branch appointments, are: Bruce R. Black, ordnance corps; Russ Blumenthal, infantry; Richard V. Dean, military police corps; Michael D. Filist, armor; Michael R.R. Odum, transportation corps; and Richard R. Sankey, chemical corps.

The other cadets receiving branch appointments are: James H. Baldy, finance corps; Robert L. Berner, signal corps; Leonard T. Elise, artillery; Franklin H.D. Feagle, army intelligence and security; Kenneth A. Griffiths, infantry; Victor W. Parades, transportation corps; Myron S. Roach, artillery; Richard A. Simon, quartermaster corps; and Henry E. Flambeau Play Review

Love's Labour's Lost

By JEFF JOHNSON

of something is usually better nothing, but in the case of "Love's Labour's Lost," the FSU theater has proved that the half is more than the whole.

of a fog of puns, tropical allusions and general confusion that the original script of "Love's Labour's Lost," they have drawn material to provide an engaging evening of theater. general the cutting of the play most judicious and in the best interest of the audience; the only exception to this being Berowne's initial speeches on the nature of love, which represent Shakespeare at the height of his lyrical art.

this production, the sage of three has vowed to study in solitude the King of Navarre has been in the background, and Don Ad-De Armado, a "fantastical" student, rises from his supporting position to become the focal point of the evening.

of a minor coupling of Shakespeare's Falstaff, is played to the by Sammy Kilman, who is an actor of great coming resourcefulness and who dominates the scene in his first entrance to his last. to his good timing and ability, is able to draw a laugh out of the air, and whether he is sighing love or striding about the stage in comic fencing positions, he is always a human being and never merely a clownshipuppet. Providing balance to Killman's swaggering interpretation of court manners are Nathaniel by Rhet Bryson, and Bruce Fisher's Costard.

Fisher gives an excellent slapstick performance as the clown Costard, and more than once he saves a scene from floundering by a tug at his bloomers. His Pompey the Great in the last act, a play within a play, is comic theater at its best.

Bryson's Nathaniel, a tipsy parish priest, is an extremely well done cameo, and one of the high points of the first act is his chanting of Berowne's love letter, a bit of the director's invention that brought down the house.

The King of Navarre, and the lords of Berowne, Longaville, and Dumaine, all seem rather at sea with their parts, and prone to "hand sawing" and dull declamation. Jerold Gray's Lord Berowne is the biggest disappointment of the evening. He brought none of the fire and dash of a cynical rationalist to his role, but seemed instead a rather bewildered young man.

Their counterparts, the Princess of France and the ladies Rosaline, Katharine and Maria, were far more fetching. Ellen Whigham (the Princess) brought a regal staidness to her part, and her singing of the "Spring" and "Winter" sonnets at the end of the play are a fitting curtain line to a droll evening.

Patricia Britt (Lady Rosaline) played a lovely minx, and Louise Beddingfield (Lady Katharine) makes a memorable creation out of a small and comparatively unimportant part.

Dr. Dorling's staging gives full scope to the comic responsibilities of the script, and in more than one section the action carries the show when the lines cannot.

Dr. Shaw's costumes are rich and whimsical, fitting both the mood of the play and the character of the action.

A MINIATURE SET FOR CARMEN

... is being constructed under the supervision of Robert Swain who is technical director for the Opera Guild production and Rose Mary Minihan, a graduate student of opera.

An opportunity will be given children in the public schools to fill up the 1600 seats of Westcott Auditorium for a special performance of the opera "Carmen Feb. 28.

The special performance will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Feb. 28. Director Richard Collins of the Opera Guild said. Sponsored by the Tallahassee Arts Council, the special presentation will cost the students 25 cents.

The opera will also be presented at 8:15 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 28-29, for University students and the general public.

High Grades Honored Tonight

The 220 freshman women and 122 freshman men who made the highest grades, a B average or above, during Trimester I, will be honored at a reception tonight.

Sponsors of the annual event, which will be held in the main lounge of Longmire at 7:30 p.m., are Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, and Dr. Donald Loucks, dean of men and their staffs.

Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, professor of modern languages and distinguished professor of 1963-64, will be the speaker. Her talk will be entitled "The Price of Excellence." Sixty-one freshman women among the 220 will be tapped for Alpha Lambda Delta, national scholastic honorary for freshman women, by Gail Spring, president. Twenty-six of the 112 freshman men will be tapped for Phi Eta Sigma, men's honorary by Charles Middleton. These organizations honor freshmen with the very highest rankings. Two freshman women and three freshman men chalked up a 4.0 average (A) for their first trimester's work. The were Carol Ann Rich-bourg, Rosalind Karen Samsan, Richard F. Johnson, Charles R. Myers, and Robert S. Woodin. Three additional high-ranking freshman women were Doris Ann Whigham, (3.938); Sue Dicus, (3.941) and Susan Plattis. (3.941).

Crowded Entry Field For Sebring Endurance Race

Race organizer and director Alec Uimann announced at Sebring last week that due to the overwhelming request for starting positions in the world famous Sebring 12 hour endurance race, the usual sixty-five car starting field, would for the Saturday March 21st running, be increased to seventy starters.

With more and more automobile manufacturers, realizing that a winning position at the Sebring Enduro, gives their product unlimited renown, the 1964 field has been forced to increase its famed 10:00 AM Le Mans start.

Not only is the starting grid already filled, but many eager lesser known automobile racing car entries are on the reserve list, hauling hundreds of miles under great expense, in the avid hope that last minute practice accidents and mechanical failures may open a starting position in their class.

Jim Hall and Hap Sharp, wealthy Texas sportsmen and auto racing drivers, have shelved the Chevy powered Chaparral racing cars that in last year's 12 Hour classic, due to stringent design rulings were almost unable to make the starting line-up, and switched to new and last minute designed road racing power plants.

Hall, with Roger Penske of Gladwyne, Penn., another US driving star, will be in an all new big bore prototype Corvette. Hall, rapidly climbing the ladder of auto racing fame wound up with an enviable last time out season of GP racing on the European GP circuits.

Sharp, his co-driver as yet unnamed, will be the guiding hand of a 190 mile an hour Ferrari with a factory experimental rear engine car.

Saturday's March 21st, 10 to 10 Twelve Hour Endurance Race will this year see the greatest array of the best road racing cars in the world. Sweat, blood and tears for the ultimate in auto road racing, the winning of the famed Allstate Trophy as well as unlimited world renown only to be achieved by a win at Sebring.

Physical Condition Improved

Intramurals Seen Beneficial To Well-Rounded Students

By MELODIE BETTS
Sports Feature Writer

Through the back door of Tully Gym, down the hall to the fourth door on the left, one can hear the enthusiasm coming from the office of Mr. Edward H. Cubbon, Director of Intramurals and sports activities. Hours mean nothing to Cubbon as long as he can be of assistance to the students.

Development of wholesome competition through enjoyable participation in physical activities is an essential aspect of a well rounded college education firmly believes Cubbon.

The key word in the Intramural Office is Expansion. Expansion of the intramural program participants and allocations of an even better program.

FSU is allocated only 50 cents per student for Intramurals. The national average is five dollars per student. FSU's program is inferior to Georgia Tech, who receives 10 dollars and University of Florida who receives five dollars a student.

"We are asking for $1.75 per student," says Cubbon. "We hope that the student body will recognize the need for more allocations. This program is designed for the student and is an important part of his life." Teams are represented by fraternities, sororities, and dorm independents.

The increased allocation will help buy needed equipment, awards, and other necessities to improve the program. "Our basketball teams will be playing 157 games with three basketballs," states Cubbon.

The turnout for sports is increasing every year, over 1,000 students participate in touch football, the basketball leagues had to be limited due to lack of facilities and the tennis program had 32 teams competing.

"In the future, when the new softball fields, basketball and tennis courts, and the handball courts are completed at the Alumni Village and dormitory areas, we will be able to extend our program. These activities are for all the students to participate in and with new allocations we could better provide for the program we want."

"The Inter-Collegiate are your specialists, this program is for all college students, men and women alike. Although over half the student body participates yearly, we want everyone to take a part in their program either as a participant or spectator."

"The success of any program is due to the work and enthusiasm of the students. The managers of the teams are to be complimented for their fine cooperation and excellent turnouts," said Cubbon. Teams compete for trophies, plaques, and medals in sports are: softball, weight lifting, track, wrestling, golf, swimming, volleyball, bowling, badminton, and table tennis.

Next year the plan is to expand the program to include a co-ed tournament in bowling, golf, badminton and tennis.

"Widespread student participation in intramurals and recreation should become a tradition of FSU," believes Cubbon.

324 Students Honored At Convocation

Deans Laud High Marks

The 342 top-ranking freshmen during the first semester were honored last night at a reception given by the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men. The honorees, 220 freshman women and 122 freshman men, all had a grade point average of 3.0 or above while carrying a full load.

The freshmen women and three freshman men chalked up a 4.0 average (A) for their first trimester's work. They were Carol Ann Richman, Rosalyn Karen Samman, Doris E. Whigham, Sue Dicus, Susan R. Myers and Robert S. Wood-

The group heard Dr. Dorothy Hoff, distinguished professor of the law, speak on "The Price of Excellence." Mrs. Donald Loucks and Earline Hester, counselor at South Hall, poured at the coffee. Additionally outstanding upperclass students were also recognized as the two presidents of the leadership honoraries.

Inter Board President Patsy said senior Barbara Ann Chapman had the highest cumulative average of any senior (3.981). The junior Maureen G. O'Neill (3.8) and sophomore Sandra D. (3.783) headed their classes. The senior president of Omicron Kappa, said these were the students with the best cumulative averages in their classes: senior, Robert Victor Zupka, (3.925 overall), senior, Wendell R. Houston, (3.966) and sophomore Pete John Davalls (3.9).

At Spring, president of Alpha Delta Delta, national scholarship society for freshman women, tapped 61 new members and Charles E. Jackson, president of Phi Eta Sigma, the national freshman honorary, tapped 26 new members.

Job Forms Are Available

Students interested in Student Government work may fill out forms which will be distributed to dormitory houses and Greek organizations," announced Luther Baker, Secretary of Internal Affairs.

These forms will be issued by the newly established Personnel Bureau. A file of the forms will be available in the SG office, and will be readily accessible when appointments are to be made.

Johnny Smith, Student Body President, headed the new committee. The Personnel Bureau is a new program we are instituting which will provide a system by which the interested officials in Student Government can draw qualified and interested students into committee, bureaus, and staff positions within Student Government. It is an up-to-date informational file.

Woodward, Baker Will Perform New Works

Six original compositions by James P. Woodward and John W. Baker, candidates for the doctoral degree in music will highlight tonight's recital in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m. Both are students of Dr. John Foda. Participating in the recital will be graduate students Nancy Van de Vate, pianist; Will DeLara, baritone; Mary Carol Warwick, mezzo-soprano; Larry Dornin, tenor; and George Bue, pianist.

Baker will perform in the opening selection of the program, "Sonata for clarinet and piano," as clarinetist. Two other compositions by Baker will be performed by a faculty quartet and graduate students.

"Quartet for flute, clarinet, violin and cello" will be played respectively by Ronald L. Wain, Harry A. Schmidt, Robert Sedore and Harry Dunscombe, all faculty members in the School of Music. "Three Songs on poems of Thomas Dekker," will be sung by DeLara and Warwick. Compositions by Woodward, a graduate assistant, will include "Sonata for two pianos, brass choir and percussion," played by the University's Brass Choir under the direction of Dr. William F. Cramer; "Duo for Violin and Cello," played by Sedore and Dunscombe; and "Five Songs on Poems of W. B. Yeats," sung by Dornin and played by George Bue on the piano.

APO's Begin Directory Sale

The Spring sale of the University Directory will be today and Thursday.

The directory will be on sale at the Student Center and behind Westcott from nine to four at twenty-five cents a copy. Proceeds from the sale go to the Religion in Life series and to the Alpha Phi Omega scholarship fund.

The directory includes a complete listing of FSU students, campus addresses, home addresses, major classification and class. The Faculty and Staff section lists campus addresses of all university personnel. Also included are a complete listing of university offices, fraternities, sororities, residence halls, scholarship houses, Tallahassee churches and religious organizations, emergency numbers and a classified section.

This directory is a substantial over the directory produced last year in that it is more complete and has been purchased by the university for use by the faculty and staff. By using this one directory for both staff and student distribution it has become possible to reduce the price of student copies from seventy-five cents to the current price.

The production of this improved directory was coordinated by Alpha Phi Omega in cooperation with the Chaplain's Office, Personnel Office and the Dean of Students Office.

FEA House Gets Award

The FEA Scholarship House won the academic trophy for having the highest scholastic average of the first semester Monday night at the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation's Academic Awards Convocation.

Winning honorable mention for having the second highest scholastic average among the 11 FSO scholarship houses was the 609 Scholarship House on West Pensacola Street.

This will be the fourth time that the FEA House has captured the trophy and plaque for high scholastic achievement. The 609 House is the only other house to have won the trophy and plaque more than twice.

Students with 4.0 averages made last trimester were presented with checks by Mrs. S. T. Lastinger on behalf of the SRRF Board of Directors. Students awarded with the $10 checks were Rodelia Hapke, Maureen O'Neill and Linda Phillips. Students who had the highest averages in their FSO houses received honorable mention from Dr. S. T. Lastinger, third vice president of the Board of Directors.

Receiving honorable mention were Danny Barwick, Margaret Bunyan, Fred Buser, Robert Darline, Herbert Emmens, Florin Greenlee, Joanne Knowles, Ron McFarland, Martha McIntosh, Don Miller, Thomas Pelham, Paula Wall and Caroline Whittington.

Presiding at the convocation was Diana Michelle Goffe, president of the Foundation Scholarship Organization.

Dr. Guenter Schwarz of the Physics Dept. was the guest speaker for the convocation. He discussed extracurricular activities from a personal point of view.

Admen Feted Tomorrow

Florida State University's Elton Borton Chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, is handling the Tallahassee promotion of Advertising Recognition Week, beginning tomorrow.

Time and space donated by local media will carry the theme message "Advertising is the Voice of Free Choice." In addition, an essay contest built around the idea of how advertising provides freedom of choice to the American consumer, will be open to all Tallahassee High School seniors.

Doug Shelby, president of ADS, said "A word from the sponsor, whether spoken or printed, sold or strident, provoking, grave or funny has become a familiar part of American life."

"We take the time to realize the sponsor is not just sponsoring a product, but the whole scene of free enterprise? For free enterprise is based on the right of the seller to compete freely for the attention of the buyer and the right of the buyer to choose freely among competing products. The seller's voice is advertising. The seller's choice is freedom," stated Shelby.

R. Carl Chandler, chairman of the board, Standard Packaging Corporation, New York City, and Joseph Sheehan, Advertising Director, General Credit Company, Atlanta, Ga., both speakers on the February 13 Ad Day program at FSU, will be initiated into professional membership of ADS. Ned Hubbard, president of Bunker, Hubbard and Roelsen advertising agency of Jacksonville will also be initiated.

Ballots Offered Today

Students wishing an absentee ballot who are going to intern should come by the Calhoun Office, Room 210, Longmire Bldg. to register before Saturday. Students must bring ID cards before they can register to vote by absentee ballot.

According to Chapter 711.2 of the Statutes, Absentee Balloting: the Commissioner of Elections shall mail all absentee ballots no later than five days preceding the election and said ballots must be returned to the Commissioner of Elections no later than 5 p.m., Feb. 25. The last day for signing up to vote by absentee ballot is Saturday at 5 p.m.

Flambeau Forum

New Bureau Sparks Spirit

This is the first of many articles that will be placed in the "Flambeau" by the Rally Bureau. In case you are not aware of this bureau, it is a group of students that have joined together with the prime interest of projecting spirit within the student body. As a form of secondary interest Rally Bureau also hopes to help the students to feel pride in their school by informing the students of the historical and traditional background of Florida State.

Our school is well-known throughout the nation for its many advancements. Our sports are coming close to when we will be the undisputed and not the challenger. FSU is honored enough that we need not take a back seat to any group or school. Let's show all those that keep yelling "FSU" that we are not ashamed of our background, but proud of it. If we stand up for FSU, then FSU will stand in the eyes of the nation and make an even better name for herself.

Spirit has to and must come from the students. Many people talk about our spirit, but it is time we did something about it. Believe in your school and speak for it.

If you have any suggestions for the building of spirit on campus, write your ideas to the Rally Bureau c/o The Flambeau.

FSU Columnist Is One-Sided

To the Editor: I am writing to comment on Paul W. Brown's column, "School of Education Necessary," which appeared in your January 24th issue. Mr. Brown begins his column by saying that he has given "a lot of thought and consideration" to the question of the usefulness of courses in education. The rest of the column, however, is a one-sided consideration of the question.

The highly subjective approach taken by the writer on such an extremely important issue was objectionable in itself, let alone the almost total lack of authority of the references he used to support his biased view.

Mr. Brown raises the question, "Why is there any need for junior college teachers to have education courses?" I would suggest that their need is the same as that of elementary teachers, high school teachers and senior college teachers. Teaching is a moral enterprise and is best served by people who know something about the history and present purposes of education.

My guess is that Mr. Brown, like many of the teachers I have known has had little or no educational background.

I would further guess that the bias toward schools of education is analogous to the bias toward people and places all based on ignorance and lack of understanding. Far too many people, for some strange reason, consider themselves authorities in matters of education, without the slightest training in it.

I think it is especially unfortunate when such a bias interferes with journalistic objectivity. Journalists as well as teachers and other professional persons, who, by the nature of their activities, exert a high influence on the thinking of many people, have a special responsibility to fulfill.

I sincerely hope that Mr. Brown will limit himself in the future to writing about subjects of which he has some familiarity and competence.

Later Hours Are Welcomed

To the Editor: I would like to take this opportunity to thank the University Food Services for opening the Soda Shop until 10 o'clock in the evening. I am sure that I speak for a great many students when I say that it is much more convenient to get to the Soda Shop from the main campus area than to fight the construction and try to get to the Student Center. The Soda Shop has been a favorite place for supper for many students. To have the candle light atmosphere, well, this atmosphere is still in effect until 10 p.m.

If you don't know what I am talking about why don't you go over to the Soda Shop some evening and take a look. The food, service and atmosphere are all commendable.

Again, my thanks to the Food Service and congratulations for a great service.

U.S. Is Insincere

On October 7, 1963 the worst hurricane in Cuban history left over 1,000 dead and destroyed at least half of the food reserves of the island. Premier Fidel Castro has often been criticized for his rejection of the U.S. offer to give food and clothing as aid to the Cuban people. Castro has claimed that the U.S. was not sincere and wished only to bathe in the favorable propaganda to be got out of the sufferings of many thousands of people.

At the time of the hurricane many of us were upset with Castro's views, feeling that he himself had sacrificed the welfare of the Cuban people rather than accept aid from Yankee imperialists. Castro called for an end to the Naval Blockade of the island as a demonstration of U.S. good intentions.

Perhaps, at the time, Castro was a bit too demanding. While the Naval Blockade of Cuba is, without doubt, an insult to Cuba's rights, and a classic case of big power "might makes right" philosophy, nevertheless, the hurricane aid should have been accepted. Or should it?

Castro has no reason to love our government, regardless of how we may feel about Americans as people. He pointed out that private charities in the U.S. could supply all the American aid that was necessary. He says he should allow a hostile government to make a propaganda trophy at the price of the untold sufferings of his people.

If America had been sincere in offer of aid then Castro, I feel, would have accepted it. There is no evidence, however, that America was not sincere, and that Castro correct in his views about our country.

According to the February 3rd issue of the "Flambeau," the U.S. gave permission for the U.S. Red Cross and Commerce to send used clothing and shoes to Cuba for use by victims of the hurricane, just a short while before the same thing happened to the Emergency Committee for Disaster Relief to Cuba. Emergency Committee had asked send powdered milk to storm victims.

It appears as if such private charities are stripped of all its propaganda value becomes "contrary to the national interests." This same type of policy, however, if given by the U.S. government, with sufficient advanced publicity, becomes the "national interest."

Castro's lack of perfection in trust of his fellow man would seem to be in part produced by the actions of men, and governments, without he is forced to deal.

Laundry Fee Bill Is Unjust

A resolution dealing with the compulsory laundry fee was introduced in the Senate on February 5, 1964 by the women senators. This resolution proposed that upper-class women be exempted from having to pay the existing laundry fee and that freshmen women and freshmen men be forced to pay this compulsory laundry fee of $17.

Further investigation of this resolution shows that it was railroaded through the Senate by a vote of 19 members against 12 men. These men felt that the laundry should be put on a more voluntary basis and when Frank Ryl proposed an amendment to the resolution stating this, he was voted down by the same 19 women. Since the women are a majority in the Senate, there is no possible way that this resolution could be vetoed or changed if all of them voted together.

Although women's senate has no jurisdiction over matters that concern men, they nevertheless violated this principle by proposing that freshmen men be forced to pay an additional $17 for laundry fee next year.

In women's senate, and therefore, their feelings cannot be expressed or dealt with justly. This absence of representation in the women's senate can clearly be shown by this resolution in that the women's senate took a poll of the women's residences to determine their feelings about the laundry fee but failed to conduct such a poll of the men and thus disregarded their views and feelings on the issue. To make the candle light atmosphere fee resolution was to put the laundry fee on a voluntary basis and possibly to reduce the charge for the service.

The resolution fails because it does not reduce the laundry fee for freshmen women or anyone else who desires this service. This resolution further requires that freshmen men who have never before been required to use this laundry system, be forced to pay the laundry fee of $17. It seems that this resolution merely shifted the unpleasant laundry fee from the upper class women to the freshmen men and freshmen women to the freshmen men's position of the men senators.

I believe that this resolution should be reviewed again by the Student Senate, so that the men's senate should have an opportunity to investigate the issue more thoroughly before it is finally submitted to the administration. An inquiry has clearly been done to the freshmen men by the Women's Senate and also to the student body.

To the Editor:

Re: Letter by Grant Neale on Good Friday holiday—February 6, 1964 issue.

Mr. Neale—We Christians are deeply appreciative of your heartfelt concern for a "boom" to our religion. INDEED God should stop the world for a day so that you can pay your respects to Daytona Beach. There's no doubt in my mind that He had Christ crucified so that you, 2,000 years later, would be able to give your overworked brain a break from the trials and tribulations of getting an education. And then, along came man with the trimester system, interfering with God's plan for you. It's almost enough to make you lose your religion, isn't it? May God have mercy on your weary soul.

P.S. Agreeing with you, Mr. Neale—if the Board of Control can liberate us from classes for such trivial things as Thanksgiving, religious holidays, and the mourning of our late President, surely they should also set up free to celebrate, IN DAYTONA BEACH, the death of our Savior.

Indian Student Declares Gandhi's Power Remains

By BRUCE PELHAM

"I will not admit that Gandhi's influence is dying," said Kapoor, FSU international student from India, to the Students Act for Peace group Wednesday night.

Fire Destroys Sitting Room In PBP House

Fire swept through the sitting room of the Pi Beta Phi House at 515 W. College, Wednesday afternoon destroying the room and its furnishings.

However, due to early discovery and service Honorary, the fire was confined to the one room on the second floor of the building.

The fire was extinguished by Miss Andy Clark, a member of Pi Beta Phi, and some servants before the fire department arrived.

Firemen investigated but no immediate causes for the fire were found. However, according to one Pi Beta Phi member, it is suspected that faulty wiring started the blaze.

The fire was discovered by Morris members who were at the house tapping new members around 2 p.m.

Morris called the fire department and informed the Pi Beta Phi of the fire.

Kapoor said Gandhi's influence was still being felt in India today, and that his ideas for a "stateless, classless" country are meeting great success in India.

A "people's movement," which began in 1952, is underway to transfer power to village councils. The ultimate goal of this movement is a stateless society.

"Gandhi never encouraged centralization of power," he said. He added that Gandhi's idea was for the state to have power and when they (the people) wanted it, they would use it. Otherwise, each section or village would handle its own individual affairs.

Gandhi looked on the rich class as trustees of the wealth they had. The rich would use what they needed and the rest would be used for the good of those who needed it.

The movement in India today is persuading big landlords to give up extra wealth for those who need it and thus far it is a big success. These reforms are being carried out through non-violent means as Gandhi advised.

"Non-violence," said Kapoor, "was Gandhi's cardinal principle. Gandhi thought that pure means were the most important, thus following the principle that the means justify the ends."

After Kapoor finished speaking the Students Act for Peace group made plans for putting out a bi-monthly publication. This publication will contain articles from FSU professors, interested students, and reports from such groups as YAF, Liberal Forum, and the Young Socialist League, all concerning their views on disarmament and pacifism.

Chemical Studies Attract Graduates

By MAX COURTNEY

The number of graduate students in chemistry at FSU has more than doubled in the past six years and now totals 110 students who come from all parts of the U.S. as well as from abroad.

The chemistry department ranks among the leaders in the South with graduate study which is carried out in all branches of chemical research, including analytical, biochemistry, inorganic, organic, nuclear and physical.

With the completion of the proposed science center and with a growing amount of industrial and federal research grants, FSU will attract more graduate students and faculty. The chemistry department will be housed in two buildings, one for research and one for instruction.

Presently chemical research is being carried on in various places over the campus: Science Bldg., History Bldg., Nuclear Research and the Institute of Molecular Biophysics Bldg. Much of the organic research is done in the Science Bldg.

Dr. Harry M. Walborsky's laboratory is one such organic chemistry research group.

Walborsky's students are working towards their Ph.D.'s by doing basic organic research. The individual research varies from synthesis and identification of new compounds to the detailed study of the mechanisms of chemical reactions.

Group To Probe Property Rights

American property rights will be the subject of the week's American Studies Lecture at FSU.

Speaking this evening at 7:30 in the Strozier Library Lecture Hall, will be Howard K. Story, of Chicago, Ill.

Currently a Ford Foundation Fellow pursuing social studies at Harvard and the University of California at Berkeley, Story is specializing in American Studies. An alumnus of the University of Illinois, he holds the master of arts degree from Northwestern University. His graduate work includes study at Harvard, and at the University of Wyoming, where he held the William Robertson Coe Fellowship.

Story is also the former chairman of the Department of Social Studies at York and Wilkesboro High Schools in the Chicago suburbs. His lecture will follow the general theme of the current series: "What Is An American?"

The Student Senate will meet at 4 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Fashion, Inc. meets at 7 p.m. in Sandels Lounge.

Pi Delta Phi, national French honorary, will initiate new members at 7 p.m. in the Large Lounge of Longmire.

Sigma Phi Epsilon will have a rehearsal for the Calendar Girl Contest at 7 p.m. in Warren Auditorium.

Students Act for Peace meet 7:30 p.m. in the Student Lounge Longmire.

The FSU Sailing Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Room 10 Math-Meteorology Bldg. After the regular business meeting, final preparations will be made for the annual FSU-University of Florida race this weekend.

Howard Story of Chicago will speak on "Property Rights" at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall. Story is guest lecturer for the Program in American Studies.

Alpha Lambda Delta meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Club Room and Auditorium of Longmire.

Professor Kenneth Black of the University of Florida Law School will speak at all pre-law students at 8 p.m. on the study of law. Question and answer period will follow the lecture.

Gymnastics will meet at 8 p.m. in Tully Gymnasium.

The Dames Club will have a program on shoes, handbags and hats at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Village Recreation Hall.

Dorman Hall will hold a Valentine's Dance Saturday, featuring the Intruders and Folk Singers. The singers will perform from 8:30 to 9 p.m., and also at intermission. Tickets are $1.00 per couple and dress is semi-formal. The dance itself begins at 9 p.m. and ends at 12.

Physics 421, Electricity and Magnetism, has been added to the Tri-III-A by popular demand, the Physics Dept. announced today.

The course will be offered Monday through Friday at 10:40 to 11:35 in room 201 Math-Meteorology Bldg.

The 1964 Schedule of Classes for Trimester III is now available for the students in the Office of the Registrar, Room 102-A, Westcott (Information Center).

Job Interviews Aid Students

By BOB CORNET

"I think this is an excellent opportunity for students and supervisors to get together and get acquainted. It lets the student get a foot in the door, and know someone in the county school system."

This was John S. Stuyvesant, director of educational services for Polk county, opinion of the Fifth Annual Teacher Placement Conference, last Thursday and Friday.

The conference, directed by Dr. Garth Blake, was held to give seniors and interns a chance to learn about Florida county school systems. Five out-of-state school systems were also represented. Opinions expressed by the school representatives were favorable toward the conference and FSU. Ruth Leeth, Manatee county, said that the conference produced excellent results for her. She said that Manatee drew a good number of teacher graduates from FSU and that she was proud of them.

Montgomery county, Maryland representative, Gerald Reymore said, "We only go to good schools that produce good teachers." In the last two years he has hired 30 to 35 teachers from FSU, he said.

Approximately 450 students participated in this conference. Most said that it was very valuable to them.

AN END TO INHIBITIONS

...is Lord Bernone's outlook on the feminine fates he and his fellow courtiers have encountered in Shakespeare's comedy, "Love's Labour's Lost," current drama event at FSU Conradi Theater. Bernone is played by Jerold Gray.

FSU Offers All Lovers Shakespearean Valentine

A Shakespeare valentine to the world's lovers-at-large, "Love's Labour's Lost," is heading for a second weekend on campus. Played with a festive air of holiday farce, "Love's Labour's Lost" is scheduled for four more encores, starting Saturday afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

The matinee performance will be repeated Sunday at the same hour, with evening curtain times for both nights set at 8:30 p.m. The performances are by the University Theater in Conradi Theater. Opening with a full house despite rain and cold weather last Friday evening, the birthday salute to Shakespeare was roundly applauded. The year 1964 is Shakespeare's 400th birthday anniversary.

Shakespeare's universal valentine is a comic one, complete with lace and frills of the era's costumes, and full of the double-edged wit for which he is famed, according to Director Arthur Dorlag.

The high-spirited cast includes Ellen Whigham and Kent Wood as the Princess and Prince of hearts—heart's gone astray with mischief, that is.

The "knave of hearts" in this comedy proves to be Bernone, played by Jerold Gray, who falls in love with the tart tongue of Rosaline, played by Pat Britt.

Others in the cast include a court jester of unusual proportions, large in size and buffoonery, played by Bruce Fischer; strutting elderly court peacock and captain of the guard, Don rudo, Sammy Kilman; and a pair of dubiously endowed (in words only) semanticists, Holofemes and Sir Nathaniel, played respectively by Keith Carlson and Rhet Bryson.

Other lords and ladies of the court include Earl Fisher, Peter Steinberg, Louise Beddingfield, and Ann Angelli. Cast as Jacqueline, Didi, and Mercade, are Barbara Quinn, Mike Mullins, and Allan Dermott. Moth, a page, is played by twelve-year-old Jim Calhoun.

Meetings

The FSU Students Act for Peace will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire's Student Lounge.

Guest speakers of the week are two Japanese International Students, Mr. Ishijima and Mr. Takizawa who will speak on the Japanese peace movement and Hiroshima. They will elaborate on the new Japanese peace walk that will travel the world in quest of nuclear disarmament.

Articles written for the new peace group publication, "The Peace-maker," are to be turned-in at this meeting. All interested students may attend.

There will be a meeting of the Young People's Socialist League this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in room 122 History Building.

James I. Taylor, possible independent candidate for the office of Student Body President, will speak on the need for a real political alternative to the fraternity parties that currently rule and ruin Student Government.

Tony Skiff will speak on the civil rights movement and the Mecca. Mr. Skiff is the president of Liberal Forum and the director of the Social Action Committee.

A brief educational report on "Cuba and Castro: The Victory of the Revolution," will be read.

Who's Who

Certificates for the 1964 Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges are now available in Room 214, Longmire.

Audition Scheduled

auditions for this summer's new production of Paul Greet's outdoor drama "The Founders-The James-Story" will be held during the week of March at four East coast locations: College Park, Maryland; Chapel Hill, North Carolina; Tampa, Florida and Williamsburg, Virginia.

Saturday, March 7, the National Collegiate Players of the University of Maryland will sponsor auditions to be held in Ritchie Stadium on the College Park campus.

Chapel Hill auditions on March 10 will be part of the general outdoor drama tryouts held each year by the University of North Carolina the Outdoor Drama Institute.

Participating in these general tryouts will be three or four other drama troupes in addition to "The Founders."

March 21 is the date for the Tampa auditions, a major event of the Southern Theatre Conference scheduled at the University of South Florida.

Producing agencies from all over the nation will audition talent from colleges and universities throughout the southeastern United States.

Williamsburg will be the site of final auditions on March 22, prospective actors and dancers will be at the Matoka Lake Amphitheatre on the campus of the College of William and Mary.

Those interested in acting are encouraged to attend tryouts at the location nearest them, prepared to present two dramatic readings, one from Shakespeare and one of their own choosing.

The Director, Howard Scammon, is seeking mature actors and actresses capable of projecting voice and characterization in a large, outdoor amphitheatre.

Since "The Founders" utilizes all elements of theatrical presentation, poetic dialogue, music, song and dance, performers with some talent and experience in singing and dance are being sought.

Dance tryouts will be conducted at the Tampa and Williamsburg locations. Both male and female dancers will be hired as dancer-actors and should have training and experience in modern dance and body movement.

Roger Sherman, General Manager of the Jamestown Corporation, submitted from artists from all over the country for "The Founders," stated that the extension and expansion of auditions, a departure from the single tryout date at Williamsburg followed in recent years for "The Common Glory," was an effort to interview a large number of talented performers from which Director Scammon could select an excellent cast for the new show.

The 1964 season of "The Founders" will open June 22 and continue nightly, except Sundays, through Sept. 5.

Additional information concerning auditions and the new production may be obtained from The Jamestown Corporation, Box 448, Williamsburg, Virginia.

Lithography Exhibition To Open In FSU Gallery

The First Annual National Lithography Exhibition will open at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Art Gallery. As a part of the Artist Series, this exhibition will present lithographs submitted from artists from all over the United States.

Because lithography is a term and process which most people are not familiar with, it comes as a surprise to realize that this printing process is a print medium which constantly influences everyone since it is used for advertisements, labels, prints in books as well as for a means of artistic expression.

In 1793, Alois Senefelder, a Bavarian, wanted to reproduce music and theater programs by replacing the metal plates, usually used for printing, with limestone tiles. His intention was to use the limestone to approximate results obtained by the traditional methods of printing. He foresaw no great discovery; he intended only to change the plate, substituting stone for metal, not the basic method for final results.

To aid in applying his design to the surface of the stone and to avoid the awkwardness of designing in reverse (objects on the right of the page, when printed, would appear on the left, and vice-versa), Senefelder developed a transfer paper coated with an adhesive, resinous substance—gum arabic.

In doing this, he noted that when he wet the paper any grease present in the water adhered to the greasy drawing, but not to the paper. This prompted Senefelder to experiment further with this idea, using limestone directly.

By using an ink which was held on the drawing by the compatibility between the grease in the ink and the grease in the drawing and kept from the rest of the surface because of the dampened gum arabic coating, Senefelder was able to print directly from his limestone tile. Paper pressed firmly against the stone over the drawing produced a faithful copy of the original image.

This new process, finally developed by Senefelder in 1789, necessitated no irregularities in the plate surface being based on the simple fact that grease and water do not mix. It was the first of the "planographic" printing processes—this is, printed from a smooth, unmarred surface, and survives today, in the graphic art form, Lithography.

'Trog' Tryouts Set For Today

Casting tryouts for the forthcoming American premiere of James Forsyth's play, "TROG," have been scheduled for today at 7:30 p.m. in the Conrad Theater.

Slated for presentation beginning March 18, the Theater production will be directed by Richard G. Fallon. The play will have ten character roles (three women and seven men) in addition to the title role, which will be played by a professional star.

Evening tryouts are open to anyone who wishes to audition for roles in the production. Scripts of the play are now available in Room 115 of the History Building, according to Theatre officials.

Forsyth's play, first produced in Great Britain, derives its title from the term, "trogology," which refers to creatures that live under stones or away from open view.

The British dramatist, in residence at FSU for the current trimester as visiting professor, says "TROG" deals with man's acceptance of his fellow man in terms of external appearances. "TROG," he adds, "is a legend for our times."

Pikes Sponsor Go-Kart Derby

Saturday at 1 p.m. Pi Kappa Alpha will again put on the annual go-kart derby. The event has been a big attraction on campus for a number of years.

All sororities and fraternities enter and trophies are given to the winning fraternity and sorority each year. Last years' winners were Sigma Chi and Gamma Phi Beta.

The karts are being brought up from Panama City and are guaranteed to run at the same speed. The track is to be set up on the Tule Gym parking lot. Members of Pi Kappa Alpha will announce, judge the event, and work on safety and service crews.

The winner of each event will be determined as follows: (1) There will be four heats in each division, mens and womens. (2) The winners of each heat of the separate divisions will have a final race of 20 laps for the championship.

Trophies will be awarded at the end of the race and winners' names will be placed in the "Flambeau."

MSU Tigers Stop Tribe

By JIM ZELLNER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Memphis State Tigers avenged an earlier defeat Monday night with an 84-71 lashing of the Seminoles. The Tigers stemmed a late surge by the Seminoles enroute to their thirteenth victory of the season.

After leading for most of the first half, the Seminoles lost their lead with 5:36 left in the period when Memphis State guard Tim Weaver scored on two free throws. The Tigers continued to pad the lead and held a 41-32 halftime advantage. The Seminoles managed to close the gap to 68-65 with 3 1/2 minutes remaining in the game, when the Tigers' George Kirk successfully completed a three-point play to put Memphis State out of reach.

The loss was the Seminoles' eleventh against nine wins on the season. It was Florida State's tenth loss in eleven away game this season.

The high scorer of the night was Memphis State's forward Bob Neumann, whose 27 points boosted his career total to 1,017.

The Tribe had four players in double figures—Gary Schull, 18; Pete Rogers, 13; Pete Gonzalez, 12; and Bobby Lovell, 10.

The taller Tigers managed to control the boards throughout the game with 49 rebounds to 38 for FSU. The Seminoles outscored Memphis from the floor, connecting on 47 percent of their 66 attempts.

Gymnasts Win At Gasparilla

Thirteen first places and a total of 181 points brought FSU gymnasts to a smashing victory at the Gasparilla Invitational last weekend in Tampa. Sophomore Gail Sontgerath, Olympic hopeful, from West Palm Beach, made hers a 100% victory by winning each of the four events which she entered and by being the recipient of the women's all-around trophy with a score of 111.7.

The second all-around trophy went to another FSUer, Betty Haas, who totaled a score of 95.3.

FSU graduate Rick Miller vied with teammate Jon Culbertson for the doctoral student for the men's all-around. Miller was the recipient of this trophy.

Second place in the Invitational went to West Palm Beach's S4 Tampa, with 29 points was in the third place position.

Coon-On-The-Log

By Ted Kesting

Coon hunters—an enjoy sport with dogs all summer long through coon-dog competition. I do not mean the actual chasing of coons, for hunting most species of wildlife in the summer is taboo—and properly so.

The sport I have reference to is the "coon-on-the-log" contest, really a misnomer. The name was appropriate enough when the sport was first devised, but circumstance have brought about a modification of the modus operandi. Originally a log was anchored some 40 feet from the shore of a stream or lake, in water deep enough to force a dog to swim, but shallow enough to allow human wading. A captive coon was placed on the log, guarded by two "coon tenders." The competing hound was brought to the starting point on shore, allowed to see the coon and then released at the hunter's whistle. It was the dog's job to swim to the log and pull the coon off into the water. The moment the coon left the log, the race was over, and the coon tenders separated dog and varmint. The dog performing his chore in the fastest time was declared the winner.

It was found that frequently the coon would leave the log at the approach of the dog and try to escape by swimming, thus defeating the purpose of the contest. So the log was generally discarded in favor of a rather large wooden box, or den, open at the front. This box is mounted between two sturdy posts and is suspended just above the level of the water. It is large enough to allow the coon full freedom of movement, so he can back into a corner and wage a pretty competent battle.

The coon has the advantage of solid footing, while the hound can only brace his forelegs on the edge of the box. Quick action on the part of the coon tends to present serious injury to either animal, says Henry P. Davis, Sporting Dogs Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

The uninitiated spectator, not familiar with coon hunting, might understandably frown on such contests as being cruel. But the action is swift, the coon is well furred and the alertness of the coon tenders reduces to a minimum the probability of injury to either animal. A number of coons are used in each event, and no single coon is subjected to prolonged harassment. Club officials are well aware of the possibility of criticism, and representatives of humane associations are usually in attendance.

Branch Introduces Summer Bill Requests New Finance Board

Secretary of Finance Bill Branch addressed the Student Senate and a bill was introduced concerning summer government yesterday's Senate meeting in Longmire Auditorium.

Branch requested that the Student Senate explore the possibility of establishing a Board of Finance under the Secretary of Finance in order to insure experienced officials and to stabilize budget policies. The board would consist of students elected for a two-year term.

President of Student Senate Julian Proctor requested that the Judicial and Rules Committee, headed by Senator Jeanie Williamson, investigate a Board of Finance suggestion.

Branch also requested approval of the transfer of $600 from the Student Activities Reserve Fund to assist the Intramural Program. He explained other areas such as an international Students Bureau, the new swimming pool, the soccer team, and numerous other activities.

Some factors which are contingent to the expanding budget are the proposed printing press, which could save some $6000 annually, and the expanded expansion of the football stadium.

Branch also reminded the Student Senate of their responsibilities in financial matters, and in such fields as improved transportation on campus, and improved governmental structure over married students.

A bill establishing legislative power for the summer trimester was introduced and sent to the Judicial and Rules Committee for study. The bill provides that the president and vice president of the student body, the Chief Justice of the Honor Court, and one senator elected from each class during the third trimester compose a legislative committee, with each member exercising one vote. In addition, the Student Body President's Cabinet would serve in an advisory capacity on the committee. All the members of the committee would be required to be enrolled for both A and B sessions of the trimester.

FSU Ad Day Opens

"Be yourselves, ladies," advertising executive Josephine Foxworth advised disaff recruits to her line of work today. "ours is a female economy and women succeed in advertising by being women, by thinking like women and living like women."

The opening speaker for Advertising Day, Miss Foxworth, who is vice president and associate creative director for Johnstone, Inc. and president of the Advertising Women of New York, said a woman in advertising not only should be no "synthetic make," but should keep up such womanly activities as cooking.

Speakers following Miss Foxworth talked on how to succeed in newspaper advertising, packaging and selling a service.

"How to Succeed in Selling the Advertising Business" will be the subject of the luncheon speaker, James S. Fish, vice president and director of advertising for General Mills, Minneapolis.

Four FSU graduates have also returned to speak on a panel discussion of "How You Can Succeed in Advertising By Really Trying."

Louis Calderoni, advertising executive for Barroff's, will moderate the discussion. Panelists will be Arthur J. Albrecht, assistant advertising manager of Vick Chemical Co.; Eugene Moore, manager of corporate information in the public relations and public affairs department of Armstrong Cork Co.; John M. Brennan, Advertising Dept. of the St. Petersburg Times and Independent.

DR. JAMES G. FOSHEE

Foshee Joins Education Faculty

Dr. James G. Foshee, former deputy director of the State Division of Adult Training Centers, has joined the education faculty as professor of mental child education and research.

His appointment to the FSU faculty gives a year as superintendent of the Marianna Sunland Center and two years as superintendent of the center at Fort Myers.

Active on national and regional committees concerned with education for the intellectually disabled, Foshee attended the Kennedy Foundation dinner held this week in New York City.

A member of the advisory committee on in-service education for the National Institute on Mental Health, Foshee is also active in the American, Southeastern and Florida Psychological Associations. Currently editor of "Outlook Seven," the regional publication of the American Association on Mental Deficiency, he is the immediate past chairman of the Southeastern chapter.

Specializing in behavioral research in the field of mental retardation, Foshee will direct research in these areas at FSU teaching in the areas of education for exceptional children in the School of Education.

A native of Alabama, he received his Ph. D. from George Peabody College in 1955.

KA's Hold Toll Gate

The Kappa Alpha's will have their annual Toll Gate today from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The blockade will be at the intersection by the Corner restaurant. The Toll Gate is held in memory of John Greshaw, who was a past student body president and captain of the football team.

He was president of the ATO fraternity and was active in various campus organizations. Several years ago he was killed in an airplane accident while serving the Air Force as a 2nd Lt.

Each year the KA's get together to hold a Toll Gate in memory of Greshaw and give the proceeds to the Campus Chest. Students and faculty are requested to help the KA's in their effort to boost Campus Chest.

Ballots Offered

Students wishing an absentee ballot who are going to Intern should come by the Cabinet Office, Room 210, Longmire Bldg., to register before Friday.

Students must bring ID cards before they can register to vote by absentee ballot.

According to Chapter 711.2 of the Statutes, Absentee Ballots of the Commissioner of Elections shall mail all absentee ballots no later than five days preceding the election and said ballots must be returned to the Commissioner of Elections no later than 5 p.m., Feb. 25.

The last day for signing up to vote by absentee ballot is Friday at 5 p.m.

Arbitrary Alchemy Robs Students

Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary, recently tapped twelve new girls into their fellowship. Congratulations. This new brings Garnet Key's total membership to around 40 members.

On the other hand, Gold Key, Men's leadership honorary, has not tapped yet and they only have about 13 members at present. If they follow last trimester's pattern they will tap from 3 to 5 members bringing their grand total to around 16 or 18. If this is any true indication of the condition or scarcity of male leadership on campus then maybe we had better turn the school back into FSCW.

It would appear from a superficial glance that Gold Key is more segregated than the off-campus restaurants although not along color lines. Don't let the picketers hear about this, all you Gold Keyers out there in Disney Land.

Several weeks ago, through some arbitrary alchemy of legal interpretation by the student body Attorney General, and shortly thereafter by student senate and "quick thinking" Ed Scott, the student body was robbed, in grand style, of a vital constitutional right. This student body no longer has recourse to a referendum vote to accept or reject legislation of student senate. The referendum clause has been reduced to the sad state of a glorified poll.

The time for senate to act is now. They should strike the referendum clause from the constitution because we already have a polling bureau (campus credit bureau) in the executive branch. They still want to abolish the polling bureau and let the attorney general hand down an opinion "... regardless of the opinion of the students." (Gibbs, "Flambeau," Jan. 10).

Actually, this type of constitutional disregard is not very funny and should be taken to Honor Court.

The grey side of politics won out at the UF convention last week, in the vice presidential race. The "smooth" candidate was running against the "officer candidate" and, of course, you know who lost... despite qualifications. A number of delegates were accused by Sigma Chi and Phi Kappa Phi of rigging the voting in this race and told to vote for Henderson because the relatively unknown but otherwise qualified candidate was being pushed around through by Student senate. Well, that line worked so that person won by six votes.

From the short-run "we have at any cost" viewpoint of the candidate, the right school to be considered from a more long-term thought-out viewpoint, the student body.

The best way to beat a Student candidate who is qualified is to make sure that the candidate is not known, even if at the time the election is not known. A good working, qualified candidate who overcame the disadvantage of being unknown better than a well-known candidate who lost because of lack of qualifications.

This is a case where we need the best man first, UF and this student body lost. Fortunately the candidates appear qualified for office. James Henderson, the "officer candidate" Women's Veep, and the "smooth" Men's Veep should be elected if they pleased.

Quotable Quotes: Unbiased Person: "One who has no bias you have"

Orange and Blue

1964 will be remembered, if for nothing else, as the year of the orange and blue. This garish color combination has a mysterious way of appearing in the most unlikely places.

Everyone, by now has surely noticed the "old orange and blue" tags on Florida residents' cars. If this is a U of F plot then they have been highly successful.

It is possible that uptown in the labyrinth of government offices there is a door with the title "Commissioner in Charge of Selecting Obnoxious Auto Tag Colors" engraved on the frosted glass. If this is true then it would be also conceivable that on the wall of that office hangs a diploma from the U of F.

If, by chance, you were thinking of leaving the state to get away from these tags, as many people have threatened to do, then you will be jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

Seems that in New York they have a commissioner for selecting colors for the Worlds Fair. Probably the only people who will be happy with his selection of orange and blue will be the "Gators."

According to the "New Yorker", New York City is infested with cabs painted orange and blue. The "New Yorker" adds that "the Public Relations Man in Charge of Taxi-Cabs" chose this color so as to remind visitors to New York City of the World Fair.

The magazine also says, "He obviously chose this form of reminder on the theory that the orange and blue combination is too unattractive to be the colors of any school or university." Too bad U of F doesn't have grads on the "New Yorker" staff.

Somewhere along the line the "orange and blue drive" got out of hand. The new FSU fieldhouse is plastered with the colors orange and blue. Unless some enterprising group offers to run the paint buckets and correct this gross oversight, it will be more than just a little embarrassing if we play U of F here next year. If not, FSU students will have to put up with the jeers that are bound to come.

In any case it will be interesting to see where the "old orange and blue" will turn up next.

FLAMBEAU FORM

Interview Wasn't Intended To Be Diatribal

To the Editor:

At the time of my interview I did not intend for any of my statements or general views on student government as a whole to be interpreted as a personal diatribe against any student organization or personality.

Racists Aren't Fair Judges

To the Editor:

What difference, if any, does it make if one has come in contact with 10 or 100 Negroes? Integration is not sought on the basis that you or anyone else approve of the Negro as a person or associate. If the feeling that Negroes are undesirable to be with is your criterion for segregation, then you are not being fair and honest with anyone.

It is impossible for one person to come in contact with every Negro on the face of this earth and an accurate analysis cannot be taken from a few. I suppose that you haven't looked, but if you did, one Negro might be found that even you consider worthy to be an associate. But, who are you to judge anyway? While you sit there passing the verdict, that same Negro may be saying of you, "There but by the grace of God goest I!"

I don't believe that the main criterion of the Negro is to be with the white people. He only desires the privileges of exercising his rights as a citizen of these United States. You wonder, "How many of our 'evangelists' and 'red-necks' are truly in a position to say anything at all?" I wonder about the so-called position one should hold before he speaks on the issue. Is there a set criterion here also? According to your own implied standard—experience through association—you are not and never will be qualified to judge the Negroes. If you have known all of them, then I beg forgiveness, you are able to judge. If I have misinterpreted your letter, please accept my apologies.

Name Withheld

However, since President Smith took it upon himself to point out various "fallacies" contained in my interview of February 4, I feel it is my right and even more so my duty to further enlighten him and, more important, the student body on a few points.

1. Doug Padgett misinterpreted some of my statements given to him in the interview for the "Flambeau." I did not sit down and write the interview as President Smith wrote his letter. Therefore, I didn't know what the story would say until I saw it in print Tuesday.

2. I DID say that the mandate to abolish the Glass Office Program had been lying around since last April, which it has; but I did NOT say that it was declared unconstitutional last April. However, in a report to the Senate three weeks ago, the committee to investigate the mandate stated that the Attorney General HAD declared it unconstitutional. I suggest that President Smith coordinate his statements with those of his cabinet members.

3. In President Smith's second point I was misquoted or misinterpreted twice. I never used the term "Mommy's approval" or said that Faculty Senate could veto a Student Senate bill.

I did, however, say that the faculty as a whole possesses far too much power over the affairs of student government. I am referring to the Judiciary. Faculty Review has to approve every verdict handed down by Judiciary and if my review does not pass approval, the case is referred back to Judiciary.

I feel that this hampers the effectiveness of this body. This was not included in the printed version of my interview. In an interview I read President Smith's statement that "Faculty Senate has nothing to do with Student Senate affairs," I agree with the view taken by Senator Scott in the February 6 edition of the "Flambeau."

Senator Scott, who is also President Smith's administrative assistant, said that Faculty Senate has the power to stifle Student Senate. Let's get together, boys.

I agree with President Smith that without party loyalties there is no stable government. I think that this should not be carried over into the welfare of our government. It is at times the real purpose of the so-called "regulate the power" of the President. It is at times the real purpose of the so-called "regulate the power" of the President. It is at times the real purpose of the so-called "regulate the power" of the President.

If President Smith's letter was intended to arouse an interest in Student Government, my necessary response has been shown inconsistencies and lack of coordination between the President and his cabinet; if the need for renewed emphasis on the independence of the Student Senate has been shown; if all or any of the above have been shown to President Smith, with the hope that this is a better Student Government to show its face on the campus of Florida State University.

If, however, President Smith's letter was intended to arouse an interest in Student Government, my necessary response has been shown inconsistencies and lack of coordination between the President and his cabinet; if the need for renewed emphasis on the independence of the Student Senate has been shown; if all or any of the above have been shown to President Smith, with the hope that this is a better Student Government to show its face on the campus of Florida State University.

ECONOMICS CAN BE CHUCKLES

It is so easy to have been avoiding economics because it is so often known as "the dismal science." Oh, good friends, stop kidding yourselves of many a laugh and cheer, because economics is a positive riot. True, it is called the dismal science, not only because it was invented in 1681 by Walter C.

It is easy to understand why Mr. Dismal's discovery of economics is today almost forgotten, for the fact is that he only stayed with the subject for two or three days. When he had to stop, however, which means fatness. It is a fact that his appetite, Mr. Dismal reached 1200 pounds. This is known as Guy Fawkes Day.

It was not until 1776 when Adam Smith published his Wealth of Nations or Opportunism, as it is usually known as, that the world began to realize what a rosy, twinkly, fun subject economics is.

Mr. Smith showed in his peculiar little treatise, a something complicated about economics.

When there is a great demand for a product, a great supply is needed on the market. When there is a small demand, there is a small supply. Take, for example, customers. You walk into a store, American town today and I'll wager you won't see one thing empty or empty customer shops. That is because the demand is small.

Marlboro Cigarettes, on the other hand, the demand is great. You can buy Marlboro's with all their yummy flavors and pure white Selectate filter and pleated pack and unpleated Flip-Top box, at any corner where cigarettes are sold in every one of our fifty great States and Canada.

When Smith, I say, began the distinction of popularizing economics, Mr. Smith was followed by David Ricardo. In fact, wherever he went he was followed by David Ricardo. Mr. Smith finally got so annoyed that he summoned a body, as these policemen are called, and had Mr. Ricardo arrested. He later became known as the Louisiana Purchase.

When he was released from jail, as a British jail is called, Mr. Ricardo reported to his parole officer, Thomas Robert Malthus. The man became fast friends, and one night over a game of what they invented the stock exchange, or chess, as it is called in England.

Well sir, the British having, you might say, a corner on economics, the French decided that they wanted some economics too. Being, however, a proud nation, they refused to borrow British economics, but insisted on inventing their own. At first they tried using the traffic light as a medium of exchange. When this proved less than satisfactory, they resorted to pomade. Discouraged by this second disappointment, they finally shrugged and said, "Oh, who cares about economics anyhow?" and returned to the guillotine and Maurice Dorel.

America, I am pleased to report, had much better success with economics. Our early merchants quickly broke down economics into its two major categories—coins and fading money—and only as a result of their wisdom, we can all enjoy the automatic inflation.

Well sir, I could go on and on about this fascinating subject, but I know you're all in a tearing hurry to rush out and sign for item 1. So I will leave you now with two kindly words of farewell. Gresham's Law.

African Display Opens Thursday

An exhibit on Africa will open tonight, in FSU's Museum. There will be a formal opening at 7 p.m. to which the public is invited and the exhibit will be on view thereafter until April.

Dr. Hale Smith, head of the Anthropology and Archeology Dept. and Museum director, said materials for the exhibit were borrowed largely from the Jacksonville Children's Museum and the State Museum at Gainesville.

The exhibit, designed by graduate assistant William E. Valle, includes a thumb piano used in East Central Africa, a Masai skin shield, Congo masks and many other artifacts, along with some stuffed animals.

Among the animals is a lion which has had a long history since roaming the jungles of Africa. Smith said the lion was owned for 25 or 30 years by a Jacksonville drug store, which used it for advertising purposes. More recently it has been in the Junior Museum.

The Museum will be open daily on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will be closed on Saturdays but will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays. Smith said the Museum has redesigned its permanent exhibit in the rear of the Museum.

Tomorrow: Military Ball

The 1964 Military Ball for basic and advanced cadets and their dates will be tomorrow evening from 9 to 11 in Tully Gymnasium.

The five queen finalists were selected during last week's voting from a field of 16 coeds. The finalists are Patty Warren, Phyllis Horne, Laurie Crawley, Mary Chapman and Sandy Lewis.

Final balloting will be today from 11 a.m. to 12 and from 2 to 3 p.m.

today in front of the Military Bldg. Si Zentner and his band will provide the musical entertainment. Zentner has been in the music profession since joining the Dorsey band.

"The Watchman" and the Air Force ROTC club will provide the intermission entertainment.

The Military Ball Queen will be announced during the intermission.

Mental Health Lecture To Feature Dr. Cassel

A well-known public health educator from North Carolina, Dr. John C. Cassel, will give a public lecture on mental health problems tonight.

Cassel, a specialist in epidemiology, relates to medicine and psychiatry, will speak in Strozier Library Lecture Hall at 8 p.m. His lecture is the second in a series of four being sponsored this trimester by the Florida State Institute for Social Research. He is a professor at the University of North Carolina's School of Public Health.

Cassel will discuss mental health problems common to the lower socioeconomic classes, stressing the incidence and prevalence of various disorders.

A native of the Union of South Africa, he has headed the Department of Epidemiology at the University of North Carolina since 1959, and has served as a consultant to a number of projects throughout the South. His major research interests have centered upon the relationships between social and cultural factors and illness.

Each of the four lectures in the series will deal with various facets of mental health problems as they relate to culturally deprived segments of the population of this country.

Today

Dr. Mael A. Melvin is the honor guest at the Physics Faculty Luncheon in the Bamboo Room of the Faculty Hall at 12:30 p.m.

Kappa Delta Pi Initiation will be in the Large Lounge, Longmire at 4 p.m.

The Physics Colloquium will feature Dr. Mael A. Melvin, Physics Dept., speaking on "Galactic Super High Energy Sources and Gravitational Collapse" at 4:30 p.m. in 124 Science. Refreshments will be served at 4 p.m.

Little Dinner Series will feature Hungary at 6 p.m. in 225 Dining Hall. (Sold Out)

Kappa Delta Pi Initiation banquet will be held in the Swanmore Room at 6 p.m.

Gamma Sigma Sigma meets at 6:30 in the History Building. Members should bring several grade averages.

Vespers will be at 6:45 in the Baptist Student Union.

Alpha Phi Omega will meet at 7 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

The Collegiate 4-H party will be in Sandels 516g, at 7:30 p.m.

Magnolia Hall Faculty Reception will be at 7:30 p.m.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Calendar Girl Contest is in Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Honor Court Review Cases

The Honor Court adjudicated five cases within the last two weeks. These cases involved violations of deliberate deception and stealing.

One case of deception involved a student who used deceptive means in trying to procure a library reserve book for her use outside the library. The student pled guilty and the Court in accepting her plea, sentenced her to one trimester of probation.

The third case also involved stealing. The student pled not guilty of expropriating a parcel of university property and the Court accepted the plea of not guilty.

The fourth case included a violation of deliberate deception, under the Academic Honor Code, in the form of lying to a university official. The student pled guilty, and the court sentenced the student to eight weeks of probation. The fifth case involved stealing, and the student pled guilty to the charges and specifications. The Court accepted the plea, and upon lengthy deliberation, sentenced the student to immediate suspension from the university with the eligibility to apply for admission in April, 1966. All the above cited cases were approved by the faculty review committee.

MSU To Fill Tech Gap

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

The recent withdrawal of Georgia Tech from the Southeastern Conference leaves an opening in the twelve team conference, which Florida State and Vaughn Mancha, its athletic director, would love to fill.

However, as is usual when applying for admission to anything with the prestige and drawing power of the SEC, it will be some time before anything definite is known as to the Sem'nole's chances to make it into the elite.

If the SEC, which many of the members consider to be too spread out and large now, does decide to admit another school into its ranks, it will have three candidates to choose from -- FSU, Memphis State and Southern Mississippi.

The leading candidate in many quarters around the south is, unfortunately, the Memphis State Tigers. FSU has met MSU on the athletic field only twice, both times being in the current basketball season.

Last Monday night, at Memphis, the Tigers evened the score with an 84-71 win. The Tribe had won an earlier contest at Tully Gym 91-90.

The point is that, judging from its athletic record this year, Memphis State would probably have more of a chance in the tough SEC.

The Tiger Basketball team, now 12-8 on the year, has established itself around the country as one not to be taken lightly. They have beaten Loyola of Chicago, last year's top basketball team, at Chicago.

Memphis State also tamed such other basketball powers as Creighton, which has the country's leading rebounder in Paul Silas, by 87-56. And more recently, they startled previously unbeaten DePaul, which was in the Top Five in the nation by a runaway 98-67.

On the gridiron, the Tigers were no less successful. They began their season by holding powerful Ole Miss to a scoreless tie at Oxford, then roared on to an undefeated season. Mississippi State, which defeated North Carolina State in the Liberty Bowl, managed a tie with the Tigers, who possessed the country's leading ground gainer.

Closer to home, Seminole athletic teams have had a so-so year. The football squad, which finished 4-5-1, can be proud only of wins over Miami and NC State. The Tribe gridders were humbled by VPI, TCU, Georgia Tech, Auburn and Florida.

The FSU basketball team has had a devil of a time away from its home court, winning one of eleven games away. The Seminoles have failed to Florida twice, to compound the misery.

The main difference between the two top candidates, FSU and Memphis State, is the scholastic record. FSU far excels in this aspect, while the Tigers are guilty of looking the other way when a hot prospect with poor grades decides to go to school there. The SEC, however, is also noted for its academic leniency.

When the SEC members meet again in January, the chances of FSU being turned down for the fourth time are good.

FSU wrestlers recently competed in two meets, winning from the University of Tampa 35-13 and losing to Letourneau 19-11. FSU's next meet will be with Tampa at Tully Gym on Friday, February 21 at 8 p.m.

Tribe Grapplers Split Wrestling Meets

The Seminole Grapplers came out even following a doubleheader in wrestling last weekend. On Friday they were hosted by Letourneau College of Texas and on Saturday they walked over to the University of Tampa.

Letourneau won the 123 lbs., the 157 lbs., the 167 lbs., the 177 lbs. and the unlimited weight classes. Their total score was 19. Jim Burns pinned Buzz Howard of Letourneau in the 130 lbs. division. Steve Baum and Jim Hill, both from FSU decimated their opponents in the 137 and 147 bracket. FSU's score was 11.

Bouncing back from Friday night's defeat, the Seminoles took the road to Tampa to participate in the Gasparilla Holiday. They defeated Tampa 35-13. University of Tampa won only 3 of the 10 events. Barry George pinned Lach of FSU in the 123 and Paoli of Tampa won over adin in the unlimited group.

Another win came in the 137 bracket when Lowe decimated Baum. Billy Evans, Jim Hill, Jay Betti, and Mike Strayhorn pinned their respective opponents. Ryan, and Rogers won their matches by forfeit.

Soccer Club Meets Gators

The FSU Soccer team will meet with the University of Florida Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at Campbell Stadium.

Wrestling goes into the second night of competition tonight at 7 in Tully Gym. There are events in 10 weight brackets from 115 lbs. to unlimited. Eleven fraternities and seven dorm-independent teams will compete.

Badminton continues in the Women's Gym tonight.

Jennie Murphree will play Palm Court at Seminole Lanes for bowling championships at 5:00 p.m. Teams are to be at the women's gym at 4:45 for transportation. Co-ed dance tryouts will be held tonight in the dance studio in the Women's Gym.

Causey Out For Season

Coach Bill Peterson announced the monthly meeting of the Seminoles Boosters that senior end Jim Causey will not return to the '64 Sem football squad. No reason was given for Causey's departure.

Causey, a two letter man, was on the Warriors (offensive unit) as a sophomore and on the Seminoles (defensive unit) as a junior.

Last season Causey caught passes for a total of 52 yards in a standout on defense. Jim Causey was a standout on defense. Jim Causey was a standout on defense. Jim Causey was a standout on defense.

Also out for next season is Jim Loftin, a junior halfback. Loftin lettered twice while playing on the Warriors.

However, a brighter side to the football picture, halfback Spooner will return for Spring practice. Spooner voted the best offensive player in '63 Spring. He injured his kidney in the intramural game and missed of last season.

Spring Practice begins Feb. 24, lasts for four weeks.

FSU To Host International Science Meeting

International conference opening this weekend with FSU as host bringing together scientists from 25 countries to discuss applications of molecular theory and phenomena to the solution of problems in photobiology. Photobiology refers to all phenomena in biology where light plays a role. Dr. Michael Kasha, director of the Institute of Molecular Biology and conference co-chairman, said. Such phenomena include photosynthesis, photoinactivation, photosynthesis, photoinactivation and reactivation. Participants for the week of discussions are expected to be a daily program of papers by participants and will come to an end on Friday.

Kasha, a professor of physical chemistry, said there is an increasing trend in science to seek solutions for biological problems in the molecular theories and molecular phenomena turned up in research by chemical physicists and chemists on the structure and behavior of molecules.

This kind of cross-blending of the sciences has been particularly fruitful, he said, in the field of genetics, where many developments have occurred during the past 10 years leading to the new field of "Molecular Genetics." The current conference is an effort to bring together scientists from some of the world's most important laboratories to achieve a similar interplay of thought on problems of photobiology.

Called the "Conference on Molecular Mechanisms in Photobiology," the conference is being held under auspices of the National Academy of Sciences with the financial support of the National Science Foundation and the Charles F. Kettering Foundation.

Co-chairman with Kasha is Dr. Henry Linshitz of Brandeis University. Advisers who helped in setting it up are Dr. Robert Sinshelmer of California Institute of Technology and Dr. Martin D. Kamen of the University of California at San Diego. FSU participants besides Kasha will include Dr. William Rhodes and Dr. Hans Gaffron, both of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics. Discussions will open Monday with a paper by Dr. W.A.H. Rushton, internationally known British scientist, whose research has been in the field of vision, including problems in the molecular basis of vision.

When light strikes the retina, Kasha explained, the visual pigments change it into chemical energy which is transferred as a nerve impulse to the brain. By taking visual pigments into the laboratory, experiments may be made with microsecond flashes of light, enabling scientists to determine through spectra some of the changes in molecular structure occurring.

Dr. Rushton, of the Physiological Laboratory of Trinity College, Cambridge, will speak on the subject, "Flash." Photolysis in Human Vision." Chairman for the daylong Monday session, which will range over the entire subject matter of the conference, is Dr. A.A. Buzzati-Traverso of the International Laboratory of Genetics and Biophysics at Naples, Italy.

A paper by Dr. A. Pirson of the University of Göttingen will deal with problems in responses to light by one-celled plants and Dr. J. Jagger of Oak Ridge National Laboratory will deal with problems in photoreactivation.

Photoreactivation, said Kasha, is illustrated by the revival of visible light of biological specimens, such as bacteria, which have been killed by ultraviolet radiation. Anyone in the sun, Kasha said, would experience skin cancer from ultraviolet radiation of the sun except that other radiation from the sun counteracts this effect and restores the cells.

Another speaker on Monday's program will be Dr. Ronald C. Rustad, formerly of FSU but now of Western Reserve University. His subject will be the delay of cell division by ultraviolet radiation.

Liberal Forum And SAP Will Sponsor Lecture By Papworth

By BOB CORNET
Lambeau Staff Writer

Papworth, secretary of the International sub-committee of the Committee of 100, will speak tomorrow on "Non-Violent World Revolution or War Unending" at a special lecture co-sponsored by Liberal Forum and the Students Act of Peace.

The London visitor's lecture will take place in the Unitarian Chapel at 7:30 p.m.

Papworth is a member of the War Resisters League, the Shaw Society and was imprisoned in 1961 with Bertrand Russell for anti-bomb activities.

Papworth is in the midst of a world peace journey. His ultimate goal in the United States is to reach California where he will work his way to Japan on a steamer.

His immediate destination is Albany, Georgia. There he will join Peace Marchers in the Albany jail.

In an interview, he said that he hoped all FSU students would join him there.

According to Steve Baum, chairman of SAP, the marchers are being held for disobeying a police officer while they were distributing leaflets in an integrated group.

Papworth said that he is in this country as a representative of the Committee of 100. He said that he is here to establish international peace group contacts. "We must forge human links between people."

According to Papworth these contacts, established by mimeographed newsletters, are more useful to the peace movement than mass communication.

He stated that many people think that peace is easy, that you only have to remove war. But, he said, war is a product of our societies. We must change societies to achieve peace.

In comparing his impressions of the United States with Russia, which he visited last year, he said that both people are afraid of war. However, he feels that the American people are neurotically afraid.

Papworth said that the American need for re-armament seems more intense and compulsive. It appears to be dictated by subjective fear. Papworth has been in this country eight weeks speaking to Quaker meetings, high schools and colleges. He is especially interested in the youth of America, who look at the world with fresh eyes.

He said that he wants to make a call to sanity to the young people of America.

Bunte, Wildes To Sing

Two FSU music students will present a voice recital tomorrow in Opperman Music Hall. It will be at 8:15 p.m. and the public is invited. Appearing on the program will be Laurie Bunte, soprano, and Rose Christie Wildes, contralto. Both are students of Miss Betty Jane Grimm. Their accompanist will be Michele Ann Davenport.

Svendsen To Solo With Mississippi Orchestra

Mrs. Hedi Svendsen, student of Elena Nikolaidi of the FSU School of Music, will appear as soloist Sunday with the Meridian, Mississippi Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Vernon Raines, student of the late Ernst von Dohnany.

A 1960 graduate of the School of Music of Converse College in Spartanburg, S.C., Mrs. Svendsen has appeared in several opera productions at FSU. She is probably best remembered for her dramatic portrayal of Magda Sorel in Menotti's "The Consul," produced jointly by the University Theatre and the Opera Guild in March, 1962, and this season for her Susannah in Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah" production by the State Opera Association of Florida. For her appearance in Meridian, Mrs. Svendsen has chosen four arias to sing: "Bel raglio lusinghiero" from "Semiramide" by Rossini, "Mi chiamano Mimì" from Puccini's "La Bohème," "Vissi d'arte" from "Tosca" also by Puccini and the "Habanera" from Bizet's "Carmen."

After obtaining his master's degree, Raines worked for a year as "Chor Repeiteur" at the Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany Opera House.

U.S. Capitalism And Apathy Are Eighth And Ninth Wonders

The phrase, "Seven Wonders of the World," is familiar to all of us and was designed to describe man's greatest creations, as the Pyramids of Egypt, Hanging Gardens of Babylon, "Phidias" statue of Zeus, the Temple of Ephesus, the Tomb of Mausolus, the Colossus of Rhodes, and the Pharos, the light house of Alexandria.

In the context of our modern life, two more wonders of the world may be added to the list. Unlike the others, these aren't made of mortar and brick. Though somewhat intangible, they are of tremendous importance and they have had, and will have, far more effect on the history of the world than all the other wonders put together.

I suggest that the title Eighth Wonder of the World be bestowed on The American Economic System. It deserves a place among the world's wonders because it has allowed those who operate under it a degree of personal freedom never before experienced by organized society in the history of the world. Just think of our multiple choice of freedoms in America: freedom of the press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom to own property, freedom to create and maintain a business, freedom of occupation, and freedom to travel and where to please.

Do these seem ordinary or run-of-the-mill? Think for a moment—in how many other parts of the world are such freedoms granted to the populace, to such an extent? The answer is nowhere and the degree of restriction in other parts of the world is growing greater with every passing year.

People who live under socialism, communism, fascism, dictatorship, or any other kind of controlled, government-owned economy are not permitted this type of personal freedom. Certainly, nowhere are these freedoms granted to the same degree as they are in the United States. Because of this freedom the American people have achieved the greatest measure of economic well-being ever experienced by any nation. Our national income equals that of any ten other nations combined. With only seven per cent of the world's population, we have been producing approximately 50 per cent of all the world's goods.

It has been estimated that the American people have created more wealth during this past 40 years than all generations of mankind has produced since the Garden of Eden. Such a success story deserves to be called the "Eighth Wonder of the World."

What about the Ninth Wonder of the World?

The Ninth Wonder of the World is the lack of appreciation and understanding of the American people for this miracle which has been performed. The wonder is that so many Americans today want to give up this miraculously successful system because they have never bothered to understand how it works. Here we have a system of almost absolute freedom which has brought us unparalleled wealth and success, and yet we find ourselves moving each year toward the economic systems of other countries laboring under systems where personal freedoms are sacrificed in favor of government ownership and government control.

The proof of this is everywhere around us.

In a time of tremendous prosperity we find ourselves, as a nation, perched on the very precipice of insolvency. We have a national debt amounting to more than $7,000 for every family in the U.S. and it is growing larger, not smaller.

This debt comes from a monstrous Federal government which is the world's largest employer and which provides benefits and services for millions of people that should be provided for by other sources. These benefits are paid for by high, confiscatory taxes which kill the incentive of people to earn and invest and save. They are also paid for by high taxes on corporations which are hindered by this taxation from expanding and producing to the limit of their potential. Of course, in the end, the taxes are paid by the consumer.

This is indeed the Ninth Wonder, and a sad wonder it is. Because the people do not understand or appreciate their miraculous personal enterprise economy, they are suffering an increased dependence on government, the very thing which hinders and destroys the success which made this country great, successful beyond the wildest dreams of our forefathers.

Unless we change our ways for historians will look upon this full giving up of our heritage more wonder than all the other actions man has produced since the beginning of civilization.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Time Alone Doesn't Sanctify Ideas

To the Editor:

Conservatives of one stripe or another usually seem to oppose regulation of private property and private business by any agency of government. With various theories of economic individualism and laissez-faire they have opposed labor unions, workmen's compensation, the minimum wage, pure food and drug acts, etc.

Recently conservatives have used laissez-faire ideas against various proposed or existing civil rights measures and some have even questioned the propriety of private groups which attempt to influence the policies of private business. For some reason many conservatives seem to regard long-standing ideas as somehow sanctified by tradition.

If this is so, I would like to bring to the attention of conservatives the concepts presented in one of the "Granger" cases of the nineteenth century, "Munn v. Illinois 94 U.S. 113" (1875), which was concerned with government regulation of private grain elevators.

In a rather reaching decision, Chief Justice Waite of the U.S. Supreme Court announced that:

"When private property is affected with a public interest it ceases to be 'juris privati' only. . . Property does become clothed with a public consequence, and affect the community at large. When, there-

Addresses Petitioner's Critics

To the Editor:

Since you used my idea about leasing or buying the University Inn and integrating it, I feel most qualified to answer your letter. As I have mulled over the plan longer than anyone else, including you, I'm sure that the petitioners will not mind my responding to you for them.

When I first spawned the idea a few months ago, I gave it to some members of the Liberal Forum in secret and they promised to take it under advisement. Secrecy was imperative as the owner of the property will never see to someone who plans to turn around and integrate it. Maybe, after the deal was closed, and it was too late for him to do anything about it; it could have been pulled off. But the mechanics are not important as I have long since discarded the idea and began discussing it publicly in a couple of classes. I rejected it because it is not for the Liberal Forum; there is a philosophical question about means and goals that have the liberals split right down the middle over their present mood. My plan would have only caused another split.

It is, however, perfect for the Young Americans for Freedom or the Operation Information. It is a prime opportunity for them to prove once and for all that it is not the racial issue that has been standing on the right. They'll never get another chance to steal the leftists' lightning. (The thunder is on the right.)

fore, one devotes his property to a use in which the public has an interest, he, in effect, grants to the public an interest in that use, and must submit to be controlled by the public for the common good, to the extent of the interest he has created.

John E. Haynes

If they would do it; it would be a tremendous victory for them and America. Besides most of the rightist heroes are integrationists, and they could make the Liberal Forum look stupid and ineffectual; even more silly than they appeared in their last statement when they encouraged minors to violate any laws and regulations that didn't please them. (What else but glandular impulses could a poor FSU undergraduate use to disclaim when it takes nine experienced lawyers on the nation's highest tribunal to determine what is and what is not constitutional. It may interest the Liberal Forum to know that many regulations in college and the military are decidedly unconstitutional.

At any rate, no matter which group opens the first integrated restaurant here, I gladly make application for the position of manager.

Paul W. Snyder

Vacuum Is Approached

"The first big step toward world leadership in higher technical education came in July, 1963, with the establishment of the School of Engineering Science at FSU," (Flambeau Jan. 23, 1963 and elsewhere). This line can well compete for the eighth wonder of the world in the towering fantasy of its claim. What is clear, however, is that this campus has a writer who has made the big step from hot air to vacuum—possibly in keeping with the spirit of the space era.

Tots To Be On Amateur Hour

The Tallahassee Tumbling Tots will be on television on the Ted Mack Amateur Hour Sunday at 5 p.m. Tumbler who will perform on the program are Vicki Freeman, Laurie Becker, Twinkle Freeman, Mary Ann Beaudoin, and Kendall Raker. Anyone who wants to vote for the tumbler as the most talented on the program may send a postcard to Ted Mack Box 191, Radio City, New York.

The Tallahassee Tumbling Tots is a gymnastic program for the children of Tallahassee. The Tots are known the world over. They have been featured in national magazines, movies, and TV shows, including Walt Disney's "Mickey Mouse Club." They also appear as guest performers for the annual FSU Gymnastics productions. The Tots travel all over the United States to attend gymnastic meets, put on clinics, and do an average of 50 shows a year. In 1962 four Tots traveled to Dallas, Texas, to do exhibition work in the National Gymnastic Meet.

One of the tumbler, Vicki Freeman, holds all the state records here, winning many first place trophies in Florida State Gymnastic Meets.

The Tumbling Tots were organized in 1949 by Dr. Hartley Price of FSU. In 1959 they were taken over by the City Recreation Department. The present director of the program is Bob May, a graduate student in recreation at FSU.

There are currently over 600 tumbler in the Tots, making the group the largest number of children enrolled in tumbling at any one place in the United States.

The program is taught by college students who are the gymnastic team at FSU. There are 12 teachers to handle the large group.

There are four main objectives of the Tumbling Tots program. It offers a safe, well-organized recreation program for the children. It teaches all aspects of acceptable social behavior. Gymnastic skills are emphasized and last but not least, the program stresses physical fitness.

45 DIFFERENT MODELS OF CARS

Why one stop at your Chevrolet dealer's is like having your own private auto show

And if we had room here we could go on and list all the engines Chevrolet offers, ranging up to an extra-cost 425-hp V8 in the big Chevrolet. And all the different transmissions. And the umpteen different exterior and interior color choices. And the models with bucket seats and those without. And the hundreds of different accessories, including the new extra-cost AM-FM radio. But that's best left to your Chevrolet dealer. That and exactly how reasonable the price can be for you to be able to enjoy so much car.

Bulletin

Smoke from faulty wiring in a vending machine in the recreation room at Bryan Hall brought firemen running at 7:45 p.m. last night. No fire was discovered. Damage was confined to the machine and the immediate vicinity.

Personnel Form Praises

The Vice-President, Frank Ryll, Women's Vice-President Clyde Ryll, both praised the Personnel Form today as a "needed improvement" in Student Government.

The form may now be picked up at the information desk on the first floor of Longmire and will shortly be distributed to all living areas. Ryll explained, "because of the distribution of this form, more students of campus will have an opportunity to be represented in Student Government."

Ryll added, "It would improve government relations because it would open many doors to the people who now find them closed." Ryll said that the forms turned in by the students in the Student Government office. This file will be used to make an appointment needs to be made.

In connection with Senate, Ryll decided, "This form will make it easier for the Elections and Appointments Committee of Senate to make appointments."

Changes In Property Idea Discussed

By LOUISE RAUSCHERT
Flambeau Feature Writer

"Ideas about private property have undergone change since 1776," stated Howard K. Story in his American Studies Lecture entitled "The American As A Man of Property."

Many foreigners today, in viewing the modern American, regard him solely as a lover of money. They would say that his chief occupation is the pursuit of money.

This interest in wealth stems from the institution of private property. Indeed, most Americans do advocate private property, and those who would advocate collectivism are marginal, peripheral cases.

The question arises: Have Americans always had the same views about private property? The answer, according to Story, is definitely not.

In 1776, the highest American values, as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, were not economic values, but humane and moral values. Greatest emphasis was placed on life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Equality was the key word.

Slightly below the humane, self-justifying values, came instrumental values of religious tolerance and freedom of speech. Then came the values of property rights, which were regarded as less important than the self-justifying and instrumental rights.

Our great concern for private property rights is very far from the Jeffersonian emphasis on moral values in the Declaration of Independence. According to Story, "this transformation was not the result of deliberate conspiracy and fraud," but it began early, took place slowly, and has never been specifically solved.

This change in attitudes about property was first apparent in the middle-class Puritan after the Revolutionary War.

The general thesis is that the transformation took place during the age of enterprise, the period roughly between the Civil War and the New Freedom. The period is characterized by expansion, materialistic ideas, the principle of laissez faire, and the theme of rags to riches.

Three men helped to formulate our modern ideas of property. William Graham Sumner set forth the ideas that private property is right and essential, and the good man seeks to promote his own well being.

Stephen Field, a Supreme Court Justice in the same period, stated that individual freedom was economic freedom, and he defended private property on a moral and religious basis.

Andrew Carnegie reconciled capitalism with moral values through his theory of trusteeship. One should not subordinate his interests to the good of the welfare, but he should spend his surplus money to benefit the public, and invest the remainder to likewise benefit the public. Trusteeship thus justifies a devotion to money.

In 1776 democracy and human welfare were ends of men's striving and property rights were the means, but today property rights have become an absolute end. Many people today fail to realize that private property has not always been an end in itself. This theory of property rights is useful in contribution to the understanding of current problems, such as that of civil rights. According to Story, "it becomes clear that the justification for equal civil rights is grounded in the Declaration of Independence," so civil rights leaders are not radicals, but they are conservatives.

Meeting

"World Pressures on American Foreign Policy," written by eight political scientists who lectured in FSU's Government Lecture series last year, has just been published by Praeger Hall.

Dr. Marian D. Irish, professor of government at FSU, said the book consists of lectures delivered last year on the Common Market, the Soviet challenge in Latin America, and other world problems.

In the introduction of the book, Irish said the lectures "search the outer limits of American foreign policy." All the speakers were asked, she said, to give some consideration to this question: "What ideologies, forces, events and persons over which the United States has no jurisdiction are nonetheless influential in determining the role of the United States in changing world scenes?"

GREEK GIRL

OF THE WEEK

The Delta Chi Greek Girl for this week is Miss Edith Spooner, sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi. Miss Spooner is a sophomore majoring in government. She is vice president of her sorority, is active in sophomore council and Village Vamps, and is on the Dean's List. Her hobbies include tennis and listening to Broadway music. Miss Spooner hopes to work for the government in the C.I.A., after completing a master's degree.

Gamma Sigma Sigma Becomes National Sorority

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER

"The probationary chapter of Gamma Sigma Sigma, national service sorority, received notification that it has been removed from probation status by the national board," announced local chapter President Ann Straughn today.

Gamma Sigma Sigma, the former Circle K-ettes, was formed over a year ago and applied for recognition by the national organization. As standard procedure the FSU chapter was placed on one year probation.

The National Vice President, Mrs. Mary Lou Hayden, will be on campus Feb. 22 to conduct the formal installation service. The private ceremony will be followed by a reception honoring the national vice president, the FSU administration, faculty and friends.

The new Alpha Kappa chapter serves on campus as campus movie ushers, aides in the infirmary, Circus ushers, campus baby-sitting, hostesses for various campus activities and for numerous other service projects such as Heart Fund, etc.

The purpose of the sorority is to bring university and college women together in service to humanity. The newly elected officers are President, Ann Straughn, First Vice President, Sany Hoff, Second Vice President, Ann Roth, Recording Secretary, Harriet McGill, Alumni Secretary, Ellen Floyd, Corresponding Secretary, Anna Bennett, Historian Lynn Lepaige, Chaplin, Pat Lepaige, and Parliamentarian, Pat Mendes. If there is any individual or group who needs Gamma Sigma assistance in areas of service, they may contact Ann Straughn in Lands or Ann Roth in Florida.

FSU To Host Conferences

FSU will host the meeting of the Industrial Arts Teachers of District 1 of the Florida Industrial Arts Association today and tomorrow.

Registration took place at 8:30 a.m. this morning in the Industrial Arts Laboratory of the Education Building. During the day the conference will visit Leon County schools, the Junior Museum and Search.

Friday night Dr. Edwin Kurth, assistant director of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education of the State Department of Education, will present "New Developments and Challenges for Industrial Arts" at a dinner at the Reservation.

Saturday's program will begin at the Reservation with a breakfast sponsored by Epistion Pi Tau. This will be followed by an exhibition of tools, materials, and textbooks in the Industrial Arts Laboratory at the University.

After the exhibit a business meeting of the FIAA will be held in the Education Lecture Hall.

Mr. Des Oliver from Leon High School and Dr. Hugh Hinely, FSU are coordinating arrangements for the conference.

11 Initiated By Welfare Group

Phi Alpha is the national social welfare honorary society which was founded at FSU in 1958, by Dr. Raymond Bellamy, then a professor in the Sociology Dept.

Since that time the society has become a national organization and includes chapters on campuses throughout the United States.

Initiation of new members of Phi Alpha was held Jan. 28 in the Clubroom of Longmire. Honorary members attending were Dr. Bellamy, who delivered a short address to the new members, and Professor Mervel M. Foeckler, Graduate Professor in Social Welfare, who also spoke to the new members.

The 11 initiates were Connie Byrd, James Farrington, Jeffrey Fisher, Janice Flournoy, Bob Fraser, Marie Hamilton, Flo Ann Horne, Joan Kohne, Winifred Polinder, Mary Lou Sewell, Jo Vairline.

Membership is by invitation to juniors with a 2.5 overall scholastic average, and a 3.0 average in all Social Welfare course work with a minimum of 12 hours. Initiation is held each trimester for those individuals who qualify for membership.

Any student desiring further information about Phi Alpha may inquire at the Dept. of Social Welfare.

French Society Adds Members

The Florida State University chapter of Pi Delta Pi, national French honorary, initiated 13 undergraduate and four graduate students as members this week.

Mrs. Azzura B. Gliven, assistant professor of modern languages and chapter adviser, announced the new members.

New undergraduate members are Mary K. Jenne, Kenneth Strickler, Pedro Campa (in absentia), John N. Strange, Jana D. Mcduley, (in absentia), Sheila A. Appleby, Claire Collet, Elinor Owen, Susan Ulson, Karen Barnes, Ann E. Moreland, Joyce Richman.

Graduates initiated were Hazel Beazley, Judson Spence, William Leith, Rebecca LaBelle.

Miami Mayor To Speak Here

Robert King High, Mayor of Miami and Democratic candidate for Governor, will address the FSU student body Tuesday night in Longmire auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

Mayor High's speech will be the first in a series of appearances of Florida's gubernatorial candidates held under the sponsorship of the Young Democrats Club of FSU.

All FSU students, as well as the general public, may attend. There will be an opportunity to question Mayor High on his candidacy after his talk.

Undeclared Tankers Wrestle Saurians

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

Placing their undefeated record squarely on the line, the Tribe Swimming team leaves at 8:30 tomorrow morning for a return match with the Florida Gators at 2:30 p.m. in Gainesville. FSU is the only team to have tamed the UF tankers, swamping the visitors 29 in January.

Every common opponent that the intra-state rivals have met has fallen to the Seminoles by a larger margin. On a recent trip to North Carolina, Florida squeaked by the Tar-Heels, considered the best team in the East, 48-47. The next day, Coach Jim Saults' Tribe-men turned in an impressive 60-35 win.

The Gators will be led by their All-American butterfly artist, Jerry Livingston, who is also the fastest man in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle. Livingston does the 200 butterfly in 2:01, and the 100 yard 'fly in 0:52 seconds.

The number two Gator, also hall-ing from Jacksonville, is Ray Whitehouse, who averages a 2:18 200 butterfly and does the 200 individual medley in 2:04.5. Coach King backs Whitehouse up in the individual medley, with a top time of 2:08.

Sandy Chandler is the top Gator in the 100 yard breaststroke, doing 1:03.9. Dick Farwell is the top stroker, who can be counted on to do 2:08 in the 200 yard backstroke.

The Seminoles, 6-0 on the year in the top ten swim teams in the country, will be counting on a group of sophomores to turn out from the determined Gators.

Malmen Leads Freshman Cagers

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's Freshman Basketball team will hit the road this weekend for three games. Last night the team faced Gulf Coast Junior College of Panama City. Tonight they will face a team from Pensacola Navy Yard, and Saturday night they will take on the Pensacola Junior College Pirates.

The Frosh hold a 2-0 record against this competition defeating both Gulf Coast and Pensacola at home. Gulf Coast fell 72-71, and the Pirates were beaten 89-73.

Ron Malmen continues to lead the Baby Seminoles in scoring and rebounding. He has scored 20 points in 12 games, and pulled down 100 rebounds, for 21.4 points and 8.3 rebounds a game.

Ken Doyle and Dick Danford show in both compartments, Doyle averaging 13.6 points and 7.3 rebounds, and Danford is hitting 10.3 points and 6.2 rebounds a game, they account for 23.9 percent of the team's scoring.

John Rogers leads in field percentage, hitting on 62.4. Joe Pace and Dick Danford follow at 60% and 56% respectively. Bill Doyle and Ken Doyle are both about 50%. Bill Glenn leads in foul shooting a red-hot 78%. Danford is with 71%, and Lee Canter has 70%. Bob Nelson has scored on and Moe Bloodworth and Brian Murphy have 50%.

After the road trip this week the Baby Seminoles finish this season with home games against Pensacola University and Baldwin Agricultural College.

Immediate Stadium Expansion Approved By Board of Control

By CAROLYN CHRISTENSEN

Immediate expansion of the FSU Campbell Stadium was approved by the State Board of Control Friday, with the current seating capacity of 24,000 to be increased to some 37,000 seats.

Although the final OK must come BOC decision assured that this year's FSU-Florida game will be played in Tallahassee. Scheduling the game here had depended on whether the stadium was to be expanded to at least 35,000 seats.

In January, the BOC and the Budget Commission had authorized the release of $19,000 for planning the addition. The actual number of seats will depend on the plans now being completed.

Bids for the expansion will be opened on March 26. It is hoped that construction will begin immediately, to be completed September 15, three weeks before FSU's first home game with New Mexico State.

The approved $550,000 fund for the stadium is non-state revenue, a self-generating surplus earmarked for stadium expansion in the FSU 1962-63 budget. Of FSU had not earmarked these funds, they would have reverted to the state.

President Gordon Blackwell reported that a record number of nearly 5,200 season tickets for the Seminole home games have already been sold. Only 2,000 were sold in 1963, Blackwell said. "We have given people an opportunity to sign applications for season tickets, and within a period of one month and with the tickets not yet printed, they responded with the best kind of evidence of support we could have."

The establishment of an Athletic and Recreational Facility Improvement Fund was also given BOC approval.

Fashion Day Plans Tenth Anniversary

Fashion Day at FSU celebrates its tenth anniversary Thursday, with a gala program of guest lectures and the traditional student fashion show.

Beginning at 9:25 a.m. in the Longmire Auditorium, Fashion Day will feature lectures by four distinguished representatives of the fashion world — Belle Bernann, Mondessa Connor, Martha Jungerman, and Virginia Pope.

The day long program is open to the general public and is free of charge. It includes opportunities for discussion groups to meet with visiting experts between 3 and 4 p.m. The all-student produced fashion show begins at 4 p.m., and is followed by a reception tea.

Fashions to be modeled in the show have been designed and made by Fashion Institute students in their clothing and textile courses, with models drawn from the student association, Fashion, Incorporated.

Key speakers for the 1964 program are from Miami and New York, and their subjects range from color coordination to advertising, with emphasis on fashion's force as an industry in the nation, and particularly in Florida.

Mike DeVane found the Personnel Bureau a "...management tool, too necessary for any organization to do without, I find it difficult to comprehend the idea of a business organization of the size and magnitude of the Student Government, (and it is a business) functioning as long as it has, without such a system."

DeVane also said, "I would like to see in addition to the personnel information form, an organization chart system developed, which would predict, to a reasonable degree of accuracy the future vacancies. This would have to be based on past records of dismissal, voluntary quits and normal graduation turnover. To me, this should go hand-in-hand with the personnel form."

To further the usefulness of these forms, Taylor mentioned, "I would like to suggest that forms be sent to the student councils and junior colleges in Florida and let qualified students know that they are welcomed and encouraged to work in student government if they attend FSU."

Now that the three candidates for Student Body President have agreed that the file be made from the Personnel Forms should be used consistently for appointments, the students can be sure that if he applies for a position, he will be considered for an appointment.

While the first appointment may be relatively small, if the student works enthusiastically, he should soon be getting better positions.

The spots system has been used extensively in the past — partly out of necessity because of the lack of a good list of interested students. This new method of a file of all interested and qualified students will be readily accessible to the president and other student government officers. This will leave no excuse for the "spots system."

Sig Ep Contest

Presidential Candidates Give Views On Government Information Forms

Since the Personnel Bureau has been established, the outlook on government information forms has changed.

After the forthcoming elections, the new student body president will have to make many appointments to a wide variety of positions. To aid choosing capable and interested students to fill these positions, the Personnel Bureau has recently sent out information forms to all campus living areas.

Many students may fill out one of these forms and turn it in to the main desk on the first floor of Longmire. Student Government officials will then be able to use a file of these forms for the appointments which need to be made.

The three candidates for Student Body President, Mike DeVane, Jim Taylor and John Jones expressed their views concerning appointments made with the help of the personnel file.

John Jones said, "I would like to fully endorse the recent establishment of the Personnel Bureau under the Secretary of Internal Affairs. I feel that the information obtained through this bureau will aid greatly in the selection of qualified and enthusiastic persons for Student Government work."

John added, "I also feel that it will help in giving more students an equal opportunity of working in Student Government. (and) aid in the removal of the barrier between Student Government and the Student Body; therefore, returning Student Government to the students."

Jim Taylor remarked on the new bureau by saying that he desired to "...represent all of the students, as opposed to any interest groups. Therefore, I endorse the Personnel Bureau one hundred percent."

Taylor also promised that he would "...appoint only those students who are qualified for the particular positions they apply for. ...I will use the facilities of the Personnel Bureau first and foremost. In all of my appointments, rather than the 'who-you-know' method which is now being used,"

GENESYS Plans Unkayed By BOC

The central educational facility of the U of F's Graduate Engineering Extension System—Project GENESYS—was given approval to locate inside the Cape Kennedy Missile Test Center at the Board of Control meeting Friday.

The board agreed to build the $540,000 facility just inside the south gate of the missile test complex.

Two additional sites, to act as satellites to the main facility, were in the Orlando Central Industrial Park area near the Martin Co., and at the south of Mainland High School, Daytona Beach.

Closed circuit television will connect the facilities, equipped with a two-way feature to enable students to communicate with the teacher. The central facility will in turn be connected to the University Engineering School in Gainesville. Brig. Gen. Harry J. Sands, Jr., commander of the Air Force Test Center at the Cape, said that he was "pleased" that the board has approved the GENESYS facility at the Cape.

"This project will mark a major step forward in providing a central educational facility for those involved in key national space programs," Sands said.

"Do you know that FSU has a radio station, WFSU-FM, operating on campus with studios in the bottom of the music building?"

According to "Flambeau" surveys, the answer to that question and the corresponding, "If so, do you listen to WFSU-FM?" revealed that not only did most students not know of the existence of such a station but that the majority of those who did know did not listen.

There is something odd about a situation where the university cannot find enough money to properly equip a new student union, build new classrooms, and provide much needed living space for new students and yet can support a nonprofit radio station with power enough to reach only the Tallahassee area and one which is not listened to by a large majority of the campus population.

There is no market in the Tallahassee area for such a station and no demand is going to be created for one simply by making such broadcasts.

By talking to several former and present announcers and after listening to a straight week of WFSU-FM programming, we have come to the conclusion that the programs are chosen by the station director and her assistants solely because these individuals happen to like certain kinds of music and not other varieties.

As far as we can see, there is no excuse for this kind of policy to continue. While it might be nice for a benevolent philanthropist to run a "cultural forum of the air" appealing to only the most genteel and sophisticated, this cannot be the case for our radio station. There is, of course, room for the classical and educational but there is also room for the more entertaining.

We don't advocate rock-and-roll, but we do believe that programs of quiet, relaxing study music, sports specials, folksinging and the like could be presented without endangering the station's or the University's reputation or standards.

We also believe that no University information media should be run on the mere whim of a single individual or a small group of directors. There is no excuse for a campus operated station not pleasing the students and faculty of the University.

Let us remember where our public is, WFSU-FM, and provide entertainment and information that this public will enjoy.

Conservatives Lack Rationality

The extreme element of the conservative movement in the U.S. has long been infamous for their extreme accusations and dogmatic beliefs. This is to be regretted for many reasons. Perhaps the two most obvious are the harm done to innocent individuals who come under their wrath and the harm that is done to the legitimate conservative movement.

The conservatives have a great deal to offer the nation, but they lose much of their prestige because of their association with the extreme element. Senator Kuchel, R-Calif., was among the first to nationally denounce the harm of the unfounded statements some of these extremists were making.

Senator Goldwater feels that the trouble with the John Birch Society is Robert Welch and not the membership. It appears to me that Robert Welch is a personification of the JBS, but Goldwater probably doesn't want to antagonize his "grass-root support."

I have come to the conclusion that these extreme groups must be sincere and believe what they repeat although it is hard to comprehend why. The contention of this column is that these people could be more respected if they were to become more rational.

One of the first of these groups that has shown some enlightenment in this direction is the program of "Lifetime" by H. L. Hunt of Texas. "Lifetime" several weeks ago expressed the opinion that it was desirable to label someone as a pro-communist, dupe, etc., if he disagreed with the "American way."

For example, they said that someone believes in big government, it is because they are easily misled by the "American way," (1) idealistic, or (2) bureaucratically power hungry, or (3) misinformed. It is certainly obvious that it is to their advantage to take issue rather than character assassination.

If the extreme-right is moving toward this more sophisticated type "reasoning," it is a welcome change. I personally have little hope for such groups as the JBS to reform in the foreseeable future. "Lifetime" is the leader, and I hope others will follow. Surely if liberals would much prefer to be idealistic or misinformed rather than pro-communist!

Readings Suggested

To the Editor:

I should like to suggest the following additional readings to those people who read Thomas Riggins' article, "U.S. Should Recognize Chairman," in the Wednesday, February 5, 1964, "Flambeau."

1. "This is China: Portrait of a Nation" by Gerald F. Windfield in "The New York Times" magazine, January 2, 1949. The author was lecturer and head of Biology at Chee-Loo University in Tsinan.
2. "China's Basic Problems" by Gerald F. Windfield.
3. Department of State Publication 3608, "A Summary of American-Chinese Relations."

4. "Society Policies in Asia" by H. H. Fisher.

5. "Profilers of Red China" by A. D. Barnett.

6. "Soviet Policy in Eastern Europe" by C. E. Black.

7. "The No-Man's Land of Asia" by Christopher Rand.

8. Any good text on world economics and the economic defense of the United States.

My plea to the readers is to read, to understand, and to make up their own minds.

Southerner Is Congratulated On Civil Rights Opinion Shift

To the Editor:

Mr. Turner, in his article of Tues., Feb. 10, once again communicates the fallacious arguments which have placed him, fortunately, in an ever-growing minority.

I congratulate the South on what I feel is a noticeable shift in the average man's opinion. Namely, that segregation is morally wrong. The question now is an argument over how to accomplish desegregation of voting facilities, restaurants, movies, stores etc. in the best possible manner.

The sensible man does not argue over whether the Negro should be treated as a United States citizen or, as Mr. Turner does, whether negro is correctly spelled with a small "n."

Rather, realizing that the negro is a citizen and that desegregation is here to stay, the logical southerner wants to know when and under what means.

I am glad that Mr. Turner was able to state his delusions to the public so that we can all see how recklessly wrong they are. His arguments are so illogical, distorted and nonsensical they are better left alone as an epitaph to a fast fading hypocrisy.

UGLY MAN CONTEST

sponsored by APO is again coming to FSU this year. Entries must be turned in before Wednesday. Blanks may be obtained by organizations in APO office in Longmire. Above is ugly man Bill Coleman, last year's winner from Kellum Hall.

Campaigns Begin Tomorrow

primary elections will begin today, Feb. 25, with the final runoff needed, on the following Friday.

Body officers will be elected along with three members of the Board of Publications. The campaigning will start at 5 p.m. tomorrow. No literature or campaign material will occupy space at this time. Bulletin boards will be put up on campus for campaigning purposes. The election will be located in back of the Seminole Club, the Student Center, the Library, Smith Hall, and Bryan Hall.

The Sophomore Council and the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity will provide official poll workers. Voters must present their ID cards, and they will be given an IBM ballot, instruction sheet and an IBM pencil. Voters may also ask for a write-in ballot.

After the voter has marked his ballot in private, he must place it in the ballot box, and return his pencil and instruction sheet.

Student Lectures Start Today

Today through Friday the Call Street Church of Christ will conduct the second annual Student Lecture series at 525 W. Call Street.

The theme of the lecture series is "Where Do We Go From Here?" Five experienced speakers from Florida, Alabama, and Georgia will lecture beginning at 7 p.m. nightly, except on Wednesday when the time will be 7:30 p.m.

Tonight, Mr. Sam Hill, B.D., minister and director of a Christian student program at the University of Auburn, will speak on "Portable Standards."

Tuesday, "The Quest for Certainties" will be discussed by Mr. Bob Bryson.

Wednesday, Mr. Gordon Teffteller, a minister who recently received his M.A. from Duke University in history and religion, will lecture on

"Ageless Axioms for Modern Guidance."

Thursday, a minister and principal of Georgia Christian School, Mr. Howard Wakefield, M.A., will speak on "Preparation For The Future." Friday evening, the highlight speaker, Mr. Paul Harmon, minister-junior counselor to Escambia County, will lecture on "Tomorrow's Christian Today."

Today

Men's Senate will meet in 209 Longmire at 4:15 p.m.

"The Oxygen Fluorides" will be discussed by Peter Hoberman at the Inorganic Chemistry Seminar in 201 Science at 4 p.m.

The Judicial Rules Committee will meet in the Longmire Club Room at 4:15 p.m.

The American Association of University Professors will meet in the Library Lecture Hall at 8 p.m.

Karl To Speak

Representative Fred Karl, candidate for Governor, will be on the FSU campus tomorrow afternoon at a reception held in the large lounge of Longmire at 3 p.m. to meet and talk to all students and faculty. Selected by the press in 1959, 1961 and 1963 as one of ten most outstanding legislators, Karl has served as representative from Volusia County for three terms. He was also voted by fellow legislators as one of top three members of both legislative bodies in 1963.

Announcements

Applications for Feature Girl in the next issue of Smoke Signals are now being accepted. Each entrant must submit two photographs—one facial shot and the other full-length. If these photographs are to be returned, a self-addressed stamped envelope must be attached.

The Leon County Young Republicans at FSU will present a film entitled "Oxford Incident" tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Clubroom of Longmire.

Gators Fail In Upset Attempt, Lose 51-44

By JAMES L. MYERS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Taking revenge for last year's double loss, Florida State's swimmers splashed their way to their second dual meet victory of the year over the University of Florida.

An inspired Seminole team could and would not be stopped as they downed the Gators 51-44 to finish the season with an unblemished record of 9-0.

Next week, Coach Bim Saults' team travels to Athens, Georgia, for the Southeastern Collegiate Championships. Other teams will include Florida, Miami, Georgia and a few Carolina schools.

Credit for the win goes to the team. Even more important it goes to the coach who has finished his fifth perfect season in 16 years at FSU.

After the first two events, it was pretty well decided that FSU tankers were going to take another victory from the SEC title holder.

The fast paced 400 yard medley relay of Acosta, Kruger, Abbott, and Blount set a new pool record with a winning time of 3:45.1. Mike Blount freestyle specialist and anchor man, Sophomore Jim Mauldin brought home the bacon in the 200 yard freestyle. The Seminoles skunked the Gators in this event as Dayton finished second. The score after the first two events was 15-1.

Florida's Dick Farwell gave the Gator fans something to cheer for as he won the 50 yard freestyle. Charlie Robertson of FSU finished second while two time All-American Jerry Livingston, Gator Captain, finished third.

Dick Abbott, already having been on the winning Medley Relay, showed the great Seminole desire to win as he took first in the 200 yard Individual Medley. The score at this phase was 23-11.

Gator diver Price, who has never beaten an FSU diver, took the diving event while Allen and Profumo of FSU finished 2-3 respectively.

However, on a later check, a mathematical error was found which changed the diving order and the final score. It was discovered that Allen was first and Profumo was second with 2-3 respectively.

In the 200 yard butterfly, Whitehouse and Harman of Florida took 1-2 respectively. Not to be outdone though, Seminoles' Mauldin and Blount followed up with a 1-2 in the 100 yard freestyle.

Haibert of Florida upset Acosta in the 220 back-stroke. In the 500 freestyle Gators' Corbin pulled another upset over FSU's Dayton. Corbin set a new pool record with a time of 5:17.4.

FSU veterans Doug Kruger and Dick Green pulled off a double victory to win the meet for the Tribe. The last event was not necessary as FSU had already won.

Tech Wins 77-73 Overtime Thriller

Despite the absence of two of its top players, Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets, second-ranked in the SEC, won an overtime thriller from a fired-up band of Seminole roundballers, 77-74 Saturday night.

The Jackets won their second consecutive overtime triumph, having upset nationally ranked Vanderbilt 75-71 last week, on the strength of a brilliant performance by strapping Jim Caldwell, a 6-10 center who led the game scoring with 33 points and 20 rebounds. The two injured Jackets, R.D. Craddock and Ron Scharf were injured in the Vanderbilt upset.

The Seminoles, who have lost 12 of 12 road games, have a 9-12 record while Tech owns a 16-6 mark. The game was the first overtime contest for the Tribesmen this season. The underdog Seminole five rushed into an early command and led until 5:17 was left in the first half, when Tech's John Herbert scored in a free throw to push the Engineers out into a 29-27 budge. The lead switched hands seven times in the rest of the first half. With 45 seconds on the clock left, intermission, Tech's Bill Edson hit jumper and teammate Bill Nigg contributed a charity toss to push the hosts out into a 38-33 margin.

Tribe Captain Pete Rogers put in a basket in the first five seconds to pull the Tribe to within 38-35 after buzzer sounded. 6-6 center Gary Schull led the Tribe scoring in the initial stanza with a 12 point performance, which was the top scoring at that point.

Caldwell led the Jackets into the nip-and-tuck second half with two consecutive field goals. The Seminoles' came back on a fast-break layup by Bobby Lovell with 10:09 left for a 50-49 FSU lead.

From this point on, neither team was able to maintain a lead longer than a minute. A Jerry Shirley jumper with 1:25 left gave FSU its last lead of the game at 69-67 for a Caldwell 20-footer tied the score at the end of regulation play.

Four Caldwell points and two throws by teammate Nigg of Shirley connection to give the Tribe a 75-71 lead with a little more time remaining in the overtime. With 30 seconds to go, Tech dropped one in from close to the Tribe hopes. A traveling against Spooner of Tech gave Seminoles the ball under the basket with 10 seconds remaining in the overtime.

When Shirley missed from the key, Tech's Herbert went downcourt and layed it in the scoring. The Seminoles had four more double figures—Rogers with Shirley with 14, Nigg with 13, Schull with the 12 he got in the first half.

The Tribesmen connected on 78 field goal attempts for 43.1 percent, while the Jackets could manage only 41.1 percent.

The last home game for FSU was against Jacksonville University.

Gymnasts Top UF 77-51 In Gainesville

The FSU gymnastic team remained unbeaten as they swept past the University of Florida 77-51 in Gainesville Saturday.

Jon Culbertson led the Seminoles with six first places for a total of 36 points. Culbertson turned in top performances in the rope climb, parallel bars, long horse, high bar, side horse and still rings events.

Number two man for the Tribes was Bob Gramling with 13 1/2 points.

Gramling took a first in tumbling. The top Gator was Bob Harwood with 18 points.

Next Saturday the Tribe gymnasts travel to Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech. The next home meet will be with Dade Junior College in Tully Gym on February 27.

Frosh Five To Meet A - B

Abraham Baldwin Junior College of Tifton, Georgia, will have a rematch tonight with the Freshman Basketball team who are 8-6 on the season.

The visitors, who won the earlier game 83-73 on January 20, are the top-ranked Junior College team in Georgia. They are led by 6-4 Forward Owendell McSwain, who was selected the most valuable player in the state last year. McSwain led the JC team against the Baby Seminoles with 24 points in the first meeting.

The contest, which gets underway at 7:45 p.m. will be the next to the last for Coach Lake Kelly's Freshmen, who will wrap up their season with a preliminary to the Varsity game Saturday night against the Jacksonville University freshmen.

The Frosh returned home Sunday after beating Gulf Coast JC Thursday night and losing to Pensacola JC Saturday night.

Kappa Sigs Top Wrestlers

Winning the fraternity wrestling matches were the Kappa Sigma followed by Theta Chi and Phi Delta Theta. For the independents were the Grapplers, Bud's 124, and BSU. There will be a Unit Manager's meeting tomorrow in room 303 in the Women's Gym at 4 p.m. Any organization wishing to participate in the Fourth Sports Season must have a representative present. Elections of next year's officers will take place at this meeting. Swimming, softball and deck tennis will be offered this season.

Honor Week Proclaims New Code of Honor and Chief Justice Red

Chief Justice Kelly Reid today proclaimed this week as Honor Week. During this period of time, members of the Honor Bureau, the administrative branch of the Honor System, and their duly appointed representatives, will begin re-acquainting members of the University community with the revised Academic Honor Code," said Justice Reid.

During the forthcoming campus elections, the new code will be voted upon by the student body. Consequently, each of you will have the opportunity to read the new code and then make a decision in the form of a vote for its acceptance or rejection," he added.

"I heartily encourage each of you that may be interested in furthering the Honor System to participate in this week's educative program, whether it be by reading the brochure or by participating in discussion seminars.

"As the Chief Justice, I recognize that it is my responsibility to explain to you the nature of the provisions of the new code and the philosophy behind them as compared with the antiquated code," Reid commented.

The new code has been adopted by both the student and faculty senates. The previous code had been endorsed only by the Student Senate.

The Code of Academic Honor has now been finally clarified. Many students felt as though these were three or four pledges to remember, thus taking away the effect of the entire purpose of the code.

"Although all previous pledges were basically the same, in that they required a dual responsibility, the revised pledge sets forth, in no uncertain terms, the exact responsibilities," Reid said.

"Thus, if this new pledge is adopted, the pledge, 'I pledge myself to uphold the highest standards of academic honesty in my own work, and I refuse to tolerate any academic dishonesty on the part of any other person,' will be seen in every classroom on campus.

"The other major changes occur in Sections 3, 4 and 5: Student; Faculty and Court Responsibility. Each outlines in a specific and precise manner that is expected from these three elements. However, I would like to expound on court responsibility.

"Incorporated within this category, you will find the essence of the realistically feasible philosophy which the Honor Committee finally adopted. Noting the nature of the working of paragraphs B,C and D, 'The committee realizes that the system is in its genesis and that a reasonable comparison must be made with the existing laws of our society, and so they have prescribed relative penalties for the number of instances in which academic dishonesty is violated by any one student," stressed Reid.

"Thus, unless the case is a most flagrant violation of the code, a student, who for the first time is found guilty of academic dishonesty may be given sanctions less than suspension or expulsion. This concession is mandatory for the time being, until the principles of the system, which must be adopted by each student, become so forceful that no longer would any student tolerate the rule of relative sanction.

"Many students feel that the entire Honor Code, and the procedure are a farce, and merely soft and just at its existence. There must be a more realistic, to this ill-founded thought concept," maintained Reid.

"The Honor Court does function; trials are held; and the Court is composed of given sanctions less than suspension or expulsion. But more than this, the eight junior and senior men and women are perpetually working on cases, creating innovations on the decision — making power and adherence to precedent, and ultimately, expounding on the improvement of court philosophy which may be visibly sighted upon reading the culmination of their efforts: the revision of the Academic Honor

Honor Code Article 5 Revised

The revision of the Academic Honor Code under the sixteenth Student Senate Bill, Number Nine, entitled "Act Establishing the Revision of the FSU Academic Honor Code."

The bill calls for the revision of Article V (Academic Honor System) to read:

Section 1. Code of Academic Honor. The Academic Honor System of FSU is based on the premise that each student has the dual responsibility (1) to uphold the highest standards of academic honesty in his own work, and (2) to refuse to tolerate academic dishonesty on the part of any other person. Its purpose is to minimize academic dishonesty in the university community and to bear a high sense of honor and moral responsibility on the part of students.

Section 2. Academic Dishonesty Defined.

A. During examinations, academic dishonesty shall include referring to reference material not specifically endorsed by the instructor. It shall also include receiving written or oral information from a fellow student.

B. In the instance of papers written outside class, academic dishonesty shall include plagiarism. Plagiarism is the purpose of any course by the instructor involved. Unless it shall be otherwise defined, plagiarism shall include failure to use quotation marks, to indicate the source of any material quoted, or to acknowledge any material quoted. Plagiarism shall also include paraphrasing a specific passage from a specific source without indicating accurately that the source is. Plagiarism shall also include letting another person compose or rewrite a student's written assignment.

C. Academic dishonesty shall include meeting, buying, selling or exchanging any copy of any examination before it shall have been administered.

D. A student who shall have assisted in the form of dishonesty mentioned above shall be considered equally guilty as the student who accepts such assistance.

E. A student who shall possess strong evidence that one of the offenses listed above has been committed and who does not report such evidence shall be considered guilty of academic dishonesty.

Section 3. Student Responsibility.

A. Each student shall be responsible for abiding by the Academic Honor Code at all times. In the classroom, this shall apply whether or not a faculty member is present. At the conclusion of each examination, each student shall sign pledge that he has neither given aid nor received it from any unauthorized source during the examination.

B. Any student who commits an act of academic dishonesty is expected to report himself to the professor of the course involved or to the Chief Justice of the Honor Court.

C. Any student who shall observe or learn of another student's violation of the Academic Honor Code

(1) may request the student to report himself to the Chief Justice or to the teacher of the course involved; this is not done, (2) shall report, within twenty-four hours, to the Chief Justice of the Honor Court, or to the teacher of the course, the name of each student or students involved, providing such evidence as is available to support his charge.

If a student shall observe cheating during an examination, it is recommended that he consult immediately with the teacher of the course.

D. A student may report a violation of the Academic Honor Code to the Chief Justice by telephone, by personal conference, or by letter, stating the facts of the case and giving supporting evidence.

Section 4. Faculty Responsibility.

A. Each faculty member shall be responsible for taking all steps possible to prevent academic dishonesty. He shall be expected (1) to take all reasonable security measures to protect examinations, theses, grade books, etc., against theft; (2) to give his students clear indication of his concern for academic honesty and his support of the Academic Honor System; (3) to require his students to sign the pledge at the conclusion of each examination, as provided in Section 3 A. above.

B. Should a faculty member wish to modify the definition of plagiarism as set forth in this constitution, he shall explain his usage of the term to his classes each trimester.

C. When a faculty member learns of an instance of academic dishonesty in one of his classes, he may impose such academic penalty as he may deem appropriate.

In addition, each faculty member shall submit to the Honor Court a written report on each instance of academic dishonesty which has occurred in his class, giving the name of the student, the nature of the offense, and the academic penalty which he has imposed. The faculty member may wish to discuss such cases with his department head before making his report.

Section 5. Court Responsibility.

Penalties:

A. The Honor Court shall investigate reports of alleged academic dishonesty, shall conduct hearings and trials when the circumstances warrant such action, and shall determine appropriate penalties for students found guilty of academic dishonesty. The Court shall maintain a file on each student reported to it, with an indication of the action taken in each case, and the Chief Justice shall report the disposition of each case to the student concerned and to the instructor of the course involved.

B. A student who is found guilty of academic dishonesty for the first time, at the discretion of the Court, be recommended for a penalty in addition to any academic penalty which may have been already imposed by the teacher of the course involved. In extremely serious cases even first offenders may be recommended for suspension or expulsion from the university.

C. A student found guilty of academic dishonesty for a second time shall, except extraordinary cases, be recommended by the Court for suspension or expulsion from the University.

D. A student found guilty of academic dishonesty for a third time shall be recommended for expulsion from the University.

E. Should a student be suspended or expelled from the University because of having been convicted of academic dishonesty, a written statement concerning the offense and the disposition of the case shall be placed in his permanent record.

F. Notice of each conviction shall be published in the "Flambeau" and in the "University News" (if included), the conviction being reported by each case number.

Section 6. Supervision of the Honor System.

The Honor System Committee, composed of an equal number of faculty members and students, and appointed by the President of the University, shall make a continuing study of the operation and effectiveness of the Honor System; keep students and faculty members informed concerning the provisions of the Honor System; and make such recommendations as it may deem appropriate.

Campaign Begins

Candidates Given Rules

Active Campaigning for the upcoming Student Body Elections begins at 3 p.m. today.

The Elections Commission, after speaking with the owners of the off-campus restaurants, has made the following regulations regarding campaign material being posted in these places. These regulations were made by the owners of the establishments. The Commission stated that it will fine anyone who does not act in accordance with the following:

Poster Regulations

Bill's Book Store: No campaign may be placed inside Bill's or cover any wood wall sign, "Bill's Book Store." However, posters may be placed on the outside windows.

Corner: Posters are not to be placed in either of the doors of the Corner.

Mecca: Posters are not to be placed on the doors or entrance of the Mecca. Posters may be placed in the windows both inside and outside, also on the wooden partition inside the Mecca.

Seminar Book Store: Posters may be placed on the lower part of the outside windows.

Sweet Shop: Posters may be placed on the outside windows but not on the inside. The University Inn: The owners have given candidates permission to use the fence and the window outside the Inn. However, no campaign material is to be placed in front of or above the neon sign "University Inn."

Permission Required

The Commission reminds all candidates that permission is required from the owners of the above establishments before any campaign material is put up. Candidates should check with the owner concerning the regulations of each of them for places to post campaign literature.

The regulations governing off-campus business establishments as prepared by the Elections Commission for the spring election are:

1. Each candidate shall place no more than four (4) 12" by 18" (minimum size) campaign signs inside or outside of each business establishment.

Each candidate shall place no more than one banner either inside or outside of each establishment.

This banner shall not exceed 5 feet in length and 3 feet in width, you to 3. No posters are to hang over or to cover any other poster.

Campaigning Rules

The special regulations governing campaigning candidates are:

1. No posters put on campus are to hang over or to cover any other poster in any way. All posters are to be limited in size to 10" x 14".

2. There are to be no poles or strings attached to the campus electrical lines.

3. Copies of all printed, mimeographed, or otherwise reproduced materials must be turned in to the Elections Commission PRIOR TO THEIR DISTRIBUTION ON CAMPUS. This includes all posters, pamphlets, bookmarks, telephone number listings, calendars, etc.
4. Any campaign material (i.e., posters, bills, banners, etc.) that still remains visible in public or private areas PRIOR TO THEIR removal on the final run-off election (February 28, 1964), shall result in fines and/or disciplinary action against the candidate. It is whether the candidate has won or lost his race.

Elections Commission members will be checking during the entire campaign and fines will be awarded for violations of the election regulations.

Joan Of Arc As Character Subject Of Panel Discussion

The Alliance Française presents panel discussion on Joan of Arc. A dramatic figure tonight at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall. The program will feature the Alliance Française and the Modern Language Dept.

Members of the FSU faculty comprise the panel. All discussion will be in English. The program will feature the Alliance Française and the Modern Language Dept.

Edgar Henderson of the Philosophy Dept.; Dr. Paul Stokes of the English Dept.; Dr. Jean D. Charron and Dr. Valdimir G. Geras of the Modern Languages Dept. Moderator for the panel will be Dr. Georges Paul Collet of the Modern Languages Dept.

Henderson will present the philosophical approach to the Joan of Arc theme; Stokes will compare George Bernard Shaw's treatment of Joan of Arc in Dr. Faustus; Charron will present Anouilh's "L'Alouette" and other French versions of Joan of Arc; and Geras will discuss the treatment of the Joan of Arc theme by German literary figures.

Student Party Convention Was 'Dead'

The Student Party at FSU embodies one of the most hallowed traditions of campus politics—never create a fuss over who has the party's nomination. In short, depend upon the apathy of the student body to let the interested few run the political process. This is one tradition that can and must be violated.

Every year the Student Party is the first to hold its convention to select candidates for the major offices in the Spring elections. Concomitantly student apathy is at its peak. This year was no exception. There were no serious floor fights for the nominations. In fact the whole proceedings resembled a morgue with an overly ambitious air conditioner.

Did the party leaders want it this way? No! Why then did the proceedings resemble a railroad on a chilly Sunday morning? The answer lies in the fact that no one cares about politics on campus save a few fraternities, sororities, and interested independents. It's a shame but it's true.

What happened at the convention to make it worth while? Well, the nominee for student body president, Mike DeVane, gave one of the most interesting and inspiring acceptance speeches heard on this campus in the last two years. No, it wasn't polished smooth as glass. Yes, he did pause periodically to think about what he was saying; but, he did say something that shook the delegates out of their stupor. Mr. DeVane actually criticized student government and the University and the political situation on campus. Before he was through everyone at the convention was sitting on the edge of their seats listening. No platitudes or empty theses, just plain old common sense. Unfortunately, Mike DeVane is understanding because his name has been in the "Flambeau" as a Chairman of some idiotic committee. The only other significant result of the evening was the emergence of two potential candidates for student body president in 1969. Namely, Jim Cannon who is running for Mayor, Vice-President, and John Meritt who is running for Vice-President of the Student Body. Both of these candidates have strong political future. If both are elected, one of the fiercest intra-party battles ever witnessed on this campus may erupt.

The Student Party is faced with the possibility of becoming the institutional underdog. The party has won a majority in the Spring elections in the last two years insofar as the number of candidates elected is concerned. This record is markedly with its history of dominating campus politics. Last year the party swept the mid-Spring elections, but this loss is a sign of its significance in the Fall when the precinct Senators who are a large majority of the Senate are elected. I would venture that one of the decisions of the Student Party, unless forthright and consistent leadership is maintained, the party may collapse or emerge under a new name (if that).

For example, Al Miller, a veteran party politician, was elected Chairman for the coming year. Upon his shoulders rests the future of the present two-party political system at FSU.

To sum it up, the Student Party must move to regain its traditional position of leadership. To simply enjoy and appreciate our status in the minds, does it have the determination?

Flambeau Forum

Comments Are Puzzling

To the Editor:

Your Thomas Riggins' comments about the "insincerity" of the United States in its dealings with the communist regime of Fidel Castro is something that puzzles me. It is very difficult for me—a naturalized U.S. citizen—to understand why a person born and brought up in this country can still feel that his country's government is "insincere" with a government as mischievous, belligerent and criminal as the government of Fidel Castro.

How could Mr. Riggins expect his government to be sincere at all with a regime which, not too long ago, was purchasing eggs, poultry, cattle and other essentials from the United States and, letting them believe that all these products were purchased by Castro's communist regime!

It is unbelievable that a student at our university still expresses himself like a naive high school boy. But, I would be inclined to believe that Mr. Riggins is not, after all, so naive. Perhaps he is only trying to make his point clear, which by the way, seems rather obscure to me. For I can't understand such expression about one's country.

Disagrees Thoroughly With Radio Editorial

To the Editor:

In reference to the lead editorial in the "Flambeau" on Monday, Feb. 17, criticizing the programming of WFSU-FM, I would like to say that I disagree thoroughly with the changes advocated by "ELC." In the first place I would like to inquire how the sample of students mentioned in this survey was chosen. It seems to me that the fact that most of the students in the sample did not listen to WFSU-FM is not very significant unless we are also informed how many people in this sample also own or have access to an FM radio.

If the sample was not chosen on this basis then I submit that no change whatever in the programming of station will result in any marked increase in the number of people listening to the station even if they wanted to since they simply do not have the equipment to do so.

I would venture to suggest that a survey of all students and faculty who do actually own or have access to FM radios would turn up a very much larger percentage of persons who enjoy and appreciate our station.

In the second place, I submit that the demand for music of the "FM" type is already being met by the commercial stations in Tallahassee, particularly WBGM. Those whose taste runs toward "quiet, relaxing study music" sports specials, folk-singing and the like" can usually satisfy their wishes with a simple turn of the dial since WBGM (and others to the distant extent) provides a steady stream of this sort of thing.

In the third place I firmly believe that a university exists to enlighten and not to enlighten. A university cannot accomplish its purpose by lowering its standards to the level of the community, but only by raising the level of the community as high as it possibly can. This is not to say that our radio station cannot be improved in my opinion, but it can be so without lowering present standards but by raising them. I personally would be very greatly assisted by the FSU-FM being on another station like all the rest.

To the Editor:

May I send my deepest appreciation to the F.S.U. Army and Air Force ROTC and to the School of Music for bringing so fine a group as the NORAD Band to our campus.

However, looking upon the audience it became apparent that the student body was not as well represented as it might have been.

Could a possible reason for this have been that too few of us have the time, or are brave enough to take the time to attend such excellent functions?

Yes, I'm about to pick on the trimester system as so many have done before me. I believe that I can look upon the subject rather objectively, as I am a graduating senior, my first two years having spent here, under the semester system.

When I first came to this school the only building going up was the Math and Meteorology; there were large greens about; seniors could drive on campus; fraternities and sororities had pretty homecoming decorations; there were plenty of pretty coeds; and students had time to attend all sorts of functions and spend the better part of weekends not worrying about studies.

Now all that remains are the pretty coeds, and most of us haven't the time to look at them anymore. This mass-production education system that we are forced to work under has not only taken away a degree of social life that is and I'm sure we will all agree, very much a part of college, but it has also robbed us of learning.

Underclassmen, ask an upperclassman about the times that I talked about above. Also ask him about the times when professors had time to discuss things in class.

Ask him how it was to have time to absorb knowledge and to search and find it for himself. Ask him about these things so that you may know how you are being robbed of your proper education.

Why Are Cigarette Ads Still Running After Ruling?

To the Editor:

Why does the "Flambeau" continue to run cigarette advertising after the Board of Publications banned cigarette advertising in the "Flambeau"?

I have nothing against Max Shulman. In fact, I have read and enjoyed "Rally Round the Boyls" and his "The Many Loves of David Gills."

Personally I favor keeping Max Shulman as a more or less regular column in the "Flambeau," but Shulman is advertising for Marlboro cigarettes, albeit in a less objectionable manner than most.

Yet how can the "Flambeau" flout an order of the Board of Publications and get away with it especially when the Chairman of BOP is the Associate Editor of the "Flambeau" and the news editor of the "Flambeau" is a member of BOP? Let's be consistent, shall we? Either lift the ban on cigarette advertising and keep Max Shulman as he is, or enforce the ban and drop Shulman from the pages of the "Flambeau."

Or is an order from the Board of Publications to be disregarded as easily as a mandate from the student body?

High Speaks ere Today

The FSU Young Democratic Club in an effort to acquaint the student body with the issues of the forthcoming gubernatorial campaign, insures a series of appearances by candidates tonight.

At 8 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium, Art King High, Mayor of Miami, will address the student body. Mayor High, who has been termed "Mystery Man" of the race has presented in the past few weeks a dynamic campaigner who has no fear of speaking out on any political issues.

In support of legislative reapportionment, shoddiness of the Milk Commission, and attacks upon local interests have marked him.

Man to be reckoned with in the state. Rejection of the idea of a tie between North and South Florida has shown a willingness to vent his views to the state as a whole.

has repeatedly rejected the idea of his late entry into the campaign would eliminate him from contention; and as over the state can do in being taken more seriously by people all over the state.

Another FSU coed, Joyce Ann Graham, was selected as one of the Jeannie Maids. She received a $200 scholarship.

The crowning of the new Jeannie wound up a weekend of activities and events for the 20 contestants. The contest began Friday morning with personal interviews. Each of the contestants was asked general questions by a forum of judges and were asked to sing one song they had prepared in advance.

Friday afternoon, the formal auditions were held. The girls appeared for the first time in traditional gowns of 1854. Songs by Stephen Foster and other composers were featured.

The announcement of the "Jeannie" came Friday night but it was not until Saturday night at the Jeannie Ball that Donna was crowned. The Jeannie Ball was held in the Foster Memorial Carillon Tower at which time Donna and her court of maids were presented. Music for the Ball was provided by the Tallahassee Symphony, under the direction of Ralph Rosenburg.

Donna, who was sponsored by the Quincy Music Club, is a freshman and is a Music Education major. She is a member of the FSU Student Choral Union.

Donna has received many scholarships. Among them are the Palm Court FEHA Housing Scholarship, Amy Gertrude Jones Music Scholarship, and a scholarship from the Exchange Club of Quincy.

When asked to comment about her title, Donna replied, "It was such a complete surprise to me; I had no idea that I would win." She also had this to say about the auditions, "When I appeared in my gown, with the music playing in the background, I felt as though I had stepped back into the time of Stephen Foster. White Springs is a beautiful place and perfect for a contest of this type."

FSU Band To Play Tonight

The Symphonic Band, which has just returned from a concert tour of Georgia, Alabama and Northwest Florida, will present a concert this evening at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

A School of Music sponsored presentation, the band will be directed by Dr. Manley R. Whitcomb. Three other music faculty members will be soloists: William Cramer, trombone; Clifford Madsen, trumpet; and Harry Schmidt, clarinet.

Featured in its first concert performance will be the John Boda composition "Ballet for Marching Band." Other selections on the first half of the program include the overture from "Roman Carnival" by Berlioz; Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" by Wagner and "Grand Duo Concertant Op. 48" by C.M. von Weber.

Gator Judges Uneducated

By JOHN WOOD
Sports Editor

For the fifth time in his fifteen years at FSU as the head swimming coach, N.B. (Bim) Stults has coached his way to an undefeated season. The feat was accomplished Saturday afternoon despite a fired-up performance by the Gator swimming team, champs of the SEC.

The feat was also accomplished despite the mathematical ignorance of the UF diving judges. These uneducated observers made a mistake, deliberate or not, which gave the host Gators five points for winning the diving competition. The winner, UF diver Price, had never beaten an FSU diver, but somehow he ended up with the highest number of points.

On a recount demanded by FSU coaches after the meet, Neal Allen of the Seminoles was declared the winner, with Price slipping to second place. This recount made a total difference of two points, as the Tribe won the event 6-3. Without the recount, FSU would have won 49-46.

THE LOUISVILLE LIP MOUTHS OFF AGAIN

In Miami for his meeting with Heavyweight Champion Sonny Liston, Challenger Cassius (The Louisville Lip) Clay has predicted that this fight "will be one of my easiest."

In an interview with TV Guide, Clay said, "It is my opinion, sir, that this will be one of my easiest fights. Much easier than the one I had with Doug Jones in New York. Liston is slower than Jones, heavier and uglier. He also will tire sooner. I will hit and back up, just like Sugar Ray (Robinson) in his prime."

"That way, I will do two things. First, I will win the fight, and second, I will stay pretty."

Clay added this poetic postscript:

"Those who pay the freight

"Will see Sonny go in eight.

"But if he gives me five

"I'll cut it down to five."

The Intramural Corner

Softball & Track To Begin

WOMEN — There will be a Unite Managers meeting today in room 303 at 4 p.m. Amendments and elections of officers will be decided at this meeting. Any organization wishing to participate in the Fourth Season's sports must attend this meeting.

MEN — Intramural Managers will meet tomorrow at 4 p.m. in room 212 to discuss the upcoming season of softball and track.

RESULTS — The fraternity basketball season came to a close last week with a three-way tie for first place in both leagues. Playoffs and championship games will be played by Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha, Lambda Chi, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta and ATO. Justus Reed of Phi Kappa Psi was leading scorer for the tournament with a total of 123 points, an average of 20.5 a game. He was followed by Dennis Justice, Kappa Sig; Fig Newton, Delta Tau Delta; and Steve Dashiiff, SPE.

The dorm independents will be competing for league championships tomorrow night in Tully Gym.

In wrestling Jim Hill of Kappa Sigma won the Outstanding Sportsman Trophy. The results of the individual matches were as follows. Winners of 115 lb. — Bill Evans, Phi Delta Theta; 123 lb. — John Stanfield, Grapplers; 130 lb. — Jim Burns, Theta Chi; 137 lb. — Herb Knudson, Grapplers; 167 lb. — Jay Benedetti ODT; 177 lb. — Larry Britkley, PE majors; 191 lb. — Joe Peiko, Delta Tau Delta and unlimited — Leray Rooks, Grapplers.

Tribe Coaching Staff Set; James, Crutchfield To Head

Florida State Coach Bill Peterson has announced coaching assignments for Spring Practice.

Don James remains head of the defense and moves up to first assistant replacing Vince Gibson who has gone to Tennessee. Working with James will be John Coatta and Bob Harblson, both offensive coaches last season. Coatta will work with ends and linebackers, Harblson with interior linemen.

Heading the offense this spring is Bill Crutchfield, who recently joined the Seminole staff from the University of Miami. Another newcomer, Don Powell will coach the offensive interior linemen, and Bobby Bowden will work with the ends and receivers.

Bill Proctor, formerly a defensive coach, will assume duties as freshman coach next fall. Last year's frosh coach, Ken MacLean, will be in charge of the FSU recruiting program.

Spring practice opens at Florida State, Feb. 27.

Two former Florida State graduate assistants have taken positions on Sam Bailey's football staff at the University of Tampa. Vic Prinzi, who served as an assistant coach last year at FSU, will tutor Spartans for new Head Coach Earl and Lew Luce, a Penn State graduate who worked with FSU linemen last season, will hold a similar job at Tampa.

Prinzi quarterback FSU teams in 1957, '58, and '59.

Florida State will host the National college Region Eight basketball tournament, March 4th, 5th and 6th, Regional Director Louis Ross announced this week.

"SOUTHERN BELLES"

"A Dip In Dixie" Is Tarpon Show Theme

Houselights dim, spotlights emblazon the scene of a large Southern plantation, then snappy red-vested, gold-brided marchers dive into the pool, and the 1964 Tarpon Club production has begun!

This year's theme, "A Dip In Dixie," centers on the Old South and portrays highlights of its history. There are scenes of Southern Belles, dancers of the Blues, Mardi Gras celebration, workers on the river, and Summertime dreams. Outstanding on the program will be the lively minstrel show presented by the 15 Minnows (uninitiated members of Tarpon) and the Tom Sawyer solo by Tarpon president Pat Anderson.

Many months of preparation have preceded this production, in addition to the work of planning and coordinating the individual numbers, many hours of long and strenuous practice are involved. The club members also sew their own costumes and choreograph the different compositions for the show.

The show will be presented today through Saturday nights at 8:15 p.m. in the Women's Gym Pool. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Dean's Committee Approves Three Commencement Program

At the January 1964 Council of Deans meeting, Student Government, through the Office of Secretary of Internal Affairs, Luther Kramer, presented a formal request for three commencement ceremonies: April, December and August.

The Council decided to form a subcommittee headed by Dean J. Paul Reynolds to present a recommendation to President Blackwell within the next three weeks.

The decision reached by the subcommittee and approved by President Blackwell was that FSU will resume the practice of holding three commencements.

Because of strong faculty objections to holding exams early for graduating seniors, no exams will be held early. Diplomas will be mailed to the student a few days after graduation. This will be the only difference in the Commencement program.

The commencement ceremony will now be on the last day of examinations.

Each student's name will be called and each student will file across the stage to receive a mock certificate from the University President.

The major address in the April ceremony will be given by a nationally known speaker while the December and August address will be given by the University President.

This procedure of exams scheduling and commencement dates will begin April 18th.

"This solution appears to be a very fair compromise between student and faculty positions. All students will now be able to participate in a Commencement ceremony. Therefore, December and August graduates will not have to return in April. Personally, I don't think a better solution could have been reached considering all the factors involved," Kramer said.

Graduate Student Wins Dissertation Honors

FSU graduate student, J. Wayne Flynn, has received one of 200 Woodrow Wilson Dissertation Awards being made in the U.S. and Canada this year.

The award, believed to be the first of its kind at the University, will support Flynn's studies of the political life and philosophy of Florida's late U.S. Senator Duncan W. Fletcher (Dem., Fla., 1908-1936). Flynn will use the award for doctoral research in Washington, D.C., and Hyde Park, N.Y., where he will review papers concerning the administrations of former presidents Woodrow Wilson and the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The late Senator Fletcher's participation in early farm aid programs will play a key role in Flynn's dissertation studies, which the award supports for a year beginning May 1, 1964.

The Woodrow Wilson Dissertation Awards are made on the basis of national committee selections from the 2,000 Wilson Fellowship students in this country and Canada.

Book Published

On the completion of a book dealing with the federal reserve system and regional development by one FSU economist and a published revision of a book by another Florida State economist was announced this week.

"Commercial Banking and Regional Development in the United States, 1950-60" was written by Dr. George Macetsch, professor of economics. Dr. Marshall R. Colberg, chairperson of the Economics Dept., is the author of "Business Economics: Principles and Cases," which Richard D. Irwin, Inc., has brought out in thoroughly revised edition. The authors are Profs. Dascomb, Irwin and Gilbert Whitaker of southwestern University.

Liberal Forum Drops Pickets

Liberal Forum voted Sunday night to temporarily withdraw the picket line in front of the Mecca Restaurant effective yesterday.

The organization released the following statement:

"As an expression of our continued desire to facilitate communications concerning the de-segregation of the adjacent off-campus restaurants, Liberal Forum shall temporarily suspend picketing the Mecca restaurant."

We believe that reasonable discussion of the problems involved, and a satisfactory solution of them can be achieved."

"Our action of temporarily withdrawing the picket line is taken in good faith, as a re-affirmation of these beliefs."

John Jones Announces Campaigning Platform

John Jones, University Party candidate for Student Body President, announced his Presidential platform today as follows:

To work toward more effective communication between Student Government and the student body through the utilization of campus news media and the establishment of liaison committees.

To utilize the Unallocated Funds Commission for the promotion of a permanent building for the Florida State University Circus.

To work toward the establishment of a more effective inter-campus transportation system due to the present peripheral parking situation.

To work toward a effective trimester program for Student Government through action in the legislative and executive branches of government.

To work toward the establishment of sound, strong relationships with the new Dean of Students staff. To attempt to obtain the Olympic Trials and the Pan-American Games at FSU after the completion of the new Olympic swimming pool.

To work toward the establishment of an effective Student Government program for the new University Union.

To promote legislation in Women's Senate to remove outdated women's restrictions.

To continue work toward establishing a student exchange program with a foreign university.

To cooperate with the Southern Universities Student Government Association in work toward the betterment of student government at FSU.

To promote legislation to establish a permanent Senate Finance Committee to aid in the budgeting of SG funds.

To promote action in the University Promotions Bureau toward the completion of a university promotional movie for the next session of Florida Legislature.

To work toward additional privileges for married students and their spouses.

To increase financial aid and create more elaborate programs better fitting the International Students.

To work toward extended university health services (including dental services).

To utilize the Personnel Bureau under the Secretary of Internal Affairs thus giving all students an equal chance to work in SG.

To work for greater student representation on faculty policy making boards.

To utilize the Student Artist Series to bring better entertainment to the FSU campus.

Students who wish more information may contact John Jones concerning his platform.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"WELL, WHAT HAVE YOU DECIDED TO DO ABOUT ALL THE BACK WORK YOU OWE ME?"

Thomas Riggins

Faculty Members Missing Point

"Freedom and Responsibility," used to be a topic in vogue these days. Faculty responsibility, student responsibility, responsibility to the city, state, nation, to one's fellow man and etc. There seems to be a growing dialogue between some students and faculty on the problems of freedom and of responsibility. This is a result, no doubt, of the racial dispute that has been dominating an ever-larger section of our campus. Nevertheless it is disheartening to realize that many interested faculty members have completely missed the point in regard to the picketing of the off-campus restaurants and the relations of this act with both freedom and responsibility. Mr. Colin Barrow's last letter to the "Flambeau" is a case in point, as is also a recent speech, which I attended, given at a Liberal Forum by a faculty member who chose specifically to speak on "Freedom and Responsibility."

It was my impression that Dr. Piccard, the speaker, had a very confused notion of what "responsibility" amounts to in relation both to picketing and to faculty participation in picketing. As a result of the speaker's confused ideas he was, unfortunately, led to adopt many unfair and unjust opinions about the nature of both Liberal Forum and the Forum's membership.

Dr. Piccard implied a hierarchy of responsibilities which few would disagree with, but then proceeded, I feel, to deduce a false set of duties which would correspond to his levels of responsibility.

Hence it appeared as if the duty of 18, 19, and 20 year olds was to picket against racial segregation. These were the same 18, 19, and 20 year olds who were reminded that they should remain open minded and not act as if they already had all the answers and knew everything; a remark that was ill applied to Liberal Forum's actions in as much that the decisions reached by the membership were reached through debate and polling of the membership—where every conceivable opinion is to be found.

The higher the level of social attainment the more "responsible" the duty. Students must picket, the faculty must sign petitions, and the administration must compromise its principles—each level in its own way moves toward the same (7)end. This, to me, was the essence of Dr. Pic-card's talk. A poor "Apologia" indeed.

The question, quite overlooked, is of course which responsibility is the most important. I assume most "liberals" would proclaim the dignity of man, equality and brotherhood as the highest level of social aspiration.

The question is then "What means will best solve a particular social issue? What methods will be the most effective?" Direct action always leads to the first real awakening of the social unconscious. It is after the action, the pickets, the arrests, that Dr. Piccard's "level" begins to play. They depend on it and grow out of it.

Actions not words are the really important seeds of social change. In the off-campus restaurant situation, the final result will depend on the action of the students from Liberal Forum, and that the great host of FSU students who believe in the brotherhood of man and the equality of the races who support the Forum by observing the picket lines.

The my question, asked long ago by many students and still not answered, remains "Where are the Faculty pickets? Where are those Liberals anyway?"

will not have to be rescinded and re-introduced into the Senate from a committee of men and women Senators. This amendment will also reduce the possibility of having the Senate divide into two sides of all men against all women; clearly an undemocratic and unwanted situation.

I believe that the passage of this amendment is imperative and should be done immediately. It can be voted on in the General Student body elections that will be held soon. I hope that not only will the Senators accept and pass this amendment, but also that the student body will vote and support it because it is in their interest that this amendment was introduced.

There are many advantages to this amendment. It would prevent misinterpretation of the constitution, as in the case of the laundry fee resolution, and would save time because this laundry fee resolution after the SF's convention. Many of the senators which didn't get organized for the SF's convention were ready when the UP convention rolled around. This factor coupled with the usual matching of opponents in the goes on in trying to insure victory makes for a "do or die" attitude among candidates, and is the cause of many floor fights. This year was no exception.

To head the slate of nominees Mr. Jones was chosen as the UP standardbearer. In an acceptance speech that was a polished and organized performance as has graced any campus political stage in the last two years the UP candidate displayed a political acumen that has been acquired through two years service in the executive branch. Gaudin and Jones's polished oratory contrasted markedly with the straight-from-the-shoulder approach characteristic of the SF candidate for the same office, Mike DeVane. The race between the two should be interesting and enlightening.

Acting's running mate Sherman Henderson should prove a valuable asset to the ticket. Despite some behind the scenes maneuvering prior to the convention and a strong challenge for the nomination by an independent, Norbort Martin, Mr. Henderson emerged as the strongest candidate.

The same race is John Merting. Henderson and Merting should provide some political fireworks as he candidates' fraternities are quite vocal and enthusiastic during election time.

To round out the slate Mr. Edsall was nominated as the candidate for Men's Vice-President. Mr. Scott arrived on campus just last September as a transfer and has been appointed to many committees in Senate. Behind Mr. Scott is the most powerful political machine on campus. Potentially Mr. Scott is the strongest man for the Student Body presidency in 1965 provided he decides to stretch his stay to the years, and provided he gets elected this year.

The race between Mr. Scott and SF's Jack Cannon could possibly steal the spotlight from all the other races. Scott uses a down-to-earth manner which is quite refreshing whereas Mr. Cannon is impressive with his humbleness and formality. Mr. Cannon has the edge in experience and tenure, but he has been appointed to many committees by UP offshooters. Both candidates are capable of doing a fine job, and the race should be close.

To sum it up, the UP has outdone the SF insofar as staging a convention is concerned. However, the UP has produced a dauntless and well qualified slate of candidates. It will be interesting to see how much difference a good convention makes in influencing voters on election day.

To the Editor:

It is not the Negro, as an individual, or associations with Negroes, as individuals, that determines, or has ever determined, any racial problem. It is, moreover, the entire situation, the cultural, economic, and social situation that determines the position of the integrationist or segregationist.

As a local or national problem, the Negro is not and cannot be dealt with as an individual. "He" is a race, a group of people, and he can be judged by his fellows' cultural, economic, and social position and the effect this has on the community as a whole.

In my letter of 6 February, I was in reference to the lack of experience, on the part of our "judgment passers" with social situations in communities ranging from total to negligible Negro occupation. My position is Gestaltist; that the individual is a part, the Race is the whole; one cannot be judged by the other.

The Race question is a macrocosm, not a microcosm. It must be dealt with as a whole, and not as a whole. It is my position that one should know the cultural, economic, and social situations of different parts of the country before proclaiming that what is fitting for a small part is good for the entire country, that having lived in the northern states, two southern states, and West Virginia, I have come in contact with many divergent cultural environments regarding the racial question, that having lived in the feel qualified to take a "do-or-die" stand on the issue.

Men's, Women's Senate Need Definition

The recent dispute over the laundry fee in the Student Senate, brings to light many needs that should be resolved immediately in order that the Senate may function more efficiently and effectively.

First, the constitution which states that a men's and women's senate shall exist and meet at the discretion of the Vice-Presidents involved, does not clearly define the area of jurisdiction of each. It is implied, but not explicitly stated, that when the men's and women's Senate meet, they are concerned primarily only with issues that involve each respective sex. I have proposed an amendment, expressing the legal jurisdiction of each of these bodies to the constitution so that Senators, both men and women henceforth, will have an accurately written statement of the scope and limitation of the separate men's and women's Senate. If this amendment is passed by two-thirds of the Senate, it will be voted upon by the student body in the forthcoming elections, and if a minimum of 25% of the student body vote in this election and more than half of the ballot cast are for the amendment, then it will become part of the constitution.

There are many advantages to this amendment. It would prevent misinterpretation of the constitution, as in the case of the laundry fee resolution, and would save time because this laundry fee resolution will not have to be rescinded and re-introduced into the Senate from a committee of men and women Senators. This amendment will also reduce the possibility of having the Senate divide into two sides of all men against all women; clearly an undemocratic and unwanted situation.

I believe that the passage of this amendment is imperative and should be done immediately. It can be voted on in the General Student body elections that will be held soon. I hope that not only will the Senators accept and pass this amendment, but also that the student body will vote and support it because it is in their interest that this amendment was introduced.

Sherman Henderson Selected Candidate By University Party

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer
Communication between students and government and between Greeks independents, is the key plank university Party president-candidate, Sherman Henderson's campaign. Henderson said today that he wants to promote student interest in student government. He also would promote interest in student publications, particularly the "Flambeau." To encourage interest in student senate, Henderson said that he would publish advance notice of the agenda of Student Senate in the "Flambeau." In this way students could be informed of legislation of particular interest to them.

Henderson claimed that a major problem was the lack of participation in student government. The Personnel Bureau will help alleviate this problem.

Henderson also said that the student body had a responsibility to keep behind the people they elect. He urged all students to get to know the candidates and vote, so that government knows it has student support.

"I'm quitting swimming," said Henderson, a member of the swimming team, "to devote all of my time to student government."

This devotion Henderson calls one of his best qualifications. Among his other qualifications Henderson is the under-secretary of Student Insurance, and under secretary of Student Events.

He was president of Alpha Council, vice president of the Freshman Class and on the Housing Bureau. He served on the Rally Committee, the Pow-Wow Committee and the Lobby Committee.

Henderson said that this diversified experience gives him a well rounded picture of the campus and lets him know many different people.

Student Party Nominates John Merting For Veep

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Students have done their part in voting. It's then up to the Student Government to show the students that government can be an active thing and do important things for the student."

This was John Merting's view of the position of student government. Merting is the Student Party candidate for Student Body vice president.

As part of his platform, Merting said today that he would like to see improved relations between the Board of Control and the University. He also would like improved relations between the state legislature and the University.

In commenting on student government's past, he said that FSU had a good, improved organization. Now, it is time to concentrate on doing things for the students.

"Show students that you're interested, and then they'll show you support."

Among the things he'd like implemented are more visiting professors, and a permanent building for the circus.

Merting said that he feels that these areas are of particular importance. The circus, he said, provides excellent publicity for FSU, and therefore should be supported.

Visiting professors would help FSU's academic reputation as well as help the students.

Merting said that he considers himself well qualified for the office of student body vice president, since all his government experience has been in the legislative branch.

Merting is president pro-tem of the senate, and a junior class senator. As a senator he served as chairman of Labor under the Student Services, Education Committee.

He was also the chairman of the Food Services Committee, and on the Trimester Committee. He was on the Dorm Elections Committee.

Academically, Merting is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, has been on the Dean's List five times and has a 3.6 overall average.

Gibbs Says Bill No Good

Attorney General Arnie Gibbs said today that he considers the mandatory laundry resolution passed by Student Senate Thursday to be illegal by precedent.

Gibbs said that the bill, which originated in Women's Senate, violated the historic jurisdiction of Men's senate.

In effect, the women would be making decision normally under the jurisdiction of Men's Senate.

Gibbs said that he suggested to Clyda Stokes, women's vice president, that she reconsider the resolution and work out a compromise resolution in conjunction with Men's Senate.

Smokers Switch To Pipes Because 'Not As Dangerous'

"I like tobacco, but not cigarettes, so I smoke a pipe. It's more enjoyable, and not as dangerous as a cigarette," said Pat Fuller, publications advertising manager, in response to the question why he smoked a pipe.

Since the cancer report on cigarettes the number of pipe smokers and interest in pipes has risen. While this medical reason for smoking pipes has caused some cigarette smokers to switch, several students gave other reasons for smoking pipes.

John Wood, sports editor of the "Flambeau," smokes a pipe because it relaxes him and because it gives him something to do with his hands. He also said that he likes the image of a pipe smoker.

Senator Darry Wood said that he started smoking pipes six years ago, from an interest in the American Indian.

"I got started on an Indian Peace Pipe and got hooked." One of the more interesting things to a beginning pipe smoker is the initial cost. According to Jack Kirk, Tallahassee tobaccoist, a good pipe can cost from $12 to over $100 for a meerschaum.

Pipes are so expensive because they must be made of a best resistant porous material. The two most popular materials are briar wood and meerschaum, a kind of clay. They must be able to dissipate heat and moisture.

Briar, said Kirk, is the only wood that is hard as steel and porous as cloth. For pipes, the briar must have no flaws or soft spots and should have a deep close grain.

Briars of lesser quality are usually stained or sand blasted to cover the blemishes.

Meerschaum is also a hard porous material. In cutting the pipes from the clay the craftsman cannot stain flaws but must cut around them. This causes wastage and added expense.

Shapes in pipes, said Kirk, are mainly a matter of personal taste and creativity of the craftsman.

Kirk also said that the choice of tobacco is a matter of personal taste, but he recommended that the smoker use a pure tobacco to break in the pipe. This tobacco is one that burns evenly.

This even burning is needed to form a cake on the inside of the pipe bowl. The cake gives the pipe flavor, said Kirk.

Financial Aid Department Offers Loans, Scholarships

"Never borrow money needlessly, but when you must," the Financial Aid Dept. on the third floor, Longmire, may be of help.

This is the place where an FSU student can receive information about a loan or scholarship. In addition to Margaret Blair, the assistant director, there is a staff of six members and two student assistants for this purpose.

There are, of course, requirements for a scholarship. These include a parents' confidential statement, a 3.0 overall, and a 3.0 for the preceding trimester.

This information is combined and evaluated with the resources of the Scholarship Committee, which is appointed by the President to review all applications for loans and scholarships. During the 1962-63 school year, there were 487 awards totaling $140,000.

Funding the reserves are ample, up to $300 can be borrowed per trimester. The money is to be paid back in 12 months with no more than a 4% interest charge and a service charge of about $2. Any loan over $100 which carries over one trimester must have an endorsement by a responsible person.

Men's Senate Passes 2 Bills

Men's Senate passed two resolutions concerning men's dormitories Monday.

Gene Stearns, Kellum Hall senator, introduced a resolution urging the construction of a shelter in the vicinity of the men's dormitories to protect bicycles, motor scooters and motor cycles belonging to residents.

Stearns and Ray Hayes, day student senator, were appointed members of a committee to investigate the problem and report their findings to the administration. Stearns also introduced a resolution urging the installation of change machines in the men's dormitories. He and Luther Beauchamp, Smith Hall Senator, were made members of a committee to investigate this matter.

Editor Explains Legend Prizes

Hutch Johnson, co-editor of the "Legend," announced today that first prize for short stories in the "Legend" will be $50.

First prize for poetry will be $25. Second and third prizes for short stories will be $30 and $20. This money was donated by the Inter-Fraternity Council and Pan-Hellenic. Each organization gave $100 to the "Legend" for prizes.

Johnson said that the deadline for copy is March 10. He also said that the editors would prefer to have the material by March 1.

In addition to short stories and poems the "Legend" will accept sketches, essays, and plays. Johnson also said that only about 100 pieces of copy have been submitted.

Staging Of 'Carmen' Set By Opera Guild

By KAY HUFFMASTER

Jealousy, passion, bloodshed, and strong emotions mark the story of the FSU Opera Guild's coming production of "Carmen" by Georges Bizet, Feb. 28 and 29.

Carmen is an "exciting gypsy girl" who charms a young soldier, Don Jose, from his army career into a life of smuggling. From the time Carmen throws him a rose to get his attention, Don Jose begins his decline.

His love for Carmen grows, while hers for him fades and she becomes attracted to Escamillo, a local bullfighter.

When Don Jose sees his adored Carmen with Escamillo, he becomes enraged, stands with her, stay with him, and when she refuses, stabs her.

Director Richard Collins describes Carmen as an exciting, extreme and impulsive character whose "main desire is to be completely free to follow the impulse of the hour."

When "Carmen" reached the United States in 1875, critics found the plot "almost offensive in its combined puerility and

However, by 1940, the "luscious" illicit love and brutal violence become so accepted that the opera was chosen for special children's matinees.

The Opera Guild chose "Carmen" because it is a near-perfect opera. It is equally popular with the public as with the critics. The Guild presents the opera with spoken dialogue as it was in its original comic version.

Joy Davidson will portray Carmen. Ross Barlow, Don Jose; and Joy Keene, Escamillo. Working Collins will be Karl Mohr, assistant director, and Roberto Sedore, will conduct the orchestra. Richard Chapman of Theatre Dance will charge of all choreography.

World-Famous FSU Circus May Tour Europe

By BEVERLY JOSEPHSON
Flambeau Feature Writer

This spring 35 FSU Circus students may have a chance to go abroad. A plan concerning FSU Circus' tour of Europe was discussed by university officials with the Board of Control at Gainesville Friday, but so far a contract providing for the trip remains to be approved by the Board.

The International Cultural Exchange, a non-profit organization, is sponsoring the tour of Europe. Although they will take care of the promotion and theater arrangements for the performances, they cannot guarantee any income for the troupe. However, the CBS broadcasting network is supporting the tour with financial aid of $45,000 in return for any profits up to that amount. All the remaining profits will be split three to one between the circus and the cultural exchange.

During the middle of March students will go to Miami for the final plans. While in Miami, they will be able to get passports, visas, and the necessary smallpox inoculations. On March 13th and 15th the troupe will perform in Miami for the cultural exchange.

At the end of the second trimester, the circus troupe must be back on campus for two weeks of practice. Beginning April 20th, they will have two rehearsals daily.

In order to gain a good background of each country, they will have night lectures on politics, cultures, food and the legal responsibilities that they might encounter on the tour.

On May 5th, the whole troupe will fly through New York City to Madrid, Spain. For approximately three days, they will perform in Barcelona.

has often thought about doing a performance abroad to show the Europeans what can be done with an amateur circus in the USA. He considers artists to be diplomats because the circus in Europe is on the same socio-economic level as TV is in the United States.

Since only one-fourth of the circus students will be able to go on this trip, there has to be a ranking system to select students. They will be chosen for personality, academic average, appearance, and finally for performing ability.

Frosh Five Top Abraham Baldwin

The Florida State freshman basketball team upped its season mark to 9-7 Monday night with a 98-76 win over Abraham Baldwin Junior College at Tully Gym.

The Baby Seminoles, ahead 56-40 at the half, were led by Ron Malmgren's 25 points and nine rebounds, Brian Murphy and Lee Canter each added 15 points to the Tribe cause, with all of Canter's 15 coming in the first half.

The visitors from Georgia were led by All-State forward Allison McSwain's 27 points and 28 rebounds, Center Maury Long also had 13 points for the Tribe.

FSU Frosh center Dick Danford played an outstanding defensive game, blocking four shots and pulling down 10 rebounds.

The Freshmen won one game and lost two on a road trip this weekend, defeating Galt Junior College 65-63 in overtime, and losing to the Pensacola Navy Goshawks 67-66 and Pensacola Junior College 72-68.

Ron Malmgren was the hero Thursday night against the Commodores, scoring five points in overtime, including the winning basket with one second left. Malmgren scored 19 for the game.

The Commodores fell behind early in the game, as the Baby Seminoles hit almost 100% of their shots in the first five minutes of play. They fought back to narrow the FSU margin to 35-31.

Galt Coast took a lead early in the second half and held it for most of the game. Led by Bill Glenn and Moe Bloodworth, the Baby Seminoles fought back. Malmgren sank a free throw with four seconds left to tie the score 56-56.

Bill Glenn scored 18 points for the Baby Seminoles, his best performance of the season. Ken Doyle scored 10 before fouling out in the second half. Bloodworth scored eight. Walt Holman scored 22 for Galt Coast, 12 of them on foul shots. Friday night the Baby Seminoles took action against the strong Pensacola Navy Quinnet. Minus two of their starters, the Goshawks still defeated the Baby Seminoles 67-66.

A nip and tuck battle all the way, the score wasted 32-32 at halftime. During the second half, the score bounced back and forth. No team managed more than a six point lead. Finally Walt Smith of the Goshawks scored on a layup to make the score 67-66. Brian Murphy's pass to Malmgren was a slight bit too high, and time ran out.

Malmgren and Glenn led the scoring for the Seminoles scoring 22 and 16 points respectively. Lee Canter added eight points, and Brian Murphy scored seven.

Saturday night in a contest marked by 44 personal fouls, Pensacola Junior College defeated the Frosh 72-68. In another close battle, the difference came at the foul line. PJC scored 26 times from the foul line, while the Baby Seminoles scored 14. Also, PJC lost the ball only six times on turnovers (traveling, palming, etc.).

Pensacola had a two point lead at halftime, 38-36. They scored six quick points at the start of the half, and FSU just couldn't quite catch up. Charles Fairchild kept the pressure on the Baby Seminoles with his driving layups. He scored 30 points, ten from the foul line.

Ken Doyle led Seminoles scorers with 24 points. He scored the first six points for the frosh and the last too. Ron Malmgren scored 12 before fouling out, and Brian Murphy scored 10. Lee Canter added eight points, and Dick Danford added 6.

Tankers Prep For Gators With Songs And Jokes

By JAMES L. MYERS
Flambeau Sports Feature Writer

How does a swimming team such as ours prepare for an important meet such as the Gator one? To answer this, let's go through the whole day that the meet took place on. Early last Saturday, the 15th, alarm clocks buzzed to wake the sleepy swimmers from a restful sleep. After putting on a suit, most of them walked to the Student Center to partake of a hearty breakfast of eggs, cereal, milk, toast, etc.

To further ready themselves, they played current best sellers such as the Beatles. Finishing the meal, they journeyed to Montgomery Gym to load the bus for Gainesville.

In order to relieve the tensions which have been building up after three hours a day in the chlorine water, the more talented swimmers played the guitar while the others either sang along or listened. Others demonstrated their dancing abilities while teammates clapped to the rhythm.

As the bus rapidly moved towards its destination, the swimmers settled down somewhat and talked in individual cliques. Jokes were told abundantly. A few even sacked out to be rudely awakened by the laughter of their teammates on hearing latest elephant jokes or some comment on the Gators.

When the bus rolled into "Gator Town," everyone was awake and ready to add their remarks about the CW. The Tribe was met by individual stares from UF men who were playing handball. No one whistled at the Florida girls they saw.

Conducting themselves as perfect FSU gentlemen, the team cleaned up and quietly walked into the Florida cafeteria. Coach Stults warned the boys not to eat too much as it would be additional weight to pull through the water and especially to stay away from starches and fats.

When all the members of the best team in the South had finished, they proceeded to the pool; and giving it a disapproving eye because the water was greenish, they went to the dressing room to change.

The team then got into the pool to warm up for the meet. They practiced on take-offs, turns and strokes. During this time, local fans began to gather to cheer on their team.

With warm-ups over, the swimmers dried off and huddled together to all catch up at Florida or give a cheer for their own Alma Mater. Excitement rose throughout the meet. Whenever an FSU swimmer headed for the starting block his teammates gave him a rousing send-off. None of the individual events was carried out without plenty of spirit from the Seminoles bench. Most of the swimmers were fairly hoarse

The only thing the Gators wanted was to watch their team beat or to make some remark about CW. The Tribe retaliated by mentioning that the Gators said he was proud of the fact that they were being beaten by a college from Miami. Nothing was heard after that. When the Tribe won the meet, they gave a cheer to UF and then proceeded to reward their own coach with a dunking in the diving coach and assistant.

Returning to Tallahassee that night, the victorious swimmers treated to a steak banquet. Here the team showed their appreciation to their coaches by giving each a gift. To Bill Stults, they showed deepest love by giving him a Grumman Aluminum Lightplane. Coach Stults was so choked he couldn't speak.

The team also honored their graduating seniors, Dale Smith and Allen Roles, with a standing ovation. In the words of Smith, "He is the best damn team in the South and we've got the best damn coach of the east damn team."

Certain other outstanding swimmers were awarded. Bill Allenman received the Best Freshman Award; Dick Abbott received the Team Spirit Trophy; and Doug Cooper received the Greatest Improvement Gung-Ho Award.

WOMEN: Tryouts for coed dance and the ballroom dance intramurals will be held tonight in the Dance Studio in the Women's Gym.

MEN: Entry blacks for the ping pong tournament are now available at the intramural office. They must be picked up and completed by February 22.

There will be a meeting this afternoon of all the team managers at 4 p.m. in room 212.

GAMES: The dorm-independent basketball games scheduled for tonight beginning at 7:15 in Tully Gym are as follows: Heathcote vs. DCI; Psychology-Highlights; FSU-Smith; Majors-FSU; Geology-Westley; Alumni Village-Kowboys; Kappa Sigma-Delta Tau Delta; Kappa-Lambda Chi Alpha.

RESULTS: Shirley Hardison and Judy Seymour of Landis won the Badminton Doubles Championship. Barbara Steel of Landis beat the other Diane Perkins or Betty Tobin for the singles title.

Sailors Dunk Gators By 20

The FSU Sailors won seven out of the eight races in a team race match with the Univ. of Florida this past weekend at Lake Bradford.

Sailing their own Flying Dutchman Juniors, the Seminoles won the silver platter with a high point score of 62 3/4 points over the Gator score of 42 1/4.

Bob Waldrop was high point skipper, with four races. Stan Stearns and Herb Elphick each also skippered four races; Ken Lacey, two; and Tom Ray and Mark Carroll each skippered one race.

The rest of the members of the FSU Sailing Association acted as crew.

Next week the Association is going to Atlanta to compete in the Tri-ling Sailing Event, against Georgia Tech and the Univ. of Georgia.

FSU To Host Fashion Spectacular Today

The stage of Longmire Auditorium will become a sidewalk cafe this afternoon at 4 p.m., as students of the Fashion Institute present their annual parade of self-styled fashion.

The 10th Annual Fashion Day is sponsored by the Institute with lectures scheduled by leading ladies of the fashion field — Belle Bernmann, Mondessa, Martha Jungerman and Virginia E. Pope.

Lectures begin at 9:25 a.m. in Longmire Auditorium with Miss Bernmann's discussion, "Color is Business." Miss Jungerman, art coordinator for the WT Grant of New York City, since 1960, has an extensive background in textile education. For 14 years she was an associate professor at the Philadelphia Textile Institute, teaching color, design, fabric identification and textile testing. Former winner of a Fulbright Scholarship to study textiles and art at the University, Leeds, in England, she has also served as director of education for The Wool Bureau, Inc.

"The Fashion Institute in Florida," second on the fashion lecture agenda, will begin at 10:25 a.m., featuring the growth of the ready-to-wear industry in this state as viewed by the executive director of the Florida Fashion Council, Miss Belle Bernmann. The Miami fashion expert is a key figure in the promotion of the Florida market.

Miss Virginia E. Pope, fashion editor for "Parade" magazine, and former fashion editor for the "New York Times," taken the stage at 11:20 a.m., bringing her long career in world fashion coverage to bear on the topic, "Fashion — A Far-Reaching Force."

For 23 years Miss Pope edited the fashion pages of the "New York Times" and she has done the same for "Parade" since 1955. Named president of the Clothing Research and Development Foundation in 1963, Miss Pope is active in the organization's efforts to create "Functional Fashions," for the physically handicapped. A frequent visitor to Paris, Italy and London throughout her career, and one of the leading supporters of American design, she has received numerous awards for distinguished service to the industries. She was named "Statesman of Industry" in 1948 by New York's Mayor at that time, James O'Dwyer.

In recent years, she has held the title of Edwin Goodman Lecturer with the Merchandising and Apparel Departments.

Advertising, another phase of the multiple complex of fashion industries, will be the subject of the fourth lecture, scheduled for 2 p.m., by a fashion illustrator, Miss Mondessa Connor, art director for Jordan

Marsh, of Miami, Florida. Miss Connor's lecture, which deals with the "Birth of an Ad," will be illustrated with samples of her own original art depicting an ad program — from the conception of an idea to the printed pages of a newspaper.

Following the student fashion show at 4 p.m., a reception will be held in Longmire, sponsored by the student organization known as Fashion Incorporated. Opportunities for the public and students to meet with the guest lecturers for group discussions will be given from 5 to 4 p.m. In various meeting rooms to be announced.

Bill Sets New Limit On Men's, Women's Senate

By AL GALBRAITH

A bill defining the jurisdiction of the Men's and Women's Senate was passed unanimously in yesterday's meeting of the Student Senate, along with a resolution rescinding an earlier resolution regarding compulsory laundry services.

The bill on jurisdiction was introduced by Senator Mack McKinnon, according to the provision of the bill, which amends the Student Body Constitution and which will be voted on by the student body, each senate has jurisdiction only over matters concerning members of its sex. It has formal approval of the senate to pass legislation covering both sexes.

Women's Senate introduced a resolution rescinding a resolution passed two weeks ago which required freshman men and women to pay laundry services fee, among other things. Instead, a committee will be set up to study further the laundry problem. The new resolution passed unanimously.

Another action, Senator Carol McIntire introduced a resolution extending a procedures manual for each of the standing committees. The resolution passed unanimously.

Senator Ed Scott introduced a bill amending the Student Body Constitution by changing the time of elections. The new elections time would be two weeks earlier than they are at present. The bill was sent to the Elections and Appointments Committee for study.

Another bill introduced by Sen. Scott amends the Statutes by including the Alpha Phi Omega Elections Committee Chairman and Sophomore Council Chairman for Elections on the Elections Bureau. The bill also was sent to the Elections and Appointments Committee.

The Judicial and Rules Committee brought an unfavorable recommendation on the summer legislation bill, which was introduced by Sen. Scott (not Bill Branch, as was erroneously stated in last week's "Flambeau"). The committee stated that the bill was not adequate, and that they have a program including all three branches which will soon be brought forth. The bill was defeated.

Candidates Endorse New Honor Code

The new honor code system, which will appear on the ballot in the spring elections for approval by the student body, was endorsed by several candidates for student government offices Tuesday night during a panel discussion in 200 Longmire. The candidates, in the discussion led by Chief Justice Kelly Reid, were in favor of the stricter code of academic honesty.

Ray Whitehead of the FSU Honor Court said that "being on Honor Court at this time, I see the need of this new system and I wish every student at FSU would take in upon himself to read and comprehend this new system and then he would realize the importance of it."

SP candidate for Men's Vice President, Jack Cannon, said that he would like "to urge all students to give their earnest consideration to this new honor code" and that the also would "like for each individual to realize the importance of the passage of the new code."

Sherman Henderson, UP candidate for Student Body Vice President, said that he would like to "openly urge each and every student to read the new academic honor code. After reading it, discuss it with one of the candidates running in this election."

Institutes Come Again

Students bearing slide-rules and test-tubes again invade the FSU campus this summer when an eight week high school science institute and a six week mathematics and science institute come to FSU.

Sponsored by the National Science Foundation, both institutes will be attended by 30 students selected for outstanding ability and scholarship.

The Science Institute will be from June 15 to Aug. 7 under the direction of Dr. Phillip R. Fordyce of the Science Education Dept.

In the Science Institute each high school student will spend six hours a day participating in research under the direction of an individual science professor. The entire group will enroll in a cross-disciplinary course.

Ballot Freezes Today

A list of all candidates who will appear on the Official Ballot will be made available at 12:00 noon today.

Today is also the last day that a candidate may withdraw his Declaration of Candidacy.

The primary election will be Tuesday, Feb. 25. Voting will take place between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Write in Ballots will be made available at this time. Absentee Ballots are registered with the Elections Commission last week.

The Elections Commission suggests that the Candidates make sure that their posters, banners, and other campaign materials are fastened securely.

John Merting, SP candidate for Student Body Vice President, feels it is important that each and every individual student realize that it is his responsibility to read, study, question and evaluate the new honor code in the light that, if it is adopted by the student body, it will serve as a meaningful foundation for every student's entire academic career.

UP candidate for Men's Vice President, Ed Scott, said that "being a sponsor of the honor code in the Senate this last year, I feel that this should be put on an educational basis. (That is to educate the students as to how the honor code will benefit them.) It has a lot of merit if an individual will accept it, it's strictly up to an individual's integrity if this honor code can become a workable part of his life here on campus."

SP candidate for President of the Student Body Mike Devane, commented that he considered the outline and structure of the bill good, but that the effectiveness of the new system would depend on the student vote.

UP candidate for President of the Student Body John Jones, said that he fully endorsed the new honor code system and that he urged the student body to pass the referendum placed before it in the student body election.

"The main benefits of the new system are (1) the faculty members are able to impose the academically proper that he deems appropriate and (2) the graduated penalties that are imposed upon students for offenses," added Jones.

Amendments Aimed At U.S. Gov.

The Constitution of the United States provides for two ways in which the Constitution can be amended. First is the familiar formula of two thirds majority of Congress and ratification by three fourths of the state legislatures.

The other way, which has never been used, is "The Congress... on the application of the legislatures of two thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which... shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three fourths of the several states..."

There is now a movement under way to utilize this way of amendment and it has a good chance to succeed.

In December of 1962 at Chicago the Council of State Governments proposed three constitutional amendments which were to be introduced into the various legislatures.

The first proposes amending Article Five of the Constitution to make it easier for states to procure constitutional amendments.

The second amendment specifies that "the judicial power of the United States shall not be exercised in law or equity, or to any controversy, relating to apportioning of representation in a state legislature."

The third would establish a tribunal charged with the sole responsibility of determining, upon proper application of at least five states, none of which have a common boundary, whether or not a specific power exercised by the central government is actually granted by the Constitution.

The proposed court would be composed of chief justices of the fifty states. The amendment particularly stressed the fact that "the sole issue before the Court of the United States be whether the power of jurisdiction sought to be exercised on the part of the United States is the power granted to it under this Constitution."

Together these resolutions are designed to reassert proper position of the states.

During the legislative period of 1963, twelve states passed Amendment No. 1, thirteen passed Amendment No. 2, and five passed Amendment No. 3. The amendments were being considered in many other states but the legislative session ended before work could be completed on them.

A non-profit corporation called National Dual Sovereignty Commission, Inc. was formed to push the amendments in the various state legislatures and to educate the people as to their importance.

George Prentice of Tallahassee, executive director of the commission, said "We make no proposal to go back to the old confederate system. There is none in this group who proposes curtailing the power of the Federal Government to the point where it's ineffective either nationally or internationally."

What we do contend is that this is government of the people and that over the course of recent history it has been changed to the extent that branches of the Federal Government have usurped powers which were intended to belong to the states and the people."

He also stated that the first aim will be to amend the Federal Constitution to make it easier for states to propose constitutional amendments.

Since the legislative session is over for a while, you may not hear much about these amendments this year, but the ground work is being laid and the organizational strength which will be needed is being built. When next the legislatures meet, you may be sure that all over the country these amendments will again be making headlines.

Review Is Reviewed

To the Editor:

I would like to make a few statements about both the good points and absurdities in Mr. Jeff Johnson's review of "Love's Labour's Lost."

I admit that I might not have Mr. Johnson's qualifications as a critic of plays since I have only seen nine Shakespearean plays on the stage besides those at Florida State, eight of which I viewed at the theatre in Stratford, Canada. However, I wish to express my observations.

I agree with Mr. Johnson about such performances as those of Sammy Kilman and Rhet Bryson, for they are the best of comedians.

As a matter of fact, I would say that Kilman's Falstaff last year was Dumaine. Then he makes the absurd statement: "Jeff Johnson of Berowne is the biggest disappointment of the evening."

Where was Mr. Johnson when Gray's excellent acting expression, also "brought down house."

I sat behind the curtain to the end of the stage during the last two performances last weekend and found Berowne a most enjoyable character.

A fellow graduate student in ship in the English department (one who has a teaching assistant) me he thought Berowne, in stance, was superb.

Among the many other comments have heard praising Mr. Gray, call one woman saying she thought the best actor of the evening. The question here is who is the best, but, if this is printed for the weekend of February 19, I would like to suggest that Mr. Johnson, who is a critic, should evaluate his unjust statements.

Racial Strife Belies U.S. Ideals

Sandy Turner's opinion that integration has filed is both hasty and ill-founded. After all, the system of racial segregation in this country and the attitudes surrounding it have been effective for more than a hundred years. Desegregation of public facilities was started just a few years ago. To date, it has been successful, i.e., it has been accomplished without any trouble, wherever sensible, forward-looking men were determined to make it succeed.

The full integration of the Negroes, and of other minorities as well, remains yet to be accomplished. Admittedly, that process will take time, education, and much good will before its success is assured.

It is true, as Turner says in "Disillusion 'Infected' Integrationists," that "a mob courting through the streets is not rational in its reasoning or actions." It is equally true, however, and very unfortunate for their cause, that the violence surrounding civil rights demonstrations have been started by segregationists and the white police; they are the ones who resist any change in the status quo.

While the NAACP has consistently sought to bring about desegregation through the courts, their legal efforts have been met frequently with snarling dogs, electrified rods, water hoses, National Guards, and bombings of schools and churches. We had a similar occurrence here at P.S.U. when the S.A.C. began picketing the off-campus restaurants. Nobody can assert that the pickets were not peaceful.

Nor can anybody deny that it was the opposition who threw eggs, exploded cherry bombs, jeered, and yelled insults while the police laughed and looked the other way. Considering the treatment accorded to Negroes for so long in this country and the lack of credit, that they have not violently rebelled, as the Fathers of this nation did before.

The assertion that a "factor contributing to the failure (of integration) is the expose of the difference between the real situation and that which was paid lip service in the Northern cities" does not really show the failure of integration, but it does point out that segregation is a national disgrace, not just a Southern problem. There seems to be an effort to discredit Northern integrationists, and underlying this effort is the belief that the present crisis in race relations is brought about in the South by "outsiders."

This crisis, however, was brought on by the nation by long years of abuse and neglect of the rights of a large segment of our people. The leaders of the integration movement are Negroes for the most part, and supporting them in the struggle are white people from all sections of the country, the South included. Fanning the accusatory finger at the North and saying, "You, too!" will hardly help solve the problem.

It seems difficult to believe that the leaders of the integration movement have deliberately excluded those who partially agree with their motives or goals' and that many a conservative has been rebuffed because he doesn't favor forced integration of country clubs despite the fact that he accepts voluntary integration in the public schools."

On the other hand, if the goal of integrationists is freedom and justice, it seems silly to ask them to compromise with those who only partially agree with those goals. It would be infinitely better to persuade the segregationists to sit down with the integrationists and then work out honestly the best ways to bring the political, the social, and the economic liberation of the Negroes. Certainly, it is ironic that someone who has consistently advocated an uncompromising attitude on the question of so-called state rights should criticize the integrationists for their refusal to compromise their basic rights.

That "the constant violation of the principles of our democracy to promote a particular social complaint is inconsistent and intolerable to all logical Southerners" does not make sense in view of the fact that racial segregation and discrimination based on skin color, religion, or nationality has long been practiced in this nation, particularly in the South, and yet this is utterly inconsistent with the avowed beliefs of the country and a patent violation of democratic principles. It is forced to ask: Who is violating whom?

Logical men everywhere would agree with Sandy Turner that "all men aren't equal in all things." But they would also agree that it is not up to one group of men to decide who shall be equal and who shall not. Give all men an equal opportunity to prove to themselves and to their society what they are or are not.

This goal can be accomplished by "hoping" to "rebuild the association of the races on an informal basis." Personal relations between individuals are informal, but the relations between races are not. In the last hundred years racial relations in this country have been far from informal; the system of racial segregation has been maintained with laws. In the North and in other sections of the country segregation has been maintained with more subtle, though no less effective, arrangements. Our hope lies therefore in strong civil rights legislation backed by mutual respect and mutual understanding between the races and a common determination to move forward in peace.

The laws that may destroy our society are not civil rights laws; they are those racial laws which oppress a large number of our people. The laws that we need, Sandy Turner says, "Let the laws reflect the mores and folkways of the people." A thousand times, yes! Let the laws reflect our sense of fair play, our belief in the worth and dignity of the individual, our faith in equal opportunities as a way for advancement in our society. Above all, let the laws reflect our common promise of liberty and justice for all.

Wants FM Results Printed

To the Editor:

If the "Flambeau" has conducted surveys to determine the size of the audience of WFSU-FM among the students and faculty of this university, I should very much like to see the results in print. I wonder, for example, what percentage of those individuals surveyed actually owned FM radio sets. I also would like to know what percentages of music majors, graduate students and faculty were included in these surveys.

The suggestion that the University FM station could better serve the FM by programming "relaxing study music, sports specials, folksinging and the like" is absurd. This type of entertainment is available not only over the local radio station, but the private FM station WBOG carried "relaxing study music" all day long (as far as I am concerned, for a one hour lapse of serenity).

It seems to me that WFSU-FM serves a real purpose in carrying material of a type which is mostly lacking in the FM haphazard area. Under the conditions of the present university, which carries serious music, an institution with as large and as music department as that at FSU should be self-appealing.

Ignorance Is Real Enemy

To the Editor:

We, as Americans, have an enemy. I have heard many of our community and school leaders speak of whom they think this enemy is. As they generally agree that the enemy resides on the other side of the world. But I suggest, contrary to the opinion of our local leaders, that the real enemy is not Russia, or China, Europe, or Cuba, or even Red China. The real enemy is right here at home, and its name is Ignorance.

EVOL SPELLED BACKWARDS IS LOVE

They met. His heart leapt. "I love you!" he cried.

"Me too, hey!" she cried.

"Tell me," he cried, "are you a girl of expensive tastes?"

"No, hey," she cried. "I am a girl of simple tastes."

"Good," he cried, "for my cruel father sends me an allowance barely large enough to support life."

"Money does not matter to me," she cried. "My tastes are simple; my wants are few. Just take me riding in a long, new, yellow convertible and I am content."

"Goodbye," he cried, and ran away as fast as his little stumpy legs would carry him, for he had no yellow convertible, nor the money to buy one, nor the means to get the money short of picking up his stingy father by the ankles and shaking him till his wallet fell out.

He knew he must forget this girl, but lying on his pallet at semidormitory, whimpering and moaning, he knew he could not.

At last an idea came to him; though he did not have the money to buy a convertible, perhaps he had enough to rent one!

Hope reborn, he rushed on his little stumpy legs (curious to tell, he was six feet tall, but all his life he suffered from little stumpy legs) he rushed, I say, to an automobile rental company and rented a yellow convertible for $10 down plus ten cents a mile. Then, with many a laugh and cheer, he drove away to pick up the girl.

"Oh, bully!" she cried when she saw the car. "This suits my simple tastes too. 'T' Car, let us speed over rolling highroads and through bumpy dells."

Away they drove. All that day and night they drove and finally, tired but happy, they parked high on a wind-swept hill.

"Marlboro?" he said.

"Yum, yum," she said.

They lit their Marlboros. They puffed with deep contentment. "You know," he said, "you are like a Marlboro—clean and fresh and relaxing."

"Yes, I am clean and fresh and relaxing," she admitted. But, all the same, there is a big difference between Marlboro and me, because I do not have an efficacious white Selectrate filter.

They laughed. They kissed. He screamed.

"What is it, hey?" she asked, her attention aroused.

"Look at the speedometer," he said. "We have driven 200 miles, and this car costs two cents a mile, and I have only $20 left."

"But that is exactly enough," she said.

"Yes," he said, "that we still have to drive home."

"Oh," she said, They fell into a profound gloom. He started the motor and backed out of the parking place.

"Hey, look!" she cried. "The speedometer doesn't move when you are backing up."

He looked. It was true. "Eureka!" he cried. "That solves my problem. I will drive home in reverse. Then no more miles will register on the speedometer and I will have enough money to pay!"

"I think that is a smashing idea," she said, and she was right. Because today our hero is in the county jail where food, clothing and lodging are provided free of charge, and his allowance is piling up so fast that in two or three years he will have enough money to take his girl riding again.

FSU To Go 'Big Time'

By DAVE ROSS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Valentines day 1964 will go down as a turning point in Florida State's rise to a big time football. On that day the Board of Control removed itself from the selfish prejudice of the alumni from another well known Florida institution by approving the expansion of Campbell stadium.

The $550,000 from the University's incidental fund will enlarge the stadium from its present 24,000 seating capacity to one of 37,000. However the final okay must be given by the Cabinet Budget Commission.

This expansion could have unlimited physical as well as psychological advantages to Florida State's football program. It will enable FSU to schedule strong teams, such as Tech and Auburn, on a home to home basis. An dwill advance FSU's bid to gain membership in the SEC. But more important to many Seminole fans, it will insure the playing of the next FSU-UF game in Tallahassee.

When the BOC approved the planning funds in January, it asked for tangible evidence that the Seminole football program would receive increasing support. This challenge was met by the friends and alumni of FSU when over 5,200 season tickets were sold.

Now another challenge must be met by the athletic department and football team.

Filling a 37,000 seat stadium will entail good scheduling and a better performance than Seminole football teams have done in the past. There are many schools in this area a football fan can give allegiance to. No one wants to support a loser.

Tallahassee and surrounding areas have met their challenge from the BOC. The '64 Seminoles must meet the challenge from their followers.

Cindermen Take Second In Montgomery Indoor

Saturday the Cindermen of FSU traveled to Montgomery, Alabama, for the eight Coliseum Indoor Track Meet.

Coach Mike Long's team made a fine showing by finishing second behind Northeastern Louisiana State. Finishing in order behind the Seminoles were southwestern Louisiana, southeastern Louisiana and Louisiana Tech.

The results for the Seminoles were as follows:

Saturday afternoon
2 mile — Lankford 3rd; Carrioco 4th

Pole vault — Pharis 2nd
60 yd dash (Preliminaries) — Sabie qualified

Saturday night
1 mile run — Roberts 2nd
60 yd dash (Finals) — Sabie 2nd
600 yd run — McDaniel 1st 1:15.3

Ferry 2nd
60 yd high hurdles — Guthrie 5th
60 yd low hurdles — Guthrie 4th
1000 yd run — Raehn 2nd Winter 4th

1 mile relay — Ferry, Watson, Houston, McDaniel 2nd
High jump — Lorenz 1st (6'2 1/2") Shot put — Williams 1st (56'1")

Hoxit 4th
Broad jump — E. Johnson 5th
The Seminoles took the freshman relay team composed of Landis, Casteel, Nelson and Plummer which placed 2nd in their division.

'Luck' Gets Gus In 1951 OB Loss

Talk about hard luck, Miami's 1951 Orange Bowl team undoubtedly suffered the hard luck loss of all time. After being soundly thrashed by Clemson in the first half (9 to 1 in first downs, 158 to 39 in total yards and 13 to 0 score), the Hurricanes fought back to a 14-13 lead late in the game.

Apparently heading for another score, Miami drew three straight 15 yard penalties. One nullified a score, and the other two long gains. Still another penalty set Miami back to the one yard line, where a safety gave Clemson a 15-14 win. It is not more what Coach Gustafson said to the refs after the game.

ALAN ROLES

Due to a printing error, the picture in the fourth column of yesterday's "Flambeau" was not that of Alan Roles, one of two graduating seniors on the undefeated Seminole Swim team. The picture was that of Richard Abbott, a standout sophomore. Roles is shown above in a practice session.

By JAMES MEYERS
Flambeau Swimming Correspondent

The undefeated Seminole swimming team left early this morning for the Georgia AAU swimming championships at Athens, Ga. Beside FSU, most of the SEC members will be there as well as Miami, the Citadel and a few Carolina schools.

Coach Sults took 32 boys, including 5 divers and a freshman medley relay team. They will stay overnight in Athens and tomorrow will warm up for Saturday's meet. On Friday the preliminaries for diving will take place.

In an interview with Coach Sults, he commented on the meet, "I am sure it will be the biggest swim meet in the South, both for quantity and for quality. We are planning on winning but there will be stiff competition."

The SEC rules have no bearing on the meet. Each team is allowed entries per event. The whole meet will be conducted under the Georgia AAU. For instance, meets an individual is permitted to swim in any three events, but these championship rules he must enter three individual events two relays.

The pool, Stagnant Pool, is a fast one according to reports received at the swimming office. Fourteen swimming events and diving events will be held. Diving coach, Denny Flanagan, said that his divers have a good chance of winning. He said that Montgomery pool has no meter board which will be an advantage. However, with the pool being built, all future meets will be on this level.

Gymkana Club Draws From Student Hard Work, Stamina

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Writer

"With nothing more than hard work and personal stamina, the dedication of these students has helped keep our heritage alive," praised Dr. Hartley Price referring to his gymnasts who were practicing stunts about him in the gym.

"Gymnastics is becoming a fast moving popular spectator sport," observed Gymkana coach Rick Miller. "National competition has been increasing every year. FSU has one of the greatest athletic records in the US, holding five national records and having 12 national and individual Olympic team members."

What makes a person want to be a gymnast? In the words of Ron Schroeder, a physical education major who specializes in adagio routines, "Gymnastics more closely accomplishes the objectives of PE. It involves physical exertion, coordination, strength, endurance, agility and confidence."

Pat Livingston, Janet Perkins and Robert Dennard agree that it gives them a personal satisfaction of having accomplished something. "You feel more awakened, like you belong and haven't wasted your time," Robert and Pat began as Tumblers Tots under the direction of Price.

Other Gymkana members as Karen Beauchamp and Janice Donahue became interested while taking gymnastics as a PE requirement. "Archery was closed, so I chose Gymkana," admits Karen. "It was the best thing that ever happened to me." Karen works with Ron in adagio and has performed on the Gymkana road shows.

Lynn Patrick and Guy Atkinson have always loved working in gymnastics. Lynn, a cheerleader, enjoys fast movement. She now works in tumbling. "It keeps me stimulated and happy. It's like the satisfied feeling you get after studying for three hours and finally close book." Gymnastics to Guy is health-building, and self-confidence. Guy is in free-exercise hopes to enter as many open events as possible.

Gail Strickland became interested while working at a summer job. She enjoys working on the parallel bars and dance routines. Bob Gramling who is one of the improved competitors works on flying rings for "improving physical conditioning."

These and other performers receive from two to four hours of developing their individual skills. "I only wish," commented Miller and Price, "that we could reward them with at least one flying ribbon for their unselfish time and dedication."

Dr. Price and his group are grateful to the support of the state government. Ever since gymnastics was dropped from the budgeted inter-collegiate sport, the state government has backed them to the club so they could continue bring honors to FSU.

FSU Student Peace Delegation To Aid Jailed Peace Marchers

CHRISTY NOEL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Several members of the Students for Peace decided last night to go to Albany, Ga., this weekend to aid peace marchers jailed there. Jim Baum, chairman of SAP, returned on these marchers at last night's meeting. They were participating in the "Quebec-Washington-Louisiana Walk," sponsored by the Committee for Non-Violent Action.

The CNVA is a unilateralist group which wishes countries to disarm.

They distribute leaflets and pamphlets during peace walks, and engage in protest demonstrations at military installations.

The "Q-W-G Walk" had little trouble, according to Baum until they reached Georgia. There, the 26 marchers were arrested while distributing leaflets as they marched through the center of Albany.

Since the racial trouble in Albany, the town officials had asked that there be no "parades" through the center of town.

SAP is greatly concerned about the welfare of the marchers and the success of their march, said Baum. SAP is now writing letters to the officials of Albany asking when the marchers will be released and what the health conditions are.

The SAP is now planning to publish a newsletter called the "Peace-maker."

Jones Says Bureau Good

John E. Jones outlined his plans today for the further development of a more effective Community-Student Relations Bureau.

"A formal link should be established between FSU and the Tallahassee business community," Jones said. He said that the bureau could serve as an agency through which students could make suggestions to merchants.

This bureau, he said, could serve merchants as a gauge of students' needs and tastes in designs, styles and standards of service.

The bureau could also answer student questions about locations of businesses, bus schedules, health services and opening and closing times of establishments.

"Policies and resolutions," said Jones, "could be adopted by the bureau which might alleviate any unpleasant situations between students and merchants."

Five Queried

Radio Station WONS, 1410 kilocycles, announced today that they will interview Student Government candidates on the "Metronome" shows, Sunday and Monday.

The show is broadcast 10 minutes before the hour from 12:50 p.m. to 4:50 p.m. Bob Kerrigan of WONS will interview one candidate at each of the five times.

He will first interview Sherman Henderson, UP candidate for vice president. The next broadcast will be with John Merting, SP candidate for vice president.

Mike DeVane, SP candidate for president, will be interviewed at 3:50 p.m. UP presidential candidate John Jones, will be heard at 3:50 p.m. Jim Taylor, independent presidential candidate, will be interviewed at 4:50 p.m.

The interviews will be rebroadcast at the same times Monday.

Jones Backed

Sherman Henderson, University Party candidate for vice president today, announced his endorsement of the platform released by John Jones, University Party presidential candidate.

Henderson said, "I would like to urge every student to read and understand what the platform will do for the University." He went on to say that he feels that the platform will bring many new and prosperous accomplishments to FSU.

"I hope that all students will realize how much this platform will help to make Florida State greater," he concluded.

Jim Taylor

Taylor Third Man Hopeful Reveals Prexy Platform

Jim Taylor, the independent candidate for student body president, announced his platform today as:

To represent all the students and remove the spoils system from student government.

To improve communications with junior colleges.

To reappoint the student senate.

To work for laundry service for all FSU students on a voluntary basis.

To develop full use of personnel bureau in making all student government appointments.

To work to decrease student apathy toward student government.

To work for a stronger inter-dorm council.

To cooperate in every possible way to get FSU in the Southeastern Conference.

To set up a full time working student program during the summer.

To defend the rights of FSU Negro students.

To work to get a 12 o'clock curfew on week nights and a 1:30 a.m. curfew for weekends for our women students.

To hold a bigger and better student government retreat.

To work to abolish the present FSU R.O.T.C. requirements and work to establish the new officer training program now pending in Congress.

To promote a bigger and better international Student and Peace Corps Week.

To set up a monthly Open Forum to answer student complaints about student government.

Taylor said that he is in complete agreement with the new honor code revisions soon to be voted on by the student body.

VP Shows Own Policy

"Building on experience, I plan to submit to the Student Body a legislative program of consequence," John Merting, candidate for Student Body Vice President, stated today.

Merting said that he feels that it is important for any candidate to discuss with the Student Body the plans and programs he proposes. In this way a candidate's proposals as well as his experience and qualifications may serve as criteria on which to base judgment.

Constitutionally a vice president's first responsibility is to preside over Senate, according to Merting. He experience in Senate has led him to feel that the position presents an opportunity to do more.

He contended that Senate with an experienced leader could take its place as an institution to initiate progress rather than be content to revise existing statutes.

Merting has observed during his work in Senate that early Senate sessions are dominated by old Senators taking the initiative in programs. He would like to establish a written guide to assist new Senators in finding and preparing legislation.

To insure complete and thorough study of legislation and stability of the spoils system, Merting suggests that a majority and minority leadership be initiated.

Mike DeVane

DeVane Reveals Policy; Calls For Seats, Lights

Mike DeVane, Student Party presidential candidate, announced his campaign platform today.

His purpose is to present to the students of FSU a sound economic and feasible platform functioning as the backbone for an administration run according to tested principles—hereofore unheard of in Student Government, said DeVane.

Continued Improvement of the University's Physical Facilities: a) permanent auditorium for the circus; b) lighting and better seating facilities for the baseball team; c) a new electric transportation system; d) the prompt completion of the university promotional movie.

Improved Services for the Student: a) strengthen and broaden a tutoring service for all students; b) development of a plan for student services.

Strengthening the students' voice in University affairs: a) further elimination of faculty control over Student Government affairs; b) greater student representation on University policy making boards; c) removal of outdated Women's Restrictions—through any available means.

Establish more Effective Communication between Student Government and the Student Body. a) administrative newsletter—available weekly; b) forums on student government operations, open to all students.

V. To Institute a Policy of Strict Economy in the Use of Student Registration Fees: a) this will make possible the provision of funds to improve Minor Sports (soccer, sailing, chess, gymnastics).

VI. Civil Rights: a) to maintain open channels of communication for integration disputes involving FSU students, and to keep the Students informed of the rights and arguments of all parties concerned.

VII. To Institute a Vigorous Program of Economy within Student Government: a) immediate elimination of all Bureaucratic Deadweight infesting Student Government; b) institution of a sound and wise student government for the summer semester; c) reappointment of the senate for equal representation by all students.

DeVane said of his platform, "The above proposals can only be accomplished through an administration which can 'breathe'—not one choked by the ever tightening rope of the spoils-system."

Peace Walkers Jailed

To the Editor:
Regardless of your political views, I think you will be interested in this letter which I recently received from the War Resisters League.
Assuming that the facts reported in it are accurate, it makes me wonder just how low conscience and respect for human rights and dignity can fall in a country which calls itself civilized.

"Twenty six persons are in jail in Albany, Georgia. Twenty of the prisoners are on a total fast. . . . This is the second time the group has been jailed in Albany.

They are the Quebec to Guantanamo Peace Team, which has walked all the way from Canada and will eventually attempt to enter Cuba. They have been urging Americans to pursue a new policy toward Cuba. If they are admitted to Cuba they will urge the Cubans to pursue a new policy toward the United States. The twenty six have been jailed for refusing to accept a parade route outlined by Chief of Police Laurie Pritchett. The team has insisted on the constitutional right to walk quietly and in an orderly way through the center of town including specifically the white section.

The presence of Negroes on the team has brought Chief Pritchett to the position that the team may walk only along a street which served as a kind of dividing line between the white and colored sections.

Their experience in Georgia has been particularly unhappy. . . . They were arrested and jailed in Macon, and twice in Albany.

(In both the Macon and the Albany arrests there has been a minimum of police brutality—but conditions in the Albany jail are very bad. Seventeen of the walkers have been put into a room measuring 10x12 feet, with only six beds and those have filthy mattresses.)

Many of the prisoners are fasting for the second time—having gone without food on their earlier arrest. Now, before they have had time to build up their strength, they are back in jail and fasting in protest against arrests they consider illegal.

We believe that letters coming from the North have little influence on the officials in Albany.

We are hopeful that letters from the South—if they are polite, restrained, and carefully written—may help change the situation.

Ask about the law under which the arrests were made; inquire about the health of the prisoners; ask advice on how books and letters may be sent in; inquire as to the date of release.

Please write one or more of the following:

Mayor James V. Davis, 919 9th Avenue, Albany; City Commissioner J.P. Champion, Jr., 202 Third Ave., Albany; City Commissioner Allen F. Davis, 1912 Pine Knoll Lane, Albany; City Commissioner James Denison, City Hall, Albany; City Commissioner J. Gable, 607 Pine Avenue, Albany; City Commissioner W.C. Holman, Jr., 807 6th Avenue, Albany; City Manager Stephen A. Roos, City Hall, Albany; City Physician P.L. Hittman, 1001 3rd Avenue, Albany; Attorney B.C. Gardner, Jr., 302 Flint Avenue, Albany; Gov. Carl Sanders, State Capitol Building, Atlanta, Georgia; Senator Richard Russell, Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D.C.; Senator Herman Talmadge, Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D.C.; Congressman J.L. Pritchett, House Office Building, Washington, D.C.; Judge A.N. Durden, City Hall, Albany, Ga.; Chief of Police Laurie Pritchett, City Hall, Albany.

Letters to Pritchett—who is not the "power" in Albany—are probably less important than letters to the others on the list.

Situations like this are nothing new, of course, but none the less repugnant. Whether you sympathize with the Peace Movement or not isn't the issue involved here.

What is involved is the right of a group to peacefully protest without getting stepped on by someone in authority who disagrees with them. If you feel that the above incident is an example of gross injustice not worthy of our society, please let your feelings be known to one or more of the above officials.

If you applaud the actions of the Albany Police Department, then perhaps you deserve the kind of society which this could lead to.

Voters Should Know Candidates

Once a year the student body of FSU is assaulted with a barrage of propaganda concerning the qualifications of candidates seeking office in the Spring elections. Again students are asked to decipher long lists of qualifications to help in determining their choice. Exactly how these qualifications are manufactured is a story which is hard to believe.

Essentially a candidate derives his qualifications from two major sources—his past experience in the field of endeavor, and his personal characteristics such as native intelligence and determination. Very seldom are personal characteristics listed on campaign posters save casual mention of a grade point average. This type of qualification is hard to manufacture and in many cases word-of-mouth and/or planted rumor is the method by which they become known.

Anyone who has had any practical experience in politics knows that rumor can make or break a candidate overnight. Here at FSU this method of campaigning is used quite liberally, especially insofar as the women voters are concerned.

Lynn Bissland

Qualifications Vital

One of the oddities of politics is explicitly illustrated in the election of high governmental offices whether it be on a national, state, local or city level.

Qualified candidates are many times disregarded or overthrown for charismatic leaders or the ones who voice the loudest criticism of the government. There is no exception on the college campus.

On the FSU campus, "mud-slinging" is a favorite sport and many women usually started by the men and fed into the women's doors. It is unfortunate that emotion and personality enter into campus politics to the extent that they do. A coed will usually look at the "big pin" or appraise a candidate as potential dating material before she will glance at his qualifications or platform.

An adequate picture of the upcoming Student Government election has not been presented to the student thus far by columnists or campaigners. There have been rumors, distortions and falsifications by the prejudiced and extremely vocal writers and campaigners.

As an example of this, in the race for Men's Vice President, it has been implied that one of the candidates has been appointed to various committees because of his relationship with party and fraternity associates in student government. In reality, his ability to produce is shown in his senate record of introducing nearly thirty five percent of the legislation which has been enacted this year.

As for qualifications, there are those who say that membership or participation in "idiotic" committees are not important to disagree. Qualifications are important because of the transition of Student Government to new facilities and a change on the hill, including Dean of Students and Associate Vice Presidents who are not acquainted with the executive branch will require an entire trimester just to become oriented and educated to the responsibilities of their respective offices.

Candidates constitute a great bulk of the necessary government operation which keeps Student Government operating on the pitch that it does.

The main propagators of false rumors are the freshman women and for some reason the best and most absurd tales emanate from Jennie Murphree Hall, having been planned there by some witty campaign manager. However, at times the situation is just as bad in the upperclass coed dorms. This is the case year in and year out many qualified candidates fall prey to idle gossip. There is nothing more pathetic than a candidate who is being destroyed by false rumors. There is nothing more despicable than a person who spreads rumor as if it were fact. The qualifications which are most easily manufactured are those concerning experience. There are two main ways a candidate can obtain experience; (1) it can be given to him by appointment through an officeholder, or (2) he can earn it himself by getting elected to an office. This is the all important experience. Did the candidate earn his qualifications or were they given to him?

Long lists of committees and/or bureaus are highly questionable as qualifications in as many uses they are as they are in many uses they reflect who someone's friends are.

For example, committee work in student insurance, student union activities and the student bank directly influences student affairs and requires a large amount of time on the part of the student participating on the respective committee.

In addition, junior college students are becoming more of an influence on the campus as a vocal voice on the campus. Their previous work should not be vain simply because of transferring from a two year to a four year college. Junior colleges such as Jacksonville State have an enrollment of 8,500, are expanding and are nearly as large as FSU.

This does not qualify the transfer student however, who waits until the spring election to become interested in working in Student Government or running for an office.

Is there any reason why the candidate who has had practically no experience in Student Government should assume office simply because he has "dared" to voice complaints against the existing administration? A man whether he has won an election before or not, who is closely connected with the student government and student body is more adequately prepared to assume leadership.

Speaking of qualifications, potential Student Body President should have a versatile and broad outlook on all areas of the campus and be familiar with the respective problems rather than limit himself to a social fraternity or drinking club. Of the three candidates for president, there is one who is vastly more qualified and experienced than the other two. There is no reason in holding this experience against him.

To sum up, it is up to the individual student to meet and appraise each candidate and his qualifications for the office he is seeking and overlook rumors and observations by the apathetic students and critics of student government. I say this: Is your chance to have any voice in campus events and ask any question you choose. Take advantage of it.

rather than his ability. By designating a selected person to represent the student body, the ruling party can almost at will, without true cabinet positions to the lower committee member. This political maneuvering can and is being done here at FSU in a very sad manner.

In fact, one candidate running one of the three major offices never won an election for a student government office. Almost all the qualifications stem from the fact that he is a friend of those in power. This doesn't mean that he isn't able and qualified, but then again hasn't earned his qualifications through the ballot box either.

Another case in point is the candidate who is running for one of the three major offices based on his previous experience at FSU. While it is true that he has worked in his junior college, this can be construed as a qualification for a major office here. Yet, this candidate will probably win because of other people's ideas that he has been announced publicly under his name. The previous statement is impossible to prove, but political pulse readers suspect it is true. The aforementioned tactic coupled with strictly party line line voting have resulted in this candidate being ostensibly more qualified than his opponent.

The question must be asked, is this sort of politics good for FSU? While it is true that the student body being hoodwinked by seemingly endless lists of qualifications, the candidates, if you aren't sure, just assume all the facts, posts, bureaus, and other appointments and judge on what is said.

All of the previous comments made with one purpose—to make you aware of the fact that qualifications are being manufactured by candidates. When a candidate comes to your dorm room or meeting, ask him a few questions. His qualifications he actually earned. I owe it to yourself and to FSU.

For Is Basis

To the Editor:
I read with dismay the editorial in the "Flambeau" Monday, February 17, 1964, excoriating FSU for programming a "cultural forum of the air rather than entertainment." Since the "Flambeau" has often remarked upon the cultural desert it is hard to understand why its editor wishes to despoil one of the oases.

Contrary to Mr. Collins' opinion, a few new residents of Tallahassee, including some faculty students, who prefer "music to listening" to background noises, are studying by, may I suggest, local commercial FM station. Although it may be true that programming of WFSU-FM is the work of a small group of directors, please record at least one devoted listener who much prefers the taste to that of Mr. Collins.

Cultural Landscape Always Changing

By LOUISE RAUSCHERT
Flambeau Feature Writer

People take the raw materials of the land on which they live and make the land a cultural landscape which constantly changing, according to Louis Chestang, in his American Studies lecture entitled, "The American As An Exploiter of the Surface of the Earth."

Chestang's general theory was set forth in 1928, when he stated that man living on the surface of the earth works with and on the raw materials and converts them into a cultural landscape.

Chestang stated that in the United States there are two general periods of land exploitation. The first period ends from the end of the American Revolution to the beginning of the 20th century. During this time people were approaching the use of land in wandering ignorance. "No one was quite sure of the quality of the land base," stated Chestang, and methods of agriculture brought from Europe did not always work. Furthermore, these Americans were seeking a break with European ways.

This period began satisfactorily, but toward the end it was bringing declining returns, according to Chestang.

Chestang feels that the second period, from the turn of the century to the present, shows much more concern for the application of scientific technique.

From 1910 through the 1930's there was a great increase in the number of works on assessments of land bases in the United States. By 1938 there were a number of books published on the subject, including "Soils and Men" the most complete assessment of U.S. soils ever made.

After World War I, there was a problem of land exploiters who were ruining farmland by using the same techniques in every part of the country. "The assumption was that all land was uniform in quality," said Chestang, but land qualities vary tremendously.

After World War II, many people had money to buy land, and did. With superior techniques and increasing surpluses, the rural populations declined and people moved to the cities. With people concentrated into relatively small areas, new land needs were created, said Chestang. Land must be set aside for recreational purposes. Superhighways take a huge amount of space—85 acres for one mile of road.

Cities spread out over more and more area, and the land in a city must be carefully zoned. In many situations the opening of one new street or the construction of one new building may raise or decrease the value of surrounding property hundreds of dollars.

Another problem involves the mobility of today's population. "With increasing time to get out, there is always this extension of your realm of use," stated Chestang. He believes that this fact raises the question of who is responsible for the use of land and who has the right to interfere with its maintenance.

Resolution Recommended On Laundry Requirements

By JANE FRANZINO

A resolution recommending alterations in the laundry requirements was rescinded in Women's Senate Tuesday.

The resolution, requiring compulsory laundry fees for only freshman men and women, although rescinded, will not be entirely dropped. Through a resolution introduced in Student Senate yesterday, a joint committee of men and women senators will be selected to work on this issue. Their findings will be submitted to the senate by March 4.

A resolution to urge better telephone service for all campus pay phones was unanimously accepted. Women's Senate will write a letter to the telephone company to encourage more efficient service.

A resolution clarifying the five mile limits for which women students are required to sign out was unanimously accepted. Women's Senate will make available maps showing these limits by the beginning of trimester III.

Through the actions of Women's Senate and the approval of Dean Oglesby, junior counselors will now be appropriated five dollars per trimester for operating expenses.

Women's Vice President Clyda Stokes also announced that unfortunately the traditional upperclassman women's convocation would be discontinued. It is the opinion of the faculty and students that due to night classes, rush, time elements, and the change in pace in university life, since the trimester system has been incorporated, that the attendance is not sufficient to continue this tradition.

Tandem Race Set Tomorrow

Twenty-five Greek organizations are entered in the TEP-Chi O Bike Race to be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in front of the men's gym.

"Gay 90" costumes will be worn by the fraternity men and sorority women who ride the tandem bikes. The bikes will be furnished by the United Rental of Tallahassee.

Trophies will be presented to the race winners and a plaque to the costume winner. Judges for the race are Dr. W.W. Rogers and J.P. Jones both of the history dept. A surprise judge is also planned.

Proceeds will go to the Campus Chest.

Personnel Forms Being Delivered

The Personnel Forms for students interested in working in Student Government have been delivered to all dorms, scholarship houses and Greek houses during the past week.

Students who have not been able to obtain one of these forms should see the president of their living areas. Students off-campus who wish to obtain a form may pick one up at the Main Desk in the lobby of Longmire.

All interested students may fill out a form and turn it in to either of the above mentioned places.

There will be a file kept and used whenever appointments need to be made.

There is room for a large number of students to work in Student Government and students will to work are all assured of a position.

Leapyear Dance

Men have become rather scarce on campus this week in anticipation of the "Mate's Chase" Dance to be tomorrow night from 9 p.m. to midnight in the Swan Room.

Sponsored by the Freshman class, the dance is in honor of leap year and the time-old tradition of women inviting men to the affair.

Rick Powell's Band will be featured along with folk singers, and tickets are $1 per couple. The dance will begin as soon as the Jacksonville game is over.

AND THE DEEP SEA

THERE'S A WIDE RANGE OF OPPORTUNITY IN THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

To outer space and into the deep sea, we take the sum total of our scientific and managerial knowledge. A case in point is Telstar, which represents the first step toward a worldwide communications system. Another example, the new deep-sea amplifier that simultaneously transmits two-way messages. Both communications triumphs stem from Bell System planning, research and development.

Such trailblazing projects command the best of managerial and scientific talent. That's why you'll find, throughout the Bell System, men with college training as diverse as the responsibilities they shoulder. Their backgrounds run the gamut from liberal arts and business courses to science or specialized engineering majors.

Admittedly, the work is demanding. It requires that unusual caliber of man who finds a greater satisfaction in challenge than in ready solution...who is eager to see his education yield dividends...who wants an immediate opportunity for leadership.

Men with this kind of impatience will discover the stimulation, welcome and rewards they seek in the telephone business.

BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES

Usual Trends Ahead In Packaging

Junior will soon be squirting a fore," said Chandler. "Or you simply won't be in business."

If you're in the packaging business, he said, it's going to be increasingly difficult to get attention. Women spend an average of 20 to 25 minutes in a supermarket and in one minute's time pass by 260 different items. It's the package with the split second sales punch that is picked up.

Time is becoming more valuable than money and people simply don't like to mess around a lot looking for the best buy.

Not only will products have to be packaged to appeal to the quickest shopper, they will have to be designed "for ease and speed of use."

The tear-tab can will be followed by quick-open cans for soft drinks, then for soups and then for other things.

As for aerosols, candidates already are peanut butter, health and diet foods, butter for popcorn, juices and pancake batter."

This year will see the introduction of the first bottle caps or crowns that can be opened with a flick. Jimbo milk boxes are available which allow the housewife to dispense milk with a plastic and pour-spout built into the cap. Meal preparation, he foresees, will be a lot quicker in the future, the not-too-distant future, we're going to see microwave ovens capable of cooking entire meals in a minute or playrooms and dishwashers use ultra-high frequency waves instead of water—"all because of time problem."

"In fact, if I knew a way to package time and market it, I'd be the richest man on earth," he added.

As a part of the program, Alpha Delta Sigma accepted two of speakers, Chandler and Sheen, professional members. Professional membership was bestowed on Ned Hubbard, president of Jacksonville advertising agency.

JIM TAYLOR

Taylor Believes SG Avoids Major Issues

"Student Government has had many opportunities to do good for the student body this year, and has avoided it."

This was Jim Taylor's appraisal of Student Government. Taylor is an independent candidate for Student Body President. He said that he was specifically concerned about the Senate's lack of a stand on the integration issue, inactivity on reapportionment, and the spoils system. His stand on integration, he said, was similar to the one expressed by the faculty in their ad in the "Flambeau." As for reapportionment, he would like to work on legislation similar to that proposed by Senator Mack McKinnon.

"McKinnon has been hollering all year about reapportionment and the Senate has done nothing."

As an independent Taylor said that he has a better chance to eliminate the spoils system. He has no preconceived notions and must select people by their qualifications.

Taylor said that he would use the new Personnel Bureau to select his staff. "Supporting me doesn't guarantee a position in Student Government."

"Student spathy this year," he said, "is caused because Student Government ignores the students, and the students give up on them." This was particularly true with the Class Officer Program mandate, he said. He said that Student Government officers are elected to represent the students, therefore they would listen to the students.

To alleviate this problem, Taylor would have an open forum once a month where students could voice their complaints. He would also solicit criticism from "The Flambeau" and student opinion polls.

As an example, he said that he would like to take a student poll on the Artist Series. "Students have not been asked who they would like to see. They should have more say so where they money is spent," he said.

In working with Senate, Taylor said that he would exert pressure and work to benefit the student body. Many senators only work when campaigning for office, he claimed. This, coupled with "petty politics" makes one of the major problems for an efficient student government, he said.

Taylor, a junior college transfer student, does not think this limits his qualifications, even though he has not worked in Student Government at FSU.

As an independent, and by-stander, he feels that he has a better idea of what the students want. He doesn't think the other candidates exceed him in government qualifications since he was President at Miami-Dade Junior College.

Taylor's other qualifications include: president pro-tem of Senate at Miami-Dade Junior College at freshman class senator, a member of Circle K, and vice president of Epsilon Delta.

At FSU he is a member of Circle K, student FEA, the Young Democrats and Liberal Forum.

The Sigma Nu Sweetheart, Sara Godfrey, Zeta Tau Alpha, will be serenaded by a future date.

New pledges are John Broughton and Bruce Hatchet.

Sigma Phi Epsilon -- At Saturday night's Valentine Dance, Judy Cumble, Kappa Kappa Gamma, was presented as the Sig Ep's Valentine Sweetheart. Induction ceremonies for the charter members of the Little Sisters of the Golden Heart is planned for this week.

The actives will have work party tomorrow morning as a part of the pledges' active participation plans. At yesterday's scholarship dinner, brothers with a 3.0 or better enjoyed the snack while the clods ate beans and franks.

The pledging of Aaron Brum and Al Good pushed the pledge class total to 22. Barry Milled is the new special events chairman.

Sigma Sigma Sigma -- The Tri Sig's were visited by the national college representative last week. Larry O'Dea was presented as the Tri Sig's man of the year at the Valentine's banquet Saturday.

New initiates are Elaine Bowles, Nancy Carlson, Suleym Davison, Bobbie Ferrell, Connie Fluhr, Mary.

Confederate Army Letters Donated To The Special Collection Department

Some 50 letters, both personal and business, that passed between a Confederate Army captain and local merchant Julius Diamond over 100 years ago have been added to the Captain Hugh Black papers being compiled by Strozler Library's Special Collections Dept.

A record of the correspondence between the two friends became a part of the special collection through a gift of the letters this week from Mrs. Lawrence O'Dea, granddaughter of the recipient of many of the letters.

Included in the correspondence is a statement from Captain Black to Miss Diamond's father for accounts running from Oct. 3, 1887, through Nov. 12, 1888, and listing such items as a cravat at $25, collar at $15 and shoes at $1.50 a pair.

Many of the letters were sent between the years 1862 and 1863 and reveal in addition to a historical account of the times, a warm personal friendship between the Captain and both Julius Diamond and his son, Sidney.

The collection also includes a letter to the Hon. Hugh Black from J.B. Whitfield, treasurer of the state of Florida at the time (1890) and later Supreme Court Justice. A few of the better records correspondence between Captain Black and his wife, Mrs. Mary Harvey Black. They were written while he was in the Confederate Army.

The letters will be added to the Captain Hugh Black papers (1862-63) given to the library in 1956 by Mrs. O'Dea's mother, Mrs. Mattie Black Hopkins, according to N. Orwin Rush, director of libraries. Julius Diamond was born March 10, 1853, in Germany. After coming to America, he first settled in Pittsburgh, but later came to Tallahassee where he established his own mercantile business.

Grant Received

A grant of $14,205 has been received from the National Science Foundation for another summer research institute at FSU for college teachers of psychology.

The institute, which will be from June 12 to Aug. 12, is designed to provide research opportunities for teachers who find it difficult to do research during the regular academic year.

Director of the summer institute, Dr. B.B. Scarborough of the FSU Psychology Dept., added that the psychologists selected for the institute must have a master's degree in a science area. A basic stipend of $75 a week is provided for predoctoral students and $100 for postdoctorals with extra allowances for dependents.

With approval by the NSF of a research program, an allowance of $2,000 will be made to the home institution of each participant.

The School of Music sponsored recital will be at 8:15 p.m. Assisting the two instrumentalists will be Dr. John Boda at the piano. Wain Sr., professor of woodwind instruments and music education at Oberlin Conservatory of Music, will open the program with Robert Schumann's "Phantasie," Op. 73. Fantasy Pieces, Following Sonatas by Brahms and Poulenc, he will be joined by his son in the performance of "Sonatine en Trio, Op. 85" by Florent Schmitt.

Wain has been soloist and guest conductor throughout the United States and wrote "Elementary Clarinet Method" published by Belwin. Past president of the National Association of College Wind and Percussion Instructors, he has also been editor of "Woodwind Clinic" in the "Instrumentalist Magazine" since the magazine was first published in 1946.

His son, Ronald, is a member of the Faculty Woodwind Trio of FSU, and doubles on flute and bassoon. Prior to joining the music faculty in 1959, Wain played with the Great Neck and Brooklyn Symphonies in New York and with the Jacksonville and Pensacola orchestras in Florida. He is a former first flutist with the Tenth and First Air Force Bands.

Boda, accompanist for the recital, is associate professor of piano and composition. Adept in three fields, he is a composer, a former apprentice conductor to George Szell of the Cleveland Symphony and is in demand for solo piano recitals.

Hatfield Enthusiastic About Seminole Diamond Chances

By GENE BALLARD

Head Baseball Coach Fred Hatfield is very enthusiastic about his team's chances in the 1964 season. "We're strong overall. Fourpitching comes through, we'll go a long way.

Strong spot for the Seminoles this year will be the outfield, where Mike Augustine, Monty McBrayer, Danny Litwhiler, and Bob Wilcox return. Augustine was named to the College All-American team last year, and led the Seminoles in hitting.

The infield is also strong. First base is in the capable hands of Gary Nichols. Coach Hatfield says that he is impressed with Nichols. He has great hands according to the Seminole mentor.

Linkers Look To Gators

Florida State's golf team opens its 1964 season here this Saturday with the University of Florida.

The linkmen have only two returning lettermen from last year's Florida Intercollegiate Champions. The squad, led by veterans John Parsons and Mark Blair, is rounded out by Denny Lyons, Richie Karl, John Danielson, and either Ron Melnikowski or Bill Bourwell.

Florida's Gators have participated in two meets thus far this season, defeating Jacksonville Navy twice. The Seminoles' match with Jacksonville Navy was cancelled because of rain.

Saturday's match will be the first played over FSU's new nine hole course which opened last August. The next meet will be February 29th with the Gators in Gainesville.

Sailing Lessons

Sailing lecture and instruction in Flying Junior sailboats will be offered this Saturday, February 22, at 10 at the Reservation for all those interested in sailing. Bus transportation is available at 9:45 in front of Bryan Hall. For more information contact Diane Kenney in 115 Reynolds, Ext. 3770.

Jimmy Reed, last year's leadoff man, returns at second base. This flyer little man is backed by Bob Taft.

Fighting it out for shortstop and third base are Dave Dahlen, Bill Burse and Larry Johnson. Johnson will be used at third if Burse or Dahlen can handle shortstop. Otherwise it will be Johnson at short and Dahlen at third.

Catching has depth with Ken Suarez, Paul Dirks, Jim Norman and Bill Sparkman handling the chores. Coach Hatfield says that Suarez and Dirks have the advantage right now, but that Norman and Sparkman are coming along.

The pitching staff is the major trouble spot. With only Marty Howell returning from the varsity, experience is not in supply. Coach Hatfield says that Cliff Renee, John Smith, Joe Creely and Bob Monroe have come through at surprises and will fight it out for starting berths. Don Murry will add depth if he solves his control problem.

Gary Williamson and Gary Chiemolski will be the bullpen artists. Williamson had arm trouble last year, and Chiemolski was the third baseman.

A hard problem to solve will be the meat end of the batting order. Last year's third, fourth and fifth batters all graduated. It will be hard to replace Woody Woodward, Buddy Teagle and Billy Williamson, but Coach Hatfield is not worried. "I don't think we need to worry about power with our speed. I think that Gary Nichols and Bob Wilcox will be able to provide the needed punch."

The highlight of Florida State's schedule will be the Florida State Invitational Tournament. Participating will be Georgia Tech, Northeast Louisiana State, Amherst, Duke, North Carolina, Wake Forest, Michigan State, Mississippi State and FSU. Former Coach Danny Litwhiler will bring his Michigan State team to play against the Seminoles for the first time.

In swimming, a one hour practice is necessary. Women may enter up to three swimming events. Practices and events will take place in the pool during the hours of 6:30-7:30 p.m.

RESULTS: The new officers of the WRA are president, Shirley Hardison, vice-president, Sherry Alligier, secretary, Fleg Fleming; treasurer, Gloria Foster, recorder, Mary Berry, Toner, and publicity chairman, Beverly Piercefield.

Subscribe Five Preps For Jacksonville

Florida State, playing its final home game of the season, meets Jacksonville University for the first since 1959 tonight in a game that looms larger than did a month ago.

The FSU Seminoles, now 9-12 for the year, have a long shot at a winning season. With four remaining games, they could end it at 13-12, but that would mean victories over J.U., Stetson, Miami and Georgia, the last three on the road.

Inspired by playing before an Atlanta crowd, the Tribe dropped their third in a row to Georgia Tech, 77-73 in overtime, Saturday. The loss gave them a 1-11 road record, and came on the heels of losses to Centenary and Memphis State.

The visiting Dolphins of Jacksonville met FSU once before, in the 1959 Gator Bowl Tournament, and FSU won 86-69. Tonight's meeting is their first regular season get-together.

The Dolphins, led by 6-2 guard Ralph

Tiner, are 13-10, winning the game in a romp over Rollins 69. Coach Dick Kendall's team, the Stars, Smiley Ralph is a State, had dropped nine away home and won one.

Kendall is an FSU graduate who played for Kennedy on the 1948 and 1949-50 Seminole teams.

Tiner is the JU key: "Trash" Tiner by admiring as he is adept at turning loose into the Stars. Smiley Ralph is 20 years old and a service veteran. He leads the Dolphins with a 23.1 average per game. He led the Stars against Rollins with 30.9. Gary Schull, the Seminole sophomore center, now faces a challenge from team captain Rogers for point leadership.

Novice 'Strangles' Walleye

By Ted Kesting

We were visiting a friend who runs a boat livery on a Miami lake when we saw a young fellow doing the worst job of casting we had ever seen. He was in a row boat with 100 yards off shore and was spending at least nine tenths of his time picking out awful backlashes.

His first time out?" asked Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

"Second," said Tom, the livierman. "He was out once before with a couple of fellows who knew a little about how to do it, and he seems to have caught the fishing bug."

We had forgotten him, and were chatting, when we heard a wild yell from out on the water. The young city man had the out—and was frantically rowing in. He couldn't row properly, splashed enormously and progressed in a crazy zigzag.

"Gimme a landing net! Gimme a big landing net, quick! A big fish broke my line, and I want to go back out and get him!"

We looked at each other knowingly, and by almost superhuman self-control kept from laughing.

"Here you are!" said Tom, and thrust his largest net into the man's hand.

He tore madly back to the shore, got wet to above his knees shoving the boat out, tossed into it and started out on the same inept zigzag.

What's funny, you may ask, about an absolute dud at fishing making a complete fool of himself?

This:

He was soon returning to shore — doing slightly better rowing since he wasn't so scared. He waved up to Tom.

"Got a scale that will weigh this fish?"

Tom had. He put the walleye on it. The scale showed exactly 13 1/2 pounds. It was the biggest walleye I've ever known of existing from that lake, though particularly outstanding for this species.

The city man put the fish in his rod in his car and drove off. It was some time before Tom could even say that he'd been damned. We could only stare at each other and shake our heads.

It seemed, from the novice's brief remarks, that the big fish had hung in such fashion that he held the walleye's mouth wide open, so that it probably was strangling—if that's what you call what happens to a fish that can't breathe. At the surface, he had stayed at the surface, busy trying to shake loose the plug that it had let itself get netted.

Jones Offers New Policy Changes To Meet Challenges Of New Times

"Student Government must change with the changing times," is the idea which forms the basis for John Jones' platform.

Graduate students, junior college transfers, and the student union are three points in which Jones sees a need for a change in student government.

"Graduate students are an integral part of our university, and I would like to see them take a more active part in Student Government," Jones said today.

By 1970 FSU will have about 4000 graduate students. They have only a small say in student government now through their senator.

Jones believes that student government has a lot to offer graduates, and that it could in turn benefit from their knowledge and experience. He proposes to include them in the executive branch and on committees and commissions.

Another point in which change is needed, according to Jones, is with the Junior College transfers. They often have a great deal to offer, but fail to get into Student Government until late in their junior year. Jones means they can only participate about a year.

Jones proposes to establish a special orientation in Student Government for Junior College students. He would go to the Junior Colleges and explain student government at FSU so that the students could become active immediately upon entering.

A third point of change is involved with the Student Union. FSU will soon have some of the best facilities available. If the students are to receive the maximum benefit from these facilities, Student Government will have to take an active part in the Union.

Jones wants to lead a dynamic and flexible Student Government through the changes he proposes.

Students Help Free Marchers in Albany

BOB CORNET
Staff Writer

Members of the Students Act Peace Committee were given credit for freeing of peace marchers jailed in Albany, Ga., today.

Ed Baum, Bruce Huston, Brenda Tom Riggins, Anthony Barlow, Irene Levin, Kate Rost, Stella Milner and Fred Gladstone traveled to Albany Saturday to free jailed marchers.

While the group was there, the Committee for Non-Violent Action negotiators were able to free the marchers. The CNVA said that the presence of the FSU delegation directly influenced the decision of the Albany officials.

The CNVA also gave credit to the Canadian Consulate, which complained to the US State Department about the treatment of Canadian citizens who were among the jailed marchers.

The British Committee of 100 also applied pressure because of the presence in the Albany jail of John Papworth, a committee field secretary.

Though not involved in the actual negotiations, the FSU group did help transport the freed marchers to Koinonia Farm, Americus Ga. Marchers will remain there until they continue their march.

Baum, chairman of SAP, said that the 17 marchers had been fasting for at least 20 days, and need time to recover.

According to Baum, the marchers have decided to change their proposed route. They will march through Tallahassee, March 3, starting at FSU going to Florida A and M and then through downtown Tallahassee.

That night they will hold a meeting in Tallahassee.

Baum also said that A.J. Muste, chairman of the CNVA will be in Tallahassee March 2 to confer with city officials about the march. He will speak in Tallahassee that night.

GREETING MARCHERS

Students leave the Albany jail are members of the FSU Students Act Peace group which travelled to Albany yesterday.

Gamma Sigma Sigma Forms Newly Chartered Branch Here

A new chapter of the service organization, Gamma Sigma Sigma, has been established on campus, with 10 charter members.

The club became affiliated with the national organization in 1963. It was formally chartered yesterday at FSU in Longmire.

The new chapter is the second chapter in Florida. The first chapter was established at the University of Miami.

SG Elections Sample Slate

Ten Student Government offices will be filled in the primary election tomorrow.

The official ballot issued by the Elections Commission lists the offices and candidates with a space for write in candidates on some ballots. Write-in ballots must be requested.

Student Body President: Mike DeVane SF, John Jones UF, Jim Taylor, Vice President of Student Body: Sherman Henderson UF, John Merting SF.

Men's Vice President: Jack Cannon SF, Ed Scott UF.

Women's Vice President: Joyce Killian UF.

Secretary of Student Senate: Sandra Brooks UF, Jean Norman SF.

Chief Justice of Honor Court: Hines Boyd, Ray Whitehead.

Chairman of Traffic Court: Vickie Voyles SF.

Student Board of Publications: Al Galbraith SF, Bobbie Haynie UF.

The Commission urges that every student vote in the election in order to have a voice in Student Government.

Beatles Hit Miami Beach

The Flambeau was again first on the newsfront of the nation when special reporter Elizabeth Hayes was among those breathlessly waiting for the appearance of the world-renowned "Beatles" in Miami last weekend.

It was a balmy, quiet Sunday afternoon in Miami, but at the Deauville Hotel, two blocks of screaming, pushing, fainting teenagers shattered the usual dignity of the hotel lobby. The Ed Sullivan Show was to be broadcast; a rehearsal had been scheduled for the evening. However, the teens were not present to see Ed Sullivan, but rather his featured stars, those mop-topped Brits, the Beatles.

Talking with their manager, Bryan Somerville, I asked a little about the group's background. They have known each other for eight years, ever since they were school boys at Scifford. John Lennon organized the group, which originally called itself Long John and the Silver Beatles.

Somerville stated that their name, the Beatles, was a derivation from the word "beat", meaning musical beat, and their original name.

Asked about the price of haircuts in England, Somerville said in his cockney accent, "I don't know, you see, the boys trim their own." "We had a kidnap scare this morning," Somerville reported. "John was missing and we had the police searching the hotel from roof to basement. Finally, we found him sound asleep behind one of the stage sets."

Scott Makes Appeal For More Productive Senate

"In seeking the Men's Vice Presidency, my objective is to insure a dynamic and productive Senate, one capable of meriting respect both from students and administrative officials alike," said Ed Scott, University Party candidate for Men's Vice President today.

Cannon Sees Senate Failings

"Men's Senate, created to fill a vital need on our campus, has long failed to meet its obligation," Jack Cannon, Student Party Men's Vice President candidate, said today.

While Knowledge for College has many points objectionable to everyone, it is a problem of Women's Senate, he said. Men should confine their interest in this campaign to the "Less popular but more pertinent problems of men students."

Among the problems he listed: furthering the program of the inter-college exchange; encouraging the study of the transportation problems in relation to the men's dorms, and furthering a responsiveness system which would provide for a better representation of men's senators.

Scott said that Senate is the branch of Student Government most closely linked to the student body. Therefore, it must have a constant awareness of the needs of its student body.

Scott outlined as some of these needs: revision of women's rules, extension of programs for International Students, and communication between Student Government and the student body.

He also said that students can be instrumental in the state wide promotion of FSU.

Scott added that if elected he would initiate an education program for men senators. This program would cover parliamentary procedures, the fundamentals of drawing up bills and ethics of diplomacy and protocol in senate meetings.

The new men senators will be given a study guide and later on will be tested on the material.

The candidate for the Men's Vice Presidency added that he felt men senators were not voicing their opinions. "It takes them a while to catch on."

The purpose of the program, Scott said, "is to get the menoritized senatorial procedure the first week instead of waiting."

Veep Endorses Candidate

To the Editor:

As the present Men's Vice President, I would like to offer full endorsement to Ed Scott in his candidacy for Men's Vice President.

There are several reasons why I believe Ed Scott is the best candidate for this office. First, he has served this year as President Pro Tem of Men's Senate and consequently has a sound working knowledge of what this office entails.

Second, Ed has had three years experience in legislative bodies at Florida State and in two junior colleges. This experience is invaluable and will enable Ed to institute needed programs at the outset of his administration, instead of spending valuable time in learning the workings of the Senate.

Third, Ed has an abundance of sound ideas and the ability to see them through to completion. As proof of this, Ed has a solid reputation for being a hard working Senator this year, having introduced 37 percent of all Senate legislation to date.

The Men's Vice Presidency is an important position. Elect a qualified man to serve in it—Ed Scott.

Junior College Transfer Students Aren't Overlooked

To the Editor:

As junior college transfer students we feel that a reply must be given to student party columnist Sandy Turner who has made some unsupported statements concerning the ability of Junior College transfer students to perform major leadership tasks on this campus.

Due to the expansion of the state educational system through the media of the Junior college, the transfer student has become an increasingly important part of FSU life. There are no indications that this trend will abate. In fact, all indications point to a massive increase. Surely one cannot overlook this great pool of leadership talent. Thankfully, one group has not overlooked an opportunity to utilize this resource. It is evident that the University Party has provided a vehicle through which qualified and experienced students may equally compete for major political offices on this campus regardless of their stature as a Junior college transfer, greek affiliate, or an independent.

Ed Scott, University Party candidate for Men's Vice President, is an outstanding example of one Junior college leader who has made effective use of his Junior college background to become an active, respected member of the Florida State University Student Government.

Ed has had two years previous Senate experience at Junior College and has served as President Pro Tem of Men's Senate and Precinct Senator at FSU. As precinct senator he has initiated thirty-seven percent of all Senate legislation this year. Of this eighty-eight percent has passed. By supporting candidates such as Ed Scott, the University Party has shown the student body that there is a place for a Junior college transfer student in Florida State University's Student Government.

Promise Them Anything...But Give

If there is one thing that FSU can be proud of it is the ability of the politicians in Longmire to dream up new ways to spend the student's registration fees. It would be a welcome relief to hear some candidate announce that he is going to cut back expenditures and use more effectively the funds available.

Every Spring the candidates in the major elections announce their platforms. They are necessarily vague and open to broad interpretation, but rarely does one candidate's platform differ from another's. Even rarely is a plain-blank disagreement between two candidates.

Unfortunately, it seems that spending more money for more things is in vogue. In theory, the more money you are going to spend the more people will vote for you. Therefore, put it in your platform that you will spend some money on everybody's special interest and you will win in a landslide. There is a catch—there never is enough money and dreams can't afford much relief via donations to student government.

Because of limited funds, the cornucopia of promises made by candidates of these people, such as the case promises look fine on paper, but around the end of June there are still a lot of brokenhearted people. Many of these people, such as the case with the FSU soccer team have worked hard to bring honor to the University. Yet, they are denied even a small amount because some bureaucrat wants to print some redundant pamphlet that should be properly filed in the nearest trash receptacle.

It is high time that some of the candidates displayed some semblance of fiscal integrity. What Student Government needs is someone who can find new sources of income to fulfill the new needs.

One word that seems to have appeared from the candidates' lexicon is "economy." Economy around Longmire is couched in terms of limited funds. Secretary of Finance Bill Branch is dilatory in trying to match the needs with funds available. His dilemma will be less difficult if he was able to come up with some sort of economy drive to shake a stick with the money. But, what candidate ever dared to mention the "savings."

Sadly, it appears as if FSU is headed to another year of free-spending, peddling campaign forms. Has any major candidate declared himself against anything Longmire has more bureaucratic than anyone else. Please, someone stop spending and applying for bureaus so the soccer team have what they deserve (and the student body).

Party Nominations Are Desirable

Our campus political parties today are meaningless to the average college student simply because no one has bothered to supply these students with accurate information about their history and present functions. Most students don't realize the advantages and benefits of a party nomination.

One of the most important advantages that a candidate who is nominated by a political party has over a candidate who is not nominated by such an organization is the expense limit or the amount of money that one can spend on a campaign or a given office.

The student body constitution lists the maximum amount of money that may be spent by a college candidate for an elective office, and it also states that a political organization may spend as much money as the total maximum expenses for all legally nominated candidates. Therefore, a candidate who is nominated by a political party may spend twice as much money on a campaign as a candidate who does not have the nomination.

The support that a candidate receives is also greatly enhanced by a party nomination because all of the fraternities, sororities and other interest groups that belong to a party will naturally vote for that party's nominee. This will give the nominated candidate for a substantial number of votes before he begins active campaigning, whereas, one who does not have a party nomination has no assurance of votes. Candidates who represent a political party, also have the added advantage of convention publicity, superior organization, and more campaign facilities over a non-party candidate.

Before 1962, the Student Party was the only party on campus that served as an official vehicle for candidates to run for an office. Due to the many advantages of receiving a party nomination, and because it was the only political organization on campus, the Student Party became very exclusive and to a degree, undemocratic. The Student Party would often hold pre-convention caucuses in which the leaders of the party would select, before the convention, the individuals whom they wanted to receive the party nomination. To insure that these selected individuals would receive the party nomination, the chairman of the Student Party would choose delegates to the party convention who were of a particular interest group.

The pre-convention selection of candidates and delegates of interest groups robbed the Student Party convention of floor fights and sharp competition for the party nomination. Even in this year's Student Party convention there was no competition for the major offices.

In 1962 a group of individuals broke away from the Student Party, formed another party on a democratic basis. The University Party constitution was drafted with emphasis on the worth of the individual, and guarantees were put in this constitution to insure that a single interest group would dominate the convention.

The University Party constitution states that delegates who represent dormitories or married students cannot belong to a fraternity, sorority and that one half of the students must be of an independent status.

The University Party's constitution promotes more competition for the offices and through this democratic selection process attempts to give candidates for offices who are better qualified to represent the students. This year, the University Party convention was one of the most competitive and it produced a slate of candidates whose qualifications are excellent and will be able to do a fine job if elected.

If a convention is to serve its purpose, it must leave the selection of the candidates to the delegates and it must give all of the students an equal chance to seek the nomination. When a political party fails to do this, then that party must participate in the same number of offices that it wins.

Student Government Isn't Mickey Mouse

To the Editor:

Students, what do you want to know about your government? We representatives can't predetermine your questions, either on student government or on all government activities. Knowing about Senate's actions is of importance, but you students should take the initiative and ask us questions.

Representatives cannot go from room to room throughout the dorms asking each person to explain their opinions on bills.

Right now, unfortunately, there are three elements standing in the way: one, you don't know what to ask; two, you wouldn't have the time to express your opinions; three, the majority of you couldn't care less.

Admittedly there is a gap between student representative and the student to be lessened? There is a lack of communication, but how is it to be solved?

Our communication problem is one of the basic problems in Student Government. Without new issues from students and fresh barriers to tackle, senate could easily reach a stalemate and settle down, complacently, to simple word changes.

However, our senators won't stay still. We have some mighty hard-working senators who are active despite the indifference of the students.

Solutions to our communication problem can be reached. I have some suggestions. To inform the students of the Senate's actions, precinct senators could corner a section of the main bulletin board and establish an "opinion poll" on bills as Senate. Nancy Ashley of Reynolds has done, or a special board could be erected for posting latest bills and minutes as did Senators Gene Stearns and Hugh Elyea of Kellum.

Finally, with the assistance of Senate-Senate Relations Committee, bills and recommendations could be interpreted for you, so their effects clearly stated.

Then, they could be printed in "Flambeau." These are three hundred suggestions; we're asking some how to make them work. I would really like to see Sandy Turner's "Joe College" list up and see for himself that our government is not "Mickey Mouse" activities, he would know how efficient it really is.

Mike DeVane Presses SG Austerity Platform

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

Since the night of the Student Party convention, Mike DeVane, candidate for president, has taken "Trim the fat off Longmire" as his banner. Student Party candidate DeVane has pledged himself to a policy of economy, in personnel as well as finance. His formal platform calls for strict economy in use of registration fees and a cutback in "Bureaucratic deadwood."

DeVane claimed that a major problem of Student Government is "the bottled up, stagnated conditions produced by non-functioning committees and bureaus."

He went on to say that it is impossible to promote student interest in student government where advancement is impossible in a bottled-up organization.

To cure the ailing present system, DeVane said that he would reorganize the entire executive branch and its supporting subsidiaries. They would be run "... according to accepted and proven principles of management, heretofore grossly neglected."

DeVane again reiterated his theme, "Excess weight in government will be trimmed."

The key to this program, DeVane said, will be that he personally will instigate legislation and not work through committees.

"I will exert as much direct influence as possible in the legislative branch, rather than depend on one committee after another," said DeVane.

DeVane also analyzed student apathy.

"The present situation of student apathy and disinterest in Student Government stems not from genuine disinterest; but from a lack of opportunity and evidence of concrete accomplishments, evolving from an administration stagnated by a too long continuance of the spoils system."

DeVane pledged himself to remedying this through the use of the newly formed Personnel Bureau. While calling this bureau a good thing, he said that it cannot work under an administration whose organization has been chartered for years.

"I'm obligated," he said, "to no one except the students of FSU. My cabinet, if I am elected, will be appointed on the basis of interest, merit and dedication. I will try to make appointments through the Personnel Bureau."

Again speaking on his program of economy, DeVane said that much can be trimmed, but that the bureaus do not have to be junked. They must be freed from an organizational system that doesn't give them a chance to work.

DeVane lists as his qualifications in Student Government, vice president of the Junior Class, chairman of the Who's Who Committee, Hall of Fame committee, Presidential host committee, and the Student-Alumni Relations Committee.

DeVane is a member of the Alpha Council, the One-Up-Men's Society, has a 3.06 overall average and has been on the Dean's List six times.

Lerner Of MIT Talks

Sociological aspects of government and politics will be subject of a lecture in the Library Lecture Hall at 8 p.m. tonight by Dr. Daniel Lerner, Ford Professor of Sociology and International Communications at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dr. Lerner has served as director of MIT's Hayden Colloquium on Scientific Concept and Method since 1957. He is the author of a recent book, "The Passing of Traditional Society: Modernizing the Middle East." His lecture is the part of the Public Lecture Series of the Department of Government.

The visiting speaker founded the Institut d'Etudes Europeennes, Paris, and has served as research director since 1954. One of the major studies of the Institute has been a systematic survey of attitudes among top leadership in Britain, France and Germany on issues of European and world policy. Recently the Institute has begun a study of current trends in the evolving European community.

He received his AB, MA and Ph.D. degrees from New York University. From 1945 to 1947, he was European representative for the Library of Congress Mission. In 1947 he went to Stanford University as professor of sociology and research director of the International Studies Project.

UMOC Here At Last

The traditional Alpha Phi Omega Use ingenuity, but do not sacrifice the candidate. Three photos again coming to FSU. This annual contest to find the honest-to-goodness ugliest man on campus begins today.

The purpose of the contest is to raise money for the Student Financial Aid Fund. It is a good chance for groups to have a little fun in the middle of the trimester and an opportunity to win a beautiful trophy. The following rules have been announced. Any campus affiliated group, fraternity, sorority, or residence hall may enter the contest. There is no regulation as to the method used to create the ugly man.

Voting will take place today the Friday at the Student Center behind Westcott Auditorium. A penny placed in the appropriate slot will count as one vote. For a photo will be given to groups placing in the containers, on the following scale: $1 - 110 votes; $5 - 100 votes; $10 - 1300 votes; $20 - 100 votes. A permanent non-rotating trophy will be presented on Friday at the method used to create the ugly man. Sigma Kappa Variety Show.

Honor Code Revisions Up For Student Vote

The revision of the Academic Honor Code is under the sixteenth Student Government Bill, Number Nine, entitled "The Act Establishing the Revision of the FSU Academic Honor Code." The bill calls for the revision of the FSU Academic Honor Code V (Academic Honor System) and follows:

Section 1, Code of Academic Honor. The Academic Honor System of FSU is based on the premise that each student has the dual responsibility (1) to uphold the highest standards of academic honesty in all work, and (2) to refuse to participate in academic dishonesty on the part of any other person. Its purpose is to minimize academic dishonesty in the university community and to ensure a high sense of honor and social responsibility on the part of students.

Section 2, Academic Dishonesty Defined.

A. During examinations, academic dishonesty shall include referring to written information not specifically mentioned by the instructor. It shall further include receiving written or oral information from a fellow student.

B. In the instance of papers written outside class, academic dishonesty shall include plagiarism. Plagiarism may be specially defined for the purposes of any course by the instructor involved. Unless it shall otherwise be defined, plagiarism shall include failure to use quotation marks or other conventional marking around material quoted from any printed source. Plagiarism shall also include paraphrasing a specific passage from a specific source without indicating accurately what the source is. Plagiarism shall further include putting another person compose or rewrite a student's written assignment.

C. Academic dishonesty shall include stealing, buying, selling or referring to a copy of any examination before it shall have been administered.

D. A student who shall have assisted in the forms of dishonesty mentioned above shall be considered equally guilty as the student who accepts such assistance.

E. A student who shall possess strong evidence that one of the offenses listed above has been committed and who does not report such evidence shall be considered guilty of academic dishonesty.

Section 3, Student Responsibility.

A. Each Student shall be responsible for abiding by the Academic Honor Code at all times. In the classroom, this shall apply whether or not a faculty member is present. At the conclusion of each examination, each student shall sign a pledge that he has neither given aid nor received it from any unauthorized source during the examination.

B. Any student who commits an act of academic dishonesty is expected to report himself to the professor of the course involved or to the Chief Justice of the Honor Court.

C. Any student who shall observe or learn of another student's violation of the Academic Honor Code (1) may request the student to report himself to the Chief Justice or to the teacher of the course, and if this is not done, (2) shall report, within twenty-four hours, to the Chief Justice of the Honor Court, or to the teacher of the course, the name of such student or students involved, providing such evidence as is available to support his charge. If a student shall observe cheating during an examination, it is recommended that he consult immediately with the teacher of the course.

D. A student may report a violation of the Academic Honor Code to the Chief Justice by telephone, by personal conference, or by letter, stating the facts of the case and giving supporting evidence.

Section 4, Faculty Responsibility.

A. Each faculty member shall be responsible for taking all steps possible to prevent academic dishonesty. He shall be expected (1) to take all reasonable security measures to protect examinations, themes, grade books, etc., against theft; (2) to give his students clear indication of his concern for academic honesty and his support of the Academic Honor System; (3) to require his students to sign a pledge at the conclusion of each examination, as provided in Section 3 A, above.

B. Should a faculty member wish to modify the definition of plagiarism as set forth in this constitution, he shall explain his usage of the term to his classes each trimester.

C. When a faculty member learns of an instance of academic dishonesty in one of his classes, he may impose such academic penalty as he may deem appropriate.

In addition, each faculty member shall submit to the Honor Court a written report on each instance of academic dishonesty which has occurred in his class, giving the name of the student, the nature of the offense, and the academic penalty which he has imposed. The faculty member may wish to discuss such cases with his department head before making his report.

Students Go To Polls Today To Elect Student Leaders

FSU students go to the polls today to select next year's Student Government leaders.

Polling areas, located at the Library, hall and front of Westcott, Smith Hall, Student Center, and the Seminole club will be open from 9 a.m. through 5 p.m.

Voters will choose from John Jones University Party; Mike DeVane, Student Party, and Jim Taylor, Independent; for Student Body President. John Merting, Student Party is opposing Sherman Henderson, University Party for the office of Student Body Vice President.

Jack Cannon, Student Party, and Ed Scott, University Party are the candidates for Men's Vice President.

Joyce Kilian, University Party, is running unopposed for Women's Vice President.

Either Sandra Brooks, University Party or Jean Norman, Student Party, will be elected Secretary of Student Senate.

The Chief Justice of Honor Court will be chosen from Hines Boyd or Ray Whitehead.

Judy Loucks is running unopposed for Chairman of University Court. Student Party's Vickie Voyles is unopposed for Chairman of Traffic Court.

Voters will elect three people to the Student Board of Publications from a list of four candidates. They are Al Galbraith, Student Party; Bobbie Hanle, Student Party; Dick Smith, University Party; and Matt Straub, University Party.

Members of Alpha Phi Omega and Sophomore Council will work the polls.

No Holiday On Good Friday

The Scheduling Committee has refused to approve a resolution calling for the rescheduling of classes scheduled for Good Friday.

In a statement issued by E.L. Chalmers, Assistant Dean of the Faculty, the committee stated, "We believe that rearranging classes scheduled for Good Friday would establish a precedent inappropriate for secular, tax supported institutions."

The committee recommends dismissal of classes only for religious holidays recognized by other state and national agencies.

Following this policy the committee approved a resolution to reschedule classes missed on Friday, Nov. 27 for Thanksgiving. The classes are held on Saturday, Nov. 7.

Science Conference Held On Photoreactivation

Photoreactivation, in which visible light triggers a reversal of the death processes caused by ultraviolet radiation in the DNA molecule of a living cell, was one of the subjects discussed at an International Conference on Molecular Mechanisms in Photobiology last week.

Photoreactivation and somewhat similar photoprotection, along with photosynthesis, bioluminescence, the photochemistry of vision and other subjects involving the influence of light on biological processes were covered in papers by two dozen among the 45 participants from the United States and six foreign countries. The conference was under auspices of the National Academy of Sciences and National Research Council with FSU as host.

One of the principal objectives of the conference, according to Dr. Michael Kasha, director of Florida State's Institute of Molecular Biophysics and conference co-chairman, was the application of molecular theory and phenomena to the solution of biological problems involving light. Dr. Henry Linschitz of Brandeis University was co-chairman. The papers and discussions will be reprinted in a forthcoming issue of "Photochemistry and Photobiology," an international journal.

In a review of research and research prospects in photoreactivation and photoprotection, Dr. John Jagger of Oak Ridge National Laboratory said scientists still are trying to pin down the exact mechanism involved in photoreactivation, first reported in scientific literature only 14 years ago.

About 90 years ago it was discovered that far ultraviolet light had the effect of "killing" or halting the reproduction of cells.

Greatness

Johnny Smith's term as Student Body president becomes history today, just as did Ken van Assenderp's last year at this time and Bobby Byrd's the year before that.

Each of these men brought to the office of Student Body President his distinctive personality. The innovations, ideas, hopes, and dreams of these past presidents have had untold effects upon the present structure of Student Government.

Today we will elect a new Student Body President, one whose influence will be felt not only now but by future FSU students. We have the power to elect that man whom we believe most able to represent and lead us until next year.

Yet how many of us will choose to exercise that power?

Last year out of a total enrollment of 9,540 students, 3,818 votes were cast. This means that around 40 per cent of the student body voted -- and less than 40 per cent of the student body selected a president.

This year with a total enrollment of 10,137 students, it will take 4,055 students, or just 237 more than last year, to reach the 40 per cent mark. From all indications this year's campaign was both spirited and interesting to many students.

Yet will we get 237 more voters to the polls this year? This University cannot even pretend to greatness if its student body remains apathetic -- and one good place to begin demonstrating our interest in the future greatness of FSU is at the polls.

Vote Yes

Today the FSU student body will cast its vote to indicate the men and women it believes should be charged with the responsibility of seeing that its Student Government is run efficiently and in the best interests of the majority of students.

Whatever the outcome of the officer elections, we believe that everyone should read and vote for the new revisions of the FSU Honor Code.

Chief Justice Kelly Reid and his committee have labored long and diligently to revise the old code so that it will truly represent a standard of ethics by which every student should be able to abide.

The proposed changes have been approved by both the Student and Faculty Senates. It has been endorsed by the University Administration, Student Government and the members of the student judicial system.

The "Flambeau" recommends that every student cast a "yes" vote for the new Honor Code so that it may be passed with an overwhelming vote of approval, both for the Honor Code itself and for the tremendous work accomplished by Justice Reid and his staff.

News Media Print 'Misinformation'

There has been a great deal of misinformation lately concerning Sen. Barry Goldwater's views. This false coverage of the Senator's campaign has been published in the various newspapers, on the radio and TV circuits, in the classroom and in general conversations among individuals. Since most of us can only repeat what we read in the newspapers, and hear on the radio, we can't all be guilty of distorting the facts.

This however is not true of the news media, CBS, UPI, AP and all the other news syndicates get press releases of the Senator's speeches, text in full. Reporters are always on the scene to take notes and record comments made by the Senator. The editing of these bits of information is where the rub comes in. Take an example.

Senator Goldwater made a speech before the Economics Club in New York on January 15. Goldwater told the Club that American history has been a record of mankind's greatest adventure in the alleviation of poverty. The Senator said, "Our production and income levels have moved up over a hundred years. And in so doing, our concepts have moved up also, and they always will it is like greynolds chasing a mechanical hare. You can never catch up. There will always be a lowest one-third or one-fifth."

This of course is a simple statistical fact, but the critics need a "devil to whip" so they twist or slant statements out of context and accuse the Senator of being a hard-headed, unsympathetic scrooge. Mr. James Marlow, AP News Analyst wrote an article which appeared in the Tallahassee Democrat on Jan. 21 criticizing the Economic Club speech. In his article, Marlow quoted just enough of the Senator's speech to leave an ugly image in the mind of the reader. Marlow quotes Goldwater as saying:

"We are told that many people lack skills and cannot find jobs because they did not have education. They like saying people have big feet because they wear big shoes. The fact is that most people who have no skill have had no education for the same reason--low intelligence of low ability."

Left just like this, the statement is a blanket condemnation of poor people; the Senator would appear to be advocating a do-nothing attitude about poverty. Cartoons appeared illustrating just this of thing. But in fact the Senator's attitude is entirely different. He said in that same speech:

"...the income of our lowest one-fifth of households, as expressed in dollars of constant purchasing power, has more than doubled over the past quarter of a century while that of the highest one-fifth of families has risen only 67 percent. An upward trend has been consistent will continue as long as we people of enterprise, of energy, risk taking."

In other words the Senator laments the fact that the gap between rich and poor was growing smaller as overall wealth and production in America increased. The Senator rightfully asserts that America free enterprise and personal initiative make this possible, and in fact is the only system that permits such prosperity.

Public welfare will never, in my million years, solve the problem of overall wealth and production of public funds down a bottomless gulch. There is not a nation near or any record of past nations in which public welfare has served to create wealth.

This is only one example of an ethical conduct on the part of the news media. There are countless others. The sincerely interested and intellectually objective voter or consumer owes it to himself, and his country to get the facts behind the news. Learn what the candidate has really said. Read the speeches in full. As for Goldwater, were any of the books written by him and about him.

Those views expressed in his several books are the same views the Senator holds now. To dig out wise betrays a gross ignorance of politics and common sense. The Senator's support is a result of the conservative philosophy he has been preaching for years. To change the philosophy now would cost him more than he would gain.

FLAMBEAU FORUM 'Incredible' Editorial Requires Rebuttal

To the Editor:

The campus newspaper is traditionally the place to let off steam, and I am not concerned, usually, even by the wilder explosions. However, Monday's incredible editorial signed E.C. does require an answer.

First, I must make an assumption: that you are a serious student. (If you are here just to waste the University's time and your own, it follows that you have no right to make a criticism anyway.) If you are serious, then I believe the following comments are in order:

1. WFSU-FM frequently requests comments from listeners. If you don't like the programs, it should be possible to ask for an appointment and discuss them with the director.

2. I am doubtful about your survey. How extensive was it? When made, and how? Data, please.

3. The station is intended for the University primarily, to provide exactly the "cultural forum" that seems to trouble you. The citizens of Tallahassee are of course invited to be listeners, and I know many of them are.

It is the duty and function of a University to provide a good cultural climate. Broadcasting is a convenient way to bring to the students lectures, drama, current events, as well as music. By running repeats of live events, it is possible to make these available to all the students.

5. Folkisnging and jazz do have a legitimate place in the programming and have been included recently. 6. I don't know what you mean by "study music." A scholar, when he studies, is in a state of intense concentration and noise--or music--simply do not reach him.

7. Finally, I say again, if you have criticism or comment, address yourself first to the station director. I don't "like" some of the music either, but it is part of music literature as it is an educated man, I have it know about it. As after all, WFSU-FM is the only outlet where we can have serious music at definite hours, do not destroy it.

Civil Disobedience Harmful

Civil disobedience though effective means is quite an unfair one. Plato and Machiavelli considered any means justified if they accomplished the desired ends. This reasoning later proved to be faulty. What about a man who desires a sexual experience with a woman? That's his goal or end. Is he justified in hitting the nearest female over the head and assaulting her?

It could be argued that his end wasn't justifiable either. But what about the man who desperately needs a thousand dollars to pay his family's hospital bill? This is a laudable end. Would he be justified in robbing a bank as his means to the money? It is very doubtful. Then along came Thoreau and Gandhi who thought that civil disobedience is justified if the end is morally right, and provided the civil disobedience is sans violence. Civil disobedience is easy to instigate, as it is a simple matter to find groups of people willing to go to jail as it is to find men in the Army willing to go on suicide missions. But is this morally right?

Let's look at the present situation, the civil rights demonstrations. The end or integration is morally right. However, the present methods are questionable even if effective are non-violent. Take picketing for example; many people will honor a picket line who are not even remotely concerned with the issue. They see someone carrying signs and respect their grievance even though they feel it's not their problem.

So a picket line is effective even if the signs read: "Unfair to Armadillos." But it is like social blackmail analogous to the little boy who threatens to throw a tantrum unless he takes home his ball and glove if he can't play. Then there are those who sit in the stairways, corridors, and corners of public buildings making it impossible for the employees to work.

Senator Cam Kilgroe Declares "SG Is Responsibility Of All"

By CHRISTY NOEL

Flambeau Staff Writer

Student government is the responsibility of all students, not just the officers," says Cam Kilgroe.

Civil Obedience

Small wonder concession are made; to get them from underfoot. For this is like wielding a social blackjack. It's like cheating at cards, another negative result of civil disobedience is that it teaches some of our undisciplined young people to be disrespectful for law and order. It's the civil rights movement would be taken over by more mature and wiser heads and taken from the present radical, irresponsible, and charismatic leadership.

Paul W. Snyder

precinct senator.

"In order to have an efficient and beneficial student government, all students must be interested. Without good student attitude it is hard to get student government officers who are conscientious."

"It also make it more difficult for those who are conscientious to carry out their ideas and plans. Responsibility for good student government does not lie in the hands of a few but is the responsibility of the student population as a whole." According to Miss Kilgroe, communication is a two-way thing, a give and take process. Student government cannot be blamed entirely. It is impossible for a senator to go around and speak to each of his constituents, but it is possible for students to contact their senators and express their opinions on specific issues, she added.

Senators cannot take the word of a few "Flambeau" columnists as the will of the majority.

She mentions all the discussion that has gone on since the class officer bill has been passed. "The senators thought it was the most workable and realistic plan. It gives class officers specific duties which will help relieve overwork in other areas."

In the bill for reapportionment, there are four more day senators and one more senator for women's off campus housing. A workable bill was hard to find because of the setup of the dorms. As it is now, the precinct senators represent housing areas, as in the sorority and fraternity population. Each dorm has senators according to their population.

Because of uneven distribution in dorms, representation is not always equal. In order for representation to be more exact the dorms would have to be split to form even precincts. This would make it harder for senators to stay in close contact with his or her area, explained Cam.

She had a comment to make about a special committee in Women's Senate, IAWS, which she thought has done an excellent job. "They were every member of the Inter-Collegiate Association of Women Students. They received answers from many including rules and pamphlets similar to our "Knowledge for College" and "Pow Wow."

This is general information about other schools and it has been set up in a file in Clyde Stokes' office. The file can be used for comparison and as a source for new ideas for our campus."

Honor Code Revision

A. The Honor Court shall investigate reports of alleged academic dishonesty, shall conduct hearings and trials when the circumstances warrant such action, and shall determine appropriate penalties for students found guilty of academic dishonesty. The Court shall maintain a file on each student reported to it, with an indication of the action taken in each case, and the Chief Justice shall report the disposition of each case to the student concerned and to the instructor of the course involved.

B. A student who is found guilty of academic dishonesty for the first time, may at the discretion of the Court, be recommended for a penalty in addition to any academic penalty which may have been already imposed by the teacher of the course involved. In extremely serious cases even first offenders may be recommended for suspension or expulsion from the university.

C. A student found guilty of academic dishonesty for a second time shall, except in extraordinary cases, be recommended by the Court for suspension or expulsion from the University.

D. A student found guilty of academic dishonesty for a third time shall be recommended for expulsion from the University.

E. Should a student be suspended or expelled from the University because of having been convicted of academic dishonesty, a written statement concerning the offense and the disposition of the case shall be placed in his permanent record. F. Notice of each conviction shall be published in the "Flambeau" within five days (vacation days excluded), the conviction being reported by case number.

Section 6, Supervision of the Honor System.

An Honor System Committee, composed of an equal number of faculty members and students, and appointed by the President of the University, shall make a continuing study of the operation and effectiveness of the Honor System; keep students and faculty members informed concerning the provisions of the Honor System; and make such recommendations as it may deem appropriate.

FSU Cops Sullivan

By PAT FREEMAN
News Editor

Ed Sullivan may very well be green with envy when he learns that FSU will host Joan Arc and the entire French and English armies of the fifteenth centuries March 2, when Le Treteau De Paris presents Jean Anouilh's play "L'Alouette" (The Lark).

Direct from Paris for a return engagement on campus the famed troupe of French Actors will offer an avant-garde-dramaby Anouilh on the theme of Saint Joan of Arc in Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Scholars are reminded to brush up on their "graduate or undergraduate reading and listening knowledge of French," as the play will be in French.

Sponsored by the FSU Modern Languages Dept., this will be the first year that the Treteau Actors have visited FSU. The troupe annually tours the country under the auspices of the "Association Française D'Action Artistique" of the Government of the French Republic.

In Anouilh's "L'Alouette," there are no indications of a formal division into acts and scenes. The play is written as a continuous narrative. Actors stroll on the stage and decide among themselves where to begin the story, and even seem to determine what will be included or left out as they proceed.

The heart of the play revolves around the character of Joan of Arc played by Luce Vincent, considered to be one of the leading actresses in the French theatre.

Other members of Le Treteau cast include renowned actors in the theatrical world, some of whom created roles in "L'Alouette," and who represent key figures in the dramatic events which led to Joan's martyrdom at the age of 19.

Author of the play, Jean Anouilh, one of France's most prolific contemporary playwrights, in writing an answer to a request for biographical details, said, "I have no biography, and I am very glad of it."

"A year and a half at the Law Faculty in Paris, then two years in an advertising firm, where I learned to be ingenious and exact; lessons that for me, took the place of studies in literature. After my play, "L'Alouette," was produced I decided to live only by writing for the theatre (and a little for films). It was folly, but I did the right thing in making that decision."

To prove or disprove Anouilh's statement, tickets are now on sale for $1.25 general admission and $2 for reserved seats at the Main Floor Office in Westcott, the Modern Languages Dept. or at Universal Travel 119 East Park.

RATAG Surveys Trimester System

ONE OF SIX
...suits on each floor of the new Nathaniel Salley Hall for men and women. Only eight people will share a suite.

New Co-Ed Dorm Ready In September For Occupancy

If you've been hearing any rumors about the new "co-ed" dorm? The dorm will be opened this fall and will be called Nathaniel Salley Hall. Salley came to FSU in 1945 and later became Dean of Education. He retired in 1945 after being a member of the faculty for 35 years. He died in 1951.

The co-ed dorm will consist of two towers, one holding men students and the other, women, and a social center in between. The construction is going on off Call Street in back of Smith Hall and the contractors have assured the University that it will be finished by Aug. 10, 1964.

The rooms will be different in that they will be suites with eight people to a suite. There will be two sleeping areas and a study area connected by a bathroom to two other sleeping areas and another study area. There will also be four lounges and a laundry vending room for each tower. The social center will consist of a large recreation room, a spacious parlor and reception and offices.

This year the policy for the payment of fees is that all fees must be paid at the appropriate time. There will be no deferment for scholarships.

Students who have become alarmed at the sight of 16mm camera-bearing individuals on campus, taking pictures indiscriminately of various facets of college life, have been seeing members of the Radio and Television Artist's Guild (RATAG) at work.

For the past month, members of RATAG have been gathering information and film concerning the trimester system at FSU. Surveys have been passed out to student and contain questions such as "How is your dating life affected by the trimester?" or "Do you feel rushed under the trimester system?"

Questions have been designed for the faculty such as "Do you find the trimester allows you to accomplish all the work essential for your course?"

One of the most popular questions asked by RATAG has been "What do you dislike about the trimester system?"

RATAG discovered through the surveys that 70% of the students disliked the trimester system, 20% were indifferent and that 10% found the system adequate.

Faculty responses were definitely negative concerning the values of the trimester system, with the majority preferring the semester system. A half-hour commentary show has been compiled from the results of the questions and film which will present an analysis of life under the trimester system.

RATAG members wrote, produced, directed and acted in the filmed commentary. Segments of a typical student's day on campus from waking hours till... are included in the production.

A panel composed of two pro-trimester members and two con-trimester members is also included in the commentary on trimester life. The video tape is being sent to the National Headquarters for radio and TV honors, AERIO. The commentary will be judged along with similar tapes submitted by colleges across the country as to general interest, creativeness, content and production.

Scientists' Book Is Out

The European Common Market, the Soviet challenge in Latin America, the Soviet-Chinese split and other "World Pressures on American Foreign Policy" are examined by eight political scientists in a book with that title just published by Prentice-Hall in its Spectrum series.

Dr. Marian D. Irish, professor of government at FSU, said the eight political scientists were the speakers in FSU's Government Lecture Series for 1963-64 and the articles which appear in the book are lectures they delivered last year.

In the introduction to the new book Miss Irish said the lectures "search the outer limits of American foreign policy." All of the speakers were asked, she said, to give some consideration to this question: "What ideologies, forces, events, and persons over which the United States has no jurisdiction are nonetheless influential in determining the role of the United States in the changing world scenes?"

Practice Field Colorful Sight

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

With a kaleidoscope effect, the Annual Spring Practice sessions for the gridiron Seminoles opened yesterday. The practice field just beyond the baseball diamond, was a constantly changing pattern of blue, red, orange, white, green and gold jerseys as Coach Bill Peterson's charges began five weeks of relearning the fundamentals of football.

"This first day of practice," Peterson said, while watching two linemen in orange and blue jerseys knock heads, "has been real fine. We are trying now to get the boys used to the routine of things, and not trying to get them in real good shape yet."

"Although we are concentrating on the fundamentals of the game," Peterson added, "we are devoting half of the two hour sessions to fundamentals and the other half to three particular phases of the game—offense, defense, and the passing game."

When questioned about the new Orange and blue jerseys some of the players were wearing, Peterson said, "We put those on the younger boys. We just needed another color."

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT! LISTON VS. CLAY

Cassius Clay, the brash young upstart from Louisville, gets a chance tonight to "put up or shut up." Clay, who has been swapping slurs with the Heavyweight Champion, Liston, for a year now, will have a fight on his hands.

Liston is the deliberate, deadly type of fighter who glares his opponent down, then finishes him down with that TNT Left hook.

Liston, on the other hand, will not have an easy night. Clay hopes to run away from the left hook and upset the balance of a Liston stalk with quick combinations to the head and clinches to tire Liston out.

The Question which will be on the mind of every fan of this great American sport, from the occupants of the $250 front-row seats to the listeners of WTAL tonight at 9:35 p.m. is "Can Clay avoid the Liston Left and tire the old boy down?"

I say No. Liston is too experienced to let hit-and-run tactics faze him, and has too much interest in this particular fight. I see Liston in four rounds.

Spring Practice Open Fundamentals Stresses

Florida State University Football Coach Bill Peterson has sworn out a search warrant for defensive secondary men and running backs.

He served it to his 1964 Seminoles when they reported yesterday afternoon for opening workout of spring football practice, and a manhunt geared to shame El Ness was underway.

Although every position is traditionally wide open at the beginning of spring drills, Peterson and his staff will give added attention to the holes left by the departure of Dave Snyder, Larry Brinkley, Marion Roberts and Charley Calhoun. Snyder, Brinkley and Roberts were also the team's top three yardage producers, and accounted for 100 of the 1344 yards gained rushing by the Seminoles last fall.

"We have a tremendous job to do in our secondary," Peterson says. "We've also got to find some running backs who can help us out." The situation is particularly significant to 28 sophomore and red-shirt backs whose every move will

"The entire squad will receive a lot of individual attention during the early part of our drills," says Peterson. "However, we're going to watch these youngsters very closely. We're going to need some of them to help fill those gaps left by graduation."

Seminole Grapplers Decision Spartans

By CONRAD BELL
Flambeau Sports Writer

Coach Budd Berringer's grapplers bested the University of Tampa last Friday night in Tully Gym, the final outcome was 24-12.

Little Billy Evans declared Bob Duerr of Tampa in the 115 lbs. bracket to lead off. Barry George of UT evened things up in the 125 lbs. class. At this point of the match the score was 3-3.

Tampa forfeited the 130 lbs. division which let Jim Jackson and Robert Wickman, both of FSU, meet in an exhibition match. Pete Lowe of Tampa bounced back by outpointing Steve Baum in the 137 lbs. bracket.

Much Improved Jim Ryan, filling in for injured Jim Hill, was swamped by Tampa's Conte 8-0. This gave UT a one point margin. But FSU's Terry Clark, who has been out for two weeks with a torn rib cartilage, returned to the mats and defeated Joe Cica. This was the turning point in the match.

The Seminoles took an 11-9 lead which was never relinquished. Jay Benedict added three points to the cause by beating Decker in the 167 lbs. class. FSU's captain, Mike Strawhorn, clinched the match with the only pin of the evening over Tuthill.

Tampa forfeited the 191 lbs. division which ended FSU's scoring at 24 points. The last event was the unlimited class in which Pete Meoli from Tampa edged Joe Rodgers by one point.

Coach Berringer said that he thought Steve Baum and Joe Rodgers were the surprises of the meet. Baum was expected to have been pinned and Rodgers lost by a close margin to an opponent much larger than himself.

Berringer further added, "The most improved wrestlers of the team are Billy Evans and Jim Ryan. I expect bigger things from them in the future."

The next meet will be the Southeastern Inter-collegiate Wrestling Tournament at Chattahoochee on Feb. 29. The matmen will also travel to Tampa on March 7 for the Florida AAU match.

Jones Wins Presidential Election

SG Code Violated

Candidates for Student Government offices were guilty of Election Commission campaign code violations, Sam Ashdown, Commissioner of Elections announced today.

Mike DeVane, Student Party candidate for president, was guilty of election violations. Violations were listed on posters on campus, posted on private property, and unauthorized distribution of campaign literature.

The Elections Commission allows candidates three violations. If they are guilty of a fourth the candidate is automatically disqualified. There are monetary fines for the first two violations.

Don Jones, University Party Presidential candidate, was fined for one violation. Jones was guilty of distributing literature not on file with the Elections Commission.

John Merring, Student Party vice-presidential candidate, was found guilty of two poster violations.

Norm Henderson, University Party candidate for vice president, was guilty of one poster violation.

University Party Scott's Vice President candidate Ed Scott violated two regulations.

Jack Cannon, Student Party nominee for Men's Vice President, was guilty of one poster violation.

Ray Whitehead, candidate for Chief Justice of Honor Court, was fined for failing to file posters.

Vickie Voyles, Student Party candidate for Chairman of Traffic Court, was fined for missing a court meeting.

University Party candidates for Editor of Publications, Dick Smith and Matt Straub were fined for one campaign code violation.

Howlett To Speak

Dr. Duncan Howlett, minister of the United Methodist Church, Washington, D.C., will speak at the University Chapel at 8 p.m. tonight.

Howlett, in Tallahassee under the auspices of the University Lecture Fund, will give his subject, "The Fourth American Faith."

Howlett is currently on the District Columbia's Youth Council and its Executive Council. He is chairman of the "Commission on 'The Church and the Leadership of the United Methodist Society' from 1954 to 1962 Howlett was the president of the United Methodist Historical Society. He has also served as the president of the Synodical House, as a member of Harvard University's Trustees Committee, and as the Commissioner to Poland for the United Nations Service Committee before World War II.

Among the books written by Howlett are "Men Against the Church," "The Synodical Religion and the Synodicalism," and "The Essence of Christianity—An Interpretation of the Dead Sea Scrolls."

Don Jones, UP, is Student Body President. Jones defeated Mike DeVane, SP, by 900 votes in yesterday's elections. Other new student government officers are: John Merring, Vice-President; Jack Cannon, men's vice-president; Joyce Killian, women's vice president; and Sandra Brooks, secretary of senate.

Hines Boyd barely defeated Ray Whitehead for Chief Justice of Honor Court, Judy Loucks is the new Chairman of University Court. Vickie Voyles is Chairman of Traffic Court. Al Galbraith, Bobbie Haynie, and Dick Smith won seats on the BOP.

There will be a run-off between Sheila Clarke and Linda Savidge for the Clerk of Honor Court.

Honor Code Vote Delayed

The Honor Code Amendment was not on the ballot yesterday, said Arnie Gibbs, Attorney General, because of an administrative foul up.

The Honor Code bill did not get out of the Secretary of Senate's office in time to be put on yesterday's ballot, said Gibbs.

Sandra Brooks, Secretary of Senate, said that the hold up was caused by typists who did not finish preparing the bill in time to get it to Student Body President Johnny Smith.

According to Gibbs, a legislative amendment bill must be signed by Student Body President, go through the Attorney General's office, and then be given to the Commissioner of Elections.

Sam Ashdown, Commissioner of Elections, said that he is then required to publish the proposed amendment in the "Flambeau" one week before the election.

The Honor Code bill was not received from the Secretary of Senate in time to be voted on yesterday.

"The amendment will voted on Friday. For this election to be valid, 25% of the student body must vote," said Chief Justice of Honor Court Kelly Reid.

"Seven Ways Of Love" Stars Cotton, Medina On March 3-4

By LOUISE RAUSCHERT
Flambeau Feature Writer

Student tickets will go on sale today for the production of "Seven Ways of Love," starring Joseph Cotton and Patricia Medina, which will be at FSU on March 4 and 5 at 8:30 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. Tickets are available at the ticket office in Westcott from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Students may get their tickets without charge upon presentation of their ID cards, and may purchase guest tickets for $2. Tickets will be available to the general public on Monday for $3.50.

Mrs. Kathryn W. Vernon, administrative assistant for special events, says, "I would like to urge the students to go ahead and get their tickets this week."

Dress for the performance, as noted in the "Pow Wow," will be semi-formal.

"Seven Ways of Love" has been described as "saucy, scintillating and sophisticated entertainment." In "Seven Ways of Love" Miss Medina and Cotton portray a husband-and-wife acting team who demonstrate various approaches to romance in a manner evoking surprise and enthusiasm. In the course of their demonstration they enact scenes from famous plays from Sappho and Benjamin Franklin to modern movie queens.

The fun begins when Miss Medina reveals her annoyance at Cotton's observation of "that beautiful blonde who passed us on the street." While primarily a comedy, "Seven Ways of Love" does have its serious moments of poignancy and beauty.

Starred on Broadway last season in "A Calculated Risk," Cotton and Miss Medina are husband and wife in real life.

Cotton has appeared on Broadway in such productions as "Citizen Kane," "A Calculated Risk," "Sabrina Fair," and "Once More with Feeling."

Nominations Close Soon

Deadline for submitting nominations for the Coyle E. Moore, Jr., Award for Outstanding Excellence in Teaching will be March 6 it was announced today.

The Award for Excellence in Teaching is made to an Instructor or Assistant Professor who has been on the FSU faculty for three or more years, including the academic year 1963-64.

The recipient of the Award must have demonstrated outstanding excellence in teaching not only in the classroom but also through the active involvement of students in obvious devotion to the intellectual development of the subject field.

The Award winner shall be a teacher whose door is open to all interested students and whose teaching responsibilities are carried far beyond the prescribed number of hours in obvious devotion to the intellectual development of students.

Such a teacher shall have earned the respect and confidence of students and faculty alike and will, in turn, respect the interests of students and colleagues throughout the University. The recipient shall have demonstrated consistently high intellect, firm dedication to teaching, good judgment and a sound sense of justice.

Finally, this Award shall be made not only to an outstanding teacher and a respected colleague, but also to one who shows great promise of leadership in his or her subject field.

Bizet's "Carmen" To Open With Guild And Theatre Dance

The FSU Opera Guild will have the assistance of the Theatre Dance Group and the Tallahassee Junior Chorus when the Guild presents Bizet's popular opera "Carmen" in Westcott Auditorium this weekend.

Three students from Theatre Dance, directed by Miss Holly Chapman of the Physical Education faculty, and a dozen school children from the Junior Chorus, directed by Miss Lois Schnoor of the School of Music, will have dance and choral parts in the colorful opera.

Richard Collins, director of the Opera Guild, said tickets for the opera are now on sale in the Westcott Ticket Office.

Inquiries for tickets from out-of-town have been heavy, and it looks like a full house both nights for 1600-seat Westcott Auditorium. Opera officials say.

Prices for $2 for the adult public and $1 for all students.

The presentation will be at 8:15 p.m. on both nights. In addition, the Guild will offer a 10:30 a.m. performance especially for school children on Friday.

Rose Christie Wildes, who has sung a lead in "Kismet" and who has appeared frequently as soloist with the Women's Gee Club and University Singers, will sing Carmen in this performance with Wallace Bartzas as Don Jose.

Joy Davidson, known to local audiences for appearances in lead roles of "The Consul" and "Ophelia and Euridice" and in concert, will sing the role of Carmen for the Friday and Saturday evening performances. Bronson Matney will sing the role of Don Jose.

The FSU Opera Guild will present Carmen in English, with the original spoken dialogue in place of the song recitatives usually heard.

The part of Escamillo, the flashy bullfighter who distracts Carmen's attention from Don Jose, will be sung by Lonnie Keene.

Borders On Crassitude

WFSU-FM Aims High

To the Editor:

With mounting fury I read Mr. Collins' diatribe on Monday against WFSU-FM. The article depended for its effect on over-generalizations, insufficient evidence, and a change of arguments in mid-editorial. Mr. Collins begins by stating that there is no market in the Tallahassee area for such a station. Since there is a commercial FM station currently in operation, we can assume there must be sufficient market to support them as the manager is hardly running it as a philanthropic enterprise.

A pertinent question which might have been put to the students in the alleged surveys Mr. Collins conducted would have been, "Do you own an FM set?" Since there are far fewer of these than the AM variety it is conceivable his results are biased through this omission. Naturally, one cannot become acquainted with the station without the means of so doing.

Your self-righteous remarks, Mr. Collins, about the lack of funds available for classrooms touches me. Instead of advocating the removal of the pittance the University allows WFSU, I would suggest that you direct your zeal against a much larger target. You might begin by looking at the enormous and disproportionate amount of University funds going to the athletic department. I will merely note here the Press Conference building recently constructed, and the 13,000 new seats to be built on the stadium. Aren't you aiming at a goat when an elephant is available?

Mr. Collins then loses me as he switches arguments from the lack of a market for the station to his dislike for the programming. He states the programs are for "only the most genteel and sophisticated." Except for the fact that I suspect Mr. Collins has no real conception of the meaning of the terms, possibly the listeners, of which I am one, would be flattered.

By glancing at a program listing (which the station furnishes gratis) it could have been ascertained that in addition to a varied musical program the station has as regular features: jazz programs, Broadway show music, news broadcasts, public forums, plays, and re-broadcasts of University events for those too busy to attend.

No, Mr. Collins, there are no sports specials," but since these are broadcast ad nauseam over all the AM and TV stations in the area, I'm sure you'll agree there is no dearth of coverage here.

For that matter the FM station has no soap operas, situation comedies, or quiz panels. Obviously, there has been some selective process operating.

To sum up, Mr. Collins, you might give pause to the viewpoint that in your eagerness to please all students you do not trample the individual completely and end by pleasing none. Granted the FM station might not reach all, or even most, of the student body.

Neither, I might add, do the Artist Series and some of the minor sports at WFSU since the seats are not available in either case even if all of the students were interested. Would you therefore advocate doing away with these also?

I think some acknowledgment must be made here to the fact that no one communicatory device, be it a magazine, newspaper, radio station or whatever can cater to everyone's taste. All are slanted in some direction or other.

I think WFSU does a good job of aiming slightly above the level of the average. This might even serve the purpose of enlarging the musical horizons of some of the listeners. And after all, Mr. Collins, doesn't a University exist for the purpose of education?

Joan S. Martin

To the Editor:

While this university of higher education may be contaminated with minute quantity of students—the vast majority of the enrollment of this institution does not appreciate music, but palpatizes to licentious rhythms of undefined chaos or dreams to that beautiful homogeneity of caudle, it remains unreasonable to convert WFSU-FM to a "white noise" station with local sports spectacles and folk singing for added spice.

Indeed a larger proportion of the patrons of FSU would prefer such exciting audio pleasure, but they might be satiated with one long play recording ecstatically purifying hours every day, or if they desire even more variation, they might ravish themselves with Tallahassee's only privately owned FM station.

WFSU-FM is the only station broadcasting classical music for any duration of time in this area, and while I too frequently disagree with the program director in her selections, I am thankful that there does exist an opportunity to hear some of the works that I do enjoy.

Taking this music off the air would be listening pleasure for "the most genteel and sophisticated." I hardly consider myself or those few sparks of glittering hope that I have occasioned, who do enjoy classical music, either sophisticated or genteel. In fact, we border upon crassitude. Therefore I close this sophistication with a bit of "gentility":

The following letter was written by a young CNA peace walker after her arrest in Albany, Ga. She was arrested on January 27 while walking through Albany on the Quebec-Washington-Cuba Peace March. This was her second arrest in Albany, she had just finished a fast from December 23 to January 16. When this letter was written she was in the 23rd day of her second fast. ## Dear Art,

Many thoughts run through my head tonight. It is a more or less typical Saturday night here, with its usual attendant undercurrent of noise. A small world of suffering seems concentrated here. Last night a young man beat up a middle aged one and sent him to the hospital. Tonight there are many usual drunks howling at the jailers for imprisoning them, and a man with many psychologically caused mental difficulties, such as fainting spells, trouble breathing, wishing to be free, and general howling.

The latter, probably an older guy who may even come to jail to get some sort of concern and attention. A few cases of D.T.'s. A Negro youngster of about 15 crying in the background while a cop goes about his business whistling a cheerful tune. Then later a Negro woman who as best as I can gather was being dragged and molested by a man when a cop shot him through the head and brought her down for questioning.

She was terrified because she thought she would be charged with it and somehow it was all connected with a robbery. I find myself starting to disassociate myself from it the way one does in a hospital, but here it all seems far worse because no one is being helped or cured, just suffering.

Unwelcome Given With Teas

To the Editor:

It is unfortunate when persons in a position of authority display their personal prejudices in carrying out their public duties. It was our embarrassment that we witnessed such a display of rudeness and poor taste on the part of a staff member of an upperclasswoman's dorm.

A Negro girl who is a student here at F.S.U. was invited to one of the Wednesday teas by a friend who is a resident of the dorm. As she and her friend were leaving, they were stopped by the staff member and subjected to a third-grade: Who are you? What's your name? Are you a student here? Etc.

It is the responsibility of a staff member to promote good will among the students; however, this staff member created an embarrassing situation out of an otherwise pleasant tea by making the girl feel uncomfortable and unwelcome. This is not the first time this has happened. At the Christmas teas, the same staff member curiously aside the hostess of a F.A.A.M. tea and declared that if it were Christmas, she would have to the girl and her friend to leave. The girl replied appreciatively, "Why don't you be a Christmas all the time!"

The present policy is that all Negroes who attend F.S.U. may be invited to the teas, although the same restriction does not apply to white guests. We think all guests of residents of a dorm should be welcomed at the teas regardless of the color of their skin and regardless whether they attend F.S.U., U.S.F.A.A.M. or elsewhere.

Furthermore, we hope that this staff member and others will be graciously fulfill their roles as hostesses in the future.

To us it represents the very heart of living in a University community. It is the only source of contribution to many lives.

FSU Collegians Embark Upon Annual Spring Road Concert

Florida State University's Collegians, men's glee club, have left for their annual Spring tour, with concerts today along the east coast of Florida from Cocoa Beach to Miami today through Friday.

Dr. Ramon E. Meyer, Director, will lead the 42-member choral group, will present six concerts, opening with one today at Green Cove Springs.

Tomorrow the group will give a concert at Satellite Beach High School and in the evening will perform at Melbourne High School under the sponsorship of the Melbourne High School Band.

On Friday the Collegians will go to the Miami Senior High School for a program and that night they will play at the Stranahan High School Auditorium in Fort Lauderdale under the sponsorship of the Junior College of Brevard County.

Opening with "O Bon Jesus" by Palestrina, the first part of the program will include "Ave Maria" by Arcadelt, "Salvation Belongeth to Our God" by Tchesnokov and the coronation scene from "Boris Godunov" by Moussorgsky. Pianists will be Harold Gray and Bill Riddespurger.

Following two Brahms' numbers and a selection by Thomas Bartelme, the singers will premiere the Collegians' composition contest winner, "Behold, Thou Art Fair, My Love," by Omar Allen. Written for three-part men's voices and piano, the text of the award-winning composition is from the "Song of Solomon."

The program will feature a group of light songs, three of which are comedy numbers. These include "Abbondanza" from "The Most Happy Felis" and "Coffee Break" from "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" both by Frank Loesser and "Lecuona Suite" by Ernesto Lecuona.

Comedy numbers were arranged by Richard Powell, assistant director of the Collegians. The singers will be Tommy Hagan, Paul Kelly, and Richard Kadel.

The program will close with three Broadway show tunes especially arranged by Ollie Dale Jelle, wife of director Meyer. The songs are "Ebb Tide," "What Kind of Fool Am I?" and "The Sound of Music."

Pam Doud Encourages Students To Participate

By JAMES L. MYERS

"Presidential appointments are not effective until the approval of Student Senate is obtained," so speaks Senator Pam Doud's bill to the Student Government. Pam, whose major is government, is an active participant in student government, so much so that the Senior Class District elected her as their representative to the Student Government Body.

Pam is presently Chairman of Elections and Appointments Committee which approves all Student Body President's nominations for any office.

She hopes to go into the Foreign Diplomatic Corps with a possible overseas position upon graduation. She is also interested in the Information Service as a future. Selected to Who's Who and to Garnet Key, a scholastic honorary, Pam upheld a 3.0 average last trimester. As a freshman, she joined Freshman Flunkies and the aquatic ballet group of Tarpons which put on its annual show last week. Pam has been a member and an officer of Sophomore Council, Last year, she was a Junior Counselor in Jennie Murphree Hall.

When asked about the interest of students in the Senate, she replied, "I think there is a definite interest here at FSU in what the Senate does." She went on to say, "Students should come to the meetings on Wednesday in Longmire Auditorium and join a committee. It is not necessary to be a Senator to do so. They should go to the Student Government Retreat in early fall and for further information contact a senator."

Science Paper Now Published

A short paper by FSU scientists describing a new type of nuclear physics experiment was published in "Physical Review Letters" Monday.

The paper, "Excitation of Isobaric Analogue States in Y89 and Zr 90," describes the work of J.D. Fox, C.F. Moore, and D. Robson of the Physics Dept.

Their experiment, involving the use of the FSU Tandem Van de Graaff accelerator, was the subject of a paper presented at the Topical Conference on "The Compound Nucleus" held in Gatlinburg, Tenn., in October.

The results obtained indicate that neutrons and protons behave in a more similar manner inside nuclear matter than had been thought previously.

Invited papers on the work and the theoretical interpretation have been presented by Dr. Fox and Dr. Robson at Rutgers University, the Bartol Research Foundation, and the Annual Meeting of the American Physical Society held in New York in January.

A summary of the work will be the subject of an invited paper to be presented to a conference on nuclear reactions in Chicago next month.

Joyce Killian Endorses Form

Miss Joyce Killian, candidate for Women's Vice President, and the present Secretary of Intercollegiate and Public Affairs, has endorsed the new Personnel Form for potential workers in Student Government.

Miss Killian pondered the present situation of obtaining enthusiastic students in Student Government by saying, "It has been a common criticism of Student Government that the same people have been called upon to work time after time, and many students who are willing to work go unnoticed. I feel that this has been a valid criticism but it can and will be corrected through the Personnel Form from the office of the Secretary of Internal Affairs."

Conference To Feature Gideon vs. Wainwright

The effect of "Gideon v. Wainwright" on corrections will be aired at FSU this weekend during the ninth annual Southern Conference on Corrections.

Concerning this celebrated Florida case, the U.S. Supreme Court held last March 18 that the state must provide free legal services to indigent persons defending serious charges.

The decision resulted in Florida's public defender law of 1963 and also in the filing of 419 motions by Florida prisoners who had been sentenced without counsel and who now ask for a review of their cases. At the latest count, 976 orders for release have been issued.

Clarence Earl Gideon, a Panama City defendant who had been accused of breaking into a pool hall, raised the issue resulting in the decision. He had asked for an attorney and had been refused. The Florida Supreme Court rejected his habeas corpus petition, but Associate Justice Hugo L.

Black, in a U.S. Supreme Court opinion which upset a 21 year old precedent, said, "Any person haled into court too poor to hire a lawyer cannot be assured a fair trial unless counsel is provided for him."

At the time of the decision Florida was one of five states using a rule which provided for free counsel only in capital cases or others with "special circumstances." The other states were Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina. Florida had an estimated 4250 in state prisons at that time who might be affected by the decision. On April 1, the Florida Supreme Court set up a procedure by which the cases of prisoners asking for a review could be returned to the jurisdiction where they were convicted.

"Gideon v. Wainwright—Defense of Indigent Defendants and the Impact on Corrections" will be the title of a discussion before the Corrections Conference at 10:30 a.m. Friday. Richard Ervin, the attorney general when the Gideon case was decided, and a member of the Florida Supreme Court, will chair the discussion.

A speaking panel will be composed of Maj. Gen. Charles L. Decker, retired, director of the National Legal Aid and Defender Association, American Bar Center, Chicago; Louis L. Wainwright, director of the Florida Division of Corrections; James V. Bennett, director of the U.S. bureau of Prisons, Washington; Justice Campbell Thornhill of the Florida Supreme Court; and Reeves Bowen, director of the Criminal Appeals Division of the Office of Attorney General.

Discussions will open in the Library Auditorium with a welcome by Florida State President Gordon W. Blackwell at 9 a.m. Friday. Correctional administrators and others interested in adult and juvenile corrections are expected from all over the South for two days of panel discussions and addresses. Dr. Vernon Fox, chairman of the Criminology and Corrections Dept., is in charge of the program.

Frank Daly Plays Title Role In World's Premier Of "Trog"

Frank Daly, one of Broadway's most versatile actors, will play the title role in America's premiere of "Trog" March 18.

"Trog" is a play by British dramatist James Forsyth. It will receive its first production in the U.S. March 18-22 by the FSU Theater. Forsyth is on campus for the current trimester as a distinguished visiting professor. Daly arrived yesterday to begin rehearsals.

The forthcoming premiere will be directed by University Theater's co-director, Richard G. Fallon.

Daly's background includes seven major Broadway productions, off-Broadway dramas, and most of the major television shows originating in New York. He is also a favorite of the dinner-theater set as well, having played in 20 roles in the Theater of the Four Seasons, "In New York City.

His Broadway productions include Eugene O'Neill's "A Touch of Poet," "Reclining Figure," "Widow," "Coriolanus," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Nor More Peace," has appeared in the off-Broadway plays, "The Penal Colony."

Understanding Daly's role as Trog, a grotesquely deformed mandrake, in a bombed out cellar during World War II, will be FSU's Eric Fischer. Similarly, roles of the production's nine other players have been cast from student auditions. William Rover will play the role of an elderly workman, Sam Fawcett, who will play the part of his apprentice.

Two elderly officers -- (Michael Bright and Conrad) -- with combat fatigue and battlefield phobias will be played by Brett Ryerson and Ed Baker. Completing the trio of British officers who discover Trog, playing the principal supporting male lead, will be Al Smolin, who is studying the role of "Phillip" to be Fred Richter.

The Commanding Officer of the play's setting -- a rehabilitation clinic for the war wounded -- will be played by Kent Wood, and the matron in charge will be the role of Ingrid Tiersen.

The female lead will be shared by Lynn Darby and Pat Britt, who will be playing the part of "Selene," the latter playing the role in multiple performances. Mrs. Malig, "Trog's" alleged guardian, will be played by Pat Howard.

Assistant directors for the production are Louise Beedingfield and Jennie Black. Costumes and set will be designed by Bill Vele, graduate student from the State Dept.

Dr. Holloway Lectures On Accident Prevention

A specialist in the development of accident prevention programs, Dr. Irmagene Nevins of Holloway of Washington, D.C., will be FSU guest lecturer in classes in the Health Education and Physical Education Depts. through today.

As safety program specialist in the Division of Accident Prevention of the US Public Health Service, Holloway acts as liaison officer with women's organizations in the development of safety programs.

A former college professor, she headed the department of health and physical education for women at the Kansas State Teachers College for 14 years.

At the outset of World War II, she joined the staff of the American National Red Cross. As national director of accident prevention she set up safety guides for public and parochial schools throughout the country and prepared instructional materials for home and farm safety programs.

Holloway holds the doctor's degree from New York University where she received fellowships from the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies which were granted to the Center for Safety Education.

Forsyth Talks

British dramatist James Forsyth, whose "Trog" will be performed by the University Theater next month, will be interviewed on channel 11's "FSU Conversations" at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

Forsyth will discuss his newest play with Richard G. Fallon, associate director of FSU theater. It is entitled "The Defiant Island." The dramatist is now writing the film script for the play. He will also talk about teaching dramatic writing for stage and television.

Coming Events Will Be Varied

The upcoming events at FSU for the rest of this trimester vary from concerts and a French play to a women's house meeting.

The opera "Carmen" will be presented in Westcott Friday and Saturday. There will be three performances, including a matinee for school children. Theatre Dance will give a production March 13 and 14. The French play "L'Alouette" will be presented March 2. On March 4 and 5 "Seven Ways of Love" starring Joseph Cotton and Patricia Medina will be presented by the Artist Series. The new play "Trog" will premiere March 20 in Conrad Theatre. It will run through Sunday March 22.

In the way of concerts, the Artist series will present the Pittsburgh Symphony March 11 and 12 at 8:30 p.m. in Westcott.

"Mademoiselle" Art, Writing Competition Deadline Nears

and 11 is the deadline for entries in "Mademoiselle's" Art Competition, College Poetry Competition, College Fiction Competition. In three competitions (for women only), winners will receive prizes and publication in the May, 1964, issue.

"Mademoiselle's" College Poetry Competition and College Fiction Competition are open to students in accredited colleges or colleges. Poems or stories have been published in undergraduate or alumni publications are acceptable. In the new College Poetry Competition, two winners will receive $100 each, and the magazine may buy the poems of runners-up. Entrants may submit one or more poems of any length.

In the College Fiction Competition, two winners will receive $500 each. Entrants may submit one or more manuscripts of any length. To qualify, all stories must have fictitious characters and situations.

The two winners of the Art Competition will illustrate the two winning Fiction Competition stories and will receive $500 each. "Mademoiselle's" Art Competition is open to students between 18 and 26 who are enrolled in college or art school. Entrants must submit at least five samples of work in any medium (photographs or slides of the originals are acceptable).

In this Competition, "Mademoiselle" is looking for samples of the fine arts rather than commercial art. Judges for the 1963-64 Art Competition are Marisol Escobar; Robert Motherwell; and Roger Schoenberg. Art Director of "Mademoiselle."

Address entries or requests for complete rules to Art Competition, College Fiction Competition, or College Poetry Competition, "Mademoiselle," 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

Robert W. Loftin Talks On Science And Religion

Loftin provides ethical evaluation and goals which are just as much the verifiable knowledge as science. Robert W. Loftin, graduate assistant in Humanities, told the Hill, Student Organization at its last meeting.

Religion and science are different ways of looking at the world," he declared. "Each method uses different criteria. Science seeks for questions which can be tested to proof and tests. Religion is not concerned with these issues and it bases its ultimate belief on faith."

Loftin, who received his undergraduate degree at Oglethorpe and his master's degree at FSU, is now working on his doctor of philosophy degree in Humanities.

The speaker pointed out that ethical goals which direct man's relations to his fellow-man and one nation's conduct toward other nations, are highly necessary. "They are necessary for the survival of the race. Scientists are not concerned with such ethical problems because they cannot be tested or the results verified."

After the lecture, Hill President Gary Michaels told about the joint meeting with the University of Florida and the University of Jacksonville Hill organizations which will be in Gainesville this week-end. The local group will be accompanied by Dr. Sidney Kobre, counselor, and his wife.

Van de Vate Speaks

Dr. D. Van de Vate, Jr., assistant professor of Philosophy at FSU will speak tomorrow night at the YPSL meeting.

Van de Vate was acting head of the Philosophy Dept. at the University of Mississippi at the time of James Meredith's entrance to the University.

Topic of his discussion will be "Mississippi, the Left and the Right in Politics." The lecture is being sponsored by the youth section of the Socialist Party of the United States (SPUSA) in an effort to bring further understanding of the civil rights movement and the political structure of Mississippi.

Van de Vate will speak in Room 122, History Bldg. at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow. All students may attend.

AFROTC GUEST SPEAKER

Clay Topples Liston In 7th

Cassius (I am the KING) Clay upset World Heavyweight Champion Sonny Liston on a TKO at the end of the sixth round of the Championship fight last night in Miami Beach. Liston, complaining of a left shoulder which felt like it was "broken," after the first round, would not come out at the seventh bell. The ring doctor stopped the fight because of the injury.

Clay's hit and run tactics kept Liston from landing a single damaging punch, while the challenger cut both of Liston's eyes in the third round and was in control throughout the rest of the fight.

There was no clause in the contract between the fighters concerning a return bout.

Junior College Cage Playoff This Weekend

Twenty-three junior college basketball teams, scattered with high-scoring stars, gather for playoffs in Bradenton and Statesboro, Ga. this weekend to decide who'll represent Florida and Georgia in the annual Region VIII tournament, to be held here March 5th, 6th, and 7th at Florida State University.

Florida's nine junior college teams, topped by Chipola of Marianna with a 17-4 record, meet in the Florida Junior College Athletic Conference tournament at Manatee Junior College's new field house in Bradenton, tipping off with quarter-final games Thursday night.

At the same time, action gets underway in the 14-entry Georgia

Junior College Association meet at Georgia Southern College in Statesboro. Columbus College, sweeping through cracker state opposition with ease, leads the GJCA with a 20-3 record.

The eight teams emerging from Saturday night's championship and consolation games at each site earn a trip to Tallahassee to compete the following weekend in the big show in FSU's Tully Gym. Florida number one team meets Georgia fourth, second meets third, etc. The winner here is off to Hutchinson, Kan. for the national tournament and competition with 15 other NJCAA regional champions. Action will start there March 17th.

Chipola was the 1963 entry from Region VIII and placed seventh at Hutchinson. Highest finish there for a Florida or Georgia team at the NJCAA tourney was fifth by Young Harris, Ga., in 1962.

Foremost among a host of stars this year in the region are two Floridians, 6-8 center Austin Robbins of Chipola and 6-5 Gregg Bloodworth of St. Petersburg.

Robbins, pre-season JC All-America, made the 10-man all tournament list at Hutchinson last year and led all scorers in both the state and regional tournaments.

The red-headed 200-pounder, passed up by the bigger schools when he was a Groveland High School senior, now is actively being sought by practically every major college power in the South, plus several midwestern and southwestern schools.

Robbins has scored 524 points in 19 games for a 27.6 average neys—Surtees—and only others of comparable status.

Latest designs, GT prototypes and famed engines will again Saturday March 21st make Sebring the international center of the automotive racing world.

Highlighting the pre-race activity program of "More In '64" will be the qualifying and practice trials Wednesday and Thursday the 18th and 19th with starting positions in the famed Saturday spectacle depending upon fastest lap times Wednesday and Thursday. World famous drivers with the best cars of the world will be flat out for the bash award for fastest lap timed during the Wednesday and Thursday sessions.

Students To Vote On Honor Code Tomorrow

VOTING FOR THE HONOR CODE

will take place tomorrow at the various polls located around the campus. All students are urged to vote in this election.

Student Senate Ups Voting Two Weeks

The Student Senate unanimously approved a bill changing the time of the elections in yesterday's meeting in Longmire Auditorium.

The bill, introduced by Senator Ed Proctor, changed the time of the Student Primary Elections from the fourth Tuesday to the second Tuesday in March instead of the fourth Tuesday as is now specified in the Student Body Constitution.

The bill adding the Alpha Phi Omega

Elections Committee Chairman to the Elections Bureau as a permanent member was passed unanimously.

Senator Scott introduced the bill in last week's meeting.

President of the Senate Julian Proctor urged the senators to stimulate interest in the run-off elections tomorrow. The position of Clerk of Honor Court and the Honor Code revision will be voted upon. Senators were reminded that one fourth of the student body must vote in order that the constitutional revision ballot be valid.

Candidates Voice Opinions

Sheila Clark

Linda Savidge

Students don't realize the purpose of the Honor Court and how it should be carried out," said Sheila Clark, candidate in tomorrow's runoff election for Clerk of Honor Court.

"This, according to Miss Clarke, is the fault of the students, but has to do about because Honor Court is not worked with the students enough. 'Students don't realize that one of the highest university officers,'"

"The FSU Honor Code has undergone a great change in the year in which I have served as Honor Court Justice. We are attempting to bring the Honor System into a range which is realistic to student ideals," said Linda Savidge, candidate for Clerk of Honor Court in tomorrow's runoff.

Miss Savidge claimed that the Honor Code has existed only on paper in the past. It was remote from the ideals of students and bound the Court to uniform penalties by precedent. Therefore, she said, it has been almost completely neglected by a majority of students.

The new code will give the Court more leeway to consider individual cases as they should be -- with careful attention to each individual situation, stated Miss Savidge.

"Making the student body," she said, "aware of the new possibilities for the Honor Code is an immense job, and one in which the Court members, especially the Clerk, should take an active part."

Miss Savidge added that articles be written for the "Flamebeau" on a regular basis explaining offenses which violate the Honor Code and penalties meted out for these violations.

Miss Savidge is being opposed, in tomorrow's election, by Sheila Clark.

Students return to the polls tomorrow to vote on the proposed amendment to the FSU Honor Code.

Twenty-five percent of the student body must vote on the amendment before the proposed changes will be valid.

If the new code is adopted, "I pledge myself to uphold the highest standards of academic honesty in my own work, and I refuse to tolerate academic dishonesty on the part of any other person" will be seen in every classroom on campus. Significant changes in the code occur in the sections dealing with student, faculty and court responsibilities.

Relative penalties have been prescribed according to the relative number of instances in which academic dishonesty is violated by any one student.

A student found guilty of academic dishonesty for the first time may be given sanctions less than suspension or expulsion.

Under the revision, each faculty member is held responsible for taking all possible steps to prevent academic dishonesty.

During examinations, academic dishonesty will include referring to written information not specifically condoned by the instructor. Academic dishonesty will also include receiving written or oral information from a fellow student.

In papers written outside class, academic dishonesty will include plagiarism. Plagiarism may be specially defined for the purposes of any course by the instructor involved.

Under the new code, academic dishonesty will also include stealing, buying, selling or referring to a copy of any examination before it has been administered.

Any student who assists in any form of academic dishonesty mentioned in the Honor Code shall be considered equally guilty with the student who accepts such assistance.

Any student who possesses strong evidence that academic dishonesty has been committed and who does not report such evidence will be considered guilty of academic dishonesty.

When a faculty member learns of an instance of academic dishonesty in one of his classes, he may impose such academic penalty as he may deem appropriate.

In addition, each faculty member shall submit to the Honor Court a written report on each instance of academic dishonesty which has occurred, giving the name of the student, the nature of the offense, and the academic penalty which he has imposed.

Honor Court responsibilities under the new code are redefined. A student found guilty of academic dishonesty for the first time may be recommended for a penalty in addition to any academic penalty which the teacher may have given.

A student guilty of academic dishonesty for the second time will usually be recommended for suspension or dishonesty for a third time shall be recommended for expulsion.

Voting Held For Ugly Man

Voting will continue through tomorrow in the annual Alpha Phi Omega Ugly Man on Campus Contest at the polling tables at the Student Center and behind Westcott Auditorium.

Each penny placed in the appropriate box will count as a vote. Bonus points will be given to groups placing bills in the containers on the following scale: $1 — 10 votes; $5 — 50 votes; $10 — 100 votes; and $20 — 300 votes.

Contestants are: Greg Dean, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Bill Whidden, Sigma Kappa; Dave Cameron, Sigma Sigma; Mike Storie, Westminister House; Arnie Gibbs, Zeta Tau Alpha; Stanley Alexander, Alpha Phi; Tom Volarius, Alpha Omega Psi; Johnny Smith, Alpha Xi Delta; Buck Fry, Kappa Alpha Theta; Larry Wells, Kappa Sigma; Ken Wilder, Pi Beta Phi; Steve Shultz, Phi Delta Theta; and Tommy Wells, Phi Mu.

A permanent non-rotating trophy will be presented on Saturday at the Sigma Kappa Variety Variety Show.

Sigma Kappa Plans Show

Entertainment plus is in store for all who yearn for drama, comedy and just a "plain old good time" at the annual Sigma Kappa Variety Show.

The gaeties will be Saturday in Opperman Music Hall, from 7:30-10 p.m.

This year there will be 17 fraternities and sororities vying for first place honors. Winners of the contest will be awarded trophies, while the runnersup will receive plaques for their efforts.

Acts will be based on a six-point rating system: 1. group participation 2. originality 3. humor 4. performance 5. costumes 6. presentation.

Last year the top honors went to Chi Omega and Delta Tau Delta, while second place went to Kappa Alpha Theta and Pi Kappa Phi. Admission to the Variety Show will be 50 cents, and the Sigma Kappas are donating all of the proceeds to campus chest; they donated $240 last year.

Daly To Star In Premiere

British playwright James Forsyth, center, welcomes Broadway actor Frank Daly to Tallahassee, where rehearsals are underway for the American premiere of Forsyth's drama, "Trog," scheduled for production by the Florida State University Theatre, March 18-22. Daly will star in the play's title role, and Richard G. Fallon, left of the University Theatre, will direct the production. Another Forsyth play, "Dear Wormwood," will open on Broadway this fall.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Need Tax Bill Lobbyists

To the Editor:

There have been few, or probably more accurately, no instances in American history in which the students or our universities have, as a group, openly and vigorously supported or opposed legislation affecting student life. Does this record attest to our intellectual restraint, or is it an admission of our unconscious disinterest?

Throughout the world, students have conspicuously played important roles in shaping history: African students in their quest for national independence, Hungarian freedom fighters in their struggle for educational freedom, Japanese students in their political and economic movements, and more recently, the Panamanian Incident. The world certainly realized that these groups were involved in noble endeavors. No matter what the issues at hand, that the students acted is admirable.

What admire does the American student present to the world? Our nation's press, which enjoys unprecedented world-wide circulation has annually and laughingly told its readers of such significant student projects as: racoon coat wearing, gold fish swallowing, bed pushing, phone booth stuffing, and mansion vandalizing. It displays pictures of American white students scolding their fellow blacks; ivy covered buildings in the background. I am sure that there is little debate that this is not the staff that great nations are made of.

There is a need for increased activity among the leaders of our national student organizations; on this topic we could spend many days' conversation. But the purpose of this letter is to demonstrate that the student in America is concerned with the greater issues of his time and that he can do something about them.

There is a good place to start? At present, the well-publicized Tax Cut Bill is being debated in the Senate Finance Committee. There is a measure in the bill that concerns the college student. The proposal is to obtain a tax credit for college education expenses. I am sure that this topic has been discussed in many a campus union.

In no group pressures the committee to adopt the measure to the Tax Cut Bill. You know as well as I that its chances of being deleted are good. Last year the student newspaper of our dental school adopted the position that a rat on educational expenses was desirable for the good of the nation and we propose that the students of America, with one voice, give support to the proposal.

There is somewhat of an urgency to the situation because the tax cut bill is moving rapidly toward a final draft in committee. I am sure the plan on Friday, January 17, 1984, it would be significant if as many students as possible sent letters to the Senate Finance Committee, Washington, D.C., and stated their support for the measure. Also much local publicity could be aroused by means of various activities born from the ingenuity of the individual universities.

Mimeographed copies of this letter have been sent to the editors of all state universities and to as many others as possible. The student newspaper staff is historically the most effective way to promote a program. If all respond, the results could be interesting.

Would Support Gymnastics

To the Editor:

In reference to the article by Melodie Betts, "Flambeau" sports writer; I was quite pleased to read the story praising FSU's Gymnastics. There is hardly any group around here that works as hard and unsparingly receives such little praise as the Gymnastics troupe.

In the time that I have been a student here, I have witnessed several Gymnastic meets and the two previous productions.

I was quite impressed with them, and I was surprised to learn that the sports department does support them financially as an intercollegiate sport.

With the past record of their earnings and the fabulous show each year it appears that if FSU can't produce champions in football and basketball, why not support the gymnastics, to bring honor to FSU athletically?

I personally would like to see Gymnastics reinstated as an intercollegiate sport and would contribute willingly to the support of anyone who has the power to do it.

Part Two Of Peace Walker's Tale

Yesterday the first part of this column ran about half of the contents of a personal letter written by a young peace walker while she was imprisoned in the Albany jail on her 23rd day of fasting.

This is the second half of that letter. It reveals the sentiments, aspirations, hopes and fears of the CNVA people as they make their slow march to Cuba and to Guantanamo Bay to protest war and the threat of war.

"Another of my frequent thoughts—Hiroshima was bombed when I was very close to being that above child—when I was 5. And while this would seem to absolve me because I was too young, it really doesn't at all. You see it was bombed so children like myself could grow up in a world 'safe' for democracy." It was bombed with me as its justification. And somehow—somehow—I've got to tell the world never to do it again—at least not for me.

"But then one is again faced with the question: what does one do to somehow balance the suffering and joy within one's life so it is viable. Since walking or protesting such as this are no long term answer because one cannot live at such a pitch year after year. But then how to be incorporated within the peace movement without simply being reduced to an office machine or an AFSC educational director? (Both of which seem very sterile to me.)

Remove Earl Warren

Was John F. Kennedy killed by a Communist? Enough to make the way from the chicken in his stomach to his fingerprints on the murder weapon—has been gathered to relieve almost all doubt about this. Some, however, have been blaming everyone from the Puritans to the citizens of Dallas, from the people of the South to the whole United States. All of this is foolish, of course, but will the American people ever find out the truth about the murder?

On November 26, the Midweek Edition of the Worker, official publication of the Communist Party, USA, ran a front page editorial. In it, they called for a special committee to be set up to investigate the assassination, and that the committee be headed by the chief justice of the Supreme Court."

Three days later President Johnson, through Executive Order 11130, set up the committee they wanted. A special investigating committee headed by the chief justice of the Supreme Court—Earl Warren. (He was the chief justice of the court when he had already ordered the F.B.I. to prepare a detailed report on the assassination and that the people be told all the facts.)

Now it appears to me that Earl Warren's actions since the assassination should have been sufficient enough to disqualify him. There is one group of people in the country that you would expect to show judi-

"If one decides to work in the integration movement much can be said for simply moving to the area and taking up a witness within the profession and the Movement—such as your thought of practicing in the South. But a way to work in the peace movement on a comparable personal level seems harder to find. I have thought of the value of continuing to interrelate the two movements through establishing a nonviolent action group. It can be one of the most heartening experiences I know."

"Speaking of kids earlier—I wanted to tell you of two of the most wonderful times I've had on the walk. One was in Salisbury, North Carolina when a number of little Negro kids came running around where I was working on the Bulletin. They stood around shyly for awhile, then one little girl hesitatingly and very fearfully reached and touched my hair because it was so different from her own. Soon they were all stroking it. It was a sense of trust towards me that they would be allowed to do this that reached across innumerable barriers."

"The wonder of it all is that the children have not joined me sooner but that they have come to trust us at all. C.B. and Slater King speak with real wonder when they saw a Negro taxi cab driver spontaneously wave to me while I was walking downtown. There is much that has happened and that is happening that if we do not actually do so will allow to happen."

"I went to a Baptist church on December 21 with Carl and was the only white person there. A man got up and spoke for 40 minutes for their possibilities as I tried to stick my seat; but he ended by pointing me and saying in ringing tones 'But there is a miracle—a living divine miracle in your presence. Listen to her, do what she says! That simply because I went to church. (And me an atheist!) It makes me feel very inadequate. I must close this—I am very good to have you out there. Life is very good. Very much love. Kit

Why did Earl Warren do this? Why did he take advantage of his position and flout his biasness to the American people? Why did he take the opportunity to add further to the confusion of the incident?

Frankly now, didn't you get the impression that someone was trying to put across to the American people that someone else, other than a Communist, was responsible for the assassination?

Instead of blaming the incident on the American people or the citizens of the world, we ought to put the blame where it belongs, on Earl Warren and do that. Therefore, President Johnson should remove him from the committee and turn the investigation back over to the F.B.I. as originally intended.

I enjoy the programming. This is the only station in this area which carries a reasonable amount of good music. I would be very sorry if any changes were made in the programming of WFSU-FM.

Kent K. Stewart

"And the most wonderful to me, we were walking along the road the very end of a long hard day and we passed some little kids aged 5-7 heading back to the huge buckets and gallon jugs of water the half mile to their shack up the road."

"Dave Dellinger, big man that is, caught up and overtook the first little boy. He reached down with his free hand that wasn't carrying his sign and took the bucket to carry it. Barbara Dering came up behind the littlest and took the gallon jug from him and walked on. The kids were startled at first but soon were smiling along after every few steps and grinning at us."

"The walk stopped for the day just a little way short of their house as the kids carried to their buckets and walked on home with the parents out in front watching what must have been a truly miraculous sight—grown white people helping Negro kids had the water."

"It somehow symbolized to me that we are possibly hoping to do as a act. And yet as we moved on we knew we always have been simply a isolated miracle in these kids' lives. Nothing will have changed, and for the rest of their childhood they will haul the water that long half mile while the whites have running water and the white people will curse them and call them 'boy'."

The wonder of it all is that the children have not joined me sooner but that they have come to trust us at all. C.B. and Slater King speak with real wonder when they saw a Negro taxi cab driver spontaneously wave to me while I was walking downtown. There is much that has happened and that is happening that if we do not actually do so will allow to happen."

"I went to a Baptist church on December 21 with Carl and was the only white person there. A man got up and spoke for 40 minutes for their possibilities as I tried to stick my seat; but he ended by pointing me and saying in ringing tones 'But there is a miracle—a living divine miracle in your presence. Listen to her, do what she says! That simply because I went to church. (And me an atheist!) It makes me feel very inadequate. I must close this—I am very good to have you out there. ## THE SLOW RUSH

Illustrated below is the membership pin of a brand-new national fraternity called Sigma Phi Nothing. To join Sigma Phi Nothing and get this hideous membership pin absolutely free, simply take a pair of scissors, cut out the illustration, and paste it on your chest.

Let me hasten to state that I do not recommend your joining Sigma Phi Nothing. The only thing I recommend in this column is Marlboro Cigarettes, as any honest man who likes good tobacco and a good filter, whose heart is quickened by a choice of soft pack or Flip-Top Box, and who gets paid every week for writing this column.

I am frankly hard put to think of any reason why you should join Sigma Phi Nothing. Some people, of course, are joiners by nature; if you are one such, I am bound to tell you there are any number of better organizations for you to join—the Cosa Nostra, for example, or the Society for the Placing of Water Troughs in Front of Equestrian Statues.

cut it out and paste it on your chest

But if you insist on joining Sigma Phi Nothing, let me give you several warnings. First off, it is the only fraternity which admits girls. Second, there is no pledge period; each new member immediately goes active. Perhaps "inactive" is a more accurate word; there are no meetings, no drives, no campaigns, no sports, no games, no dues, no grip, and no house.

The only thing Sigma Phi Nothing has in common with other fraternities is a fraternity hymn. In fact, two hymns were submitted to a recent meeting of the national board of directors (some of whom attended). The first hymn goes:

*Sigma Phi Nothing, Shining star,
How we wonder If you are.*

The second hymn, rather more poetic in content, is to be sung to the tune of Also Sprach Zarathustra:

*A Gurneys's a coat,
A road is a lane,
When you're eating chow,
Remember the main.*

Pending the next meeting of the national board of directors (which will never be held) members are authorized to sing either hymn. Or, for that matter, Freest.

Perhaps you are wondering why there should be such a fraternity as Sigma Phi Nothing. I can give you an answer—an answer with which you cannot possibly disagree: Sigma Phi Nothing fills a well-needed gap.

Are you suffering from mental health? Is logic distorting your thinking? Is ambition encroaching on your native sloth? Is your long-cherished misinformation retreating before a sea of facts? In short, has education caught up with you?

If so, congratulations. But spring is upon us and the sap is rising, and the mind looks back with poignant longing to the days when it was a puddle of unreason.

—Just for a moment—you must to reapture those careless vapors, that warn, squishy confusion, then join Sigma Phi Nothing and renew your acquaintance with fecklessness. We promise nothing, and, by George, we deliver it!

© 1964 Max Shulman

We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, promise smoking enjoyment, and we think you'll think we deliver it—in all fifty states of this Union. Marlboro Country is where you are.

Carmen Tickets Going Fast

Tickets are moving briskly for the Friday and Saturday night performances of "Carmen" by the FSU Opera Guild in Westcott Auditorium.

Tickets for a 10:30 a.m. Friday special performance for junior and senior high school students are sold out and a full house now is expected for all three performances.

Joy Davidson will sing the lead role in the two night productions and Bronson Matney will sing the role of Don Jose.

In the Friday morning performances Rose Christie Wildes will sing the role of Carmen and Don Jose will be sung by Wallace Bartosz.

Lionie Keen will sing the role of Escamillo, the bullfighter, in all three performances.

The opera, with opening curtain at 8:15 p.m. on the two nights, is directed by Richard Collins. Tickets, at Westcott ticket office, are $2 for the adult public and $1 for FSU and other students.

Two deaf ears are all Carmen gets from Don Jose as she flirts with him in the opening scenes of the opera "Carmen," scheduled this weekend in Florida State University's Westcott Auditorium. Carmen is sung by Joy Davidson of Tallahassee and Don Jose by Bronson Matney of Quincy in both the Friday and Saturday evening performances. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Government Lecture Series To Host Dr. Daniel Lerner

By KAY HUFFMASTER
Flambeau Staff Reporter

"There is no social science in a non-democratic country. The method of social research, direct observation, is intolerable to the totalitarian regimes."

Dr. Daniel Lerner, guest speaker of the Government Lecture Series, defined the countries in which there is no social science as Communist Russia, Fascist Italy, and Nazi Germany.

Lerner gave as a reason for this lack the fact that direct observation reveals facts which are bound to undermine the ideology of the regime. This would destroy the hope that reality will fit the ideology. Consequently, attitude research does not exist in the USSR; in Russia Marxism is the official social science, Lerner made an allusion to a man buying shoes. Don't ask the man wearing the shoes whether they pinch, but tell him when and how they should pinch.

Lerner's insight into the way research affects policy came as a result of his efforts during World War II as an intelligence officer on the staff of General Eisenhower. He was in the psychological warfare division to determine the state of morale among the German soldiers and civilians. He did attitude research to decide the best policy to follow to bring about an unconditional surrender.

As a result of his studies at that time, he discovered for himself a strategy of truth—research which serves policy can't have anything to do with truth. The policy must follow research; research cannot follow policy.

In democratic countries attitude research is a necessity. Democratic control requires knowledge of the people governed. In this way it serves those who govern. Those governed also should make attitude research a necessity since it makes the will of the governed harder to ignore.

On a practical basis, Lerner gives search as conducted in the U.S. Election polling provides "the gold mine of election research which gives a more detailed picture of the voters."

Work done by the Social Science Research Committee has given insight into two important areas, it has helped to voice public opinion of foreign policy. Also it has measured the appeal of Communism to the public.

"I personally don't think sociological theory has advanced very much," Lerner does, however, think that political science is the coming thing. He firmly believes in "the great potential of political science to be the integrating power of all social sciences since social systems operate under political management."

Soapbox Derby To Be Held Sat.

The Alpha Gamma Delta-Phi Delta Theta Soapbox Derby, an annual event, will be Saturday at 2 p.m. in front of Westcott.

The race will begin in front of Westcott Pool, with a sorority member driving the car built by the assisting fraternity.

The Mystics will provide the music for the dance that will be held in the Suwannee Room from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight Saturday. An LD, card is necessary for admission. During the dance, trophies will be presented to the winners of the Derby by the sponsoring Alpha Gams and Phi Deltas.

The sorority-fraternity entries are ADPI and TEP, Pi Phi and ATO, Chi O and Theta Chi, DG and Phi Psi, KD and Delta Chi, DZ and Sig Ep, Gamma Phi Beta and Pi Kap, Sigma Kappa and KA, AOPi and Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Mu and Lambda Chi, Alpha Xi Delta and SAE, Tri Delta and Delta Kappa Gamma and Sigma Chi, Alpha Chi and Kappa Sig, Tri Sig and Sigma Nu, Theta and Pike and APO and Alpha Phi.

Cagers Test Stets on tonight In Deland

If Florida State's basketball team hopes to have a winning record, they'll have to do it away from home, beginning here tonight in a game with Stetson University's Hatters. The Seminoles, who wound up their home schedule with a 101-77 romp over Jacksonville Saturday night in Tallahassee, move on to Miami Beach Saturday night for a return game with the Miami Hurricanes.

With three road games to play (the Tribe goes to Georgia March 3rd), Coach Bud Kennedy's team is 10-12. Victory in the final three games would give Kennedy's fourth straight winning season.

Stetson should prove to be opposed to such a run. Coach Glenn Wilkes' team lost to FSU in Tallahassee last year but could ride the shooting of 6-4 forward Bill Hester and 6-9 center Bill Pickens to a victory tonight.

The Seminoles all but swamped an ambitious Jacksonville University team Saturday night, scoring 50 points in the opening half and 51 in the second. Jerry Shirley and Gary Schull, the Seminoles' duo at center, combined for 38 points (20-18) to blast any JU hopes. It was the first JU-FSU regular season meeting.

Miami's Rick Barry, 6-7 junior forward who shattered all UM scoring records, poses a serious threat once the Seminoles hit Miami Beach.

Barry's 24-game total is 775 points, and 32 of them came vs Florida State on January 11th. The Tribe pulled off a minor upset, downing the Gators 80-78. Shirley now threatens to shatter one FSU record. He's hit 56 of 63 free throw attempts for a percentage of .889. That figure could break the season mark of 81.8 set by Jimmy Oler in 1955-56.

SPORTS

Teams Eye Action

Florida State's tennis team opens its season this Thursday against strong Rollins College.

The Seminoles, who had an outstanding 18-5 record last season, figure to be improved with four of the top six players returning, and some good sophomores to fill in the gaps.

Coach Paul Scarpa, in his first year as head coach, has one prime reason for optimism. He's Lex Wood, 26 year old South African, who currently ranks 22nd in the nation. Wood lost only one match last year, and is the defending Eastern Intercollegiate single champion.

Back at the number two position is Don Coton who should be ready for his best season. Steve Gue, an outstanding sophomore from Little Rock, Ark., has moved into the number three position ahead of veteran Paul Bennett, who won 22 of 24 matches last year.

Bennett will play number four against Rollins. Finishing out the lineup are Steve Bruner and Don Monk.

*****

Florida State's golf team meets the University of Florida for the second week in a row when the Seminoles invade Gainesville this Saturday.

FSU won its opening match of the season, defeating the Gators in Tallahassee last Saturday by a convincing 14 1/2 - 3 1/2 score. However, Coach Hugh Durham expects his young team to have a tougher time at Florida's home course.

"We showed a lot of strength down through our team in the first match," Durham said. "Boys like Bill Bounwell came through in unexpected fashion for us."

Bounwell, playing in the sixth position, carded a 73 to tie Florida's number one man, Dave Hammer. The number three FSU man, Richie Karl, also scored a 73, while John Parsons, John Danielson and Mark Blair had 74s.

"Our number one man Denny Lyons had a rough front nine against the Gators and finished with a 78," said Durham. "We'll be getting a better golf from him, and if the bottom half of our team continues the way they started, we should be in good shape."

This Saturday's match will be played on the University of Florida course, beginning at 10 a.m.

LYNDA WEST

...ranked number 22 in the nation and number five in the state of Florida will be FSU's best hope Saturday as the Racquettes journey to Jacksonville Saturday for the Women's Intercollegiate Invitational Meet.

The Intramural Corner

Intramural Softball Referees Needed

Softball umpires are needed. They will be paid $2.00 a game. All interested call the intramural office, 2640. Softball games begin next week.

Couples sign up now for the co-ed dance intramurals. Sign up at the main bulletin board in the Women's gym or call ext. 3348 from 3:45-4:45.

MEN: Tonight's basketball games have been cancelled due to the gymnastic meet. They will be played Monday. The ping pong tournament continues tonight at Tully Gym. WOMEN: Swimming practices have been changed to 5:30; it is required that all contestants have two practices, one before March 16 and one the week of March 16-19.

RESULTS: In the first round of the basketball playoffs: Lambda Chi Alpha defeated Alpha Tau Omega; Phi Delta Theta beat Delta Tau Delta, and Alumni Village over Smith Hall.

Racquettes Jax - Boun

Lynda West is FSU's strongest hope for a singles victory in the Women's Collegiate Invitational Tennis Championships in Jacksonville this weekend. Lynda is ranked 22 nationally and number 5 in Florida.

Last summer she played in a number of tournaments throughout the country and compiled a record of wins that brought her honorable mention on the Junior Wightman Cup Squad. She won both the singles and doubles in the Westerns and was on the Florida Intercollegiate Squad that won the team trophy in Germantown. She and former high school teammate, Wendy Overton, won the deciding doubles in the semis and finals. In the same tournament, she defeated Bonnie Ellis, ranked number 4 in Southern California and semi-finals.

In Jacksonville, Lynda will compete from other nation ranked women netters. Among them are Roberta Allison, University of Alabama; Nancy Falkenberg, Baldwin College; Leahy Kelleher, University of Miami; and Tym, University of Florida. Eleven members of the Racquet Club leave tomorrow to compete in the three-day tournament. The first home match this trimester will be against Rollins College on 7.

Second South African Joins Seminole Netters

"I have been playing tennis for as long as I can remember," Paul's father, who is a tennis coach, passed the love of the game to his son who has proven his excellent tennis background by winning numerous honors and titles. The high point in his tennis career in South Africa came when he became the Border Provinces Junior Champion. Junior signifies age group, not ability since Paul has played successfully on the Senior teams also.

Summertime ambitions include seeing as much of the US as possible. Paul would like to play in the Amateur Tennis Circuit while here. De Zeur is still in the process of deciding on his long term ambitions. It is a toss-up between medicine or physical education. As for a career of professional tennis, Paul said, in so many words, "Que sera, sera."

One of the main differences Paul found upon his arrival in the US was a language barrier. "I found it difficult to understand the draw. My professors would speak series of sentences and I would be unable to tell what they had said."

Another adjustment Paul made was getting used to the cold weather. East London's climate is like that of the Mediterranean and seldom gets below 50 degrees.

Despite the differences Paul likes it very much at FSU. He is glad to have come here.

From Holland to South Africa to FSU may seem to many to be the long way around to get to Tallahassee. Paul de Zeur has taken this route to become FSU's newest netter. A tall, blue-eyed South African, Paul is here on a tennis scholarship. Besides his obvious tennis talent, Paul is bi-lingual. He speaks Afrikaans and English, both official languages of Cape Province. Although Paul was born in Holland, he moved before he was able to learn the language. However, ever since his grandmother who speaks only Dutch came to live with them, he has been able to add Dutch to his list of tongues.

Sigma Kappa Offers Variety Show Again

Seventeen FSU fraternities and sororities will muster their talents tomorrow night for a evening of entertainment in the Sigma Kappa Variety Show in Opperman Music Hall 9:30 p.m.

A variety of acts by each group will present the audience with musical, dramatic and straight comedy entertainment, all for an admission fee of 50 cents.

Separate categories, the fraternities and sororities will compete for A-top honors, which include two moving trophies. Plaques will be awarded to the runners-up for their acts.

The acts will be based on a six-point rating system; group participation (one point), originality (two), humor (three), performance (four), costume (five), and presentation (six).

Master of Ceremonies will be Kelley Reid, and the event judges will be Mike Shaara, Dean Margaret Lynn and Al Smelok.

The winner will be announced at the end of the show. Also to be announced during the show will be the winner of the Alpha Phi Omega Ugly Man Contest.

Copping the trophies in last year's variety show were Chi Omega and Delta Tau Delta, while the runners-up were Kappa Alpha Theta and Pi Kappa Phi.

With the 50 cent admission and a ten dollar entrance fee charged each entering group, the Sigma Kappa's have been able to significantly contribute to Campus Chest. Last year the proceeds for Campus Chest totaled $240.

Speech Dept. Hosts Debate

The FSU Speech Dept. will host the 21st Annual FSU Invitational Debate tournament tomorrow and Saturday, among the 21 schools participating will be the University of Alabama, Penn. University, University of Florida, University of South Florida, Auburn University, Spring Hill College and Alabama College.

A special feature of the FSU tournament will be the use of conference-style debate for the two Saturday morning rounds. This form of debate takes the participants in a more formal speaking situation in which the judge and participants are permitted to ask question of the speaker. The national debate topic for 1963-64 is "Resolved: that the Federal Government should guarantee an opportunity for a higher education to all qualified high school graduates." It will be the topic of all debates in the tournament.

Other events will include persuasive speaking, a five-minute speech on national affairs, and an after-dinner speech.

Participating for FSU in the various events will be Richard Rott, Tom Wynns, Joan Corey, Susan Hall, Paul Brown, Jan Comer, Ray Haynes, Darlene Giles, Mac Kilmon, Peter Haddad, Sandra Parks, Elaine Napier, Sara Jane, Billie Weaver, Nancy Dale, and H. Hurst, and Vesta Turbett.

The Sigma Kappas also announced that an open house will be held at their house after the show, with a combo providing entertainment.

The fraternities entering acts in the show are SN, DTD, FDT, PKA, PKP, LKA, KS, and SPE.

Sororities entering in the show are ADF, DED, KD, FM, CO, AOP, ACO, ZTA, and AXD.

Robins Award Winners To Be Selected

Students will select the FSU finalists for the Robins Award tomorrow's election.

This award is presented to living Americans who have made outstanding contributions.

Each year 200 colleges participate in the selection of the outstanding people in eight different fields: industry, government, entertainment, education, athletics, religion, special and promotion of international relations.

FSU this year, for the first time became one of the selecting schools. Here as to each other participating school, a committee of 35 students makes nominations for the eight categories. The nominations are then sent to a screening committee at Utah State College where the final candidates for each category are chosen.

"Carmen" To Open Tonight

The FSU Opera Guild's coming production of "Carmen" will, according to Richard Collins, director of the Guild, be presented in English with the original spoken dialogue in place of the sung recitatives usually heard.

Tickets for a special performance at 10:30 a.m. Friday for junior and senior high school students are sold out and it looks like 1600-seat Westcott will be filled for both night productions as well.

Joy Davidson, well known to local audiences for appearances in "The Consul" and "Orpheus" will sing the lead role in the two night performances and Christine Matney will sing the role of Don Jose.

Rose Christie Wildes, who has appeared frequently as soloist with the Women's Glee Club and University Singers, will sing the role of Carmen in the Friday morning performance with Wallace Bartosz as Don Jose.

Lionie Keene will sing the role of Escamillo, the flashy bullfighter, in all three performances.

The Guild's presentation of Bizet's popular opera will be assisted by the Theatre Dance Group and the Tallahassee Junior Chorus.

Three students from the Theatre Dance, directed by Holly Chapman of the Physical Education faculty, and a dozen school children from the Junior Chorus directed by Lois Schnoor of the School of Music, will dance and sing in the colorful opera.

The presentation will be at 8:15 p.m. both nights and tickets may be bought at Westcott for $2 for the adult public and $1 for all students.

New Officials Support Honor Code Revisions

Student Government officials are strongly urging all students to support the proposed amendment to the Honor Code by voting for it in the elections today.

"The main reason for my campaign platform in the recent election, newly elected President John Jones is fully endorsing the new Honor Code."

"The Honor Code has advantages over the old one is that it has been accepted by both the Faculty Senate and the Student Senate."

"Other advantages of the new Honor Code are:

Code System are the graduated scale of punishment for defendants and that it leaves the discipline for a defendant to the discretion of the professor concerned."

"This gives the members of the court greater choice in disciplining students rather than immediate suspension."

"I would like to urge all students to vote in the elections with the same enthusiasm as they did in the Student Body elections because the Honor Code will affect each and every member of the student body. Every student should have a part in making the decision which will affect the student university."

Luther Kramer, Secretary of Internal Affairs, said the honor code was a great thing. "If it is going to succeed, it's the responsibility of every student to follow the code. It will work if enough students are honest and really want it to work. It is really admirable that we are willing to have it."

"The effectiveness of the new honor code depends entirely upon the student's acceptance of it. Unless the students really try to understand the purpose behind the Honor Code it will be worthless."

Announcements

Tickets for "L'Alouette," the French play to be presented Monday night in Westcott, will be on sale at $1.25 tonight and tomorrow night in Westcott prior to the performances of "Carmen."

Seniors have only eight days left to order caps and gowns. The main reason for this is the reduction in invitations and calling cards from the University Bookstore.

Applications Now Available

Application blanks for the positions of editor of the Smoke Signals, Pow Wow, Tally Ho and the Legend and application blanks for the position of business manager of student publications are now available in the Student Activities Office, RM. 20, Longmire Bldg.

The editorships and business manager's position for next year will come before the Board of Publications for a vote at its next meeting on March 24.

Applications for the offices will be accepted by the BOP until, but not after, March 24, when the positions will be filled.

To qualify for the position of editor, a student must have at least an overall scholastic average of 2.3 or have achieved at least this scholastic average in the trimester preceding application. Editor applicants must also have had at least two trimester experience on a student publication.

To qualify for the position of business manager, a student must have at least an overall scholastic average of 2.0 or have achieved this scholastic average in the trimester preceding applications, and must have served at least two trimesters in student publications.

All qualified students may apply by filling in a written application and filing it with Dr. Reid Montgomery, Director of Student Activities, Longmire.

TCU Philosopher Will Be Speaker in Series

Dr. Gustave Ferre, chairman of the Philosophy Dept. at Texas Christian University, will be the Religion in Life series lecturer, March 10 and 11.

Ferre will speak at luncheons in the Swanee Room, Wednesday and Thursday on "Man and His Quest for Values." He will also conduct short seminar session with students and faculty in the Wesley Foundation.

Tickets for the luncheons will be available through the University Chaplain's Office today. Today's luncheon on "Man and His Quest for Values" is for faculty.

Ferre formerly taught at Vanderbilt University in Nashville.

High Calibre

A different atmosphere was noticed during election time by those of us closely watching the campaigning this year. Campaign violations were kept to a minimum, results were available in record time, and the entire election period was marked by an aura of quiet orderliness.

Many of the candidates and the parties should be congratulated for their actions, but the "Flambeau" must single out Sam Ashdown, commissioner of elections, and the Elections Commission for special praise.

Ashdown was chosen by president Johnny Smith to replace Jon Kaney as commissioner of elections at the beginning of this trimester. Since that time he has shown a cool head and a strong personal leadership in carrying out his responsibilities.

Ashdown contributed campaign news and other needed information to the "Flambeau" far in advance of most of his predecessors. This made our job easier and permitted all candidates and the student body to keep abreast of the election rules, etc.

It is gratifying to see men of this calibre representing the student body in Student Government.

Vote Yes

Tuesday's "Flambeau" carried an editorial urging support for the proposed revisions in the Honor Code. Due to some error, the code was not available to put on the ballot and therefore must be voted on in today's run-off election.

The editorial is reprinted below as we believe that it is applicable today as it was when first published.

*****

Today the FSU student body will cast its vote to indicate the men and women it believes should be charged with the responsibility of seeing that its Student Government is run efficiently and in the best interests of the majority of students.

Whatever the outcome of the officer elections, we believe that everyone should read and vote for the new revisions of the FSU Honor Code.

Chief Justice Kelly Reid and his committee have labored long and diligently to revise the old code so that it will truly represent a standard of ethics by which every student should be able to abide.

The proposed changes have been approved by both the Student and Faculty Senates. It has been endorsed by the University Administration, Student Government and the members of the student judicial system.

The "Flambeau" recommends that every student cast a "yes" vote for the new Honor Code so that it may be passed with an overwhelming vote of approval, both for the Honor Code itself and for the tremendous work accomplished by Justice Reid and his staff.

US Constitutional Revision Is Needed

The convention method of amending the Constitution has never been used because of the problems that use would raise. No details are given about such a convention other than that "The Congress... on the approval of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several States shall call a convention for proposing amendments."

This leaves many questions unanswered. How are the members of the convention to be selected? What are the restrictions upon them? What amendments are to be considered? How is the convention to operate?

The rather obvious reason for having the convention clause in the Constitution is to give the states and the people a direct opportunity to propose amendments. However, as it is now worded, it is so vague that it would be very difficult to use it. Because of this difficulty there is a movement to do just that, to use this method of amendment to make it easier to amend the Constitution by the states. The way this is to work is by putting pressure on the Congress by attempting to use the convention clause. The theory is that if enough states pass the resolutions the Congress will see the light and pass them first.

The immediate objective is the one that would rewrite Article Five of the Constitution. It reads as follows: "Section 1. Article V of the Constitution of the United States is hereby amended to read as follows:

"The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states."

Whenever applications from the Legislatures of two-thirds of the total number of states of the United States shall contain identical texts of an amendment to be proposed, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall so certify, and the amendment as contained in the application shall be deemed to have been proposed, without further action by Congress. No State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate."

"Section 2. This Article shall be operative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several states within seven years from the date of its submission."

In the legislative session just past, twelve states passed the resolution containing this amendment. The National Dual Sovereignty Commission, Inc., a private non-profit corporation was founded to handle the job of education and organizing needed to push this and the two resolutions through the various legislatures.

Speaker Mallory E. Horns of the Florida House of Representatives, chairman of this corporation, stated recently during a personal interview that he expected the number of states passing the resolutions to double during the next legislative session.

WFSU-FM Fills School's Needs

To the Editor:

Having read your Monday the 18th editorial, I am concerned about the concept of the function of our National FM Radio Station. Since WFSU is an educational station, it is ridiculous to request a change in commercial programming—as ridiculous as to request the Educational TV station to broadcast commercial network programs. The Tallahassee FM station fills the need for serious classical programming in this area, the purpose of our educational station should be to educate and not duplicate the entertainment of nearby commercial station.

In addition, I am sure that if you took an accurate poll of Tallahassee residents, including undergraduates, graduates and faculty, you would find that the station has a considerable following simply because it is a need not met by any other broadcasting service.

WFSU-FM Offers Wide Variety

To the Editor:
Re: Editorial of February 17 by Mr. Collins.

Since we were not included in your "survey" we would like to take this opportunity to answer yes to both of your questions. We are aware of the existence of WFSU-FM and we listen to it.

We have been listening to WFSU-FM for about two-and-a-half years and have enjoyed it immensely. During this time, the programming has been excellent, and Mrs. Marjorie Newman, the Program Director, should be congratulated for her efforts to give us a high level of diversified program material.

Among other things, WFSU-FM offers a wide variety of informative programs such as those dealing with

FSU Radio Station Offers Relief In Ocean Of Undefinable Noise

To the Editor:

Now that you mention it, I do know that there is an FM radio station operating on campus. Amidst the popular music, folk music, rock-and-roll and a large amount of that almost undefinable noise that some people call music, for the lack of a better word (or perhaps for the lack of a better understanding of what music is), we sometimes find some relief by turning on WFSU-FM and listening to some of the great works of music of our culture.

I know of a large number of music majors (there are more than 450 on campus) and of many other persons who are interested in "that type" of music, who also use this service provided by the University.

As a graduate student in the School of Music I find it impossible to accept the judgement of someone who thinks of music mainly as a background sound that will make his studying more comfortable.

Perhaps in asking for "this type" of music (I would be very interested in knowing what is the basis of your criteria for classifying it as study music) you are forgetting that the most important role of a university is to educate, not to entertain or soothe.

With a market overflooded with popular music, it is the responsibility of a university to provide the opportunity for its students to get acquainted with one of the strongest cultural influences in our civilization, one of the original so-called "fine arts"—Have you ever studied Humanities? You might think that this is not the duty of a university radio station, but how would we otherwise be able to listen to such important musical events as the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts every Saturday?

Perhaps you will argue that this is also entertainment. For many of us it is not. Rather than entertainment, it is a very important part of our education and of our lives, and we would strongly resent any attempts to deprive us of it.

I realize that many students are not using these facilities provided by the University and WFSU-FM, but this is a privilege that is inherent in our democratic tradition. You might not have the desire to take advantage of these opportunities, but you should be thankful that they are offered to those who want to do so. I think I should mention that I do not own an FM receiver, but have always found access to one every time I have needed it.

Perhaps the programming at WFSU-FM is not as good as it could be, and perhaps this is the result of the personal tastes of a limited number of people who work at that station, but this is hardly a reason why you should suggest to eliminate these programs. I am sure that the persons in charge of the programming are trying to do their best. If they fail sometimes to accomplish ideal results, this is a consequence of being as human as a newspaper editor who once in a while writes an editorial that does not agree with the opinion of a rather large amount of people who will be reading it.

Religious Council Officer Answers Holiday Queries

To the Editor:

Being a member of the University Religious Council, I wish to answer some questions directed my way concerning the Council's resolution petitioning "the University administration to disregard all appeals to discontinue the regular University schedule for the purpose of observing any specific religious observance."

The resolution and the reasons for it were clearly stated in last Tuesday's issue of the "Flambeau." However, as I have said, some questions have come up.

First, it should be noted that the resolution is concerned not only with Good Friday but with all additional specific religious observances on the part of the administration. (As pointed out in the "Flambeau," we feel that "rescheduling classes from Good Friday to Saturday would interfere with the Jewish Sabbath." If we were to support the Senate's resolution, then we would be excluding our Jewish friends who have long been workers in the URC and the SIFC, which existed before the URC.)

However, there is something else that should be noted. If Good Friday were observed by the administration, then it should also observe all the holidays of all the religious groups on campus.

If all holidays were recognized then confusion would result in the changing of classes; and if only one or two holidays were recognized, then the administration would justly be accused of partiality and perhaps discrimination against other groups.

The URC wishes, as one individual put it, "to do everything necessary to protect the rights of all religious groups."

Secondly, I have found that many students who are disappointed with the URC's resolution are somewhat hypocritical; they are not interested in a holiday for its religious purposes but for the opportunity to sleep later on what would have been a school day.

One individual even admitted such thoughts to me. May I remind these students that for every extra holiday which lets them sleep longer in the morning, there is a holiday of classes added in which they can't sleep longer. Where the logic of these students is I don't know.

Thirdly, as one individual at our last Council meeting presented in written form, "we feel that although we are sure that this (the Student Senate resolution) was offered in a most sincere spirit, we wish to point out that the resolution is not only inconsistent with the long-standing American principle of the separation of Church and State but would also move classes from the Christian Good Friday to the Jewish Sabbath."

This concept of the separation of Church and State as it applies to this matter was also well expressed by Ila Rubel in a column in Tuesday's "Flambeau."

There is a Solution, however, for those students sincerely wishing to be excused from classes for observing a holiday (because of honest, religious convictions) or for attending a religious meeting in another city.

(In my past four and a half years here at Florida State I have wanted to attend religious conventions or meetings in a city some distance from Tallahassee.)

I simply talked with each of my professors on the side and let them know of my honest desire to be at these meetings. So far I have had no trouble, and usually in addition am excused without a cut mark placed beside my name.

It should be remembered that professors are not monsters as so often implied and stated in "sessions," that is, whenever the sessions vary from the subject of the daffy, geometrical figures on our campus.

Since our teachers are reasonable, we can find ourselves excused from classes when we do our work ahead of time and whatever else is necessary to SHOW our honest sincere desire based on religious convictions. A man with true sincerity will find a way to do whatever necessary.

Radio Station Called A 'Complete Success'

To the Editor:

For a year and a half, I have been going to write a letter of appreciation to WFSU-FM. It is typical of many of us today, I suspect, that it took an unwarranted attack on it by the editor of the "Flambeau" for me to actually do it.

I think one of the finest things Tallahassee has to offer is WFSU-FM. It is one of the reasons why, after 26 years of moving all over the world as an Army wife, I want to settle permanently in Tallahassee. I was fortunate. The first year we lived here (L961-62) I was typist at WFSU-FM. I thus learned at first hand about the programs it presents and bought without delay an FM radio. I felt then and still feel that WFSU-FM needs more publicity but I don't know what more the station itself can do.

It sends a monthly program to anyone who requests it. It announces in "This Week" and frequently in the "Flambeau" programs to be presented.

Many of the School of Music concerts and recitals carry a notation to the effect that the concert is being broadcast by WFSU-FM and will be rebroadcast at a certain date. The announcers request comments on programs presented.

It would be wonderful if the university could provide a special room with an FM radio where students could listen to programs of interest. It would be even finer if someone could persuade more students to invest a small sum in an FM radio. Mine cost $26.00 and has been playing practically continuously for two and a half years. It was the best investment I ever made.

This brings me to the programming. I am not a student of music, but I would consider WFSU-FM a complete success if it did nothing but continue to bring live from New York the New York Philharmonic and the Metropolitan Opera. But it does more.

There is no other station that brings you the "FSU Forum," the broadcasts and rebroadcasts of the FSU School of Music concerts, the "Humanities Hour" and the many NABE programs of current interest. In addition we have jazz programs, musical comedies, feature concerts and my favorite the evening concert. Certainly there is something here for any listener.

WFSU-FM also performs other functions. It provides valuable training for those students who work either in the office or as announcers. It broadcasts and rebroadcasts many recitals of the FSU School of Music. It sends to other stations throughout the state tapes of its excellent "FSU Forum." It produces special programs and announcements to highlight coming FSU events. It presents supplementary materials for established FSU courses.

There is no doubt in my mind that WFSU-FM provides a valuable and enjoyable service to Tallahassee and the University. I believe that many people, besides me, are proud of it.

Goetz Praises Common Market

"There is no such thing as a solution by war," stated Mr. Rolf Goetz of the Radio in the American Sector of West Berlin, as he lectured last Monday afternoon in the Library Lecture Hall.

Speaking on "Germany After World War II," Goetz explained the condition of Germany when the war ended and the problems for Germany in the years since the war.

In 1945 Goetz stated that 80% of the big German cities were destroyed, and the women were left defenseless in front of the occupying armies. "You have never lived in war. Let's hope you don't," emphasized Goetz.

After the war Germany and Berlin were divided into zones. This created problems of defense for supply lines which finally resulted in the German Airlift.

Nineteen years after the war, there is still no peace treaty. This has created a major point of concern to Germans, according to Goetz.

A third problem after the war was the fact that the Germans could not start rebuilding society. A "black market" was operating in which one cigarette sold for 12 marks ($3).

To solve this problem, in 1948, Germany went on the idea of free enterprise with no control. Goetz feels that they may have decentralized too much in this step.

Communism has been a further problem. When the war ended in May, 1945, the Communists had already begun operation for the purpose of taking over Germany and Poland.

The Communist party is outlawed in Germany because they had to outlaw a Nazi party which arose at the same time. Goetz thinks this is wrong because when a party is outlawed it goes underground and is more difficult to watch.

There are no known Communists in West Germany, according to Goetz, because they have had no dictatorship and do not want another.

"After 1948 we knew just and only with your troops we could survive."

Goetz said. He explained that West Germany has made its own decision to stay with the West.

"We want to be part of the free Western World," Goetz said. Germans do not want to make trouble, and think they could contribute to the West.

Goetz praised the Common Market and expressed the hope of Germans for a United States of Europe. They want to unite Germany first, but Goetz thinks Germans would probably have a United States of Europe without cementing the union of Germany.

Also, there will be a very important meeting of the Social Action Committee and the Direct Action Committee. Refreshments will be served.

Photobiology Conference Held

A microscopic marine plant with a split personality and the chemistry of vision were two subjects discussed in last week's Conference on Molecular Mechanisms in Photobiology.

FSU hosted this international conference at Wakulla Springs, Feb. 17 through 21.

Dr. J. Woodland Hastings, University of Illinois, outlined the biochemistry of organic light in a marine alga with a dual capacity. It can be a luminescent night beautifier or cause red tide.

Hastings' discovery of luminescence in crystalline particles found in the cell is believed to be the first of its kind.

Hastings has been studying the light flashes emitted from the individual particles. He terms the particles "scintillens" and has tried to determine the biochemical basis for their ability to emit light.

Dr. W.A.H. Rushton, a University of Cambridge physiologist, described some of his experiments in vision involving after images.

The experiments have proved, said Rushton, that loss of sensitivity in the retina as increasing light enters the eye is due to a destruction of visual pigments in the rods and cones of the retina.

Subsequently, he said, the return of sensitivity is due to a gradual manufacture and replacement of the pigments. Rushton has been conducting experiments for the last ten years, using himself and undergraduate students at Cambridge as his subjects. He measured the quantity of pigments present as varying degrees of light were directed against the retina.

The conference at Wakulla was hosted by the FSU Institute of Molecular Biophysics, and financed by the National Science and Charles F. Kettering Foundations.

This Weekend

Today

There will be a general chemistry seminar at 4 p.m. in Room 306 Science. Dr. Luis Muga of the University of Florida will speak on "Aspects of Ternary Fission."

Patsy Brill

Coed Patsy Brill Enters College Queen Pageant

If one coed can do it in '63, so can another in '64, or so claims Patricia Brill, who was one of the twelve Regional Winners in the National College Queen Pageant.

The Pageant, held annually in New York, is devised as a search to find and honor the nation's most outstanding college girl. It is the only national contest where primary emphasis is placed on the student's academic achievement and scholastic ability.

Miss Brill, better known as Patsy, entered the 1963 contest upon recommendation of a family friend. Much to her surprise, she received a message from New York one day saying that she had been selected a regional winner to represent the states of Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Patsy exclaimed when asked about her trip, "I'll always remember the eleven days; sometimes I have to pinch myself to see if it really happened. It was nothing like I had ever seen or experienced before. This kind of thing usually happens to someone else, never to me."

When asked to comment about the upcoming contest, Patsy said, "I encourage everyone to enter it, because there is so much to gain, and to be in a contest of its type really brings out the qualities in a young lady. The 1964 Pageant will be run a little different this year. During the contest the girls will be tested on intelligence, general knowledge, qualities of leadership and personalities."

The girls will participate in a series of forums in which the judges conduct open discussions on a wide range of topics. The girls will be asked their opinions on such subjects as education, campus life, current events, art, literature, fashions, career goals, and many other subjects.

This year the Pageant will select 50 state winners instead of the regional winners selected in the 1963 contest. The officials will award 50 free trips to the World's Fair and the winner will receive more than $5,000 in prizes, including a complete wardrobe, gifts from Westinghouse Electric, an all expense paid trip to Europe and a new automobile.

In addition the Pageant will send each state winner to New York for a ten day stay in Manhattan. While there, the winners will tour New York, see Broadway shows, and make personal appearances on television.

The contest is open to any undergraduate girl, freshmen through seniors. Candidates may send in their own name.

Sororities, fraternities, and campus clubs may nominate candidates. For further information write to National College Queen Pageant Committee, 1501 Broadway, New York 36, New York.

Braille Comes To FSU

Braille At FSU

By THOMAS E. NELSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

FSU has come up with a first. This time it is a course in braille designed as a beginning course for sighted teachers of children.

Dr. Gideon Jones of the State Education Department, instructor of the course, said that this is the first of its kind in the state as he knows.

There are 14 students enrolled in the class. They are taught to read and write braille. A Braille writer (brailier) is used by the student in developing proficiency in sight reading and writing braille.

A new type of programmed instruction is being used in the course, which permits students to progress at individual rates.

Learning the braille alphabet consists of different combinations of up to six raised dots is not difficult but this is only the first step in the mastery of the skill. Contracting must be used in order to condense the code into a manageable form.

Even with the some 700 different contractions used in the braille code, it takes 145 large volumes or over 38,000 pages to produce a "World Book Encyclopedia" in braille.

It is estimated by the American Foundation for the Blind that there are 300,000 blind persons in the United States and that by 1970 there will be more than 400,000.

Day Games Reappear In 64 Grid Schedule

By DAVE ROSS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State will split its '64 home football games between day and night games. With the FSU-Florida game to be played in Tallahassee, the Seminoles will have the most attractive home schedule ever offered to FSU football fans.

The North Carolina State and Florida games will be played in the afternoon while the Southern Mississippi and New Mexico State contests will be held under the lights.

Next year's homecoming game on October 10 will match the Seminoles against the Wildcats of Kentucky and will be a day game as usual.

Last season FSU broke its previous policy of playing practically all night games by playing four of its five home games in the daylight. Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha explained that the reason for last year's change was twofold: to attract fans from a wider radius and to heed the desires of the Alumni Association.

Mancha emphasized that the afternoon games would open a new frontier in attracting supporters from the Florida, Georgia and Alabama areas.

The earlier time would enable alumni to come from further distances and return home the same day. The Seminoles would also receive better newspaper coverage because of some early Saturday night deadlines.

Although many out of town fans were able to see the Seminoles play last year attendance from local areas dropped off. The problem, Mancha pointed out, seemed to be a proper orientation of local residents to the new playing time.

It will be some time before these people change their own individual schedule so they can attend the day football games.

Until then FSU must stay in the middle of the road and try to appease both sides.

The schedule:

Sept. 18--At Miami.

Sept. 26--At TCU.

Oct. 3--New Mexico State.

Oct. 10--Kentucky.

Oct. 17--At Georgia.

Oct. 24--At Virginia Tech.

Oct. 31--Southern Miss

Nov. 7--At Houston.

Nov. 14--N.C. State.

Nov. 21--Florida.

Gymnastics

FSU's Gymnastic team, embarrassed by a loss last week-end to Georgia Tech in Atlanta, hosted Miami-Dade Junior College at Tully Gym last night at 7:30. It was the last home appearance for Coach Hartley Price's team, as the Seminoles sought their fifth win in six outings.

The Tribe had beaten Tech earlier, but dropped an 83-61 decision Saturday.

Crutchfield Peterson Teamed Again

By MELODIE BETTS

Quiet, modest, sincere, and a gentleman are characteristic of FSU's new backfield coach, Bill Crutchfield.

An old hand at defensive coaching, Crutchfield has worked with many great quarterbacks, such as Norman Speed of the Washington Redskins and the Matador, George Mira of Miami.

This isn't the first time that Peterson and Crutchfield have worked as a team. They coached at Mansfield High School in Ohio twelve years ago. When Peterson went to LSU, Crutchfield went to work with Furman and Wake Forest.

Moving to Miami pitted the two friends against one another as Peterson came to FSU.

Now once again working together Crutchfield says, "Coach Peterson and his staff have done a remarkable job with the football team here in the past four years. I'm real pleased to become a part of this organization and hope I will be able to make contribution to this fine coaching staff."

The team's response to Crutchfield has been most gratifying, the coach. "They're a smaller in size than any I've worked with, they're quicker and spritely, possess pride and desire as well as a willingness to learn and work for improvement. These are important qualities for a good all-around sense, they make for the lax to playing a little more defense, in fact, of defeating the opponent by out-hustling and maneuvering him."

Crutchfield is real pleased Steve Tensi and Ed Pritchett, terbacks of FSU, He believes that combination of both their skills keep the opponents guessing. "It is poised, an adequate runner, an outstanding passer, whereas Pritchett who is a well balanced player and runner, is effective in the several capable experienced by field men will be returning at Petko and Fred Blinnhoff.

Bradds Heads All-American

Ohio State's Gary Bradds, who scored 40 or more points in six straight games, led the UPI All-American Basketball team named Wednesday.

Others named to the team were Walt Hazzard of top ranked UCLA, Cotton Nash of Kentucky, Bill Bradley of Princeton, and Dave Stallworth of Wichita.

Bradds is the tallest player at 6-8. Stallworth, most valuable player in the tough Missouri Valley Conference, is next at 6-7. Nash and Bradley are both 6-5, and Hazzard is the little guy at 6-2.

The team averages 134 points a game, led by Bradley's 32.9, Bradds averages 31.1, Nash and Stallworth 26, and UCLA's Hazzard averages only 18.3.

Bradley and Stallworth or juniors. For Hazzard, it is his second year on the team, and for Nash it is his third.

Public Forum Committee Hats Proposed Campus Peace March

By BOB CORNET

FSU's Public Forum Committee announced today that it has refused to grant official University recognition for a proposed peace march through campus tomorrow. The march was scheduled by the "Quebec-Washington-Guantanamo" peace marchers.

At the same meeting, the forum committee also denied a request by A.J. Muste, a member of the peace group, to use University facilities for speech-making purposes today and tomorrow.

The committee said that the marchers were denied parade permission because of university precedent. Julian Proctor, student body vice president and member of the committee, said that the University has traditionally not allowed outside groups to parade on campus.

Proctor stated that if the peace group was allowed to parade, the University would have to let all groups requesting a parade permit have the same privileges.

Proctor added that he found this type of action inappropriate for the campus especially during class time.

Proctor said that he felt that it would be more appropriate to parade in the city streets.

Muste's request was not approved on the basis of a University policy which states: "The committee will not knowingly approve as a University speaker any individual whose past performance indicates that he reasonably be expected to advocate illegal... activities."

Muste and the peace marchers reportedly plan to enter Cuba. The State Department has placed restrictions on travel to the Communist dominated island.

The committee also said that the usual procedural regulations concerning such matters had been totally ignored.

The committee said that it approved as a University facilities had been committed to use without first gaining the sanction of the proper university officials.

Dean Lawrence Chalmers, a committee member, termed such actions as "wholly irresponsible."

In addition to Chalmers and Proctor, the committee consists of Dean R.R. Oglesby, Dr. Stephen Winters, Dr. Richard Baker and one other student, Tom Haney.

Roger Montsoret as Charles and Monita Derrieux as Miss Vincent, appear in tonight's production of "L'Alouette."

French Play "L'Alouette" 'Storms' FSU Tonight

By PAT FREEMAN
Flambeau News Editor

The tri-colored flag of the French Republic waves over Westcott tonight when Le Troupeau de Paris brings the stage of Westcott to present Jean Anouilh's controversial play, "L'Alouette."

Direct from Paris for their third engagement at FSU, the French actors will present an avant-garde drama by Anouilh based on the life of Saint Joan of Arc at 8:30 p.m. In the French playright's "L'Alouette," there are no indications of a formal division into acts or scenes. The piece is written as a continuous narrative, with actors strolling on and off stage. The characters involved decide among themselves where to begin the story, and when appear to choose what will be decided or left out as the drama progresses.

Sponsored on campus by the FSU Modern Languages Department, the troupe of professional actors annually tours America under the auspices of the "Association Francophone Artistique" of the Government of the French Republic.

The Troupeau company has appeared from coast to coast, with critics acclaiming their version of Anouilh's play as "the greatest since the premiere."

Tickets, which have been selling for $3.75 across the country, will be on sale today for $1.25 at the Main Ticket Office in Westcott, the Modern Languages Dept. or at Universal Travel, 119 East Park.

The heart of the dramatic work by Anouilh revolves around the character of Joan, played by Luce Vincent. Miss Vincent is today considered to be one of the leading actresses in the French Theatre.

Other members of Le Troupeau cast will include renowned and experienced actors from the "Boulevard of Paris," some of whom created roles in "L'Alouette."

Anouilh himself supervised the casting for the Troupeau presentation of "L'Alouette," and personally aided in the character development of actors portraying key figures in the dramatic events which led to Joan of Arc's martyrdom at the age of 19.

"L'Alouette" (The Lark) will be presented in French, although leading drama critics have insisted that anyone who watches Le Troupeau is "watching an international language, understandable to all."

Le Troupeau de Paris presented "Omphre" by Jean Cocteau and "L'Apollon de Bellac" by Jean Giraudoux last Spring on campus. Actors reported that the FSU audiences was one of the most critical and attentive they had encountered during their American jaunt.

Jean Anouilh, today one of France's most prolific and well-known playwrights in writing an answer to a request for biographical details said, "I have no biography and I am very glad of it."

The Honor Code amendment failed to pass in Friday's elections because of the lack of a quorum of voters.

The Board of Publications quorum amendment also failed to pass for the same reason.

1274 student voted in Friday's runoff, said Sam Ashdown, Commissioner of Elections. This is short of the 25% of the 11,000 students required to ratify an amendment.

1019 voted for the Honor Code and 176 against in the nullified election. 980 voted to pass the BOP amendment, while 74 were against it.

In the run-off elections, Sheila Clarke defeated Linda Savidge for the Clerk of Honor Court. Clarke received 671 votes and Savidge received 550.

The FSU selections for the Robbins Award were also decided Friday. The Robbins Award is presented to the outstanding living Americans in each of eight different vocational fields.

The winners are chosen by the students of 200 colleges and universities in the United States.

James Bryant Conant, former president of Harvard, was elected in the field of education.

In religion, Billy Graham, a Baptist evangelist, was chosen the outstanding living American.

Dean Rusk, United States Secretary of State, received the elections in government.

Chief executive of the Ford Motor Company, Henry Ford II was selected in industry.

Bob Hope, radio, film and television comedian, barely defeated composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein for the election in entertainment. Former St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder, Stan Musial, won the honors in athletics.

In the special category, Karl Sandburg, poet and Lincoln biographer, took the award.

Danny Kaye, actor and comedian, received the award for International Understanding.

Former President, John F. Kennedy, received a special posthumous award.

The FSU results will be tabulated with the results from the other 199 colleges and the final winners will be announced later this year.

Luce Vincent appears with one of her three men when she plays Joan of Arc in "L'Alouette."

Muste Speaks Off Campus

A.J. Muste, National Chairman of the Committee for Non-Violent Action, will speak off campus tonight at the Unitarian Chapel, Steve Baum announced today.

Baum, chairman of the Students Act for Peace, said that Muste will talk on the CNVA "Quebec-Washington-Guantanamo" peace march. His speech is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Muste will be speaking, said Baum, specifically to local ministers, university faculty and community leaders.

Muste has spoken to groups on the campuses of Davidson College, Rutgers University and Duke.

Seventy-six year old Muste played a central role in organizing the current "Q-W-G" peace march. He participated in several earlier peace movements.

These include the voyage of the "Golden Rule," which four men sailed into the Atomic Testing area near Eniwetok in 1958.

Muste is the Secretary Emeritus of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in the United States and serves as a missionary of the Church Peace Mission.

Muste has also authored two books, "Nonviolence in an Aggressive World" and "Not by Might."

Policy Wrong

Friday's decision by the University Public Forums Committee to ban the planned speech by Mr. A.J. Muste is a denial not of the things Mr. Muste advocates so much as it is a denial of one of the fundamental principles of American democracy. Granted that with existing codes the Committee could have done nothing else, but it is the code itself that is in question.

University regulations state that no person who advocates any illegal or immoral action may be permitted to use University facilities. In Mr. Muste's case, his support of the march to Cuba puts him in this category since the State Department has banned all travel to Cuba by American citizens.

This is unfortunate. One tenet of a man's creed has caused him to be denied the right to expound the rest of that creed. Surely, no one believes that everything Mr. Muste might say would be true or even sane. Yet, in a democracy it is necessary to assume that everybody it worth listening to.

This must be so since there is as yet no code devised that will eliminate all purely negative influences on a society and at the same time not restrict the freedom of sincere citizens.

History is filled with a long succession of administrations of one kind or another who have attempted to legislate right and wrong and have been destroyed by counterforces when they have become old and inflexible.

The strength of this or any other society lies in its being able to tap all the resources of intelligence within it. True that this demands a good bit of enlightened sifting—but this sifting must be done by the free citizen and not by any administrative power. Painful and frightening as it may be to those persons in a position of power who have the good of the people at heart, in a democracy it is nonetheless necessary for the people to know and understand all sides of all issues.

No one questions the University's benevolence—only its ability to offer guidance and protection of this sort to students after graduation.

Government ?

Last Friday less than 25% of the FSU student body voted in the honor code referendum. This is student government.

Students complain that they have no voice in decisions concerning their everyday lives. They accuse the University of all manner of "Ivy Towerism." Still, when it comes down to the business of voting the student government officials now in office spend most of their time just getting students to vote—let alone worrying about getting the measure passed.

If the student body wants a student government with a real say—so it is going to have to put the say into their selves. Government by the people cannot be until the people are willing to take time to govern.

Berlin Wall, Ever Present Warning

One of the most memorable experiences of my brief life so far has been my last summer's visit to West Berlin. A friend and I, bumming around West Berlin in a Volkswagen at the time, made it a special point to be in Berlin for Kennedy's visit. The situation was an ideal combination of factors. To motor through East Germany on the Autobahn, see Berlin, Kennedy, the Wall, and real live Reds, all within 48 hours would be two days well spent. So, blithely, in we went. By the time we came out many of our outlooks and beliefs had solidified. We went in as typical apathetic Americans and came out Americans knowing where we stood.

The first day we naturally rolled into town to see the Wall. This was what did it. We both had seen pictures of the Wall, pictures of people shot crawling through the barbed wire and photos of the disdainful guards. We had not been there in person, though, to see all the little things that add reality.

Reality comes suddenly against the backdrop of a shelled out city. The surrounding bullet-pocked buildings and distant city noises of prosperous W. Berlin only emphasize the shabbiness of the Wall. Here and there stands an occasional cross betokening some panic stricken human who didn't quite make it. Reality caused several hundred people to stand mute. It caused me to see the light.

All of a sudden the intentional trouble we had at the border, the strip of No Man's Land from Poland to Turkey, and galleys-bellied guardhouses extending from Poland to Turkey weren't funny. We were laughed to see "Spartan" soldiers ("Cuba, Sil Yankee, No") patrolled in the same band style for more than a hundred miles of the Autobahn. The ultimate scope of the sinister force behind this all became clear.

Kennedy fully realized the physical and mental scope of the enemy when he saw the Wall for the first time next day. There at the Brandenburg Gate, a stone's throw from the burned out Reichstag, he faced a war-warshipped city half hidden in huge red banners draped from the gate itself.

A sign in English placed in a prominent position proclaimed that the "German Democratic Republic" was stamped out Nazi militarism, etc. It asked when this would be finished in W. Germany and W. Berlin. The man for whom it was intended became instantly angry at this point. Kennedy probably came out of Berlin in the state of mind most every other visiting Westerner left in. He had a physical reason for his fight Communism: the Wall. It came back fighting Communism as a theory (because he was born an American) but as a real physical entity.

What were his and my lasting impressions? Well, we have to warn the Communists if only for the sake of the millions of people behind the Iron Curtain. We should constantly remember the Wall in all our dealings. This is exhibit number one for the West. This one concrete block structure symbolized many things. It represents the policy of communism, the plight of millions, a constant warning for us, and the blackest and sinister depth of an opponent we must someday overcome.

Voting System

Is Too Archaic

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, the day of Student Government elections, I was privileged to see the Honor System in action. It was really a satisfying thrilling experience to be told by the Attorney General that at an office on the Honor System would not enable me to vote in the elections. As I understand, many students had their ID cards punched by mistake at some previous time and were unable to vote.

I offer my sympathy to them. It is quite a feeling to know that you are voting when something that is both a right and a voluntary privilege. May I suggest to those who plan major elections and the like in the future, report where the punch-card system such an archaic method of voting, that you perhaps, place some notice in the "Flambeau" a few days prior to the event. The notice should inform students what number on their ID will be needed, and if it has already been punched, the future report where the punch-card commission the day prior to the election for special ballots. Since their ID is already punched, they will not be able to vote on the following day but will have been allowed to vote regardless of an error. Thus, there will be no need to use the Honor System, which seems to be a general trend anyway.

My sincerest thanks go to the Elections Commission for their understanding my problem.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Limited Bureaucracy Is The Best

To the Editor:

Max Weber once said that bureaucracy was the most efficient system for human cooperative endeavor. Weber, though a great thinker, was not divine nor infallible, nor was Karl Marx.

He was writing in the last century when bureaucracy was still in its infancy. It is very doubtful that he thought the whole world or even an entire country should become a bureaucracy.

For once a bureaucracy gets too cumbersome, it can't function from its own weight and is no longer efficient. Once it reaches a critical maximum size, then it gets more inefficient as it grows larger.

Socialism, of course, is the world's biggest bureaucracy and every individual is put in a little box on a vast organizational chart. Then everybody loses his identity. The government controls everything. What happens to the people in these little boxes? They grow slothful and incompetent, merely clocking the days until retirement time.

What happens to the enterprises that are taken over by this bureaucracy? They are befuddled in red tape, waste, useless duplication, and they rarely progress.

This is not meant to imply that the government should keep its hands off everything. There are some areas that should have some government control, some none, and still others that should be completely socialized.

It is a matter of a point where the critical maximum occurs. The critical maximum can only be explained in pragmatic terms.

It is the place in bureaucratic development where practicality ceases. There are already some endeavors where the national government has overextended itself, which has caused some things best left completely to private enterprise.

Doctor Weber would have been on surer ground if he had said: "A limited bureaucracy is the most efficient system for cooperative human endeavor."

Jaywalking on a busy street is one of the ways a co-ed can "lose her man." Holloway said after watching an occasional student jaywalker strolling casually across a busy thoroughfare a few feet away from a cross walk and traffic light. She outlined to the students what she called the SAM - Save a Male - project. "Some of you will never find your man because your man will be killed in a traffic accident," she said. "There are 4.8 boys killed in traffic accidents to each one girl."

The speaker said that traffic accidents are the first cause of death for those between 15 and 24 and almost two out of three that die in that age group, die because of accidents.

After observing jaywalkers on campus and nearby streets, Holloway told the health education seminar, "I have never encountered a group of people with more faith in their fellowman -- faith he'll see them in time to stop his car -- and faith that the brakes will hold."

In addition to saving their man before marriage, Holloway stressed women as the leaders in accident prevention in the home where 19 million persons a year are injured. Falls accounted for the largest number of accidental injuries in the home. "Struck by moving object" was next followed by "handled or stepped on rough objects" and "cutting or piercing instruments."

English Coffee Hour Hosts Allan Thomson

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

"We are still under the influence of myth today," said Dr. Allan Thomson as he commented on "Language and Myth at the English Coffee Hour Friday.

Thomson went on to define myth as a combination of reality and ideal which displays very little difference between the objective and the subjective.

"Myths are identified with collective psychic tensions suggesting that there is a situation that must be resolved," added Thomson. In the middle ages these collective tensions were reflected in certain mythological patterns.

Today, science is the method similar to which offers a way to think of the universe. Scientists do this by inclusions as well as exclusions.

In asserting the importance of myth to transmit reality, Thomson explained that if someone had to wait for great detail on everything he hears in order to make a judgment on news, he would never get anywhere. "There are many people who say 'I want all the data before...'" Thomson remarked. By the time all the facts are in, the conditions might be different.

Thomson then turned to "Time" and "Newsweek" magazines to demonstrate myth in a modern setting. "The news media is concerned with emotionality," he announced. "This is evident in the announcement of news on many radio stations. Music, or something closely related to that, is interrupted by a

Princeton Prof Cantril To Speak At Lecture

Dr. Hadley Cantril, a Princeton University psychologist who was "snowed in" and was unable to deliver a Government Public Lecture at FSU in January, is rescheduled to speak at 8 p.m. Monday in the Library Lecture Hall. "Some Requirements for a Political Psychology" will be his lecture topic.

Cantril was director of the Office of Public Opinion Research at Princeton for several years. The subject has been the theme of recent books and articles. He is the author of some 80 articles and 10 books, among the latter "Gauging Public Opinion" (1944);

"How Nations See Each Other" (with William Buchanan, 1953); "The Politics of Despair" (1958); "Soviet Leaders and Mastery Over Man" (1960) and "Human Nature and Political Systems" (1961).

A native of Utah, Cantril completed Dartmouth in 1928, took graduate work at Munich and Berlin and received his Ph. D. from Harvard in 1931. He has taught at Dartmouth, Harvard and Columbia and since 1939 and from 1939 to 1957 was director of the Office of Public Opinion Research.

... fight for a rebound in the earlier game at Tully Gym which the Seminoles won 80-78.

Barry (23) paced Saturday's Hurricane win with 35 points.

The Seminole record is now 11-13. The next opponent is the University of Georgia Tuesday night, March 3.

Chipola, ABA Favored In J.C. Tournament Here

Chipola Jr. College of Marianna and Abraham Baldwin College of Tifton, Ga., both onetime opponents of Florida State's freshman basketball team, stack up favorites from Florida and Georgia in Thursday's opening round games of the Region VIII Jr. College tournament, in Tully Gym this week.

Chipola easily downed surprise finalist Gulf Coast 88-72 in the finals of the state tournament in Bradenton Saturday night, and ABAC won the Georgia meet with a 76-58 trouncing of Columbus.

Earlier Abraham Baldwin had beaten Young-Harris 71-65 to complete a sweep of the state's first and second place teams. Columbus and Young-Harris were accorded 1-2 positions off their season record.

ABAC will enter the Thursday afternoon quarterfinal action as Georgia's third team, followed by Middle Georgia.

Miami-Dade crushed Broward County 86-53 in the Florida consolation game for third place in the Sunshine state. Broward will come to Tallahassee as Florida's fourth team.

Chipola used 26 points by Jerry Hill and 20 by Austin Robbins in their win over Gulf Coast. The Indians, defending regional champs, downed the FSU Frosh twice during the regular season.

ABAC, which split home-and-home with the Baby Seminoles, got a 27-point effort from forward Tommy Dial in their rousing win over Columbus.

Named to the Florida All-State team were Robbins and Sid Johnson of Chipola; James Bryant and Walter Holman of Gulf Coast; Charles Fairchild of Pensacola; Jim Hayes of Manatee; Jerry Katz of Miami-Dade; Rex Petro of Broward; Paul Zajac of St. Leo; and Skip Carr of St. Petersburg.

In 82-80 Thriller

Barry Paces 'Cane Win

By GENE BALLARD

Miami's All-American Rick Barry tipped in a goal with two seconds left to beat Florida State's Seminoles 82-80.

Miami finished their record at 20-6 to keep alive hopes for an invitation to the N.I.T. It is the fifth straight year that a Miami team has won 20 or more games.

The Seminoles, now 11-13, lost their 12th game from home. The Tribe has won only two games from Tully Gym.

The Seminoles close out their season next Tuesday night against the University of Georgia.

The Hurricanes had a halftime lead of 40-36. The Tribe comeback turned the tables. Sparked by Captain Pete Rogers, the Seminoles raced to an eight-point lead with 6:30 left.

A lay-up by Barry narrowed the gap to 71-70 with minutes left. The score was then tied at 74, 76, 78, 80.

With the score 80-80, and four seconds left, Barry fired up a jump shot. It missed, but Barry tied it, and that was the old ball game.

Four Tribesmen finished in double figures. Captain Pete Rogers scored 24. Gary Schull had 19, and Gonzalez and Bobby Lovell scored 14 and 11.

Barry was high point man for the game with 35 points. He also pulled down 16 rebounds to lead in that category. John Dampier scored 18 points for Miami.

Forward Wayne Beckner followed with 14, and Butts scored 11.

The Hurricanes outshot the Seminoles from the foul line 31-30. They were even up from the foul line 20 to 20. Miami also led in rebounds 54 to 37. Percentage-wise the Seminoles led. They scored an even 50% from the floor, and 80% from the foul line.

The Seminoles will play Georgia Tuesday night, and will leave Thursday night for a basketball tournament in Bogota, Colombia.

"Seven Ways Of Love" An Open Tomorrow Night In Westcott

COTTEN AND WIFE

will star in "Seven Ways of Love" tomorrow and Thursday night at Westcott Auditorium for the second FSU Artist Series.

"Seven Ways of Love" starring Joseph Cotten and his wife, Patricia Medina, will be presented on campus tomorrow and Thursday. Second Artist Series presentation of the season, the romantic two-character drama will be at 8:30 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium both nights. Setting for the play is an abstracted boudoir where a wife is berating her husband for looking at another woman too lingeringly and too long. The man sees the subject away from the specific to the general, bringing up reinforcements for his viewpoints from many great lovers and commentators on love.

Shakespeare, Ben Franklin, Ben Johnson, Virginia Woolf, Thomas Wolfe, Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning provide apt words in the play based on mankind's never ending quest for the acquisition and understanding of love.

The Houston Press for Jan. 30, 1964 said of the actors, "Patricia Medina (Mrs. Cotten) and her husband could not have been better chosen — Cotten was particularly strong as a monologic actor, talking of his soul or his country, delivering Franklin's advice to his nephew on choosing an old woman for a mistress or describing Walden Pond. But the fine comedienne 'Vivacious Miss Medina was the catalyst for the performance — she is appealing, she is an actress, she is an excellent comedienne'."

Cotten and Miss Medina started together last season in the Broadway hit, "A Calculated Risk" and have toured together in "Prescription Murder."

Both have chalked a long record of successes on screen, stage and television. Cotten's films include "Duel in the Sun," "Gaslight," "Portrait of Jenny," "Niagara," and many others. In 1953 he returned to the Broadway stage with the late Margaret Sullivan in "Sabrina Fair" and a few years later appeared with Arlene Francis in "Once More With Feeling."

Medina's screen credits include "Plunder in the Sun," "Botany Bay," "The Black Night," "Desperate Search," and "Mission Accomplished." A native of London, Miss Medina has been seen by British theatergoers in Shaw's "Arms and the Man" as well as many others.

Circus Ushers In Weekend

The FSU Flying High Student Circus puts on its home show tomorrow through Saturday, with the last performances during the week especially for parents and families of students.

Family Weekend begins Friday. Following open house in Florida State classrooms, visitors may attend a 2:30 p.m. track meet with the University of Miami. Featured on Saturday will be a circus picnic under the tent with entertainment by the Burgundy Singers, folk singing group from Sigma Phi Epsilon; a tennis match with the University of Florida and a concert by the University Singers.

This year's Home Show will start at 8 p.m. nightly tomorrow through Saturday with a 4 p.m. show on Saturday. If everything works out the audience will see the famous triple somersault. Flyer Adrian Catarzi and catcher Larry Camp will try the triple nightly. One of the most thrilling acts in any circus, the triple somersault requires so much skill and precise timing that only about a dozen aerialists have ever mastered it.

Aerial casting will be another thrill for the spectators. It's a girl to sit high in the tent. Catchers will be Don Johnson and Fred Hoover. Their partners are Linda Phillips and Janie Lane. Other acts will feature the swinging trapeze, Spanish web, highwire, hanging perch pole quarter, adagio and bicycle balancing. There'll also be clown acts, unicycle, tumbling and roller skate acts.

Right after the annual show, 35 of the 115 performers will be selected for a special assignment — to form the troupe which makes a month-long tour of Southern European cities in May.

Appearing before audiences in Barcelona, Nice, Florence and Athens the Circus under the direction of Coach Ad Gilbert of the physical education faculty has been selected by the Columbia Broadcasting Company for the tour. CBS has, for the past two years featured the troupe on its Sports Spectacular, and will again this year televise the Home Show for the half-hour show to be presented over Sports Spectacular in the spring.

CBS will also televise the European tour for an hour and a half show which will go out over the network later.

Circus tickets are on sale now at the men's gymnasium. They are priced at 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults. All are reserved seats. Tickets are available for all performances but better tickets are available for tomorrow, Thursday and Friday due to heavy demand of out-of-town people for Saturday night's performance.

Cuba Bound Marchers Postpone FSU Parade

Muste, chairman of the Committee for Non-Violent Action, announced late last night that the proposed march by the "Quebec-Whitington-Guantanamo" peace marchers has been postponed.

Muste said that difficulties had arisen in Tallahassee and the marchers had decided not to go ahead with the march until the situation can be discussed with University and city officials.

According to Fred Glavin, FSU Students Act For Peace representative, the marchers would like to come to Tallahassee some time next week.

Glavin said that Muste and Brad Lytle, coordinator of the march, had conferred with city officials and University deans yesterday without any definite results.

He also said that Muste may stay over in Tallahassee to speak to interested groups.

IFC Bid Given

Representatives of the Interfraternity Council at FSU put in a bid last weekend to have the State IFC conference in Tallahassee next year.

The bid was submitted at a two-day State IFC Conference held in Deland at Stetson University.

FSU's IFC delegation to the conference felt that FSU's new Union Building with its facilities would make Tallahassee an ideal site for the meeting next year.

Eight delegates from FSU attended the week-end conference in Deland. Dean Adams, assistant Dean of Men at FSU spoke to the combined state delegates at a morning discussion session. His topic was "Resource Personality."

The keynote speech was given by Dr. William H. McNairy, Jr., Dean of Students at Stetson University. McNairy pointed out in his speech that fraternities were being "haunted by the ghosts of the past." He went on to say that the reputation at fraternities have today is the one that was founded in the 1920 Social Era.

Representatives to the Convention were Barry Milstead and Dennis Berry from Sigma Phi Epsilon and Ronny Arthur and Larry Holmes from Sigma Phi Epsilon. Also representing the Sigma Phi's and the Tau Epsilon Phi's respectively.

Recitalist To Play

Gerson Yessin, a concert pianist on leave as chairman of the division of music at Jacksonville University to complete doctoral studies at FSU, will present a recital tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Hall. Yessin has made some thirty appearances with the Boston Pops Orchestra and the "Boston Globe" ranked him as being "in the first described him as being 'in the first rank of young pianists.' He is a student of Edward Kilenyi at FSU. The recital is free and open to the public.

The program includes Bach's Concerto in the Italian Style, Haydn's Andante Varie and Beethoven's Sonata in E-flat Op. 81a, "Les Adieux." Also featured on the program will be Chopin's Fantasy in F minor and two original compositions by William Hoskins, composer in residence at Jacksonville University, "Misterioso" and "Nocturne."

Following his debut at 17 with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra, Yessin has concertized widely. He has performed with the New York Philharmonic and the San Francisco Symphony, and on national radio and television. He has made many recordings

THE TRIPLE SOMERSAULT

...one of the most spectacular acts of all time — the triple somersault from the flying trapeze — may be performed during FSU's Student Circus Home Show, March 4-7. If everything goes according to plan, Adrian Catarzi is shown here as he hurtles toward catcher Ivan "Duck" Williams at Callaway Gardens, Pine Mountain, Ga., in the triple somersault.

Announcements

The second and last immunization sugar lumps against Polio for FSU students will be available at Westcott, the Student Center and the Infirmary on Thursday and Friday. The University Health Service announced that the oral vaccine will be available at the Infirmary only on March 9, 10, and 11. The cost of the vaccine will be 50 cents.

Students who took their first dose in January may take their last dose this week. They should have protection from Polio for four years.

Students who did not take their first dose in January may do so now and take their last dose at the end of trimester.

All persons who ordered the 1962 Marching Chief Records may pick them up at the Band Office in the School of Music during the following times: Monday from 9-11:30 and 12-3:30. Tuesday, Wednesday Thursday and Friday from 9-12:30 and 1:00-4.

Radicals Rude

We have heard rumblings of discontent throughout the University during the past two days over the Public Forum Committee's decision not to allow A.J. Muste, a representative of the peace marchers, to speak on campus.

The committee's decision was based on a policy of the University which prohibits the committee from allowing persons advocating illegal or immoral activities from appearing on campus.

Many seem to feel that this policy should be abolished and that Muste and the peace group are being discriminated against in light of the other controversial speakers previously allowed on campus.

The "Flambeau's" position on the code itself was published in yesterday's edition.

What many fail to realize, however, is that even without such a policy statement to follow, the committee would have been derelict in its duty if it had allowed Muste to speak without following the proper procedural methods.

In our opinion, the Students Act for Peace, the group which is acting as host to the peace marchers, has been both thoughtless and tactless in their handling of what at best would be termed a delicate situation.

The peace marchers changed the route of their march due in a large part to the encouragement of the SAP group that met them in Albany, Ga.

University speaking facilities were committed in advance without the approval of the Public Forum Committee. Faculty mailboxes were stuffed with publicity notices in complete disregard for the rules concerning such actions.

The Public Forum Committee requires two weeks notice before a speaker is allowed to use the campus facilities. The SAP gave the committee less than seven days notification.

It is this rude, arrogant action that helps to keep the SAP and other such groups from obtaining their goals much sooner. No one likes to have any idea shoved down his throat.

Perhaps it would benefit some of our more militant groups on all sides of the question to be a little more considerate of the other fellow's feelings. There is no excuse for riding roughshod over everyone and everything with which you happen to disagree.

Big Business, Porkchoppers Tie Hi

Mayor Robert High of Miami, a gubernatorial candidate, spoke at FSU the 18th of last month. My only objection is that his topics for the speech were the same as he has been giving throughout the state. If he had chosen new or different topics or approaches, it would have been much more interesting for those of us who have been following him through the news media.

Much of what Mayor High has been saying is being paralleled in the St. Pete "Times" in a series of articles called the "Establishment" (the porkchoppers). The tax situation in Florida is a very interesting phenomenon. High said that Florida has the highest consumer tax level in the nation.

It is easy to see in sales and gasoline taxes among many others. The "Times" points out that almost all of the taxes levied in the state for many years have been placed directly on the people and not business and industry. One slogan is that this is the way to get the tourists to pay their share. This is all right except that many of the residents are being bled to death in the mean time.

The groups hit the hardest with consumer taxes are the people in the lower income groups which incidentally include many students. Let's look at the local level for a moment. Both the University and off-campus students pay a very substantial hidden tax in their utility bill.

Tallahassee is able to brag about low taxes, but much of the city government support comes from excessive profit (not the additional tax) on the city utilities. In effect this is a tax, but it is not counted as such by the city. This is an example of the way tax is being put on the people rather than on special interests.

According to the "Times" the special interests in Florida (such as the phosphate industry) have found a friend in the small county legislator who dominates the Legislature. There are some of the many of the type that Mayor High objects to but is elected, what can he do about them? The executive branch is relatively weak in Florida, and the Porkchoppers are firmly entrenched for the present.

Mayor High has already done a lot by at least calling attention to the inequalities that are taking place (some would call it mud slinging). He is also a member of a group which has taken the previous portionment plan to the Supreme Court. He has set himself up as the "Peoples Candidate"—something like of the people, by the people and for the people. The people in turn can show the state that they believe in what he stands for, that they stand against the "establishment" by supporting Mayor High. The second strategy that he received the other night Longmire show that he has a dedicated group behind him here.

Propaganda Must Serve U.S. Goals

It is very difficult to understand the statement that "America is insincere when she offered aid to the Cuban people in the form of food and clothing after the October hurricane."

It is very obvious that "we have no reason to love Castro's government regardless of how they feel about the Cubans as people." However, the U.S. did offer aid to the thousands of suffering people, although their leader is a thorough Communist anti-American (a humane offer without a doubt). But let's not be so naive as to think that there were no propaganda implications in extended aid.

Of course the U.S. was making the most of this situation for propaganda purposes. Why shouldn't she? Is it that easy to forget that the U.S. is involved in a Cold War with the Communists? The Soviets take advantage of every opportunity to be little Americans through their propaganda machine—the Sputniks, the U2 Incident, and the Olympic games.

The U.S. was right in taking advantage of such an opportune situation even if she lost by being a good sport. We aren't playing the "Chicken" game where the donor presents the gift on the condition that the recipient not divulge the identity of the giver or the amount given. Help them, yes, and don't hide the fact that we are helping them.

The purpose of U.S. foreign policy should not be to present a "Good Samaritan" image. More important is to provide strong leadership for the western nations and for others who have not fallen under Communism.

When Castro called for an end to the Naval Blockade of Cuba, "perhaps he was not being demanding." But then again, perhaps he wasn't.

Maybe the U.S. is being unfair to Cuba. Maybe we should give in to Castro. Maybe we should give up Quatnamo. Maybe we should give up South Viet Nam. Maybe we should give up Latin America. Maybe we should give up.

And while we're doing that maybe we should give the "Chicken" game to the Soviets and taking unfair advantage of their misfortunes.

For instance only last week, instead of sympathizing with the Cubans, we deliberately tried to make them look bad when one of our security men defected to the West.

To the Communists, the message that he chose was the West in Russia was humiliating itself. The U.S. was not satisfied. They had to "add insult to injury" by indicating that he had been giving information to the U.S. for quite some time.

This was already a blow to Soviet pride. We should be a little more considerate of their feelings, and more careful that we don't hurt the reputation.

Does this mean that the U.S. has been insincere in her offer of peace. She was insincere in Cuba because she used an unfortunate situation for propaganda purposes. Maybe her attitude towards defectors means that she is really sincere about her efforts in world peace.

These two incidents are comparable and I think the reasoning the two situations is similar.

It is just as absurd to say the U.S. was insincere in Cuba as it is to say the U.S. is insincere in her peace efforts.

The U.S. must make the best use of propaganda just as the Soviet Union does, but the U.S. must not be insincere by any means.

techniques and broaden their education.

The Lambda Chi's donated the library through the Korean Micro-Library Association and the 7th Inf. Div. G-5 (civil affairs) office. The association, sponsored by the Korean Ministry of Education, is working toward establishing libraries in each of Korea's 4600 isolated farming and fishing villages.

Kolsan-ni is a village of about 300 persons whose principal occupation is rice farming, an extremely difficult task on the slopes of the Korean mountains. The villagers live in mud block houses with thatched roofs, heated by methods over a thousand years old and lighted by kerosene lanterns.

Funds for the library, containing 300 books on subjects ranging from farming techniques to children's reading, were presented to Republic of Korea Minister of Education Kauh Kwang-man in ceremonies in the kital building in Seoul by SP's Fred Lowery, member of the fraternity serving with the 7th Inf. Div.

In accepting the money, Kauh said, "I am grateful for this act of friendship from the American people to the Korean people. It is through acts such as these that our bonds of mutual friendship and understanding are strengthened."

The library distributed by the association consists of 300 books selected on the basis of each village's need. The books, selected by a special committee, are divided into four classes -- 40 percent on productive trade, geared to the agricultural products of the area, 20 percent on general culture, 20 percent literary and juvenile reading, and 20 percent on miscellaneous subjects.

In order for a library to function, the village must form a reading club of at least ten members over the age of 14. Each member, if he is able, pays a monthly contribution of 5 won (about 4 cents) to purchase additional books.

FILMING OF "ONE DAY"

Television Documentary, "One Day", Given Award

A special half-hour television documentary, "One Day," won a Certificate of Merit from the American Foundation for the Blind for WFSU-FM.

The production will be shown on Channel 11 this evening at 8 p.m. "One Day" is the story of a day in the life of Mrs. Joseph Taylor, a long-time resident of Tallahassee. A film camera documents her typical day -- from putting on makeup and eating breakfast in the morning, through an afternoon of shopping, to cooking and serving an evening meal to her immediate family.

As the film continues, pre-recorded statements are heard from Mrs. Ruth Shepard, a neighbor; from Mrs. JoAnn Van Gelder, Mrs. Taylor's daughter; and from a taxi driver. The recorded interviews deal with Mrs. Taylor's burden of blindness, her "handicap" as seen by others. Mrs. Taylor's physician, Dr. Edson Andrews, makes a brief statement regarding rehabilitation of the blind.

WFSU-TV won first place in the first American Foundation for the Blind contest in 1963.

Auditions Held

Auditions will be held in Conrad Theatre tomorrow for actors and actresses who want to take part in this summer's Asolo Theater Comedy Festival Company. Richard G. Fallon, director, announced today. Now in its fifth year, the Festival will present Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," Moliere's "Imaginary Invalid," Fry's "The Lady's Not for Burning," and Sheridan's "School for Scandal" July 9 through Aug. 29 in the 18th century Asolo Theater at Ringling Museum in Sarasota. Fallon said there are openings for five women and 11 men in this season's company which will begin rehearsals June 5.

Many of the actors and actresses who were seen in last summer's productions will return this season. The entire repertory company is expected to total 25 for 1964.

Four 20—Game Winners Top N.C. Tourney Action

Four teams with 20 or more victories and seven players with scoring averages of better than 17 points a game will be in action here Thursday through Saturday in the sixteenth annual Region VIII Junior College basketball tournament.

The meet will be held for the first time at Florida State's Tully Gym, and the winner will go to the national JC tourney March 17-21 at Hutchinson, Kan. Region Eight is composed of Florida and Georgia.

The winningest teams in the meet, Chipola (20-4), Miami-Dade (22-5), Abraham Baldwin (21-3) and Columbus (24-4) are all favored to win opening round games on Thursday.

Florida state champion Chipola meets Middle Georgia (13-14) in Thursday action, Miami-Dade could have its hands full with Georgia's second-ranked team, Young Harris (17-3). Abraham Baldwin, however, should have little trouble with Gulf Coast (4-11), and Columbus should get by Broward County (6-15).

The nation's number one and three scorers, Gregg Bloodworth of St. Petersburg (38 ppg.) and Bill Payne of Orlando (32ppg.) didn't make it to the regional meet; their teams failed to survive the state playoffs. But there's plenty of pointstogo around. Broward's 5-10 sharpshooter, Rex Petro, scored better than 40 for three games in a low rate in the season, climaxed by a 49 point performance in his team's opening round upset of St. Leo in the state tournament in Bradenton. Petro, only star on a team that has won but six of 21 games, has 654 points in 21 games for a 26.8 avg.

Chipola's all-everything center, Austin Robbins, stands almost a foot taller than Petro and his 564 points in the regular season ranked him fifth in the nation. Now, after 24 games the red-headed ace has 616 points, an average of 24.1 per game. Robbins, sought by every SEC school and others around the nation, made the all-tournament team at the NJCAA last year, when the Indians finished seventh in the US.

Posing a serious threat to Chipola's title is Miami-Dade, a team that finished third in Florida, Guard Mike Chase (21 ppg.) and 6-6 center Brian Day (18 ppg.), plus 6-6 Dan Doherty and 6-6 Jerry Katz are the awesome lineup. Chipola edged by the Falcons in the state tournament semis.

In the cracker state, Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College/Tifton downed both Columbus and Young Harris, ranked 1-2 off their season record, in the state tournament. ASAC's duo of Owendell McSwain (19 ppg.) and Tommy Dial (16ppg.) are as good as any Georgia can offer.

Columbus with 24 wins in 28 games looks up now as a very dark horse. The Rebels have a fine guard in Jerry Smith and a good big man in 6-6 Chip Whitley. Both, however, have averages in the 12-point range. The Rebels' forte is a sturdy defense.

Young Harris' ace is 6-1 guard Ronnie Moore, a sophomore who has scored around 18 points per game. Middle Georgia relies on Norman Doles, a 6-2 guard with a 17 point average.

Racquettes Cup Jax Invitational

FSU's women's tennis club lived up to its promise of an undefeated season as it piled up points in the Women's Collegiate Invitation Tennis Championships to bring home the team trophy. It was the club's second win in as many sanctioned tournaments and fifth of the year.

Lynda West of FSU gained the semi-finals in singles before she was knocked out by Roberta Allison of the University of Alabama 6-0, 6-3. Miss Allison, who created such a commotion in the sports world two years ago when she became the first woman to play on a men's team, was top seeded. She went on to win the singles title with the same power she has employed to demolish male opponents by defeating Alice Tym of the University of Florida. FSU faced Alabama again in the doubles finals when West and Kathy Spence met Allison and Nell Askew.

Gymnasts Take Team Trophy In Georgia Meet

Four FSU Gymnastic Club members attending the Georgia Gymnastic Association Championship in Atlanta on February 29 brought home the team trophy with an 81 point performance.

Druid Hills Gymnastic Club of Atlanta was second with 59 markers, while Dale County Junior College posted 44 points for a third place finish.

The Seminole Gymnasts were led by Jon Clubertson with 45 points and Rick Miller with 34. Other Tribesmen attending were Bob Grambling and Guy Atkinson.

Other organizations in the meet were Georgia Tech, University of Georgia, Furman, Lipscomb College and Citadel. Clubertson paced the Seminole formance with first in the All-Around, High Bar, Side Horse and P-Bars events.

Team Coach Rick Miller has in the Free Exercise, and Still competition and finished second. Clubertson in the All-Around, Still Ring, and Parallel Bars. Clubertson, who is a graduate in biology, was allowed to compete because it was an open

Bowling, Golf Action Begins

MEN: Bowling and golf tournaments will begin March 9. First and second place guards will be given in each event. Teams wishing to compete in the tournament can pick up an entry blank at the Intramural Office. All entry blanks must be completed and turned in by March 6. The winner of the all-campus Ping Pong Tournament was Ron Ayala. He was followed by John Hopkins and Steve Squire.

The basketball finals that were postponed last night will be played tonight in Tully Gym at 7:15. Teams competing in the finals will be PE Majors vs. Geology; Lambda Chi Alpha vs. Phi Delta Theta, and Delta Tau Delta vs. ATO.

WOMEN: Softball games will be played this afternoon. Alpha Omega Phi and Sigma Kappa and Delta Gamma vs. Alpha Lambda Delta.

Tennis practices this afternoon will pit Carol Talbot, Alpha Phi against Nancy Adams, Alpha Xi Delta; Sue Plattis, Jennie Murphree vs. Jennifer Houser, Tri-Delta; Connie Fluhr, Tri-Sig's vs. Elizabeth Symes, Phi Beta Phi.

Swimming practices will be held in the pool from 5:30 till 6:30. All swimmers are required to have two practices, one during the week of March 16-19.

University Singers To Present Spring Concert

University Singers

The University Singers will present their annual Spring Concert Friday evening.

The 65 voice group of male and female singers, directed by Dr. Wiley Housewright, will perform at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium following just one night's break after a tour of six Florida cities.

The concert will feature a wide range of literature from simple folk songs to extended compositions in larger forms. Selections from Bach, Beethoven and Brahms will be programmed as well as Schmitt and Negro spirituals.

The Singers' tour this year took them to White Springs, Jacksonville, Palatka, Orlando, Ft. Lauderdale, Sarasota and Bardenon. Their final tour performance will be at 11 a.m. at Manatee Junior College tomorrow.

Featured on the program will be selections from the Beethoven "Mass in C Major, Opus 86" and from "Stabat Mater, Opus 53" by Scymnowski. Included on the first part of the program will be Bach's "Sheep May Safely Graze" (1685-1750); "Pange Lingua" by Kodaly and "Holy Radiant Light" by A. Grieg.

Opening the second part of the program will be "Five Song, Opus 104" by Johannes Brahms. Three selections from the Brahms "Student Opus 92" will be followed by five French Chansons by Florent Schmitt.

The program will close with a group of Spirituals including "My Way's Cloudy," "Jesus Walked This Lonesome Valley," "Balle de Gaites" and "Wid a Sword in Ma Han."

Accompanist will be Mary Carol Warwick. A candidate for a master's degree in composition, she has studied piano with Leonard Mastrogiacommo and has served as accompanist for the Opera Guild. Currently she teaches piano and voice at the University of Florida.

Lou S. Mize is assistant director of the Singers. A doctoral student, he holds the bachelor's and master's degrees from the Westminster Choir College. Prior to coming to the FSU, he was choral director in a high school in Burlington, N.J. He also served as organist-choirmaster at the Church of the Holy Comforter in Burlington.

Doyle Names Women's Board

The following women were presented and accepted yesterday by women's senate to act as the Junior Counselor Board for next year: Hilda Jones, Joyce Killian, Fran Orhuela, Tina Fletcher and Marsha Lynn.

Senator Doyle presented this list of five women who are presently serving as junior counselors and who have been selected by their resident counselors to compose this board for next year.

Two bills were presented for first readings. One, proposed by Barbara McDonald, dealt with the responsibility of not having to sign in at 9:30 p.m. after signing out for dinner and the coast.

A second bill, amending Knowledge for College, was also brought up for first reading. The bill read "Didn't sing out?—Forgot? Telephone or telegraph your residence Staff Member before the closing hour... Delayed Return? No matter how late you are going to be returning from an overnight out-of-town absence, notify your residence Staff Member on or prior to the date you are expected to return and before closing hours."

Cotton, Medina Star Tonight In 'Seven Ways Of Love'

Joseph Cotton and Patricia Medina, two of the most attractive artists to grace both stage and screen in recent seasons, will be seen here as stars of "Seven Ways of Love," which Paul Gregory will present at Westcott Auditorium tonight and Thursday night at 8:30 p.m.

Having spent last season on Broadway in "A Calculated Risk," Mr. Cotton and Miss Medina have elected to embark on a coast to coast tour.

"Seven Ways of Love," they portray a husband-and-wife acting team who demonstrate various approaches to romance in a manner evoking surprise and enthusiasm among those who have viewed the performance.

Nothing is held sacred, once Patricia reveals her annoyance at Joe's more than casual observation of "that beautiful blonde who passed us on the street." Frankly she didn't like the look in his eyes. It is then the fun begins, and it doesn't end till the final curtain.

While primarily a comedy, "Seven Ways of Love" is not without its more serious moments, and there are scenes of great poignancy and beauty punctuating the performance. It is said to provide its stars with fine opportunities to display their versatility than any stage or screen roles they have ever undertaken. Mr. Gregory, producer and director of the play, has not sacrificed artistic integrity for mere sensationalism and has proven his honesty of purpose by securing the services of S.N. Behrman, noted author of high comedy, to assemble the material and embroider it with his own brilliant dialogue.

Both Miss Medina and Mr. Cotton, who are husband and wife in real life, have long lists of screen and stage credits.

Riggins Petition

Thomas Riggins, a member of FSU's Students Act for Peace committee, announced today that the Committee for Cultural Freedom had sent a letter to the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra petitioning the orchestra not to come to FSU. Riggins said that the letter lists six grievances against the University administration for abridgement of civil liberties.

In the letter he accused the administration of "tokenism" in integration, and of censorship of speakers.

Riggins said that he feels that the orchestra could not perform in an "atmosphere of prejudice and fear." The letter, said Riggins, lists instances of Administration harassment of civil rights picketers, of the cancellation of a mock U.N. session between FSU and FAMU, and the Public Forum Committee refusal of A.J. Muste's request to speak on campus.

Riggins said that the letter will be sent to all people invited to the University on the Artists Series and the Lecture Series.

Family Weekend Opens Features 'Flying Circus'

By BOB MITCHELL

Festivities for Family Weekend will begin unofficially tonight with the first performance of the FSU Flying High Circus.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets for circus performances this week may be purchased at the athletic ticket office in Tully Gym or at Brown's Men's Wear, Student tickets are 75¢ and non-students are $1.00.

The circus will give a show Thursday night for Leon County Residents.

Family Weekend officially begins Friday. Families of FSU students may register Friday morning in Longmire. The dorm or Greek organization having the largest percentage of visiting families will receive awards which will be given out at the Saturday night performance. Friday night at 8:15 p.m. a concert will be given by the University Singers for the entertainment of students and their families. There is no admission for the concert.

A circus performance will also be given Friday night at 8 p.m. at the circus lot. After the circus performance Women's dorms and sororities will hold open house.

Saturday morning, house decorations will be judged.

Trimester...

When Florida State University went on the trimester system drastic changes were made in almost every department on campus. Most professors had to construct new lesson plans in order to fit their courses into the shorter period of time. The responsibility of "getting the facts" became the students as the emphasis was changed from the classroom to outside work.

It would seem that under these conditions most courses would be cut to the bone. However, this does not seem to be the case.

Two examples come to mind: the Biology 105 and the Humanities 201 courses.

The Humanities Department now offers a course which is basically the same as it was under the semester system. Students taking Humanities 201 now cover vast amount of material in short periods of time. They are given small amounts of such works as Plato's "Republic," Dante's "Inferno," and Shakespeare's "Hamlet." The Humanities Department evidently believes that a little knowledge is not dangerous at all.

The Humanities Department understandably is not completely to blame. In order to make FSU's Humanities credits good at other universities all this material must be covered.

However, to the student who must take this course it doesn't matter where the blame lies, it is he who is getting the short end of the deal.

Several solutions to the problem could be worked out. Probably the best of all is the substitution plan. The student could exempt Humanities by taking nine hours in the Humanities fields such as Music History, Art History, Philosophy, etc. While this means an extra trimester to the student, it also means that he will cover most of the material covered in the Humanities course and will cover it in detail.

The Biology Department revamped their 105 course completely. The text is well written and lab books are just as well prepared. However, it is unbelievable that any professor would really expect a student to learn and comprehend even a small percentage of the text in the amount of time allotted. The only problem with the lab course is that it too is too hurried with no real time for comprehension. As hard as it seems to imagine, Biology 105 has actually expanded under the trimester system.

We would suggest that while we admire the idealistic ambitions of the Biology Department that they take another more realistic look at their 105 course and this time it would do them well to take the student into consideration.

After all, not everyone is majoring in Biology.

Campus Politics Looks Healthier

At last, it's over and done! The major half of the Spring elections is now history. Happily, the two party system proved its usefulness and adroitness in providing the student body with an interesting and thoroughly organized series of campaigns. Undoubtedly a great many students do care about Student Government and this should serve as a stimulus to those elected during the coming year.

The presidential race turned out as many expected. John Jones is certainly a capable and well-qualified man. In a race that was marked by contrasting opinions as to how Student Government should be run, Mr. Jones emerged as the clear cut victory despite a strong campaign by Mike DeVane who started almost completely out of the picture and came on strong toward the end. For the second straight year the University Party has topped the top position and its vast appointive powers.

The Student Party wrested control of the Senate from the UP when John Merring defeated Sherman Henderson in the Vice Presidential race. Mr. Merring's experience and popularity in Senate during the past year should aid him tremendously. At the same time it is hoped that Mr. Henderson will find a role in Student Government as there is always a shortage of capable and interested men.

In probably the most hotly contested and highly organized race in the elections the SP's Jack Cannon outdistanced Senator Ed Scott for the Men's Vice President post. If any race was emblematic of campus politics at its best this would be it. Both men were well qualified from a personal point of view and from past experience. In this election two of the traditional political groups locked horns and slugged it out toe and toe. It is a tribute to the integrity and sincerity of both sides that the campaign remained relatively clean and was conducted with an air of mutual respect.

As anticipated Joyce Killian was elected Women's Vice President running unopposed. Miss Killian is undoubtedly the unanimous choice to take over the reins from Clyda Stokes who has been a most memorable and influential personality in Student Government. It is quite testimony to Miss Killian's ability that the SP couldn't muster any opposition having any chance of success.

The major election resulted in an equal split of the major offices on campus. The UP controls the executive branch and guides the Women's Senate. The SP acquired the office of President of the Senate and Men's Vice President.

Insofar as appointive powers are concerned the UP has a slight advantage via its control of the executive branch versus the limited number of appointments that the President of the Senate makes. It is usually the UP's influence prevails in the executive branch. Consequently, Senate will not tend to be dominated by the SG President.

In the past almost all the communications between the Administration and student decision-makers have been channeled through the Student President's office or some other office in the executive branch. Thus the Senate very seldom was approached directly and initially from outside the University.

This situation narrows the scope and scope of the initiative of Senators who are frustrated with "housekeeping" bills. This will probably be rectified as the SP will want a larger voice in policy making.

Today campus politics never looked healthier. In the minor elections the offices up for grabs are more nobly signified with responsibility split resulting in the last election. (Also, everyone owes a special thank you, to Sam A. Davidson, Chairman of Elections, who has been an excellent and impartial job.

S.G. Senators' Brains Are Clogged

Student senators weren't using the low auditing brain detergent when they voted on the laundry resolution. Their brains became clogged up with an issue having nothing to do with laundry. This issue was clearly shown from the manner in which the senators voted — all girls voted aye, and all boys voted nay, with not one exception. Obviously it was a bad case of the sexes.

The main argument, so it seemed, was that the girls thought the boys should pay a mandatory set laundry fee because the girls have to; and the boys didn't seem to think they should have to pay this fee just because the girls have to. As they giggled and chuckled lightly about dirty laundry, they didn't consider that they were actually deciding the course of thousands and thousands of dollars in future years.

I must say this for the senate, however, they did discuss the advantages and disadvantages of the laundry system for about five minutes.

There were more girls than boys in Senate that day so the resolution was passed. But thank heavens, it was rescinded a few days later. A committee of two girls and two boys were now working on it. But no matter what happens, it will all come out in the wash.

The recent campaign for student government offices was disappointing. With few exceptions the individual campaigns had no originality, and those who did were not elected. The first lab campaigning was the posters. They were mostly in black and white including a grinning or glaring picture of the candidate, his or her name, and the office for which he or she was running. A few included qualifications of the candidate and some even included a slogan. The most original, most eye-catching, and surprisingly enough the most inexpensive were the hand-drawn posters.

The Seneca ran true to form. Also, Somber-faced boys would line up in front of the girls' residence and sing fraternity songs. The most original was forwarded and was "Joe Cool, the next president of the International Basket Weavers Association." Joe, the humble fellow, had been elected to the position of "get out and vote!" Then he asked for a wee tiny bit of consideration for himself as a candidate for such a noble office. A very pleasant exception to the Seneca was a single candidate, a trumpet, and a torch.

It takes more than a little daring and originality for a candidate to make his own posters and stand alone in front of a dormitory full of giggling girls. Yet the candidates who showed that they might have the daring and originality were not elected. It looks like student government will remain status quo throughout the next term.

Gold Key Answers Columnist

To the Editor:

(Re: Column by Luther Kramer) Your recent article, written as if you held a grudge against Gold Key, is receiving a belated reply because; I wanted to present a factual statement concerning the present membership of Gold Key Honorary.

The main difficulty in choosing members for a men's honorary seems not to be the lack of leadership, but from the lack of grades. In the case of Gold Key the minimum grade average accepted is 2.3, far from being unjustly strict.

Yet, of the 31 men considered for membership last fall 45% or 14 didn't have a 2.3 or above grade point average. This year Garnet Key has tapped 30 ladies, while only 17 men have the grades necessary for Gold Key.

In order to further clarify Gold Key's position one should consider the other honors on campus where a combination of grades and activities are the qualifying factors. Last November the seniors voted the honor of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities on 36 students, only 22 or 61% of whom were men.

Omicron Delta Kappa, a national honorary whose membership is composed largely of faculty members who take in the past November selection of new members tapped three men this past fall. (Noting your overall grade average last fall, Mr. Kramer, your name was merely lamenting ODK and Who's Who for "segregation" in selecting new members if you had qualified for

The only comment that qualifies your column, Mr. Kramer, is the fact that you admit that it's another "superficial glance."

Omission Corrected

To the Editor:

In Monday's "Flambeau" you omitted the guts of the next to last paragraph of my letter concerning limited bureaucracy. Left out was the federal government has overextended itself causing much inefficiency and even some jobs should be forced to be entered to remain in limited bureaucracy.

Without these phrases the paragraph either makes no sense or leaves an on opening for the argument that big business has become but democratic rather than implying that they are controlled by anti-trust and monopoly laws from becoming too big. Also open competition for more quality, better quality, and lower prices has kept the private enterprise bureaucracy below the critical minimum point.

This is one reason why the newer are efficient companies are winning more contracts and gaining more points on the stock market than some of the older and larger firms. There are no restrictions against the encroachment of the national government and it can be as actively as it pleases in the endeavor it does control because we can't get up a competing government. I don't think of this mistake or oversight as a negative reflection of the "Flambeau." On the contrary, I think I would like to take this opportunity to compliment the "New Flambeau." Your editorial policy in the last couple of months is worthy of accolades. I never thought I'd ever see an unprejudiced "Flambeau," but the new "Flambeau" staff has made it and they should be congratulated.

For years the "Flambeau" was the private organ of the extreme leftists. Letters from the left were put under huge bylines no matter how they were written. Letters from the right were either rejected on technicalities or relegated to the back of the paper under fine print headlines. It was a clever marshaling of bias in an attempt to brainwash the campus.

Your new middle-of-the-road policy of letting all sides have their say and letting each individual make up his own mind is right and just. It gives those of us who think a little differently from the current trenders a chance to have our say as well. Maybe now the moderate liberals and moderate conservatives will take the ball away from the radicals and the reactionaries.

Leftist Groups Are Extremists Also

To the Editor:

A recent letter writer contributed an article supposedly about extremist groups but was his personal attack on only rightist groups. I would like to point out that liberal or leftist groups hold their own in the negative characteristic department. They are usually extremely biased and ethnocentric and seek out scapegoats for their immense hatred.

For instance, dependent upon how far out on the left wing one goes, hate can be found against the following things: 1. The John Birch Society, 2. Operation Information, 3. The American Legion, 4. The South, 5. Young Americans for Freedom, 6. State Government, 7. Local Government, 8. Veterans' of Foreign Wars, 9. Patriotism, 10. The Middle Class, 11. The American Flag, 12. Lifeline, 13. Law Enforcement Officers, 14. Morality, 15. The Bible, and 16. White Protestants. In short they hate just about everything.

The liberals or really "pseudo-liberals" don't let any grass grow under their feet as far as name calling is concerned either, they are every bit as guilty of that charge.

The following men have been labeled "ignorant redneck" or "psycho" by extreme leftists: 1. General Walker, 2. Robert Welch, 3. Senator McCarthy, 4. Governor Long, 5. Governor Wallace, 7. Senator Thurmond, 10. Senator Byrd, 11. Representative Smith, 12. Leon Perez, 13. Senator Goldwater, 14. Ed Hoover, 15. President Truman, and 16. President Johnson.

If you feel that way about very many of these men then you have been conned by the "master of deceit."

I have never occurred to those on the left that the epithet "ignorant redneck" is no more scientific than is "nigger worshippers."

What makes the liberal layman think he is a qualified psychiatrist is another good question. But then he already fancies himself an expert jurist on constitutional law. That's pretty good for not being old enough to vote.

Yet if you go to a leftist club meeting you may see them planning to break the law. You may even see the boys with beards and sunglasses calling one suited gentleman on 'the right sick.

The left has helped to see a Senator censured, a General dismissed, and a President shot. It will be a great day when the Civil Rights Bill is passed but not for some leftists.

They have been making too good a living from the issue while it was alive. In fact, after integration, the entire left is the dead dog, wise up. It will be a great thing too. Paul W. Snyder.

Civil Rights 'Moderation'

Avoids Fanatics Morasses

To the Editor:

I am a Moderate in a time when it is poor taste to admit it. For in doing so, people infer that you are one of the many who are too wishy-washy to take a stand.

I'm still to be convinced, however, that moderation is not the most rational way to deal with many of our society's ills.

In the Civil Rights area, the extremists on both sides are often so radically vociferous and adamant that the much larger, seemingly uncommitted, populous prefers to blandly walk the fence rather than immerse itself in an unthinking brawl of charges and countercharges.

Being a Christian and an American, I can be no other than committed to fair and equal treatment for all people irrespective of race or creed.

I can feel repelled at what I consider senseless prejudice by those who perpetuate man's inhumanity to man, segregation-for-segregation sake.

And I am quite frankly insulted by those whose segregation rationales are centered on irrational and emotional arguments, (e.g., "How'd you like your sister to marry a Nigger?" etc.).

If we are to become a nation (ideally, rather than just geographically, we must re-evaluate our beliefs. It is poor testimony, indeed, in light of recent NASA announcements, that it may well be easier to get a Negro on the Moon than in some restaurants.

But, lest I be called a "radical in Moderates' clothing," I feel equally repulsed by those whose devotion to "the cause" have developed the martyr-mask.

Much damage is done by those who will not face the situation realistically as it may exist in various places and act accordingly.

Sometimes compromising one's principles on some point will get one much farther in the long run. It is, indeed, less dramatic — but often much more effective.

Oasis Doesn't Exist Anymore

To the Editor:

Once there was a place called the Oasis. It doesn't exist anymore, and here's how that came about. At one time this Oasis was owned by a hard working man. He worked hard to get a lot of money out of the place but somehow the fruits of his labors were meager. This may have been because the place was a little run down or may have been because the atmosphere was less congenial than next door.

Hard work that meets with frustration is no reward so he decided to sell.

Enter a lady; call her Mary for lack of a better name. Mary's husband buys this place just for her. It'll be so nice, Joe, can't you see. We'll spend all summer fixing and cleaning and adding all those new ideas. We then have it ready by fall. And then the kids will have a really nice place to come and relax and be with their dates or anything they want to do. No, we won't make much money out of it; after all there are three others. But that's not the point. We'll be doing something for the kids. And it'll be fun too. Oh, Joe, I can hardly wait.

The rest is history. The mud dreams are made of is easily destroyed. The Point. Someone said that a cause is no better than the people fighting for it. One afternoon a number of the pickets came back to the apartment I was sharing with them at the time and one of them had this to say. (I remember it quite well and I quote): "That woman came outside to water the plants and she was crying. My Gawd, she must be some kind of Nigger." They all laughed for a couple of minutes. # Drop Past Says Muste

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Staff Writer

A.J. Muste, chairman of the Committee for Non-Violent Action, called for "a great break with old concepts" Monday night in an address to Tallahassee clergy, community leaders and University personnel.

Muste, in Tallahassee to discuss a proposed peace march by the "Quebec - Washington - Guantanamo" marchers, told the group that military might doesn't work against them. Therefore, he said, we should contemplate a radical break with this old concept.

He said that military might had not resolved the Cuban situation, and that it is futile to try to deal with Cuba in a military context. The purpose of the peace march is to proclaim this to the American people, said Muste.

Muste stated that America should withdraw from Guantanamo and turn over all resources, except military, to the Cuban people. We, along with the USSR, he said, should adopt a hands off policy toward the Cubans.

Muste viewed the Cuban situation as just another part in the irresolvable power struggle. He said that Cuba has, essentially, the same relationship to the United States as U.S. Turkey bases do to the USSR.

It is ironic, he said, that the communist nation states behave the same as the non-communist states in the power struggle.

The chief difference between the two powers, Muste stated, was that the United States, in intervening in other countries, dealt with the present, rich, educated rulers, leaving the common people, who were often revolutionary, to the Communists.

This, he said, causes a gap between those people and the United States. The gap he linked with the chasm between the humiliated and the humiliator.

Among the humiliated he placed the Jews, the Germans, the Russians during the Revolution, and now the old Imperialists, and the colored people of the world.

America has never experienced this humiliation, especially the white, anglo-saxon American, he said.

"Unless we throw a bridge of understanding and humiliation across that chasm, a bridge of another kind will be erected," Muste said.

Muste urged that we change our direction from the old concept of war, and attack the problem of poverty and backwardness of certain peoples. This, he said, is really in line with old American ideals.

In a question and answer period after the speech, Brad Lytle, march coordinator for CNVA, said that the marchers would be "in Tallahassee Tuesday doing something."

He said that a definite course of action would have to be decided after some deliberation, since they may have to repeat the Albany situation here.

The marchers were jailed for two months in Georgia, for marching in that city.

Poll Workers Thanked

"I would like to thank the Sophomore Council and Alpha Phi Omega for their help in the elections of last week," said Sam Ashdown, Commissioner of Elections today.

He gave special thanks to Donna Gordon of Sophomore Council and Ernie Elliott of Alpha Phi Omega for their help in coordinating the polls and poll workers.

Ashdown also said that candidates must have their posters down by Friday at 5 p.m. Any posters left up after that time will be taken down

Darryl Wood

Darryl Wood Suggests Improvement In Individual Senator's Effectiveness

"Student Senate could be a lot more effective," Senator Darryl Wood contends, "if every senator would make an effort to be more aware of what he job is."

"The actual bulk of the work always falls back on the shoulders of a few. The majority of senators are not in touch with things. They come to a few committee meetings and maybe draw up a bill now and then, but they're not really active."

Representing the sophomore class, Darryl is in his first year of Senate work. He is a member of the Class Officers Committee, and chairman of the Committee of Organizations and Finance and the committee for the investigation of Attorney-General Arnie Gibbs. In addition, he is chairman of the University Party and a member of Alpha Council. Last year he was on the Senate Committee for International Students.

In regard to his work on the Class Officers Program, Darryl says that the Council is the outcome of a compromise. "I'm not totally satisfied," he continues, "but it's the most equitable solution that we could get though. To a large extent, it continues to ignore the mandate that was passed by the student body. I still have some reservations about how it's going to work out."

His long-range goals include obtaining a degree in government

FLYING HIGH CIRCUS

FSU Circus To Tour Europe

The Student Circus, which has toured audiences for 15 years, made a month-long tour of Western European cities in May, performing before audiences at Barcelona, Nice, Florence and Athens. Favorite of live audiences and seen on television from the night, FSU Circus under the direction of faculty member Ad Gilbert will take the trip at the expense of Columbia Broadcasting Company, which featured the unique troupe on its Spectacular the past two years.

According to Dean of Students R.R. Esby, it is planned to make the students' stay in Spain, France, Italy and Greece a valuable cultural experience for them.

The 115-student Circus was made up of undergraduates most of whom are doing the extracurricular work for fun. A student can earn as much as one trimester's worth of credit for circus activity in his college career just as he can in volleyball, tennis or some other physical education activity.

The 35 students who will make the European trip will be selected following the annual Home Show of the troupe this weekend.

On April 20, following the end of the second trimester, the 35 will assemble at Tallahassee for two and a half weeks of rehearsals and backgrounding in cultural knowledge for the European trip.

Along with five members of the faculty the troupe will leave New York by plane on May 6, under pressure plans landing a few hours later in Madrid. By feeder airline the group will fly to Barcelona where matinee and evening performances are scheduled for three days.

The circus troupe will then go by rail to Nice, France, for about one week of appearances; by rail to Florence, Italy, for another week; and then by air to Athens, Greece, for the final week of shows. The troupe will return to this country June 6. The circus trip will be made under auspices of the International Cultural Exchange Corporation of Pittsburgh, a non-profit agency which brought the Bolshoi Ballet troupe to this country a few years ago.

Under contract arrangements which already have been completed Columbia Broadcasting has guaranteed to underwrite costs of the trip up to a total of $45,000. CBS will receive reimbursement from ticket sales on the European trip.

Of the profits above cost, Florida State will get 75 per cent and International Cultural Exchange 25 per cent.

European agents of International Cultural Exchange will preview the circus in an appearance the Circus has scheduled in Dade County Auditorium at Miami, March 13 and 14. This weekend's Home Show will be televised by CBS again this year for a half-hour show to be presented over Sports Spectacular in the spring.

CBS will also "cover" the European tour for an hour and a half show which will go out over the network later.

Florida State's Circus, the only large-scale organization of the sort at a university, was started by Jack Huston of the Physical Education Department in 1948.

The two-hour show of acts matches most productions of a professional circus, with acrobatic, tumbling, roller skating and other acts.

Artist Series To Host Pittsburgh Orchestra

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will give Artist Series concerts at Florida State University Wednesday and Thursday nights, March 11 and 12.

Tickets, at $3.50 for the public, go on sale Monday, March 9, at Westcott Ticket Office.

The concerts are at 8:30 p.m. with William Steinberg conducting.

Founded in 1895, the orchestra earned its fame under such conductors as Victor Herbert, Otto Klemperer and Fritz Reiner. William Steinberg has conducted since 1952.

The program for Wednesday night, March 11, includes Overture to "Eurythmics" by Weber; "Seven Studies on Themes of Paul Klee" by Gunther Schuller and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 3" (Eroica).

On Thursday night (March 12) the orchestra will play Schubert's "Overture to 'Rosamunde'; Debussy's "Rondes de printemps (No. 3 of Images pour Orchestra); "Salome's Dance of the Seven Veils" by Richard Strauss and Bruckner's "Symphony No. 4, in E-flat Major" ("Romantic").

A native of Cologne, Germany, Steinberg served assignments as conductor in the Opera House of Cologne, Prague, Frankfurt, and Berlin. In the thirties, he went to Palestine where he became, with Brandis Huberman, co-founder of the Palestine Symphony Orchestra.

As a Toscanini Reader the Palestine Orchestra's first guest-conductor. He was so impressed with the orchestra that he hired the man who had trained the ensemble—William Steinberg—to become an associate conductor of the newly formed NBC Symphony in New York.

He has served as guest conductor in many cities of the world. He appears regularly in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, London, Rome, Berlin, Paris.

Soap Box Derby Draws Crowd

Nineteen soapbox derby racers sped down College Avenue Saturday in the Alpha Gamma Delta-Phi Delta Theta Soapbox Derby.

Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Chi placed first while Delta Gamma and Phi Kappa Psi took second and Sigma Kappa and Kappa Alpha finished third.

The racers were constructed by the entering fraternity and were driven by their sorority partners.

DeTar Elected Chairman

Dr. DeLos F. DeTar, professor of chemistry in the Chemistry Dept. and in the Institute of Molecular Biophysics at FSU, has begun a term as chairman of the Organic Division of the American Chemical Society. The Division of Organic Chemistry is the largest of the ACS divisions, with more than 4000 members. Since 1960 DeTar has served on the executive committee of the division and he was elected chairman-elect in the fall of 1962.

In addition to sponsoring the technical programs at the spring ACS meeting in Philadelphia, April 5-10, and in September in Chicago, the Organic Division sponsors a symposium called the National Organic Symposium every two years. The last one was held in Columbus, Ohio, in 1963.

Prior to joining the FSU faculty, DeTar taught at the University of Illinois, Cornell and the University of South Carolina.

By JANE FRANZINO

A bill amending the Student Body Constitution to add an article concerning the University Union Board was put up for first reading in Student Senate yesterday.

The bill, sponsored by Ruth Doyle and Hugh McElyea, was turned over to the Labor, Student Service and Education Committee, to be looked into further. The bill will come up before Senate in the near future for the necessary two-thirds vote.

The bill states that, "The name of the organization that shall have authority to execute the powers below described shall be the Florida State University Union Board."

"The purpose of this board shall be: 1) to operate the University Union as the community center for the university, serving students, faculty, administration, alumni, and guests; 2) to provide a cultural, social and recreational program, so that the free time activity of students shall be a cooperative factor with study;

3) to serve as a unifying force in the life of the University; 4) to promote greater use of the facilities of the University Union Building for the benefit of the Student Body; 5) to create and maintain necessary house rules; 6) to negotiate with the Union management in regard to student wishes in her operation of the physical plant.

The members of the board shall consist of eight student members and five non-student members. Of the eight student members, two will be appointed by the Student Body President, three shall be elected in the general elections and three by the outgoing members of the board. All student members of the board must have a 2.3 average.

East Asian Studies Is Highlight Of Institute

A Summer Institute in East Asian Studies for Social Studies Teachers will be on campus June 15-Aug. 8.

First institute of the kind to be held here, it will be repeated in the summers of 1965 and 1966 according to Dr. George A. Lensen, the director.

Grants from the Asia Society, the Asia Foundation and the Japan Society will enable the institute to offer 12 fellowships for Florida primary and secondary school teachers.

These will provide free room and free tuition. Fellowship holders will be lodged in the Canterbury House just off campus. Applications for fellowships must be made to Dr. Lensen, professor of history and director of Asian Studies by March 15.

Dr. Lee W. Farnsworth of the Government Dept. will be in charge of the first summer's program and Lensen of the second. Both are specialists with personal knowledge of the areas and languages of the countries covered, principally China and Japan.

Fellowship holders and others enrolled in the summer institute will take one six hour graduate level course intended to familiarize them "with the major periods and characteristics of East Asian civilization, with the most important textbooks, useful collateral readings and teaching aids."

Those applying for fellowships must furnish a brief autobiographical essay, including information about their age and marital status, the school and grade in which they teach, and their plans for applying the information they expect to gain in the summer program. Transcripts of all their college work, undergraduate and graduate, a photograph, and letters of recommendation of three qualified persons must be sent to Professor Lensen.

Religion Series Sales End

Rev. William Brown, University Chaplain, announced today that the deadline for "Religion in Life" student ticket sales is tomorrow. Tickets are for the Tuesday student luncheon in the Suwannee Room. At this luncheon Dr. Gustave Ferre, chairman of the Philosophy Dept. at Texas Christian University, will speak on "The Student and Values."

The "Blanche Carroll Award" will also be presented at the student luncheon. This award is presented to the student who exemplifies the highest type of character and leadership in spiritual and moral activities, said Brown.

Tickets are available through the University Chaplain's office until tomorrow.

Speech Department Hosts FSU Invitational Tournament

The FSU Speech Dept. hosted the 26th Annual FSU Invitational Debate Tournament last Friday and Saturday. There were 23 colleges and universities participating in the various events. These represented eight Southern states.

Miss Nancy Dale of FSU captured first place honors in senior division persuasive speaking. Peyton Wynns took third place for FSU in senior division persuasive speaking.

In senior division debate FSU tied for second place honors and our negative team received a rating of "excellent."

Two junior division debate teams received "excellent" rating and Elaine Napier was rated "superior individual debater." Elaine also won second place honors in junior division impromptu speaking.

Points earned in the various events by each of the participating schools were combined for the sweepstakes score in junior and senior divisions. The University of Alabama captured their first place trophy for senior division. FSU placed second, but being host school, was ineligible for the trophy. Florida placed third and was awarded the second place trophy. Emory University received the one for third place.

Sweepstakes first place trophy for junior division was awarded Emory University. Florida placed second and the University of Alabama placed third.

Dr. Gregg Phifer was director of the tournament and was assisted by Dr. Thomas R. King and Mixton.

Melvane Hardee Gives Address

Dr. Melvane Hardee, professor of higher education at FSU, will give the keynote address at the Ohio Student Personnel Administrators meeting in annual session tomorrow in Athens, Ohio.

Her topic will be "The Individual in a Mass Society." She has served as president of the Southern College Personnel Association and of the American College Personnel Association.

Hardee is the author of three books and a number of professional articles on the subject of counseling and advising in higher education.

Seniors

Seniors planning to graduate in August or December, 1964, must check their general requirements for graduation in Room 102-B, Westcott, immediately.

Stone Speaks

The Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation will have its annual membership meeting tomorrow.

During a meeting in the School of Education opening at 10 a.m., Dr. J. Stanley Marshall will deliver a progress report and Dr. Hazen A. Curtis will give a financial report. Dr. Mode L. Stone, president of the Foundation, will speak at 11 a.m. on "A Forward Look With The Foundation."

After lunching at a Foundation house and touring the various houses members will reassemble for an informal meeting with candidates for Foundation scholarships and then will attend a business meeting at 2:30 p.m. During this meeting a board of directors will be elected.

Means Justify the Ends

To the Editor:

Within a few short months the Civil Rights Bill will be law. You may find yourself in search of another "cause." Perhaps it will be the total separation of church and state or better housing for some of the less fortunate members of our society. These are both honorable goals. However, this time pay attention to Huxley and try to keep your means as honorable as your ends. It was his idea that the ends do not justify the means, on the contrary the means must justify the ends.

The ends of life are ever short as far as the time element is concerned. Once they are attained we go on toward another goal, thus the means of life take up the greatest part of our time on this planet.

We are in the midst of means all through our lives, in ends but seldom. Thus the means, the ends, become the essence of life and hence the most important.

That is why shabby means can sullay the most noble goals. The means must be just the ends. If your goals are both honorable and noble your methods of achieving them must also be honorable and noble.

Effectiveness should not be as important as quality to that more perfect human being that we all hope to be trying to become.

Demonstrations in the street are more like an ultimatum than a means. There are alternative methods such as organizing letter-writing campaigns to Senators, getting the people involved out to vote, etc. which do not leave such a bad taste in the public's mouth.

At no time think that the only way to get things done is to create chaos and violence in order to force federal intervention.

This is a favorite Communist technique of making things so bad that the federal government has to take over and declare martial law.

It will have the same kind of success it had in Venezuela. If you must demonstrate, make it so that you need not be orderly in demeanor and grooming.

To imagine that the public should only see what you stir up rather than look to see whether your appearance is neat or not is putting the philosophical cart before the horse again.

Paul W. Snyder

Basic Biology Too Advanced

To the Editor:

The Biology 105 course, a basic studies requirement, is the biggest farce since a cow was elected Snow Queen in "Steve Canyon."

Seriously, this course has become the laughing stock of this campus.

The text is so complicated and detailed that I find it best suited as a remedy for acute insomnia. The lectures are worse. The instructor most often parrots the complex facts from the book never bothering to explain or give general ideas.

The only saving factor is our relation to hurried tests and no relation found between experiments and ideas.

This basic course seems to me, with a background of Honors Biology and Chemistry in high school, ridiculously complex and must be totally undiscernable to those individuals with a weaker background.

The height of the ridiculous is that on the mid-term, the course was set for a 50% passing grade. Only 23 were the median grade or a "C." Finally out of five people I have elders and the three that never go to class got "C's" or better while the two that attend every day made a "D" and an "F."

Peter Steinberg

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

PFC Has Common Sense

To the Editor:

It was gratifying to note Monday's "Flambeau" that there still exists on our campus an element of good ole "common sense."

I speak of the Public Forum Committee's refusal to allow A.J. Muste and crew to parade through our hallways on their way to Cuba. (I wish them luck on the Miami-Cuba via water jaunt.) The Committee also refused to allow A.J. Secretary Ernestus of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in the United States (sounds important) to speak on our campus.

Florida State has been besieged with a variety of social action movements, the most vocal being the integration efforts of the Liberal Forum and the "Betty Red than Dead" philosophy supported by our local Committee For Non-Violent Action. We have heard much from extremists, especially concerning the former issue.

As a university community, there exists a strong liberal element which supports many of the views of the extreme left. As a southern community, we have an extreme conservative element. Upon occasion, both have felt that they spoke for the majority of the student population. I don't think they do. The average student is somewhere in the middle with a slight tilt to the right.

Few support the passive element. Its views are ideologically sound but realistically impossible.

Most of us would not mind the status quo campus restaurants serving Big Negro students. However, the picketing group wants every Tom, Dick and Harry served. Whether mass influx of Negroes would occur is not the objection. The objection being open to such an influx that we don't think we as a student body want this.

Complete integration will not be a reality, but as a result of self-motivated individual relationships, not by the Federal government or anyone else eating it down our throats.

As for the peace at any price proponents, their aspirations will not be realized without a momentous change in human behavior, which is unlikely.

S. D. Draper, Jr.

Youths React To Youths

To the Editor:

I found the letter from A.J. Petrusis of February 27, urging students to take action about the tax bill, of great interest because it pointed out a laudable and more glaring problem which has bothered me for some time. That problem being the fantastic amount of reactionism on this campus and among Southern students generally.

Many people attribute it to simple apathy, but I believe that it goes much deeper. Read almost any book on the psychology of youth and one will find somewhere a statement to the effect that it is characteristic of the psychology of youth and one of the beliefs of their elders and follow-up ideas, and generally, more liberal ideas.

But it seems that so many young people around here (possibly in a rather sad attempt to be "really different") cling to the beliefs of their elders and react against their own peer group. This to me is the saddest and most glaring symptom of the sickness in our society: youth becoming so sterile by choosing NOT to be young. And this, of course, creates an atmosphere in which Southern young people who choose to be young by following new ideas appear all the more strange.

Little evidence is needed to support this. The fact that so many students on this campus (most of whom have never been to a Liberal Forum meeting) are so eager to call its members "a pack of Communist out to subvert society and destroy freedom!" The irony alone of this sort of integrating Negroes into our society becomes distant and almost impossible when one realizes that first more young people will have to learn to be young.

Mary Ann Stevens

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor and student comment are welcomed in the "Flambeau." The firm of Communist students should have an equal through which their opinions and views can be aired.

'Flambeau' Is Broadminded

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the "Flambeau" staff for their thankless efforts to produce a well-rounded collegiate daily.

Bystander Hurts

To the Editor:

About fifteen minutes ago, as I write this, two automobiles collided just across from my room in Kellum Hall. Within minutes, hundreds of Kellum residents and probably some from Smith, had gathered around the cars. They were laughing, yelling, and generally making merry. All in the face of the fact that the FSU girl involved was hurt and obviously badly shaken up. Such poor taste in mass was appalling.

Curiosity seekers at the scene of an accident are not to be appreciated. Those involved or those trying to help, I know.

This summer, I unavoidably struck and killed a young child while driving. The crowd that formed was not large, loud, or laughing. Nevertheless, every time someone came running up and asked, "What happened?" it was like receiving a severe physical blow.

Even a minor accident is a traumatic experience, and the appearance of unnecessary people on the scene can only make things worse. Thus I implore you, one and all, if you are not witnesses, if you are not needed to render aid or comfort, if you are not needed to summon help, stay away from an accident. There is no possible good you can do, and you may do great harm. If you are ever involved in an accident, and many of you will be, you will appreciate what I say.

Name Withheld

In the past three and one-half years I have watched the "Flambeau" grow from a ho-hum bi-weekly to a commendable expression of journalistic talent. In fact, it has been vastly improved since this past trimester.

The "Flambeau" staff is very broadminded. They have freely allowed the segregationist and integrationist windbags vent their rage and have printed many interesting articles on some campus activities. However, I would proffer a suggestion if you please.

I have noticed that a local social fraternity publishes an article each week, complete with picture, glorifying a sorority dance. This is all fine and good since most of us enjoy looking at the more beautiful side of life from time to time.

But if this sort of treatment can be rendered a coed who just happened to be born with good looks and who just happened to be in a sorority, why can our revered professors not receive the same honor?

True, professors are not universally acclaimed for their pulchritude but they are not devoid of dynamic personalities and a wide and varied background which often includes foreign travel.

These men and women are the strength of our school and in part to them many of us live like humans and not like backwoods wretches.

Let us never take for granted the backbone of our university. If all the pretty girls departed, we would miss them terribly I am sure. If all the professors departed, the whole university would fold up and Tallahassee would be just another cow town on the road to Miami.

Conrad Rossi

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Reader Moris's suggestion is a good one and the "Flambeau" will start such a series in subsequent publications.)

A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

With the Commencement Day just a couple of short months away, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors?" Everybody is asking it; I mean everybody. I mean I haven't even able to walk ten feet on any campus without somebody grabs my elbow and says, "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors, hey?"

This, I must say, is not the usual question asked by collegians who grab my elbow. Ordinarily they say, "Hey, Shorty, grab a Marlboro?" And this is fitting. After all, are they not collegians and therefore loaded with brains? And does not intelligence demand the tastiest in tobacco flavor? And does not Marlboro deliver a flavor that is uniquely delicious? And so I nod and smile.

But I digress. Back to the colored hoods of academic robes. A doctor of philosophy wears blue, a doctor of medicine wears green, a master of arts wears white, a doctor of humanities wears crimson, a master of library science wears lemon yellow, why? Why, for example, should a master of library science wear lemon yellow?

Well sir, to answer this vexing question, we must go back to March 14, 1844. On that date the first public library in the United States was established by Ulrich Sigisfoos. All of Mr. Sigisfoos' neighbors were of course wildly grateful, all but one except Wrex Toddhunter.

Mr. Toddhunter had hated Mr. Sigisfoos since 1822 when both had wooed the beautiful Melanie Zitt and Melanie had chosen Mr. Sigisfoos because she was mad for dancing and Mr. Sigisfoos knew all the latest steps like the Missouri Commaise Samla, the Sluts' Rebellion Schottische, and the Jones K. Polk Polka while Mr. Toddhunter, alas, could not dance at all, owing to a wound he had received at the Battle of New Orleans. (He was struck by a falling pineapple.)

Consumed with jealousy at the success of Mr. Sigisfoos' library, Mr. Toddhunter resolved to open a competing library. This he did, but he hired not one single patron away from Mr. Sigisfoos. "What has Mr. Sigisfoos got that I have not?" Mr. Toddhunter kept asking himself, and finally the answer came to him: books.

So Mr. Toddhunter stocked his library with lots of lovely books, and soon he was doing more business than his hated rival. But Mr. Sigisfoos struck back. To regain his clientele, he began serving tea at his library every afternoon. Thereupon Mr. Toddhunter, not to be outdone, began serving tea with sugar. Thereupon Mr. Sigisfoos began serving tea with sugar and cream and lemon.

This, of course, clinched the victory for Mr. Toddhunter because he had the only lemon tea in town—in fact, in the entire state of Maine—and since that day lemon yellow has, of course, been the color on the robes of masters of library science.

(Coincidentally, the defeated Mr. Sigisfoos picked up his library and moved to California where, alas, he failed once more. There were, to be sure, plenty of lemons to serve with his tea, but, alas, there was no cream because the cow was not introduced to California until 1937 by John Wayne.)

Florida, Georgia Elite Open Junior College Tournament

The best of Florida and Georgia junior college basketball will be on display here for three days, beginning with today's opening round games in the sixteenth annual Region VIII Tournament at Florida State University's Tully Gym.

Eight teams compete for the prize, a regional championship and a place in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament March 17-21 in Hutchinson, Kan. against 15 other regional winners.

Broward County Jr. College of Fort Lauderdale, fourth-place team from Florida, and Columbus, Ga., College, that state's number one team, start the action at 2 p.m. What may be the best matchup of the tournament follows at 4 p.m. Miami-Dade Jr. College, Florida's third team and leading dark horse in the event, meets Young Harris, Ga., College, Georgia's second-ranked power.

In tonight's session, Florida state champion and defending regional winner Chipola Jr. College of Marianna meets Middle Georgia of Cochran, Georgia's number four team, at 7 p.m. Then Florida's number two team, Gulf Coast Jr. College of Panama City, takes on the tournament favorite, Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College of Tifton, Ga., at 9 p.m.

Winners will meet Friday night in the tournament semifinals at 7 and 9 p.m. The championship game is set for 8 p.m. Saturday night.

Admission for the three-day meet is 50¢ for students and $1.50 for adults, per session.

Any hopes of picking a tournament winner were confused last week when Chipola and Abraham Baldwin swept through playoffs in their respective states, and by the difference in the way each state determines its top four teams.

Florida's top four are the semifinals in the state tournament, but Georgia grants its first and second places according to regular season showings.

Miami-Dade, led by three 6-6 aces, on the back line, Dan Doherty, Jerry Katz, and Brian Day, entered the Florida meet with the best record but were defeated by Chipola in a semifinal game.

Chipola eventually won the championship with an 86-72 victory over Gulf Coast.

Meanwhile, Abraham Baldwin's surprising team mocked the automatic 1-2 selection method by defeating Columbus and Young Harris, the first and second place teams, in the state tournament. ABAC clipped Young Harris 71-65 in the semifinals, then downed Columbus 76-58 in the championship game.

Any of three fall giants, Miami-Dade, Columbus, and Young Harris, could rise again to dethrone Chipola and Abraham Baldwin. Columbus has the best record among the eight teams 24-4, but provided it beats Broward County, has to face ABAC again before reaching the finals.

Chipola, should they defeat Middle Georgia, will run into either Miami-Dade or Young Harris in their brackets.

The tournament has its great stars, among them 6-8 center Austin Robbins (fifth leading scorer in the nation) of Chipola.

Williams Takes Indoor Prize With 54' 11" Toss

Track Coach Mike Long took three of his ace cindermen, Al Williams, Doug Perry and Jerry McDaniel, to Louisville last Saturday for the National Indoor Eastern Championship Track Meet. The meet was high lighted by John Velses' pole vault of 16 feet and the Maryland State mile relay team breaking the world record.

Al Williams, who had never before thrown an indoor shot, which is much larger than the conventional steel shot, topped the event for the State. His throw of 54' 11" established a meet record. Doug Perry and Jerry McDaniel did a tie in their events but couldn't over the stiff competition.

A western indoor champion which saw top western track compete, was also held on Saturday. Coach Long expressed hope for national indoor championship Louisville next year.

'Flambeau' Features

Reporters Of The Month

One of the more pleasant aspects of the News Editor's job comes through working with a staff (both large or small) made up of some of the most talented people to grace a newspaper office in years.

The "Flambeau's" choice of anyone top reporter can be called subjective in part, for Lady Luck has much to do with who happens to be around the office when a big scoop breaks; but being available is as much of the training as being able to rewrite boring stories in an interesting vein.

It is with this thought in mind that the "Florida Flambeau" presents its two "top reporters" of the month.

rose marie reid

Miss Carolyn Marie Christensen joined the ranks of the "Florida Flambeau" about a year ago, and has been digging up trouble for all concerned since.

Asked why she wanted to join the student paper, she replied that she "wanted to have newspaper experience, and also wanted to broaden my university experience."

Concerning her work with the "Flambeau," Carolyn said, "It is a very good experience; you meet a lot of people; you are in contact with what is going on around campus; and you learn a lot about writing. Love it."

Carolyn's biggest story thus far has been her coverage of the January Board of Control Meeting, with front page stories on the stadium expansion, on the choosing of the GENESYS site, and on the controversy over the site of the new space university.

"My favorite story was the feature on the 'Childhood In Poetry' collection found in the library," she said.

Other favorites have been her story on the "Outstanding Professor" and on the "Legend" for homecoming. "A lot of people agree with me in that the 'Flambeau' is a darn good paper; I took a private opinion poll last fall which had favorable results," commented Carolyn.

She added as an afterthought that "probably the biggest problem that the paper has is me," but the line editors of the "Flambeau" are undecided on this point.

While the "Flambeau" to students might be a substitute for a sudden rainstorm of handy trash can liner, to Bob Coronet, staff reporter, it is an opportunity to "meet the people whose things happen."

According to Bob, "There is a great satisfaction in covering a noisy, long, tiring convention knowing that the deadline of the paper is being held for you, and you have to get it right and get it fast the first time; and then you do get it. There is no other feeling like that."

Some of Bob's biggest stories have been the recent University Park convention, the election candidate interviews and the University Religious Council's disapproval of Friday class dismissal.

One of his favorite stories is the Papworth story, "Here was supposed to be a world figure in the peace movement, that should have understood me... and he was nothing more than a good story to me."

Although Bob agrees that working for "Flambeau" can be tedious, "duller, inducing," he likes the "sense of immediacy, of pressure, excitement as well as contact with the people who make things happen." Since officially joining the staff this trimester, Coronet has become a familiar front page name with most "Flambeau" readers. He plans to continue in journalism after he graduates.

Family Weekend To Feature Soaring Catarzi

Parents To See Classes, Circus

Family Weekend opens today with visits, and tours of the television station and nuclear reactor. Classes, television station and nuclear reactor will be open to visitors from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. Official registration of visitors will take place in Longmire between 2 and 3 p.m. Friday night Alpha Chi Omega and Phi Alpha will have open houses for alumnae, parents and faculty members. The houses will open at 8 p.m.

The weekend's feature, "The Flying High Circus," will begin its performance at 8 p.m. In the circus' act, "The Flying Seminoles," Adrian Catarzi will attempt to complete a triple somersault from the flying trapeze—a feat only 14 men in the world have accomplished.

Catarzi became the 14th to do this Wednesday night's performance. Catarzi's dorms and sororities will be open houses from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m.

At 8 p.m., the University Singers will present a concert in Westcott Auditorium. The group, directed by Willey Housewright, has just returned from a state-wide tour. Sunday a picnic will take place in circus tent at 11:30 through 1:30 p.m. The picnic is open to all students, parents and visitors. Tickets $1.25.

Garnet Key, women's leadership secretary, will act as hostesses at 8 p.m.

There will be two athletic events Friday afternoon. At 2 p.m., FSU will meet Florida in a tennis match, and at 3:30 p.m. Miami will run against FSU in a track meet at Florida High Field.

Men's dorms and fraternity houses will be open to visitors beginning at 8 p.m.

"The Flying High Circus" will begin at 8 p.m. Awards for outstanding performers will be presented at Saturday night performance.

Family Weekend closes with a disco party at the Sigma Nu house, from 8 to 12 p.m., open to everyone.

K Psi Takes Lots To Circus

Primary function of the business and industry is to serve the public through various relations, believes the new class of Alpha Kappa Psi, a business and professional fraternity. To achieve this goal, the pledges have undertaken the project of bringing the fun and laughter of the FSU "Flying High Circus" to the eyes of the underprivileged children residing in Tallahassee.

With the help of Mr. Wayne E. M. Mr. E.M. Thomas, chairman of the pledge committee, the pledges are taking the youngsters at the Capitol Building Thursday evening, and took them to the AKP's house for refreshments before the show. Each pledge was responsible for a child, whose ages ranged from 3 to 12.

Catarzi Does Triple At Home In First Try

Last night a Tallahassee audience for the first time saw the famous triple somersault act as FSU's Student Circus opened its four-night Home Show.

The triple somersault, in which one performer tumbles three times after leaving a flying trapeze and is caught by another performer hanging by his knees from another trapeze, was performed by Adrian Catarzi, who did the flying, and Larry Camp, a biology major, the catcher.

Only about 14 circus performers in 100 years of "flying" acts in the circus have performed the triple. Catarzi, a Spanish major who is from a family of circus performers, did the triple for the first time last summer at Callaway Gardens, Pine Mountain, Ga., where the FSU troupe was performing.

The show, described by audience members as the best yet in 15 years of the Student Circus, plays to audiences in the circus tent nightly at 8 o'clock. In addition to the night shows through Saturday night there is a 4 p.m. show Saturday.

Bach, Brahms Sung Tonight

Contributing to the gala mood of Family Weekend will be tonight's performance by the University Singers.

The 65-voice choral group will sing in Westcott Auditorium. Fresh from a concert tour of the state, the Singers' program at 8:15 p.m. will feature a wide range of selections.

Highlighted on the program will be five French chansons by Schmitt and a group of spirituals. Selections by Beethoven, Brahms, and Bach will be included.

The Singers have appeared with the Jacksonville Symphony Orchestra, made professional recordings and made several tours throughout the state. Three programs of Christmas music by the University Singers have been broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting network in recent years.

Smith Bids Welcome

We welcome you to Florida State University and to Family Weekend, a time set aside to honor the families and friends of FSU students. I hope the spirit of the weekend festivities will make your visit to campus both pleasant and memorable. The Student Body stands ready to make your weekend an enjoyable one.

Immunization Final Chance Today: Gentry

Today the second and last immunization sugar lump against Polio for FSU students will be available at Westcott, the Student Center, and at the Infirmary. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the vaccine will be distributed at the Infirmary only. The cost of the immunizing sugar lumps is 50 cents. Students who didn't take the first lump during the January drive are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to take their first lump now and a second during the week of final exams.

Taking the series of two oral doses will protect students from Polio for at least four years. The oral vaccine is recommended by public health authorities even though the individual has had prior immunization with the Salk vaccine.

Orimune, the type of vaccine that is being offered, is called a trivalent because, unlike other vaccines, only one oral dose (plus one oral booster) offers maximum protection for all three strains of polio and prevents the taker from being a carrier. Polio is highly contagious and the close contact found in a college community often provides an area in which disease easily spreads. A student carrier of polio could bring the disease on campus where it might spread rapidly, unless the majority of students are protected by vaccination.

THE BURGUNDY SINGERS

... will be the entertainment at the big Circus-Family Weekend picnic Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The picnic will be sponsored by the PE-Athletic Dept. and will be held at Tully Gym. Arnie Gibbs will be Master of Ceremonies while Garnet and Gold Key will act as hosts.

Wells announced today, "The theme of the three-day event, which is expected to attract FSU alumni from throughout Florida and the Southeast, is 'Know Your University.'"

Miss Wells said the weekend, designed ultimately to become the spring equivalent of Homecoming, was the result of more than one year's planning and work by the University and the FSU Alumni Association.

Advance reservations may be made by contacting the association's executive offices at 114 Longmire Bldg.

A diversified program of attractions has been planned for returning alumni which embraces the fields of art, music, drama, and athletics. Another highlight of the weekend, according to Miss Wells, will be special reunions by schools and colleges, a departure from the Homecoming tradition of meeting by classes.

A wide variety of programs has been planned by FSU's 10 schools and colleges. Included on the schedule are coffees, panel discussions, talks by faculty members, and special exhibits.

High on the agenda for sports enthusiasts will be the annual Garnet and Gold intra-squad football game, designed to give fans a preview of what to expect from the Seminoles during next fall's gridiron campaign. Also scheduled is a baseball game between FSU and the visiting Tennessee Volunteers.

Any violation of this agreement will result in a fine of $1 for each poster left up.

The Elections Commission's statement read in part, "Students should remember when they signed the declaration they agreed... to remove all campaign literature and material used by me and/or for me, within seven days after the final run-off election."

The statement also said that "the Elections Commission asks the candidates to live up to their agreement, and to take down the posters so that we will not have to work."

FSU To Have 1st Annual Spring Alumni Weekend

The first annual Spring Alumni Weekend will be on campus March 20-22, General Chairman Dr. Janet Wells announced today.

The theme of the three-day event, which is expected to attract FSU alumni from throughout Florida and the Southeast, is "Know Your University."

Welcome Parents

Those bleary-eyed students who take time out from living in the library will detect unusual phenomena on campus this weekend. There will be more cars, more people and more cameras around the University.

The explanation: It's Family Weekend.

Once a year the University takes time from the trimester push to honor the parents of its students. Once a year parents are more than an address, with the s's like dollar signs.

Each year, FSU regains contact with the outside world; strange creatures walk around campus. They look rested, confident that their son or daughter is spending his time in a well rounded, broadening college experience.

For yanking us back to reality; for assuring us that there IS a real world out there; for bringing our perspective around to the reasonable; for the latest gossip from home, WELCOME, Parents, to FSU.

Have Fun

Both visiting parents and FSU students will be able to take advantage of a wide variety of high calibre entertainment features today and tomorrow during Family Weekend.

First and foremost is FSU's internationally renowned "Flying High Circus." The circus is composed entirely of students who take extraordinary amounts of time from their regular class room activities in order to stage a professional appearing big-top performance.

The University Singers will present a concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Auditorium. The group has received highly complimentary reviews in their performances throughout the state.

For the sports minded, both the track and tennis teams have scheduled meets tomorrow afternoon.

With such a well-rounded activity program, the "Flambeau" hopes that everyone will enjoy themselves and have a memorable Family Weekend.

Symphony Letter Facts Explained

It seems as if a great deal of controversy has been stirred up by the fact that a letter has been sent to several persons on the Artist and Lecture Series.

Before too many people commit themselves one way or another on this issue, I feel that certain facts both about the letter and why it was sent should be made public.

After the Rev. A. J. Muste was refused permission to speak through University facilities it dawned on a great number of students, and some faculty, that a grave injustice had been done.

The reasons given by the University were certainly not the real reasons why Rev. Muste was not allowed on campus. Other speakers, advocating the same philosophy as the Rev. Muste, have been granted permission to speak. And speakers have also been approved in less time than the Forum Committee's two week notice.

Perhaps the Administration made an honest mistake. But if it were a mistake why did they not correct it? On the other hand perhaps it was the pressure of outside, non-University organizations that played a major role in the decision not to allow Muste on campus.

To a large extent the present Public Forum Committee was created as a result of the controversy that Norman Thomas created when he spoke on the campus a few months before the Committee was created.

When it was learned that Thomas was going to come to FSU certain non-University organizations paragonized the Tallahassee area with anti-Thomas and anti-Liberal opinions. These groups are usually classified in the Radical Right and exist in Tallahassee, and influence they have with the State Legislature, which runs FSU, is well known.

Many of us feel that it was the result of Thomas's visit, and the immense ovation he received (the standing ovations) that led the Board of Control of the State of Florida to direct the universities to limit such things as Forum Committee. Muste and Thomas no doubt never appear on the campus again.

Being aware of this situation, some others which also seem to be a denial of academic freedom, several students formed an ad hoc Committee for Cultural Freedom FSU. The letter that has called the controversy was one that I took up and several students helped in its writing, which was a personal letter, protest.

As such it is our rights as American citizens to write personal letters. We people wish to influence. We mentioned that we felt there were some things wrong with FSU and that we could not much hope for "gradual improvement."

We simply asked these speakers and performers who were sympathetic with us to cancel their appearances until real academic freedom came to FSU. Over a score of people signed this letter (includes faculty).

All that we wish is that it will have some influence in freeing FSU from its present unacademic bonds.

If not, then we have failed. As many of us feel, academic freedom will have failed at our University. The dream that Robert Mapplethorpe had of a "Great University" is, we feel, greatly jeopardized. It is the responsibility of all of us to see that this dream comes a reality.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Don't Allow Minority Rule

To the Editor:

After following Thomas Riggins' column and hearing him speak, one must admire a person who has the courage to stand up so strongly for his beliefs. However, when these beliefs are pursued to the point of harming the populous, it is time for them to be squashed. Recently the American people lost a President because of radical thinking being allowed to get out of control.

The minority opinion should not be allowed to undermine the majority, shedding unfavorable criticism on both the student body and the University. Everyone has the right of freedom of speech and action but not at the expense of others.

Where does Mr. Riggins get the right to take it upon himself to write the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra advising them not to come to the FSU campus because they would be performing in an "atmosphere of prejudice and fear." Long hours of hard work and planning have gone into these Artist and Lecture Series that are presented for the enjoyment and enlightenment of all.

In yesterday's editorial the "rude, arrogant action" that seems to characterize the attitude of the Students Acts for Peace was pointed out. I am sure the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will regard Mr. Riggins' action as what it is: one head-butt who is blowing off steam without considering anyone else.

Mr. Riggins failed to say that the rule requiring two weeks notice before a speaker is allowed to use campus facilities was violated in his charge of speaker censorship and other such rule violations. The actions of one person or one group of persons which evidently has little regard for rules and established procedures, should not be tolerated when it harms everyone involved.

Cotton, Medina Compliment FSU's Theatre Atmosphere

By LOUISE RAUSCHERT
Flambeau Feature Writer

"It was a great pleasure to perform here," said Joseph Cotton in an interview with the actor and his wife, actress Patricia Medina, at their motel room yesterday afternoon.

Cotton and his wife starred here last night and Wednesday in "Seven Ways of Love." The actor said he feels that an appreciative audience makes acting worthwhile. Miss Medina, adding her approval, said, "It was just marvelous."

Asked how they enjoyed acting together, Miss Medina said, "We like to be together. It is a rather joyous arrangement." Cotton added, "You never have to say how things go at the theater."

In answer to why they chose to do "Seven Ways of Love," Miss Medina replied, "We like the idea of 'Seven Ways of Love.' I prefer to call it 'A Good Old Argument on Love.'"

The tour of the play will last approximately three months. The Cottons performed in Jacksonville before coming to FSU, and are now on their way to New Orleans to do two performances. They travel mostly by car because they enjoy it more than going by train or plane.

When asked about future plans, Miss Medina jokingly said, "... I should like to stay in Tallahassee forever." They seemed to be impressed with the Florida sunshine.

After the series, the Cottons plan on returning to Hollywood for a while. Cotton remarked, "I am going to act in a movie which I can't say anything about yet."

Cotton narrates a weekly show on TV, "Hollywood and the Stars." While he is on tour, he films it at various stops along the way.

As for her impression of Hollywood in general, Miss Medina said, "I like it. I love California. I wouldn't like to stay in Hollywood without ever getting out, but I do like it as a base. I think it is very important to have a home. I believe in being a woman before being an actress."

Expressing her ideas about filmed vs. live acting, the actress stated, "I haven't really felt any difference. I love making movies and I love the theater."

The Cottons were uncertain about how they first met. "I don't know how we met," Miss Medina stated. She thinks she met him when she first went to Hollywood from her native England. They were introduced again about four years ago by actress Jennifer Jones. They have been married four years.

Reminiscing about his past, Cotton said, "I figured out one time that I've been in more than 3,000 radio shows." He received his training in an acting school in Washington, D.C., but he gives different advice to the young actor. "I think college would be better. They have such darn good theaters."

Miss Medina mentioned that some people consider them too reserved because they do not attend any receptions or social events. She added that they try to get plenty of rest because, "I think you owe it to the play to give as good a performance as you can."

"In leisure time the Cotton enjoy several different pastimes. 'I am a frustrated builder,'" said Cotton. He has built two or three houses. Miss Medina added that "we are doing up our house now with an indoor pool complete with columns and chandeliers."

They both are taking up golf-leafing. Cotton is also an accomplished stone mason.

Dolls Win First

The Tri Deltas won first place in the Sigma Kappa Variety Show sorority competition in a skit where some talented dolls came to life in a toy shop.

A satirical approach by the "Jennie Rosebuds" won Alpha Chi Omega a second place, Phi Mu took third with their presentation of a take-off on "The Sound of Music." In the fraternity competition, Phi-KA placed first, with a drunk scene involving great coordination and timing.

The Lambda Chi's came in second with a satire on "West Side Story." In third place, the Deltas did a take-off on Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

Half of the $250 profit that Sigma Kappa made on their annual show, will go to campus chest, and the other half will be given to a philanthropic organization that Sigma Kappa supports.

After the show, the trophy was presented to Tri Sigma for winning the "Ugly Man Contest."

ges are Judy Cecone, Cheryl Meeks, and Cathy Carree.

All guests are welcome Saturday afternoon at an open house.

The DG Bridge Tournament will be held March 14. All interested persons are urged to participate.

Delta Tau Delta -- This weekend will begin with the annual Debt Slave Auction, when all the Debt actives and pledges will be sold to coeds.

The Delta's dates and parents will be honored tomorrow night with a Slave banquet and combo party featuring the Delta's own Embers.

Gamma Phi Beta -- Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell was a dinner guest Thursday. The Gamma Phi's enjoyed a social with the Kappa Sig's Wednesday night.

The chapter will have open house for the circus weekend.

Kappa Alpha -- Newly initiated brothers are Buzz Borland, Marty Dale, Wyman Harvard, Bruce Ivey, Don Miller, Cliff Myers, Rusty Shank Marshall Widden, Glenn Young, and Jim Zelner.

Tomorrow night the KA's will have a record party in the Rebel Room.

Kappa Alpha Theta -- The Theta's enjoyed a dessert with the Kappa's Wednesday, after which Thomas Wright, pianist, played several of his favorite selections.

Kappa Kappa Gamma -- Sondra Rosenbun, a Kappa Kappa Gamma field secretary, is visiting the chapter this weekend. The Kappa's enjoyed the piano music of Thomas Wright at a social with the Theta's.

The Kappa's will have a party tonight for their housemother, Mrs. Rhodes.

Kappa Sigma -- New pledges are Joe Gangloff, Mike Mason, Randy Scott, and Bob Campbell. The Kappa Sig's enjoyed a dessert party with the Gamma Phi's Wednesday, with the Merryman's as entertainment.

A combo party will be held tomorrow night and all parents are invited to attend.

Lambda Chi Alpha -- The Intramural champion basketball quintet was thrown in Westcott fountain following their final victory.

This is Parent's Weekend at the Lambda Chi house, featuring a buffet luncheon, a father-son softball game, and a tea for the mothers.

A block of seats has been purchased for tomorrow night's circus performance, and the mothers will take over the house that night while the men move out to motel.

Phi Delta Theta -- Initiated Wednesday were Gregg Jones (who was selected best pledge), Lyn Powell, Jim Mauldin, Dave Procter, Phil Spooner, Rick Hutchinson, Phil Holister, Sandy Englund, Paul Wagner, Dick Fritz, Bill Evans, John Warren, Jim Hewitt, Ken Lesakey, Vernon Korin, Bob Givens, Jim Jones and Jim Wallace.

Wednesday night the Phi's enjoyed a dessert with the Chi Omega's. The Phi's also enjoyed working on the soapbox derby with the Alpha Gam's and thank everyone for helping to make it a success.

Phi Kappa Psi -- Initiated this week were John Van Nostrand, Tom Casper, Butch Hosler, Mark Howard, and Bob Johnson.

The annual Red-Garter Party will be held this weekend. The Phi Psi's enjoyed the DG's at a social before the soapbox derby, and then returned to the house to watch the race.

The Phi Psi's did not have a social with the Zeta's Wednesday night.

Phi Kappa Alpha -- The Fikes enjoyed the company of the Alpha Gam's at a dessert party Wednesday. Tomorrow night a combo party will be held with the Velvets.

New officers of the trimester are: Doug Cooke, president; Bob White, vice president; Jim Cobb, treasurer; and Barry Drossmer, cashier.

Several Fikes will attend a fraternal district convention this weekend in Gainesville.

Phi Kappa Phi -- A combo party with the Velvets will be held at the house tonight. In the first round of the brother-pledge golf tournament, the pledges valiantly battled to a tie.

The Annex has the "Contest of the Century" going, with almost all competing for the most points; the "Sister" is presently in the lead.

Sigma Chi -- The Sig's regretfully announce that after their Spring Fling with the SAE's they are on temporary medical probation pending further investigation.

The house will be open Saturday night for Family Weekend.

Sigma Phi Epsilon -- Mrs. Mary Scott, the Sig Ep housemother, has been absent from the house due to the regretful illness of her daughter.

The pledging of Jim McVey brought the pledge class total to 24. Tim Sparkman and Dave Crumb are the new scholarship co-chairmen.

Open houses tonight and tomorrow night will be held for parents and guests from 8 to 12 p.m., and parents will be guests at the house Sunday afternoon for a buffet dinner.

Pledge active competition was featured at Westcott fountain Tuesday following dinner.

The Sig Ep pledge class enjoyed their work party at the Tri Sig house Saturday morning.

Sigma Sigma Sigma -- Ann Flowers is a new Tri Sig pledge. Twenty Sig Ep pledges, won at the Calendar Girl Contest, worked at the Tri Sig house Saturday morning.

The Tri Sigma's enjoyed having Mrs. Rutland, 1946 class president of FSCW, and her two daughters as dinner guests Tuesday.

Tau Epsilon Phi -- A Roman Toga party will be held in honor of the newest Tri Initiate, Skip Getelman, and the pledging of Bruce Narasin and Bruce Rosner.

Election of the new officers for the fall trimester will be held next week.

Theta Chi -- The Theta Chi's will entertain their dates with dinner at the house tomorrow night, followed by the annual Circus Weekend combo party.

Yesterday the Theta Chi's enjoyed an exchange dinner with the Alpha Xi's.

New Initiates are Bob Thompson, John Trempré, Buddy Stevenson, and Jim Burns. Outstanding pledge of the month was Ken Snyder.

Flyer Does Triple in Home Show

16th person in circus history to perform the triple somersault from the trapeze, FSU flyer Adrian Catzarzi, performed the feat Wednesday night for the first time on campus. The 21-year-old senior has previously completed the triple somersault times before but never under the FSU tent.

"We'll do it at least two nights a week," he said. "I hope we can do it every night," said the young English language major, scion of a circus family which goes back for more than a century. Catzarzi well recalls the night last summer when the triple somersault was first completed, FSU's circus was making its annual summer stand at Callaway Gardens, near Mountain, Ga.

It was on July 26 at 10:05 a.m. when the practice session, "said the flyer performer. Catzarzi and numerous other performers in the 15-year history of FSU Student Circus have completed the double somersault and two triple somersaults. Catzarzi is the first somersaulting trapeze artist to be named by the legs instead of the arms by a fellow artist called the flyer.

of the flying acts are performed in the circus rigging over a massive net. At one side an aerialist, standing on what is called the aerial board, swings upward on a rope and toward the end of his swing. The flyer is finally caught by the catcher who is hanging from his knees from the catch of another trapeze. The act is one of the most thrilling in the circus and the triple somersault requires so much skill and timing that only a baker's dozen aerialists have been able to perform it since flying trapeze artists began doing their stunts over 100 years ago.

Clay Clark of Ringling is believed to be the first to have accomplished the triple and in 1922 Alfredo Cor-dona, sometimes called the greatest flyer of all time, mastered it. Cordona is said to have estimated that he had to travel 62 miles an hour during the act.

"During the summer at Callaway we practiced frequently at night," said Catzarzi. "Over and over again we tried the triple — 105 times in all during the summer. We were missing but constantly getting better."

"Finally on that night we connected and pandemonium broke out. 'Come on, let's try it again,' said the Duck—that's what we called Ivan Williams, the catcher. Ad Gilbert (one of the FSU crew coaches) was all excited and Bo Callaway, who is the owner of the Gardens, was watching and was as thrilled as we were."

After doing the triple in practice, Flyer Catzarzi and catcher Williams did the difficult act 10 times in shows, Catzarzi recalls, as the circus troupe put on additional performances at Callaway.

Although the circus troupe had been practicing all fall, the triple had not been done on campus. Catzarzi explained that Williams completed his work at FSU in the spring and transferred to University of Florida, where he is majoring in agricultural chemistry. Fred Hoover, a marine biology student, and Larry Lamp, a biology major, are now the catchers.

Before the home show tonight and tomorrow night (8 p.m. shows tonight) and an additional show at 4 p.m. tomorrow the act will have been practiced enough so that Catzarzi is confident they'll be ready to proceed with it.

When Catzarzi uses the term "we" in describing what happens in the triple he is using it advisedly. "To the layman the catcher in a flying act may seem like just part of the rigging," said Catzarzi. "When an act is successful the person doing the flying is likely to get the applause and when there's a miss the catcher is sometimes blamed. Actually the fault is likely to be mine, but catching requires great skill and without a catcher the act is nothing."

"How does it feel to fly?"

"Great," said Catzarzi.

"To my mind flying is the most thrilling thing on the lot. One reason, I think, is that it is dangerous. If you should hit the net head-first you could break your neck. I broke my nose at Callaway two summers ago. Even hitting feet first is dangerous because you could crumple quickly, hitting your head on your knees, for instance."

"The net is stretched pretty tight and for that reason you have to be careful to land on your back. When you do that you're all right."

"There's also an element of danger in hitting the catcher. If you let go too early you fly straight at him and hitting him might cause a serious injury."

"The danger, I suppose, provides most of the thrill. You know it's dangerous and you are like the race car driver who gets a thrill out of going fast, knowing that death could happen but laughing at the fact that he could be injured. Freud might have something to say about that."

Catzarzi maintains that there's a thrill in successfully completing a team operation and this thrill comes especially when the frosting on the cake, the applause, sets in.

"You feel good, and you know the catcher feels good, and you know that Ad Gilbert feels good," he said.

"One of the first things that occurred to me after the first triple as 'I betcha they're real excited.'"

Adrian Catzarzi has borne the nickname "Nuchi" ever since he can remember but he doesn't know where it originated. He was born in Chicago but has lived most of his life at Sarasota.

Catzarzi's circus interest started as a boy when he traveled with the troupe during the summer, selling cotton candy and doing other odd jobs. It continued at Sarasota High School where he was a member of the student circus there.

Gilbert, who is now on the physical education faculty at FSU, was the coach at the Sarasota circus when Catzarzi was in the tenth grade. Previously, Catzarzi had performed only in tumbling and other acrobatics but Gilbert started him flying — something Catzarzi has been doing ever since.

Kellum Hall's delegates are Gene Stearns, Bob Teel, Dan Burnett, Marty Dale, Steve Wirt, Mike Davis, John Cooper, Rod Tomson, and Tom Carlson with John Day, Jim Corney, Bob Coleman, Ken Nelson and Chuck Middleton as alternates.

Steve Baum, chairman of the Student Act for Peace Committee, announced today that the "Quebec-Washington - Guantanamo" peace walkers will march through Tallahassee tomorrow.

Baum said that the Committee for Non-Violent Action sponsored group will begin the march at 12 noon at the intersection of Woodward and Jefferson streets.

The 20 marchers will march down Jefferson to Copeland, follow Copeland to Call and then go back down Copeland to Florida A and M University.

After marching through FAMU they will follow Adams street to the Governor's mansion. There the march will disband.

The CNVA marchers plan to speak at the Unitarian Chapel tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. about the walk.

During the march, said Baum, the group will walk in a single-spaced line on the sidewalk. They will carry signs and distribute leaflets explaining the peace walks' purpose.

"The reason that we brought them here, was for people to see the other alternative to war that they advocate," said Baum.

The Student Act for Peace will also distribute its newsletter "Peace Ways" on the walk.

Spring Election Filing Begins

Filing for the second spring election will begin tomorrow at 1 p.m. Declarations of candidacy may be picked up in Room 210 Longmire, at the information desk.

This election will select 12 class senators, four from each class; eight associate justices of the Honor Court, four seniors and four juniors; 18 members of the University Court, six from each class; and nine class officers, a president, vice president, and secretary-social chairman from each class.

Lists of qualifications will be posted, or they may be picked up in Room 210 Longmire.

Big Top To Be Big Dome

Plans of a permanent building for the Flying High FSU Circus are in the making according to Bill Branch, secretary of Finance.

Branch said the circus is using a tent bought two years ago and set up in the circus lot behind the laundry. This lot is to be used for a new building.

The circus tent will be paid for in three years, but by that time a new tent will be needed or a permanent one, says Branch. He thinks a permanent building would be more practical because of the expense of continuously buying new tents.

A Glodis dome, first conceived as a mathematical formula, is being considered for the new building. It would house 4,000 spectators and three ring circus. The Secretary feels that this is the least expensive and best way to cover a large area.

Two sites are being considered for the circus dome. Game's Woods and the area across from the men's gym are possible grounds for the permanent building.

Financial means are already being explored. A booth was set up at the Home Show of the circus lot last weekend for contributions to the new building.

Student Government is planning too. The Surplus Funds Commission has as aside $5,000 held in escrow for the building. Reserved funds are to increase by $14,000 at the end of this year, and this money will also be used, according to Branch.

Branch expressed his approval of the financing of the new building. "I think this is a good fund because it was the result of the plan that was made to finance the swimming pool fund."

In essence a small amount of money was deposited in a fund and accumulation of reserves enabled a final financing of the pool. This is what student Government plans to do to build up funds and finance the building.

Wednesday and Thursday evenings, March 11th and 12th at 8:30 p.m. Students can receive tickets free of charge by presenting their ID cards at the Westcott Ticket Office. Tickets at $5.50 for the public, go on sale today.

Founded in 1895, the orchestra earned its fame under such conductors as Victor Herbert, Otto Klemperer and Fritz Reiter. William Steinberg has conducted since 1952.

The program for Wednesday night includes Overture to "Euryanthe," Weber; "Seven Studies on Themes of Paul Klee" by Gyther Schuller and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 3" (Eroica).

On Thursday night, the orchestra will play Schubert's Overture to "Rosamunde," Debussy's "Rondes de printemps" (No. 3 of Images pour Orchestra), "Salome's Dances of the Seven Veils" by Richard Strauss and Bruckner's "Symphony No. 4" in E-Flat Major ("Romantic").

A native of Cologne, Germany, Steinberg served assignments as conductor in the Opera House of Cologne, Prague, Frankfurt, and Berlin. In the thirties, he went to Palestine where he became, with Bronislaw Huberman, co-founder of the Palestine Symphony Orchestra, now known as the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra.

Arturo Toscanini was the Palestine Orchestra's first guest-conductor. He was so impressed with the orchestra that he hired the man who had trained the ensemble - William Steinberg - to become associate conductor of the newly formed HIC Symphony in New York.

After several seasons with the NBC Symphony, Steinberg became music director of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, a post he held until called to Pittsburgh in 1952 to become music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

He has served as guest conductor in many cities of the world. He appears regularly in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, London, Rome, Berlin, Paris, Lucerne, Salzburg, and many other music capitals. For two years, currently with his duties in Pittsburgh, Steinberg served as music director and conductor of the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

What Happened To Other 14

Generally in student government it is the elected official and a few of the highly placed appointed officials that get most of the public recognition when the accolades are passed out. There are some people, though, who do a lot more work than is usually required of them yet go entirely unnoticed. These are the pre-3) little bits of fluff who work as secretaries in the Student Body Presidents office. They get paid for 15 hours but it's rare week when they do less than 20, and they do their work in pleasant, unassuming manner. One other thing, that is perhaps, more valuable than they realize, is the warm and friendly atmosphere they have created in the Secretary's office. This trimester the two girls there are Nancy May and Beverly Donner. Last trimester it was Martina Pierce and Jean Norman. All four made the office a nice place to walk into and be. But Nancy and Beverly make it particularly so this trimester.

There is a risk involved in singling out any one organization for praise because someone is usually left out that shouldn't be. This is no reason for silence on the matter and so something should be said about Sigma Kappa sorority for their efforts for Campus Chest and other charities. The Variety Show was the expected huge success. And they have always been generous in their support of the projects of other groups for charity.

The Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority and the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity deserve a hand for their contribution of the proceeds from the Soap Box Derby.

What happened to Gold Key's mis-ling fourteen? In a recent "Flambeau" letter written by the GK president, it was stated that the GK never considered last Fall, of these 14 members, there were 23; this leaves 17; of these 17, three were chosen last Fall; this leaves a total of 14 unaccounted for. What happened, didn't the national chair right? Or weren't any of the Phi Delta's or Sigma Chi's or SAE members? Or were Sigma Chi's or SAE, one is a Lambda Chi, one is Phi Psi, one is an independent, and four are Phi Delta Theta's.

If this is a superficial question, only because it is difficult to go deep when looking at Gold Key. Something is more serious; what about the grades of the male population when a leadership honorarium consists of no more than 13 members? What about the outstanding leaders in the religious houses, in the dormitories, in athletics, in band, in chess, drama, debate. Maybe in the way they do it, the research on male students, maybe the "spoken" criteria in selecting a speaker maybe it is a small clique in the way they do it, but I do know that to say there are only 13 men on campus who deserve membership in a leadership honorarium, and also have the necessary grade average filed hard in the files, in common sense, and most important of all, common honesty.

I sincerely hope that this column, never, never turns into a "grade book" is only this writer's desire that the writing, writing, and writing in this column are to be a good need of a critical, and honest voice being spoken to them. It is so easy to induce complacency from the really important things in life... other people. How do we stay... by maintaining the status quo when we are on top; by keeping it so easily the feeling of being one of those around us, particularly those most concerned about it. It is so easy to induce complacency from the really important things in life... other people. ## FSU Reputation Has Suffered

To the Editor:
After reading of the Student As for Peace latest attempt to solve FSU policy, I find the time has come to recognize the danger of irresponsible minority.

By petitioning people in upcoming Artist and Lecture Series not to come to FSU, this group is trying to tear down a cultural tradition that has taken many years to achieve. Even if the petition is ignored, the reputation of FSU has already suffered, and its effects may be felt in ensuing years. The damage has already been done.

As but one student I can only ask that my fellow students take it upon themselves to find out exactly what this Students Act for Peace really stands for.

Something is an earlier meeting of the SAP with high hopes, but all saw at that meeting were slides of the Kremlin and a lecturer who said "great accusations against the revolution" many times.

Flambeau Forum
Advisor Resigns From FSU

To the Editor:

I have heard much discussion in my two years at Florida State regarding what it would take to make this a "distinguished university." The wrong question is being asked. We should really be concerned with what it would take to make this a university.

The step taken by the Public Forum Committee in barring Rev. A.J. Muste from the use of campus facilities is merely one of a long series of steps taken by the administration which demonstrates that we are not a university at all. We have many fine buildings with the prospect of more in the near future, but we lack the one essential element of any university -- an atmosphere which encourages freedom of expression and the free exploration of ideas.

The behavior of the administration has made it impossible for any thoughtful faculty member to admit without shame that he is associated with Florida State. True, many ivory-tower scholars will hide behind the cloak of their research and claim that administrative activities have no effect upon them and thus is none of their concern. But they are not insulated.

Every administrative activity of this nature does reflect upon them in the eyes of the larger community of scholars. Inquiry whittles away at our ability to engage in scholarly pursuits by setting the precedents which may be used to restrict our areas of scientific investigation or subjects of classroom discussion.

It is precisely for these reasons that I have resigned.

I wish to be able to hold my head up in a community of scholars and I could not do so if I remained here at Florida State.

Letter Not Worth Answer

To the Editor:

I was going to write a lengthy reply to Paul W. Snyder's letter of March 4, but on reconsideration I isn't worth the effort. His letter is self condemning. I think its overall depth is best revealed in the comment: "You may even see the boys with beards and sunglasses calling the stuff gentleman on the right 'stick'."

Gives Thanks To FSU Circus

To the Editor:

Last night I decided not to let my lessons interfere with my education... I may flunk my test today, but I feel it was worth it since I thoroughly enjoyed myself.

I was not the only one who enjoyed himself, in fact I am sure every one there did, including the entire membership of the FSU Flying High Circus.

To these performers, I extend my thanks, not for the poor grade I'll make on my test, but for the total compensation for that grade, that was made possible by offering the most enjoyable and relaxing evening to come my way in a long time.

A little girl and her parents sat in front of me during the performance, and the end I heard her say, "Momma, they are better than the Beatles," and from the way she said it you knew that you had truly witnessed The Greatest Show on Earth.

Speak As You Wish
But Just For Yourself

To the Editor:

The Artist Series should waste no time in signing up Mr. Thomas Riggins that he might appear before Florida State University students and Tallahassee residents in all his glory.

Speaking about selfishness, unfairness, and "tokenism," Mr. Riggins eats his own words when he takes it upon himself to petition the Pittsburgh Symphony and other artists not to appear at FSU, since their performing in an "atmosphere of prejudice and fear" would be seriously hindered.

We seem to recall that an "atmosphere of prejudice and fear" reigned quite heavily in Berlin and Vienna around the time of the hellish WW II years.

Remarkably enough, during this time such great conductors as Bruno Walter and Wilhelm Furtwangler gave some of the most inspiring musical performances of their lifetimes.

What should Maestro Steinberg, the Pittsburghers, and all other artists do when they are confronted with the danger of performing at such places as FSU which "overflow" with "fear and prejudice?"

Does Mr. Riggins suggest that the Pittsburgh Symphony and all other cultural artists enter into seclusion until all prejudice and bigotry is wiped off the face of the earth?

The Pittsburgh Symphony is coming to FSU to perform for the benefit of people who enjoy good music, and we hardly think that they would find cause to cancel a performance simply because there might be a few (or even many) bigoted individuals seated in the audience during a performance.

Is anyone being denied the joy of seeing the performance? Of course not, is Mr. Riggins planning to picket Westcott if performance, Mr. Steinberg, and company ignore the petition? (It would mark the first performance of a "comic opera" on the walk in front of Westcott.)

My, how bold and courageous you are, Mr. Riggins, when you purport to speak on behalf of all cultural enthusiasts! Speak as you wish; that is your right. But speak for yourself.

The situation which you wish to bring about through your petition is manifestly as distasteful as that which you are working to bring about.

Government Lecture Series Hosts Calif. Anthropologist

An anthropologist from the University of California at Los Angeles, Dr. M.G. Smith, will be the sixth speaker in the Government Dept.'s Public Lecture Series at 8 p.m. tonight in the Stroz Library Lecture Hall.

Government and politics in the perspective of anthropology will be Dr. Smith's subject, said Chairman Nelson Parsons of FSU's Government Dept. The visiting speaker, a native of Kingston, Jamaica, is the author of some 40 publications, including several books, published during the past 12 years.

Among more recent ones are "Government in Zazzau, 1800 to 1950," published by Oxford University Press in 1960 for the International African Institute and winner of the Amaury Talbot Book Prize that year; "West Indian Family Structure," University of Washington Press, 1962; "Kinship and Community in Carriacou," Yale University Press, 1962; and "Dark Puritan," University College of the West Indies, Jamaica, 1963.

Smith received his B.A. degree in 1948 from London University after serving with the Royal Canadian Hussars during World War II. His Ph.D. degree in anthropology, received in 1951, was also from London.

West Africa and the British Caribbean have been the ethnographic areas of principal interest to him and his anthropological interests have been in method, theory, structure and change.

Dr. Smith's teaching and research were principally at the University College of the West Indies

Bailey To Speak

Thomas D. Bailey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will speak tomorrow night in the 1963-64 Extra Curricular Guidance Enrichment Series at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Education Bldg.

His topic will be "Crucial Issues in Education Facing Counselors today." The introduction will be given by Dr. Mide Stone, Dean of the School of Education.

A social hour will follow the lecture in the Education Bldg. Lounge. Interested students may attend.

This is our in-one-door-and-out-the-other-door Volkswagen. We sell it to people who want to cut delivery time.

It has double loading doors almost four feet wide and four feet high on each side. Plus a door in back. The load is practically surrounded by doorways.

So there's no place for a package to hide. Even though there are 170 cubic feet of load space inside.

You can reach almost everything without setting foot in the truck yourself.

When you're parked on the left side of a one-way street, you still unload onto the sidewalk. Through the doorway on the driver's side.

This left-side door is extra at $100.*

It's just about the only thing on a VW that doesn't come with the truck.

The heater's standard equipment. So's the loading light. And the rear windows. The inside rear view mirror. 4-speed transmission.

You'd pay extra for front seat. You'd pay extra for the trucks on some trucks. Not on a Volkswagen truck.

You get all these extras and the truck for $2297.* Extraordinary.

RESEARCH, TRAINING & ADVICE AVAILABLE
FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

DR. RUSSELL J. KEIRS

...Associate Dean of the Graduate School and Director of the Division of Sponsored Research checks the growth of the contract expenditures.

Research Grants Going Up

FSU will receive about $400,000 a year for additional research under a plan for handling research grants now in effect.

Dr. Russell J. Keirs, Associate Dean of the Graduate School and Director of the new Division of Sponsored Research, said the additional funds will be used in humanities and social science research as well as research in the natural sciences.

Natural sciences, he said, attract about 90 per cent of the outside funds for research at FSU but research funds are short in the social sciences and humanities.

The newly available monies will come out of allocations for "overhead costs," such as those for use of buildings, utilities and administration, in regular research grants by government agencies and foundations. A specific amount of each research grant usually is earmarked for overhead.

Overhead allocations during the current fiscal year will come to an estimated $495,000, Keirs said. Under the law heretofore, he said, the overhead money has largely reverted to the state treasury but the 1963 legislature provided for its use to support research anywhere in the university.

Dr. Keirs, a chemist who has been a member of the faculty since 1950, was appointed associate dean of the Graduate School in 1952, was appointed dean of the Graduate School in 1952, with primary responsibilities in the area of research administration.

Navy To Visit

The Officer Programs Team from the US Navy Recruiting Station, Jacksonville, Florida, will make a scheduled visit to FSU today through Thursday.

The team will be on campus at the Student Center and Longmire Bldg. from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Interviews and applications are encouraged from senior men and women to attend the US Navy Officer Candidate School, Newport, Rhode Island. The Officer Candidate School is a 16 week course leading to a commission as ensign, US naval reserve.

Male applicants who successfully complete this course are assigned to duties as line or supply officers in the Fleet and Shore Establishment of the US Navy for 3 years. Women applicants who complete Navy OCS are assigned to administrative duties as line, supply, or medical service corps officers within the United States for 2 years and are then eligible for foreign shore duty in the area of their choice, if they so desire.

Eligibility requirements for US Navy OCS are they must be a citizen of the US, possess a baccalaureate degree or be within 30 days of graduation and expect to graduate in 9 months, pass a standard qualifying exam (mental), pass a Navy officer physical exam, and be of good moral character and able to provide references to the fact.

The examination in defense of dissection of Mr. Clarence Wenford Hardman will be held in 222 Conradi at 3 p.m. All faculty members are invited to attend.

Dr. Philip Ruck, Department of Zoology, University of Wisconsin, will give a psychology seminar on the "Retinal Structure in Insects" at 4:10 p.m. in 306 Science.

Laboratory Student Services and Education Committees will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

The American Meteorological Society will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Father Ryan will discuss the "Eastern Rite Mass" at 8 p.m. in the Catholic Student Center as a part of Catholic Faith Week.

The Red Cross Senior Life Saving Course will be held at 8 p.m. in the Women's Gym.

The Government Lecture Series will present Dr. M.G. Smith, Professor of Anthropology from the University of California to speak at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Thomas K. Brown, organizer, will present a special recital at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman.

Law Profs Meet

The University of Florida School of Law will hold its third annual conference on pre-legal education this weekend, March 13 and 14.

There will be a general forum conducted by law school professors on the topic, "Opportunities in the Legal Profession," Friday evening at 8:15 p.m.

Saturday morning from 8:30 a.m. to 12:20 p.m., there will be a forum concerning preparation for law school, criminal law, business law, law and agriculture, law and government, and law and modern technology.

The pre-law Student Convention will be held along with a forum discussing "Pre-Law Organization and Pre-Legal Education" Saturday at 1:45 p.m.

Information tours will be conducted through the Law School facilities. Dean R.J. Farley, Deane Emeritus of the College of Law at the University of Mississippi, will speak on "The Future of the Legal Profession," at the banquet at 6 p.m. Saturday.

All students interested in attending the conference may get information Wednesday and Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Longmire lobby.

Frank Leads Discussion

Dr. Elke Frank, Assistant Professor of Government, will lead a discussion on "Challenge-1964 Presidential Year" in order to help inform students who will participate in electing the U.S. President in next fall's election.

The discussion session on the issues and candidates of the '64 election will take place in the Landis Hall parlor tomorrow at 5 p.m., and is open to anyone.

Fox Named Director Of Bio-Science Institute At The University Of Miami

Dr. Sidney W. Fox, professor of chemistry and director of FSU's Institute for Space Biophysics, has been named director of a new Institute of Planetary Bioscience at the University of Miami.

University of Miami President Henry Kling Stanford announced Saturday that Fox will direct one of four institutes planned for a School of Environmental and Planetary Sciences to be established at UM this fall. The appointment of Fox is effective July 1.

Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers Jr., assistant dean of the faculty, said "Florida State regrets very much the loss of Dr. Fox. His work here has brought distinction to the Institute for Space Biosciences and to the University."

"Although his place will be difficult to fill," Chalmers said, "the University will continue to develop its program in the space sciences. The University is seeking distinguished professors in meteorology and physical aspects of space research to strengthen the excellent program already under way at Florida State.

Dr. Fox, whose research is well known, joined the FSU faculty in 1955. He has served as director of FSU's Oceanographic Institute since 1961 has been director of Institute for Space Biosciences. He has been a consultant to Atomic Energy Commission, member of National Science Foundation and National Research Council advisory panels, and has been on National Aeronautics and Space Administration Biosciences Subcommittee since the establishment of NASA's Life Science Office in 1960.

THE MATHEMATICS-METEOROLOGY

... Building will officially become the James J. Love Building as FSU holds a special ceremony in Room 101 at 2 p.m. Friday, March 13. It is named in honor of the late Mr. Love, a Quincy businessman who was a member of the Board of Control from 1955 until his death in 1961. J.J. Love, Daniel of Jacksonville, who succeeded Love as Board chairman, will be the speaker, and a daughter of Mr. Love, Mrs. Frank P. May Jr. of Gainesville, will respond to the dedicatory remarks of FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell.

Recitals For Organ, Piano Planned For Here And There

Piano

Organ

FSU's pianist Edward Kilenyi will be a featured concert soloist in the Carolinas this week through Wednesday and in Milwaukee, Wis., on March 22.

First stop in his four-day concert and workshop tour in the Carolinas was Columbia Museum of Art, Columbia, S.C., where he presented a piano recital last night.

A second recital, scheduled for today for the Liberal Arts Auditorium at the St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinburg, N.C., signals the start of an encore workshop which Kilenyi will conduct at St. Andrews Conservatory of Music.

A repeat performance for the FSU professor of music, the Second Annual Kilenyi Workshop will be held tomorrow and Wednesday. The short course stresses the pianistic problems of technique and interpretation.

Thomas K. Brown, graduate instructor of organ and theory in the School of Music, will present a program of organ music this evening at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Brown is organist-choirmaster of St. Paul's Methodist Church and is working towards his doctoral degree here.

Included on his program will be Handel's "Second Concerto in B-flat Major; Kodaly "Prelude on the Fange Lingua;" the "Heroic Song" by Jean Langlais; a Frederic Jacobi "Prelude;" a toccata by Milton Gill and Bach's "Prelude in E-flat Major."

A graduate of Stetson University with a master's degree from the University of Michigan, Brown is a student of Ramona Cruikshank Beard at FSU.

Personnel Form

Many areas on campus have shown a good response to the personnel forms that have been passed out. Find students interested in work for student government.

The personnel forms should be returned to the Internal Affairs Office in 210 Longmire as soon as possible because the new administration is beginning to make appointments. Students who did not receive a copy of the personnel form can pick one up at the Internal Affairs Office.

Physics Seminar

The Nuclear Physics Seminar scheduled for tomorrow has been canceled due to the Chicago meeting of the American Physical Society.

Math-Meteorology To Become James J. Love Building Friday

The building housing FSU's departments of Mathematics, Meteorology and Statistics and the Computing Center will be named the James J. Love Building in special ceremonies Friday.

By placing his name on the building the University will thus honor Love, a Gadsden county businessman and farmer who gave substantially of his knowledge, time and energies to education as a member of the Board of Control from July 1, 1955, until his death on Sept. 2, 1961.

A former Board member and chairman who served with him, J.J. Love, Daniel of Jacksonville, will be the speaker in brief ceremonies scheduled for 2 p.m. in Room 101 of the Mathematics-Meteorology Bldg.

President Gordon Blackwell will make the dedicatory remarks and the response will be by a daughter of Love, Mrs. Frank P. May Jr. of Gainesville. The invocation will be by the acting FSU chaplain, the Rev. William D. Brown.

Born Aug. 30, 1898, in Quincy, Love received his bachelor's degree from Davidson College in 1919 after wartime service in the Infantry. From 1920 to his death, Love was active as a tobacco grower, packer, livestock operator and banker.

The Board of Control, which he served as chairman during fiscal 1957-1959, adopted a resolution following his death which said about Love:

"He always evidenced unquestioned honesty and integrity and good judgment along with a rare sense of wholesome wit and good humor which so frequently served to smooth over difficult situation in the business which came up before the Board of Control. He demonstrated in his actions and interest an abiding compassion for his fellow man."

Catholic Week Begins Today

"Catholic Faith Week is a week set aside each school year to emphasize the role of the church on the FSU campus and to present some facets of the Catholic faith which might not be generally known," said Father Moore of the Catholic Student Center concerning Faith Week beginning today.

The first event will be an Eastern Rite talk tonight at 8 p.m. by Father Raya, who is presently the Archimandrite of Jerusalem. He spoke here about two years ago and was recently on CBS-TV as the Catholic spokesman for the Ecumenical movement.

An Eastern Rite Mass will be celebrated tomorrow at 11:30 a.m. This mass is unique in that it provides an opportunity for receiving Holy Communion under both species of bread and wine.

On Thursday, at 8 p.m., a Roman Rite Demonstration will take place at the Catholic Student Center, the week will be climaxed with a High Mass at Westcott Auditorium on Sunday, March 15, at 11 a.m.

The sermon at High Mass will be delivered by Father Madden, Pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church and the Blessed Sacrament choir will sing.

There will be no Masses at the Catholic Student Center on March 15.

Children See Circus

The Council for Exceptional Children served as hosts for 30 residents of the Sunland Training Center at Marianna for the March 4th FSU Circus performance.

The guests arrived at 5 p.m. and were taken to dinner independently by the students. Afterwards, many of them visited the dormitories and toured the various buildings on campus.

The children witnessed the Flying High Circus performance that evening, which was a thrilling experience for all of them, according to the Council.

Publicity Aids Groups

By STEVEN L. MEISEL

If you belong to one of the numerous organizations at FSU, Greek or non-Greek, the points cited below are important for you to know. Adhering to these points can be the difference between the success or failure of an event sponsored by your group; it can mean the life or death of the organization itself.

Just what is this formula for instant success about? The answer is "publicity." Every organization has a public image, and it is the sincere desire for every organization that the image they reflect upon the public be an acceptable one. But organizations do not attain a favorable public image by merely existing; they must work for it.

If your group is one of the many that does not receive adequate recognition on campus the following recommendations will be a major assistance to you.

First, your group should become familiar with the FSU and Tallahassee news outlets. Two of the best news outlets on the FSU campus are the "Flambeau" and "At FSU this Week," which is prepared by the Office of Special Events, in Room 15 Longmire. The FSU Public Relations Office also furnishes the student groups at FSU an exceptionally good means of communication. Let it be clear, however, that these news outlets are separate entities. Hence, by notifying one of these offices you are not guaranteed that you will get publicity from all three.

In town, the local newspaper, radio and television stations provide an additional means of communication. Also, your organization should learn to make use of the display windows at the University Book Store and the many available bulletin boards in the dormitories and on campus.

Furthermore, your organization should get to know the people who are in charge of these communications. One of the most important persons that your group must get to know is the News Editor of any paper. If at all possible, the publicity chairman of your organization should make an appointment to see the News Editor of the "Flambeau," or to at least make sure that she is given a memo card. This card should list the publicity chairman's name, address, phone number and the events that your group is connected with. If your organization does not have a publicity chairman, it might be beneficial if such an office were created.

Every organization should learn to work with, rather than against, the news staff of the "Flambeau." This can be accomplished by learning exactly how far in advance of publication the paper would like your copy; by learning to answer Who, What, Why, When and Where, when you submit an article about an event that your group is sponsoring; by submitting accurate facts, so as to avoid the editor's embarrassment of having to submit a retraction and by submitting good photographs (preferably action pictures).

Another way in which your organization can aid the news outlet is by voluntarily informing them of any happenings that might be news

Dr. Fox Finds Idleness Enforced in Prisons

Limitations on prison labor by legislative lobbyists is leading to "enforced idleness of prisoners," FSU specialist, Vernon Fox, said Friday night.

"Productive labor is basic to the rehabilitation objective for which the prisons were supposedly established," said Dr. Fox, head of the FSU Dept. of Corrections and Criminology, "yet the legislative restrictions have resulted in American prisons being the only ones in the world with a problem of idleness of prisoners."

Speaking to a meeting of the Jacksonville chapter of the American Association of Personnel Administrators in Starke, Fox told the group that the resolution of the problem is a matter of public policy and decision.

"If prison industry is to be restricted to the extent that it produces idleness," the speaker said, "then private companies or free enterprises profiting from this idleness should support the clinical and psychiatric programs at the prison in order to achieve the rehabilitative objectives for which the prison was established and which their restrictive legislation has impaired."

Idleness is basic to a good rehabilitation program in prison," Fox said, "Labor provides many prisoners with a feeling of accomplishment never before experienced."

Although work became accepted by criminologists as therapeutic,

"prison industry and work have constituted threats to organized industry, organized labor and to a lesser extent, organized agriculture," he said. "In 1929, the United States Congress responded to the pressure of industrial interests and passed the Hawes-Cooper Act to divert prison products of interstate character on arrival at their destination, thereby making them subject to state law. In 1935, Congress similarly passed the Ashurst-Summers Act, which prohibited transportation companies from accepting prison-made products for transportation across state lines and had other provisions restricting the use of prison-made goods."

"During the 1963 Legislative session, the Florida Associated Industries used lobby pressure to further restrict the use of prison labor in Florida," Fox said. "This has resulted in taxpayer subsidization of few private enterprises in areas that could better and less expensively be done by prisoners, such as printing, concrete production, food, road signs and many other areas," he added.

"If the prison is to be used as an instrument of rehabilitation and is not provided with a services and in mental health clinics to modify behavior then the entire burden must of necessity," Fox said, "rest on work programs couched in an environment of understanding personnel, although other factors are also important."

Sports Weekend

FSU Thinclads Cut Miami

FSU athletes spent a full weekend in track, tennis and baseball. Seminole topped Miami in track, won one of two tennis matches and dropped both freshman baseball games.

RECORDS BROKEN

A large crowd of parents and students saw the FSU thinclads defeat the University of Miami Saturday in the opening home track meet of the season.

The final score was 89 1/2 to 55 1/2.

The meet was highlighted by eight meet records being shattered and the school records broken. All of the records were broken by FSU men. The record breakers were: 440 relay team, mile relay team, Jerry McDaniel, Doug Ferry, Don Pharis, Al Williams and Steve Shatz.

McDaniel won the 220, 440, and ran on two winning relay teams. Ferry broke all the school records in the intermediate hurdles. Pharis set a school record in the pole vault.

Other FSU winners were: Bob Sable, 100 yd. dash; Hank Raehn, 880 yd. run; Floyd Lorenz, high jump; Steve Shatz, triple jump; Al Williams, shotput.

ERRORS LOSE GAME

What started out as a pitching duel between FSU's Marvin Stringfellow and Manatee Junior College's Tom McDaniel turned into a nightmare. Seminole errors as the Lancers defeated the Baby Seminoles, 6-3, Saturday.

The Lancers took advantage of eight Baby Seminole errors to score five unanswered runs in handing the frosh their second straight loss. Bright spots for the Seminoles were the pitching of Stringfellow and hitting of Mickey Schmuck.

Stringfellow pitched the complete game. He yielded seven hits, struck out three and walked two while giving up only one earned run.

Schmuck collected a double and two singles in four trips to lead the frosh at the plate. Third baseman John Blackburn also collected a double two times at bat.

The Lancers drew first blood, scoring two unearned runs in the third and fourth innings. McDaniel scored on an error by Bob Woley in the third, and John Frye scored on an error by Dave Duchak.

After a scoreless fifth, Manatee exploded for three runs in the top half of the sixth inning. Dick Fernandez led off with a walk. He then struck out.

Jerry Fowler and John Frye lined out to first with Fernandez hitting third. Maurice Hopkins lined a grounder to Ken Lucas who bobbed the ball, allowing Fernandez to score.

Gary Trapp lined a single to left, moving Hopkins to third. Trapp's Hopkins scored on a ground ball by Bob Moxley that third baseman Berry boomed, letting the ball go into left field.

Hawkins popped out to Duchak to end the inning. The Baby Seminoles broke the scoring ice in the sixth inning. Bob Woley scored on a fielders choice.

In the bottom of the eighth, the FSU frosh scored two more runs. Stringfellow singled to right. He was followed by Woley who was safe on an error by third baseman Bill Ziegler.

Both runners advanced on a wild pitch by reliever Gary Trapp. Mickey Schmuck singled Stringfellow in and Roy Mewbourne followed with a single to score Woley.

Trapp killed the rally by stopping the next three batters. Douchak popped to second. Bob Nelson bounced to the first baseman, and Blackburn popped to second.

FSU tried one more rally in the bottom of the ninth. Pinch hitter Al Dier walked with one out. Stringfellow struck out, and Duty was out sealing second to end the game.

Chipola Grabs Championship

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Chipola Indians overcame the stalling tactics of the Columbus Rebels to defeat the Georgia team 32-23 here Saturday.

The Rebels went into the freeze tralling 11-7 with 11:56 left in the first half. Jimmy Russell and Jerry Smith passed the ball back and forth in an attempt to force the Indians out of their zone defense. Finally with less than three minutes left in the half, Jan Shadrum stole the ball and scored on a lay-up.

Austen Robbins added a foul shot, to make the score 13-7. Chip Whitely hit on a shot with 10:50 left in the half, to make it 13-9. Shadrum then hit on a long 35 footer with three seconds left to make the half time score 15-9.

At the start of the second half, Chipola sent in a team of small guards plus Robbins and Jerry Hill. They advanced the lead steadily. Chip Whitely dropped in a lay-up for Columbus to end the scoring. Whitely led in individual scoring, sinking 19 of his team's 23 points. Robbins and Shadrum scored nine apiece.

FSC Mocs 5-1

The Florida Gators scored four runs in the 14th inning yesterday and defeated the Florida Southern College Mocs 5-1 in baseball.

The Gators filled the bases on a double by Tom Shannon and walks to Bill Honggreen and Ron Creese and Earl Montgomery drove Shannon and Blomgreen home with a single.

Southern's lone run came in the fourth when Frank Oktavec tripled Bob Lee home.

Southern is FSU's first opponent in baseball. The game will be played here on March 16.

was not easy for either team. Chipola defeated Middle Georgia and Young Harris by 85-69 and 109-93, and Columbus defeated Broward J.C. and Gulf Coast J.C. 73-58 and 56-33. In Thursday's action, Gulf Coast and Young Harris pulled upsets. Gulf Coast upset ABAC, the tourney co-favorite with Chipola, 85-82 on last minute free throws by Laddie Cooper and Gary Harrington. Jim Frator scored 19, and Jack Jones scored 18 for Gulf Coast. Goose McGowan scored 18 and Jake Popham scored 17 for ABAC.

Young Harris ran the favored Miami Dade squad right out of the gym. Young Harris had six men in double figures. The big difference was in shooting from the field. The Dade Falcons hit only 20 out of 67, while the Mountain Lions hit 34 out of 64. Jerry Katz of Miami was high scorer with 30 points. Ronnie Bell scored 19 for the Mountain Lions.

The Columbus Rebels defeated the Broward Seahorses 73-58 in a battle of who would do worse. Each team shot 35% of their field goal attempts, but the Rebels shot 30% more times than did the Seahorses.

High scorer was Rex Fetrol of Broward with 24 points. Tom Howard of Broward scored 19, Wendell Barr and Chip Whitely scored 16 apiece for the Rebels.

Chipola had to face an injury riddled Middle Georgia team, but still got a tough fight before winning 83-69. Charles Robinson had the leading individual showing for the tournament with 33 points, but Hill and Robbins combined for 50 points and 33 rebounds to lead the Indians to victory.

In the semi-final games, Chipola easily outran Young Harris, and Gulf Coast almost upset Columbus.

Chipola built up a lead in the first half, but Young Harris couldn't catch up. Austen Robbins scored 31 points even though he sat on the bench most of the second half.

Donnie Carter added 20 points, all in the second half for the Indians. Paul Kellogg and Ronnie Bell, both fouled out early for the Mountain Lions. Kellogg had scored 13 points when he fouled out late in the first half. Ron Moore scored 29 points for the Mountain Lions.

CBS to Televis Sir Bernard Lovell's Lecture

THREE REPRESENTATIVES

of Columbia Broadcasting System here check over Westcott Auditorium where CBS will cover the lecture by famed British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell next Monday night. The lecture will be video-taped and broadcast at 4 p.m. Sunday, March 22, as part of the "One of a Kind" series. From the left are Roger Smith, the producer; Walter Pile, the engineer; and Portman Paget, the director.

Three representatives of the Columbia Broadcasting System were at FSU yesterday making plans to televise the lecture by astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell here Monday for an hour-long program over the nationwide network Sunday, March 22.

Producer Roger Smith said that Lovell's lecture will be broadcast at 4 p.m. as a program in the "One of a Kind" series offered every Sunday afternoon. With Smith making arrangements for covering the address were Portman Paget, director, and Walter Pile, engineer.

Lovell will speak in Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Monday, March 16, as part of the University Lecture series. The address which is free and open to the public, will be on the subject, "Life, Space and the Moon." The 50-year-old astronomer, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, became the first Westerner to see Soviet Russia's deep-space tracking network during a tour last June and July at the invitation of the president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

Rev. Ferre To Give Talks

The Reverend A. Gustave Ferre, chairman of the Philosophy Dept. at Texas Christian University, will present five lectures on the general theme of "Modern Man and His Search for Values" as part of the FSU Religion in Life Series.

Ferre will give a luncheon address today in the Swanee Dining Hall at noon on "The Student and Values." Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby will announce the recipient of the 1954 Blanche Kingery Carroll Award during the luncheon.

The philosopher-educator will speak on "The Search for Self" at 8 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation House tonight.

He will offer a lecture on "The Search for Freedom" tomorrow night at the same time and place. At 4 p.m. tomorrow he will speak at the Wesley Foundation on "The Search for Morality," after giving an address on "The Professor and Values" for the Wednesday luncheon in the Swanee Dining Hall.

A native of Sweden, Ferre came to the United States as a child. The Ferre name is well-known to readers of theological and religious books.

Ferre is a former member of the faculty of Vanderbilt University and while living in Nashville he served as associate editor of "The Upper Room."

Lovell told reporters after his trip he believed that the Soviets had abandoned the man-on-the-moon race with America and apparently were concentrating on a soft-landing with instruments instead of men. Lovell expressed the view that America's manned lunar program was valuable and should proceed but suggested a cooperative effort with the Soviets.

Smith said the CBS series is an experimental effort in news broadcasting. The lecture was singled out for attention as representative of "a facet of university life which people, I believe, are not terribly aware of."

"Classroom work, extracurricular activities and games are all familiar parts of the campus scene but the public lecture is something bringing together people from the entire university and the community outside."

Smith said CBS wants to handle the event as inconspicuously as possible.

"We want to tamper with as little as we can and handle the event just as it occurs," he said.

Previous programs in the series have included "Dublin Through Different Eyes," a program on Sir Isaiah Berlin at Oxford University, and a helicopter view of the United States.

'I-Day' Coming

Insurance Day will be observed on campus tomorrow ending in a banquet at which Florida's "Insurance Man of the Year" and the "Outstanding Insurance Student" at FSU will be honored.

Under auspices of the North Florida Chapter of the Chartered Property Casualty Underwriters, the Insurance Society of FSU and the School of Business, "Insurance-Day" will begin at 8 a.m. with registration, coffee and a get-together in Welch's Lounge of the Business Bldg. The public is invited to the sessions.

Panel discussions on career opportunities in insurance will be held in the Starry Room from 9 a.m. to noon with State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner J. Edwin Lawrence as one of the panelists. The panel discussions will be held at 9:10, and repeated at 10:20 and 11:30 a.m.

An alumni luncheon at 12:30 will be followed by placement interviews for students from 2 to 5:30 p.m. in the School of Business. Representatives of about 40 insurance companies are expected to be on hand.

Vaccine Anyone?

Of the 6,000 students and faculty who received the oral polio vaccine in the last immunization drive only 3,000 have taken their second doses.

Dr. C.R. Gentry, chief physician of the University Hospital, emphasized today that two doses are necessary for complete protection. The period of protection is approximately four years.

Families wishing to receive their second dose of vaccine may do so at the University Hospital no later than tomorrow.

Anyone who did not take the oral vaccine when it was first offered may take the first dose tomorrow and the second in April.

No Voting Machines Available For Upcoming SG Elections

The Elections Commission reported today that their attempt to obtain voting machines for the Spring election had failed.

The Leon County Registrar of Elections informed the FSU Commission that since this year was an election year, the county could not use the University use the machines. The voting machines have to be wired and channelled for the new elections in the county. Registrar Murray W. Kenna has given the way for next year's campus elections (January, 1965), according to Sam Ashdown, commissioner of elections.

Ashdown asked that students attend the SP and UP conventions this week, and that students participate in the upcoming elections.

Riesenberg To Speak

Smithsonian Institution scientist, Dr. S. H. Riesenberg, will be the guest speaker in the lecture series sponsored by FSU's Anthropology Dept. at 8 p.m. tonight in the Education Lecture Hall.

Riesenberg, curator of the division of ethnology for the United States National Museum in Washington, D.C., will lecture on "Investigations of the Historical Validity of Oral Traditions on Fonnep (pronounced Foon-nup) Island in the Pacific Caroline group."

First introduced to the culture of southwest Pacific Islanders during his military service in the Air Force in World War II, Riesenberg developed his interests academically, earning a Ph.D. in 1950. He became staff anthropologist for the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands in 1953 and 1954, and has taught at the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Hawaii, and San Francisco State College.

Field observations made in the Caroline Islands last year will be related in Riesenberg's lecture.

Religion Offers End To Strife

For Governor

Haydon Burns

EDITOR'S NOTE: November 3, 1964, Floridians will elect a new governor. The decisions he will make and the powers he will exercise will have considerable influence upon the future of FSU.

We feel that students who know what their representatives' platforms are will be in a better position to choose their leaders. We therefore wrote to each of the gubernatorial candidates requesting a statement of their platforms.

With this issue we begin publication of the information these gubernatorial candidates have sent us. In those instances in which the candidates publish all campaign information due to a lack of space we will publish a condensation of that material.

Readers desiring more information on Florida's gubernatorial candidates can write directly to them or drop by the Flambeau office, 211 Longmire, and read the material they have sent us.

I have been privileged to serve as Mayor of the City of Jacksonville for fifteen years. To emphasize the length of time of service, you might say that the seniors at the Florida State University were in the first grade the year I walked up the steps of City Hall in Jacksonville.

During this period of time I have experienced almost every problem that could arise in the management of the affairs of a great city, which today has an annual budget of ninety-nine million dollars, the largest single business in the State of Florida, and as Mayor, I oversee the services of some 4,500 employees.

I have had a thorough preparation to provide the sensible business-tes leadership necessary to insure Florida's growing future. I like to think I have learned as much about government and public administration in those 15 years as the seniors have in their schooling.

We are now in the formative years of Florida's greatest growth, and the leadership of our State during the vitally important years immediately ahead may well set the pattern for many decades and become the foundation upon which a great state can be built.

The loss of valuable time for orientation and new experience to an inexperienced Governor and the risk of unproven executive and administrative ability could prevent our Florida from achieving its destiny as a truly great State.

By the year 1970 we shall have 100,000 Florida students seeking higher education under the program and policy now advocated which allows a education without one of our every three students.

Because of the enrollment impact and the failure to meet the financial requirements of our educational program, the future outlook could be dim indeed.

I intend as Governor of Florida to apply the lessons learned in building a great city to use sound planning and purposeful financing, providing for the future so that the students of Florida shall have an opportunity for an education in a State University system equal to or better than any in the Nation, and I hereby dedicate myself to this high purpose.

Burns stands for:

A sound approach to all of Florida's financial problems, based on his experience as an administrator.

An end to the present calculated and unfair 34 per cent wash-out of first-year college students—which has been devoutly conceived to make room for the enrollment impact for which the Legislature has not provided funds.

Relief of Real Estate taxes as the only source of local contribution to education. Such relief at the source of the problem, which is money, will afford a higher standard of teacher compensation.

Free Public and Open Schools. Education is our most important state responsibility.

Preservation of Homestead Exemption.

Forever Rights of the Individual states within the framework of the Union.

Immediate full development and expansion of inter-state defense highway program which costs Florida only ten cents on the dollar.

Revision of our antiquated state Constitution with a clear definition of the separate powers of government—executive, legislative and judicial.

Promotion of Florida as "The Sports Center of the World."

Acquisition and protection of free Florida public beaches.

Development of new industry and improvement of the tax climate for all business, both old and new.

Early completion of the cross-state barge canal, and Interama.

Fair and equitable apportionment of the State Legislature.

No extension of legalized gambling.

Lowering the voting age to 18.

A vigorous program of conservation, development and preservation of fish, game and wild life.

Improvements for off-shore fishing industry.

One of the most puzzling and yet potentially the most rewarding situations that exists today in the United States is that between the civil rights movement and religion. In this facet of everyday life lies the most logical, practical, and relatively painless solution for the present racial mistrust and strife.

Religion in an individual's life ranges from the minute to almost smothering omnipotence, and the individual himself determines its influence on his actions. It's voluntary, it's flexible, and it has proven itself capable of guiding the actions of men with mutually beneficial results based upon the principles it espouses.

The leaders in religion, the shepherds of the flocks, are the preachers, rabbis, and priests. Upon their shoulders rests much of the success of religion in playing a meaningful role in man's everyday existence. At the same time religion is influenced and thus reflects the fashions and mores of its sociological environment.

Integration is spoken of as mostly a sociological problem, but because of the nature of organized religion it is very much, if not more so, a pertinent and urgent religious problem. It is definitely illogical when men of different races proclaiming adherence to identical religious principles can't practice their religion under the same roof—save the situation where a religion is delineated along racial grounds. Such a situation smacks of hypocrisy.

But, as was said before, religion is quite social in nature. And, here in this aspect lies the root and hopefully the solution to the problem. In short, as the religious leaders interpret the lofty ideals of religion into practical (meaning workable on the social level) terms in order to resolve some of the undoubted prejudices between the races? Most sincere churchmen don't mind praying together; they worry about what happens when the service is over. All men have prejudices, religious or otherwise. Prejudices are not-always unfounded and they are solved by forceable means—the only way more deeply ingrained. When life is lost in trying to force one's view on neighbors, regardless of color, two of the Ten Commandments have been broken; not only blood of a child killed in a mob, a bombing is on the hands of all.

Obviously, it is difficult for one sitting in a segregated church to take faith in the words of a minister who is illegally parading in the city streets the day before, deliberately defying the law and seemingly unconscious of the portending violence when the cause of all could be settled peacefully in the courts and the land.

A more meaningful and lasting solution to the dilemma is a total moral tact. If the various religious groups would institute some serious "Know Your Enemy" campaign in areas of racial tension, such the mistrust would vanish and solidify. Mutual problems would evolve. Mistrust could not evolve of the unknown. Using force as a means to an end for the sake of peace fears, very few people dreamily believe in "Sit Down and Live" would be applicable to religion and the races.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Free Speech Is Major Issue

Column Is 'Misleading'

To the Editor:

In regard to your editorial on March 3 "Radicals Rule" there are number of items that should be cleared up. First of all the placing of letters in the trash can and the approval of the Forum Committee with the time and date of Mr. Muste's speech was a misunderstanding by some of the representatives of S.A.P., and should not have been done.

Students Act for Peace would like to apologize for this unfortunate incident. But the reason why these letters were printed up beforehand, with the time and date, was that an administrative official stated that he did not see any reason why Rev. Muste should not be approved to speak on campus.

This led S.A.P. to temporarily re-schedule facilities pending approval by the Forum committee. In your editorial you resort to calling our action "rude" and "arrogant" because we did not give the Forum Committee two weeks advance notice.

It would be important for you to understand that we arrived back from Albany on a Sunday, where the Peace Marchers decided that it would be convenient for them to come to Tallahassee a week from that Tuesday.

I printed an administrative official with the forms filled out for Rev. Muste and the Peace Marchers to speak on campus on Monday. I was told that it was customary for a two week notice, but because of the situation it would be adequate as it stood and this would not have any bearing on whether Rev. Muste would speak on campus.

But, Mr. Collins, isn't the major issue at hand that of denying a man the right of freedom of speech at Tallahassee?

The alleged reason for denying the Rev. Muste the right to speak here is that he is advocating illegal activities which are in conflict to Federal and State laws.

First of all Rev. Muste has never stated definitely by what method the Peace Marchers are going to enter Cuba as they are not even sure they will be allowed to.

But even if he did advocate this on the same token as a Communist, under a Supreme Court decision, could not these people overthrow our government and this would not be illegal.

Therefore Mr. Muste could advocate breaking a State Department regulation without it being illegal as long as there is not clear and present danger involved.

Second of all, if the Forum Committee is to remain consistent in its ruling, it would mean that Mahatma Gandhi, Bertrand Russell, Norman Thomas, Martin Luther King, David Thoreau, a Quaker who did not register with the draft, Jesus Christ, and our founding forefathers could not speak on our campus as they advocate the breaking of laws.

Returning to the question of Freedom of Speech and academic freedom on our campus it would be quite inconsistent under the Forum Committee's code of conduct if Rev. Muste is allowed to speak, if invited by professors, in classrooms, and not be allowed to speak to a general body on campus.

Incidentally Rev. Muste has spoken in some classes this past week. This seems to indicate freedom of speech in classrooms, but not at Florida State University.

The Rev. Muste has been permitted to speak at the following universities: Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Washington, UCLA, California, Texas, Chicago, Idaho, Ohio State, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Vanderbilt, N.Y.U. and Columbia, where he speaks to the faculty staff. When will he be allowed to speak at FSU? I feel if we are to achieve an atmosphere of academic freedom at our university a committee should be set up consisting of students and faculty members to discuss the question of Freedom of Speech on our University with the Forum Committee.

Steve Baum

Chairman, Student Act for Peace

To the Editor:

The column by Sandy Turner in Feb. 21 edition of the Flambeau should be cause for concern. Mr. Turner states, "Anyone who has had any practical knowledge of politics knows that rumor can make break a candidate overnight."

Then he proceeded to try to make a presidential candidate was a mistake. He said that a student's experience at this junior college "hardly be construed as a qualification for a major office here."

I have spoken with this candidate and he told me he was student body president at a junior college who had 6,500 students during his senior year. Why Mr. Turner does not consider that as a qualification is indeed a mystery.

On a radio interview, this candidate, referred to by Mr. Turner as not having experience, qualified for the presidency of the FSU student body, stated that he feels he knows the problems of being a president. He said that he could not make mistakes he may have made in the past. Mr. Turner stated in his column Feb. 21, "There is nothing more to be said about a candidate being destroyed by false rumors. This brings us to a second point: there are derogatory rumors being spread about the candidate just discussed."

These rumors should not be accepted. They reached this writer strangely enough, from a student who is one of the other presidential candidates.

It would seem that if a candidate is well qualified for the office he seeks, his supporters should inform the public by making known his qualifications, experience, and intentions and there should be no need for that candidate's supporters to decide a rival candidate behind his back.

Such a decision can be construed to mean that a candidate is backed up by anything that he can offer to the voters and that therefore have to resort to cheap and dagger rumors to hurt the chances of their better qualified opponent.

Theatre Creativity Makes Last Stand On Collegiate Campuses Says Daly

"True creativity is making its last stand in college theaters across the country," said Broadway's Frank Daly, star of FSU Theater's forthcoming American premiere of "Trog."

Daly will play the title role in "Trog," a World War II drama by British playwright James Forsyth, which opens for the first time in American March 18. The six-performance run will be held in FSU's Conradi Theater, which has seen four previous productions on its stage in as many years.

Commenting on the enthusiasm of his all-student supporting cast, Daly says he finds their outlook invigorating and stimulating, as opposed to the "let's-get-on-with-this-job" atmosphere which commercial productions seem to inspire in many seasoned actors.

"The lack of commercial pressures in university theater production is delightful and gratifying. It's the only place left in the world today where legitimate drama is being sustained," he adds.

"The disappearance of stock repertory companies has left the fate of artistic drama in the creative hands of our universities," says Daly.

Discussing theater arts from the dual viewpoint of actor and author

Frank Daly

-- he has written a musical about the legitimate theater and several television plays -- Daly feels they "are in a precarious state in this country today."

Not a newcomer to the world of university drama, Daly studied early with the Columbia Players and has guest-starred in a production at Syracuse University in New York.

A veteran of Broadway and off-Broadway productions, as well as numerous television presentations such as "Studio One," "Omnibus" and the "Armstrong Circle Theatre," he says he doesn't miss the commercial whims and interventions of Broadway angels and TV sponsors. "At all!" There's more artistic freedom on the campus, Daly feels, than there is on Broadway, where "everything has to sell."

"New York had the natural background for good dramatic productions in television," says Daly.

"But Hollywood has stolen that scene from Broadway, too." Ninety percent of the better television drama is coming from the West Coast, he estimates.

"Plays which merit critical success should be the forte of American theater," said Daly, "rather than those having the greatest box office appeal." "England," he adds,

"has been having its own tea party on the American stage for the past two seasons, proving that good drama can also be successful."

While he's waiting for American authors to take up the challenge,

Daly feels, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em," as he did coming to FSU to star in a production that has had wide British success.

"The opportunity to play a role as Shakespearean in impact as 'Trog' is, comes to actors very seldom these days," adds Daly. He feels the role of a grotesquely deformed character like Trog offers tremendous challenges to an actor's ability, particularly when the audience never sees him face-to-face until the end of the first act.

Such a role demands the utmost discipline of an actor, he adds.

"Trog will be tremendously satisfying, if I can go on with it."

Trog's physical appearance will be a matter of acceptance, not only for the audience, but for fellow actors and actresses as well, says the star, hinting at the suspense which Director Richard G. Fallon is said to be carefully constructing throughout the play's rehearsals.

"If we can get the audience to accept without horror this creature which has risen from the bombed-out depth of a London cellar, we will have demonstrated Forsyth's great concept of man's ability to love, and his necessity to live or die because of it," concluded Daly.

Navy Announces New Officer Training Plan For Sophomores

A new officer program for college sophomores who plan to graduate has been announced by the US Navy. The program leads to a commission as an Ensign in the Naval Reserve upon graduation. Two eight-week summer training sessions are also required.

Called the Aviation Reserve Officer Candidate (AVROC) program, the new plan is available for persons interested in both pilot and aviation observer training.

The two summer training sessions are spent in Naval School of Pre-flight at the Pensacola Naval Air Station.

They will usually be during the candidates' sophomore-junior and junior-senior years but in the case of other qualified students, can be held between the junior-senior years and immediately following graduation.

Following the training sessions and graduation, the AVROC is commissioned and goes into his pilot or other aviation specialty training. This program offers the college student an unparalleled opportunity to become a Naval Aviation Officer with a minimum training period. Applicants for the program must be at least 17 and must be able to pass the aviation written exam and flight physical.

Interested students may contact the Fly Navy officer procurement team for further information at the Student Center today through Friday.

Grant Deadline Nears

Professor George A. Lensen announced today that the Committee on International Exchange of Persons is accepting applications for government grants under the Hays-Fulbright Act.

The grants will be for university lecturing and advanced research in Australia, New Zealand, and Latin America during the academic year, March through November, 1965. Applicants must be United States citizens. Lecturers must have a minimum of one year college teaching experience. Researchers should have a doctoral degree or recognized professional standing.

Closing date for the competition is April 15, but according to Dr. Lensen, preference will be given to applications for competition received before May 15.

Further information may be obtained for Dr. Lensen in 210 History Building.

DON MONK AND PAUL BENNETT

... saw plenty of action last weekend in games with Valdosta and the University of Florida. FSU won the Valdosta match on Friday but lost to U of F, 5-4 on Saturday.

Weekend Action

FSU Tennis Breaks Even

FSU's tennis team broke even in action here over the weekend, Friday the netters slammed Valdosta State, 9-0. Saturday they dropped a close match to the University of Florida, 5-4.

In Friday's tourney Lex Wood and Don Caton, the Seminoles' number one and two men, took a rest as FSU won all sets in singles and lost only one in doubles.

Paul Bennett played in Wood's number one position, with Steve Guse substituting for Caton.

Caton did play one doubles match, teaming with Don Monk, another varsity vet. They won 6-0, 6-0.

In action Saturday the University of Florida tennis team barely edged FSU, 5-4.

High spot in singles for the Seminoles came when Wood defeated Florida's Bill Tym, Southeastern Conference Champion, 8-6, 7-5. Caton defeated Dave Bonner, Florida 6-2, 8-6.

In doubles, Wood and Steve Guse topped Bill Tym and Dave Bonner of Florida, 6-3, 7-5. Caton and Monk beat UF's Jerry Pfeiffer and Ron Rehuhn, 6-0, 6-3, 7-5.

Results of the other matches were: Pfeiffer, Florida beat Paul Bennett, 6-2, 6-4; Don Losman, Florida defeated Monk, 9-7, 6-3; and Vic Stone topped Steve Burns, FSU, 6-4, 6-3.

The final doubles match ended with Gardner and Losman, Florida defeating Bennett and Burns, FSU, 6-4, 6-0.

MEN: The golf and bowling tournaments began yesterday. Contact the Intramural office for further information, ext. 2640.

WOMEN: Swimming practices for the March 24 Tournament will be held in the Women's Gym starting yesterday through March 19.

The pool will be open for practice from 5:30 p.m. through 6:30 p.m. Two hours of swimming practice are required to be eligible for the tournament.

Schedules for deck tennis and tennis practice are located on the bulletin board outside the women's locker rooms.

'Pete' Pleased With Practice

BOB CORNET

Football coach Bill Peterson said today that he was "real pleased with the White Team," especially after Saturday's practice session. Peterson said that the other teams should try to come up to the level of this team. Everyone though, he said, is showing a lot of desire. Joe Fetto, Ed Pritchett, Frank Penny and Steve Tensi were singled out for praise by Peterson for good performances in Saturday's workout.

Tensi threw two touchdown passes in the scrimmage, one to Winfred Bailey and the other to Fred Biletinkoff.

Peterson said that the quarterback slot is still a toss up for next year. Pritchett, Tensi, and Tony Gero all look good running the team.

Tensi began last year as the starting quarterback, but was sidelined in favor of Pritchett late in the season. Gero did not play last year.

This strong competition is good, said Peterson, and should prove a threat to opposition next fall.

FSU's secondary lost one of its stronger members with the graduation of Charlie Calhoun, an all-around player. Peterson hopes that Jim Massey can fill his position on defense.

Replacing Calhoun as the punter.

The Tribe also lost place kicker Doug Messer to graduation. Les Murdock, said Peterson, should hold this position.

"He's doing a real good job, and we should be able to really reach out with the field goal."

Peterson also said that a lot of the younger players are beginning to find themselves. "They're pushing the veterans," he said, "and we're glad to see the competition."

Racquettes Win

Racquettes rolled over the Rollins women's tennis team Saturday for the second time this year as they dropped only one set in a match for an 8-1 victory. Lynda West in the number one slot defeated Susan Gerner 6-4, 6-2; Gail DeLozier held off Cheryl Swift 6-4, 12-10 while Betty Brown lost to Rocky Sullivan 10-8, 2-6, 1-6.

Kathy Spence won over Pam Lewis 6-4, 6-2; Lynn Chalmers defeated Nancy Wilson 6-0, 6-1; and Susan Smith stopped Stevie Brewer 6-1, 6-0.

In the doubles, West and Brown defeated Gerner and Sullivan 8-6, 7-5; DeLozier and Spence topped Swift and Lewis 6-3, 9-7; Chalmers and Smith took Wilson and Brewer 6-3, 6-1.

SEE LATIN AMERICA UP CLOSE

How much do you know about Latin America? About the Alliance for Progress? Are you prone to blame for Latin American's problems? What does the Moscow Helms split mean to Latin America? Can we really get a grip on the staggering problems of Latin America?

These are some of the questions that TIME's Special Correspondent John Scott set out last summer to answer. "How Much Progress?" is the result - a 140 page report to TIME's publisher. It is the twelfth in a series of annual studies Scott has been making for TIME, analyzing major political, economic and social developments throughout the world.

"How Much Progress?" also includes a comprehensive bibliography and comparative tables on Latin American population, GNP, exports, prices, monetary stability, U.S. investments, and food production.

A copy of Scott's report on Latin America is available to students and educators at 25¢ a copy to cover postage and handling. Write:

Cagers' Future Looks Good

Now that the basketball season is over it seems natural to look toward next year.

The year should be a fine one for the Seminoles. Next year's team will have experience and plenty of it. Only three men will be lost from the current Tribe.

The only position hit by graduation will be the forwards, presently filled by three graduating seniors.

One starting forward would be the freshman flash, Ron Malmen. Ron led the freshman team in scoring and rebounding. He will have more experience than some of the varsity, since he has played service ball. The other forward slot seems wide open at the present, it's a good bet that Gary Shull will be shifted from center to take this position. Jim Wallace, from this year's varsity, and freshman Bill Glenn and John Rogers will be in the fight.

At center FSU once again will have great depth. Gary Shull, current starter, will be back as will Jerry Shirley, "the sixth man," and Bill Phillips, a reserve on the varsity. Wallace and Malmen can both fill this position. Also around will be 6'9" freshman Ken Doyle and man Dick Danford.

The Seminoles' strongest post will be guarded. Two seniors, two sophomores and three sophomores will be on hand. Pete Gonzalez and Lovell will start again, while Leavy and Bill Peacock also will be in action. Freshmen Murphy, Moe Bloodworth, and Canter will all have a shot at varsity, but probably be red-shirted.

The Seminoles should have a team next year. It should be however, that so many of the Florida and Miami, for example, each lose only one man. Competition will be harder to beat this year.

To win, the Seminoles will have to conquer the jinx that got them this year -- road games. They will have to win on the road schedule all home games.

Pittsburgh Symphony To Open Here Tonight

The Artist Series presents William Steinberg conducting the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra tonight on a show night at 8:30 p.m. in Scott.

Wednesday night the orchestra will perform "Euryanthe" by Weber. Thursday night on Themes of "Klee" by Guntler Schuler and Schubert's "Symphony No. 3." Friday night the program will include Schubert's "Overture to 'Rosamunde'" by Strauss, "Rondes de la Seven Vals" and "Symphony No. 4 in E-Flat Major" by Brahms.

Steinberg, now known as the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra, Arturo Toscanini heard of Steinberg's work and was so impressed that he invited him to become the associate conductor of the newly formed NBC Symphony Orchestra. After working with the NBC Symphony, Steinberg became the music director of the Buffalo Philharmonic, a post he held until 1952 when he took over the Pittsburgh Orchestra. Steinberg has served as guest conductor in many cities of the world. He appears frequently in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, London, Paris, Rome, Berlin, Lucerne and Salzburg. For the past two years, concurrently with his duties in Pittsburgh, Steinberg served as music director and conductor of the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

Students may pick up tickets in Westcott by presenting their ID cards. Tickets are $3.50 for the public.

Miss Kay Vernon of Special Events said that students could get tickets if they know that admission to Artist Series is covered in the $113 tuition fee which is paid during registration.

New Religious Definition Denied Passage By URC

The URC defeated a proposed amendment to define a religious organization. The amendment, proposed by Luther Kramer, would have defined a religious group as "an organization... whose basic primary purpose for being, is to profess a common belief in one God, as the Creator and Ruler of the Universe and as the one to whom ultimate obedience, reverence and worship is due."

The amendment was defeated because the URC felt that it is impossible to define religion, and to expect many of the people to accept it.

After great deliberation, the University Religious Council issued its final statement of policy concerning the segregation of the off-campus religious groups.

The policy adopted by the Council was submitted by the URC Disengagement Committee.

The following is a partial text of the report, which has been adopted by the URC:

"We believe that the Liberal Forum, in picking of the restaurants, has been most effective in bringing the problem to the attention of the University community and in moving the problem closer to a solution.

We further believe that restraint and patience are necessary in dealing with emotionally charged issues. We approve of a recent resolution authorizing civil disobedience in addition to picketing as representing a dangerous lack of restraint in this present circumstance.

We appeal to the restaurant owners to propose a suitable compromise, even if it is an uncomfortable situation. We appeal to the picketers to condone such a compromise, even if it strains their principles and does not meet their ultimate goal. This policy, however, does not preempt the right of Liberal Forum to continue its present policy in regard to picketing. It was hoped, however, that should a compromise be reached between Dean Oglesby's office and the off-campus restaurants, that the Liberal Forum would "condone" this compromise and that they would refrain from picketing.

Lump It Or Like It

Today is the last day for students, faculty and staff members to take their second or first doses of the trivalent oral polio vaccine. Students wishing to receive their second lump of the oral vaccine may do so at the University Hospital no later than today.

Anyone who has not taken the vaccine may take their first dose today, and a second will be offered in April.

Stokes Presents Organization Plan

Women's Vice President Clyda Stokes presented the new organization for women's government yesterday in women's senate.

This piece of legislation was given the support of women's senate. It will be presented to student senate next week.

The organization of women's government shall be included in the student government constitution along with the organization of men's senate if student senate approves.

Dixon Receives Carrol Award At Religion In Life Luncheon

Miss Irene Dixon received the 1964 Blanche Kinyard Carrol Memorial Award from Dean of Student R.R. Oglesby yesterday during the Religion In Life luncheon.

The Memorial Award was inaugurated at FSU in 1960. Established by Judge Donald K. Carroll in memory of his mother, the Award is given in recognition of the student judged to have rendered the greatest service to FSU through leadership, scholarship and service to fellow students, and who personally exemplifies the highest ideals of the religious life.

According to University Chaplain

W.D. Brown, the Carroll Award has grown in stature each year and this year 2 candidates for the Award were nominated by various groups on campus.

Recipient of the 1964 Award, Miss Dixon has served as a Junior Counselor, a member of Sophomore Council, and a member of Freshman Flunkies. She has also been a pledge trainer and first vice president of her sorority, Kappa Alpha Theta. She is also a member of Angel Flight.

A member of Garnet Key, Miss Dixon was tapped for membership in Mortar Board. In addition, she is a member of Sigma Tau Delta and Kappa pa Delta Pi, honorary fraternities. Her overall average at FSU is in excess of 3.7.

"In addition to her contribution to the campus through leadership and scholarship, Miss Dixon personally exemplifies the highest of religious life," said Dr. Oglesby during the presentation.

She has been a member of the Religion-in-Life Steering Committee, Chaplain of her sorority, and Secretary of the Presbyterian Westminster Fellowship.

"As a person of deep integrity, personal warmth, and selflessness, she has been an inspiration to all of the students and faculty who have known her. She is a truly dedicated Christian and an active worker in her church group."

"This year's recipient of the Carroll Award is highly qualified in all areas as established in the founding of this award by Judge Carroll. Therefore it is with a deep sense of personal gratification that I announce Miss Dixon as the 1964 recipient of the Blanche Kinyard Carrol Memorial Award," concluded Oglesby.
